Palace Theatre.

If you like French girls, and if you like thrilling tales of the underworld you should not miss the double feature bill now playing at the Palace theatre where it will be shown for the last times today and tomorrow. Fifi Dorsay, Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards are the stars who will do much to amuse you in "Those Three French Girls" and Bert Lytell is the "heavy" in "The Last of the Lone Wolf," the other picture on this bill.

"Those Three French Girls" is the story of a young man off on a trip to his uncle's chateau in Paris. Before he has gotten very far on the journey he finds himself and three French girls being landed into prison for breaking the law. This does not keep him from enjoying the rest of his trip, however, and he proceeds with his companions to uncle's to make merry. This they do for a while until uncle appears on the spot and stops the antics.

"The Last of the Lone Wolf," is, if we may judge by its title the ending for the series of Lone Wolf dramas that have for so long thrilled readers of fiction and patrons of the silver screen.

On Saturday the Palace will present "Amos 'n' Andy" the spell binders who have such a radio following and who are known by every man, woman and child in the country. No one will want to miss this production which has the original Amos and Andy in the cast besides a lot of other well known stars. And an extra treat will be given to the kiddies starting this coming Saturday and every Saturday thereafter. It is a serial with the famous dog Rin-Tin-Tin in "The Lone Defender," a stirring episode at the Saturday matinee only.

Broadway Theatre

With stark drama worthy of Eugene O'Neil at his best, "Renegades," the Fox movietone feature which opened a three days' engagement at the Broadway theatre yesterday, is one of the most engrossing and entertaining talkies this reviewer has seen in many months.

The finest picture of the French Foreign Legion to reach the speaking screen, "Renegades," has much to recommend it. The notable performance of Warner Baxter in the leading role is a revelation to those whose admiration for this fine actor has heretofore revolved around his impersonations of dashing bandits in the old southwest. As the luckless French officer who flees to the legion when his sweetheart proves to be an enemy spy, only to encounter her deadly activities at the moment of his triumph, Baxter's work is flawless. Myrna Loy is as alluring as ever and fascinates while she repels the spectator in her difficult but excellently handled role.

Noah Beery, George Cooper and Gregory Gaye are a contrasting but delightful trio, Baxter's carefree and rollicking comrades in his adventures and misadventures, and C. Henry Gordon, a new-comer to the talkies, is thoroughly convincing as the legion officer. Bela Lugosi and Colin Chase also give praiseworthy portrayals, and the direction throughout by Victor Fleming, is as splendid and smooth as one could expect of the man who made such a hit with "Common Clay" for the same company recently.

The auto was wrecked and the driver was injured.

Rain Halted Demonstration

The democrats of the city planned a demonstration in the form of a street parade last night when it became known that Dean Wilbur L. Cross, of New Haven, had defeated Ernest E. Rogers, of this city, republican candidate for governor. A heavy rain was falling, however, and because of that fact the celebration was not held.

Miss Francis Ogden Jones, who has been at her summer home, 651 Pequot avenue, since May, closed her residence today and returned to New York for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Briggs, Steward street, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Russell Case and children, of Sayville, L. I.

William Blount of 13 Hill street; Mrs. Edwin Gray, Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Francis Robinson and infant son, 17 Masonic street; Mrs. Herman Cohen Uncasville, William Fusconi, 61 Allen street, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The case was continued until tomorrow and Wesley in default of bail was remanded to jail. Wesley, who has been arrested many times on charges of breach of the peace and assault with intent to kill and slay, went to the residence of Anna Ayers, 17 Hill street 10 days ago and quarreled with the woman, inflicting bruises to her face that changed her facial expression entirely. One optic was closed and the other was discolored. Fleeing from the house, Wesley entered a Hudson brougham and speeded away. Several days later, Wesley appeared in New London, went to police headquarters and gave himself up. The case was assigned for trial today, but the Ayers woman, although she is known to have been about the streets daily, failed to appear and testify against Wesley. The case was continued that the woman could be summoned and compelled to testify.

Edward Snoski, employed as a laborer, was charged with breach of the peace. His case was nolled. Snoski was arrested last night upon complaint of his wife. The nature of the complaint, however, was such that a prosecution was not warranted.

WILL ATTEND FUNERAL OF REV. THOS. H. TIERNAN

Catholic clergymen from New London and vicinity and a number of the laity will be in Unionville Thursday, to attend the funeral of Rev. Thomas H. Tiernan, 51, whose death was announced on the telegraph page of The Bulletin Tuesday. Rev. Father Tiernan was formerly a curate at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church in this city and for the last 11 years has been pastor of the Church of St. Mary's Star of the Sea at Unionville. He died Monday at St. Francis' hospital, Hartford, where he had been a patient for the last three months. Father Tiernan was appointed curate of the local church in November, 1904, and served here until late in 1913. He was very popular, not only with the members of the parish of St. Mary's, but with the general public. He was a member of Seaside council, No. 17, Knights of Columbus, of this city. In February, 1914, Father Tiernan was appointed by the bishop pastor of St. Bridget's church at Moodus and left the Moodus church to become pastor of the church at Unionville, Aug. 7, 1919.

Father Tiernan was born in New Haven, Sept. 4, 1879, the son of Thomas Francis and Rose Ann Winters Tiernan. He attended the city schools and in the fall of 1893 went to St. Charles college, Maryland, from which he was graduated in June, 1899. He then went to Detroit, matriculating in the Seminary of S. S. Cyril and Methodius, studying two years in the department of philosophy. From Detroit his bishop sent him to Austria and he attended Lemberg university as a student of theology in the Latin seminary. June 1, 1904, he was ordained to the priesthood at Kochawina, Austria. Returning to the United States, he was assigned as curate to St. Bernard's church in Rockville, July, 1904, and for a short time assisted in South Meriden. In November, 1904, he became curate here. During his pastorate at St. Mary's, Unionville, the church was remodeled and redecorated, St. Mary's cemetery was enlarged and beautified and a field stone mortuary chapel was built.

Father Tiernan leaves four sisters, Sister Mary Elinita, of St. Michael's convent, Hartford; Miss Rose Tiernan, Mrs. Maurice Meaney and Mrs. William Devine, all of New Haven. The body was lying in state at the rectory in Unionville from 7 o'clock Tuesday night until 4 p. m., Wednesday, when it was moved to the church. The solemn office for the dead was chanted at 7:30 Wednesday evening.

STATE KING'S DAUGHTERS OPEN ANNUAL CONVENTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5.—The 34th annual convention of the Connecticut branch of King's Daughters and Sons was held this afternoon at the Second Congregational church and with about 100 delegates in attendance. At the opening of the session, a hymn was sung and devotional service was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the church. Miss Ellen Colt, of this city, and Miss Ada L. Shelley, of Windsor, Conn., addressed the assemblage, the former delivering the address of welcome and the latter responding. Another hymn was sung and then Miss Jessie A. Whittlesey, of Hartford, secretary of the branch, read the minutes of the convention of 1929. Mrs. Charles F. Munger, of this city, gave a vocal solo, after which the state president, Mrs. George H. Prior, of Jewett City, the treasurer, Miss Emma G. Keeney, of this city, and the auditor, Mrs. Margaret Lyman, also of New London, presented their annual reports. Reports of other committees were rendered during the afternoon. At 6 o'clock the delegates were served supper at the Methodist Episcopal church by Union circle.

Schooner Charles and Vivian, laden with salt and en route from the West Indies to Providence, which put into port yesterday because of bad weather, cleared today for her destination.

Comdr. J. C. Baylis, of Broad street, left tonight for Washington, D. C., on official business.

One more tag day is to be held in New London, for tomorrow the Seventh Day Adventist church will sponsor a project to raise money by soliciting from men and women pedestrians. The tag day is about the tenth to be held here within the year.

Edward Maloney Injured on Trawler

Edward Maloney, New York, a member of the crew of the fishing trawler, Kingfisher, is a patient at a Boston hospital suffering from a crushed shoulder which injury he sustained yesterday while aboard the boat. Maloney was in the performance of his duties when he came in contact with a steam-propelled winch, causing his shoulder and arm to be crushed. The trawler was about 160 miles east of Boston and a radio message was sent out to the coast guard, requesting that a boat be dispatched to the fishing boat that Maloney could be brought into Boston and receive medical aid. The patrol boat Jackson was sent to the Kingfisher and the injured man was rushed to the hospital. Maloney is a brother-in-law of the captain, Sylvester Dunn, of Groton. The Kingfisher is one of the boats operated by the Portland Trawling Co. of Groton and is in port several times each month.

SPEEDBOAT HELEN'S CARGO IS SAFE AT PROVIDENCE

The speedboat Helen, long recognized as a rum-runner, which was captured off Block Island several weeks ago with a cargo of liquor, will not engage in the trafficking of liquor in the future, for the speedy craft has gone to pieces in Watch Hill sound; but her cargo of liquor was salvaged by the crew of a U. S. coast guard patrol boat and was taken to Providence, since the Helen foundered in Rhode Island waters. The Helen went ashore on Watch Hill Point two weeks ago when chased by a patrol boat and after a one-pound shell had hit the craft after being fired by the pursuing patrol boat. Upon going ashore, the speedboat's hull was pierced by a projecting rock. An effort was made to float the rum-runner, but because of the heavy sea and severe gales the past fortnight the rum-runner was pounded to pieces.

Sub Base Repairs Deferred

There is every probability that the work of reconstructing the five-finger piers at the Submarine base, a contract for which was awarded the Newport Construction & Engineering Co., of Lee Hall, Va., for $114,500, will not be undertaken until next April or May. The deferring of the work is the result of a request having been made by the successful bidders. It is understood that all the material and equipment for the performance of the work, which is a part of the bureau of yards at Washington awarding contract work of approximately $140,000,000, will be brought here by the constructing company.

SHE LOVED TO EAT BUT WAS ALWAYS PUNISHED FOR IT

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right.

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine. I eat meals and anything I please. At the first sign of discomfort I chew a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the trouble is gone in a minute."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat. These tablets are like candy and just as harmless. If you would like to try them before buying, write Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. Va., and you will receive a sample box, FREE.

BUZZARDS HELP TEXANS LOCATE GLIDER FIELD

DALLAS, Tex — (AP) — Buzzards teaching their young to fly helped the Dallas Sailplane association locate its flying field.

Members of the gliders' organization one day happened to see the buzzards maneuver young birds through a course in flight training. Every time a bird left the rookery, it was noticed that the buzzard flew on exactly the same line, sailed with the air currents for a time, and then flew home always in the same path. The young followed the same course.

Testing the wind currents, members of the association found that the 200-foot hill from which the buzzards "took off" faced the prevailing air currents and it was the best place in the vicinity for gliding in the sailplanes.

PRINCE OF WALES ASKED TO WRIGHT CELEBRATION

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.—(AP)— If the Prince of Wales accepts an invitation to attend the twenty-seventh anniversary celebration of the Wright Brothers' flight at Kill Devil Hill, plans for the event will be complete.

The Kill Devil Hill Memorial association plans to hold the celebration December 17, and it is considered almost certain that the Prince will attend if he visits America in December. Other notables interested in aviation have been invited.

NAVY STUDIES GASES IN AIRPLANE COCKPITS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An extensive study to determine whether deadly carbon monoxide exists as a hazard to airplane pilots and passengers has been launched by the navy.

Blood tests are being made at the Anacostia naval air station of pilots and passengers before and after flights in which all types of planes are used and all different maneuvers tried.

Fumes and the air in cockpits are analyzed to find if there is a dangerous amount of menacing gases. The work has been undertaken by the bureau of medicine and surgery.

VITALITY IS LOW AMONG WORKERS AT FOUR O'CLOCK

Fatigue During This Zero Hour Can be Overcome by Sugar

Finishing the day's work "dead tired" is neither wise nor necessary. Everybody knows that a fatigued system is readily susceptible to the common ills. To maintain vitality during the last half of the day is therefore essential, not only for the sake of health but efficient work.

One of the simplest ways to combat fatigue is eating a food or drinking a beverage that contains refined sugar. Candy, ice cream, cookies and cakes are ideal in this respect. Best of all, they can be bought readily and cheaply everywhere.

Medical men have made many experiments with workers and sugar foods in mid-afternoon and have found the results most satisfactory. The sugar quickly nourishes the body without taxing the digestive system. When the body is nourished in this way, fatigue disappears.

Such sweet snacks as those previously mentioned can be kept in one's desk and eaten while at work. For a sweet beverage, a glass of water containing sugar — the "athlete's cocktail" — is most invigorating. Many famous athletes drink this prior to a hard game. Most foods are more delicious with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

WHARF PERMIT GRANTED TO EDWARD CHAPPELL CO.

It was learned here Wednesday that the war department has granted the application of the Edward Chappell Co. to construct a wharf on the westerly side of Central wharf and has issued the permit therefor. According to an official of the company, the government engineers have looked the problem over, found that the proposed construction is economically sound and offers no obstruction to navigation. Their recommendation was forwarded to Washington and given approval there and the permit has been issued. At the present time there is no statement of what the immediate plans of the company are to proceed under the permit.

According to the application by the Chappell Co., it is desired to build the wharf in the west branch of the Yantic river and to do dredging in connection therewith. The wharf would be 20 feet wide and 60 feet long on the face, with four dolphins extending northerly from the wharf for 230 feet, connected by a walkway, and two other dolphins extending southerly from the wharf for 80 feet and connected by a walkway.

There has been protest and opposition to the granting of the permit on the part of James O. Mahoney, James E. C. Leach and other property owners, on the ground that the proposed wharf construction would narrow the channel of this branch of the Yantic river by about 40 feet, which would consitute a hazard to public and private property during freshet conditions in the river; also that it will impede navigation and is not demanded by public convenience and necessity.

TAFTVILLE

PETER GALLAN POST, A. L. INSTALLS ITS OFFICERS

Over 100 attended the installation of officers of Peter Gallan Post, No. 104, Amercian Legion at the Naturalization club Monday evening. The newly elected officers were installed by Joseph Bellefleur, past district commander. Those who were invested with the authority of office were: Commander, Arthur X. Fessette; first vice commander, Louis Calsse; second vice commander, Louis Erlbeck;; adjutant, Edward Kelly; treasurer, Stanislas Benac; historian, Theodore J. Belval; chaplain, Andrew Frohmader; sergeant-at-arms, Donat Fournier. In his address, District Past Commander Bellefleur said;

"Membership is the agency through which, and the power by which, can be accomplished the ideals and aspirations of the American Legion. Membership is the vehicle by which can be carried forward the program of our organization. Early enrollment of membership gives to national officers the means by which, early in their administration, can be most effectively and most quickly executed the mandates of the American Legion. The ideal situation, therefore, in membership contemplates the early, or automatic, paying of dues at the very beginning of the new administration. To aid in the realization of the program for the year, our legion membership should be in to national headquarters on or before the close of the month of January.

Over a period from the Louisville convention to the closing days of January, 1930, the record shows increases over corresponding dates of the year preceding, of between one and two hundred thousand. Plans have already been inaugurated for the purpose of making similar increases for the year 1931 over those of 1930. If increase can be effected, then it is reasonable to assume that 75 per cent of the legion annual membership will be in national headquarters before the close of 1931. With the power of such an early membership our national officers can do much to put into effect the mandates of the Boston convention during the winter and spring months. In our advance toward such a membership ideal, I most sincerely urge your co-operation. The American Legion should take pride in its membership for the past year. In the face of obstacles arising from the so-called industrial depression, the membership of the American Legion today is the highest in its history, a gain of some 100,000 over the same day last year, and stands at more than 880,000 paid into the national headquarters at the time of the Boston convention.

Not only is the legion membership large, but it is active, unified and imbued with the spirit of unselfish service. The credit for the membership record goes to no one single man or group of men. Post, county, district and department officials have been most co-operative with national headquarters. The rank and file of the legion has been enthusiastic. The program of the legion will be carried on by the same high type of national and department officers as has been the case heretofore, and they should be given the same active support that has been given to their predecessors.

By co-operation with the national and department officers in their plans for the advancement of the organization along with a firm resolve to make your post membership this coming year the largest in your own local history and by giving your post officers your active support in carrying out the work assigned to them you will help in a very great way to make the year 1931 the banner year in that greatest of all fraternities, that brotherhood of men that holds more in common than any other organization on earth—a brotherhood that has stood the test of war and an organization that is still carrying on and that will carry on as long as one legionnaire is left the work of service—the American Legion."

At the close of Past Commander Bellefleur's remarks, refreshments were served, and dancing was enjoyed. Members of the legion auxiliary were guests of the post for the evening.

NORWICH TOWN

The November meeting of Home chapter of the King's Daughters will be held at the Johnson Home Monday afternoon. The leader of Home chapter, Mrs. William E. Manning, who also is county president of the King's Daughters, with delegates from Home chapter and others from Norwich Town, is attending the two days' session of the King's Daughters' annual convention at New London.

Norwich C. E. union, Rev. Howard A. Bushnell, president, holds its fall meeting Friday evening at Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. It is expected that about 200 delegates and others from the several societies in the union will be present at the supper at 6:30, which precedes the meeting. The supper, to be served by the entertaining society, will be held at Grange hall, which is nearly opposite the church. In anticipation of a large assemblage, last minute arrangements brought about this change, it being decided by those in charge that there would be more available space and convenience in the hall than in the church vestry, where it was at first expected the supper would take place. Mrs. Richard Carter is chairman of the supper. Mrs. Arthur Fulton will have general supervision of the kitchen. Those expected to assist Mrs. Fulton are Mrs Reginald Ward, Mrs. Byron Fargo, Mrs. John Yetke, Mrs. Woodruff Sullivan and Miss Beulah Rogers. His accident occurred while playing football at Samuel Huntington school, the first week of the school term. The boy was taken to Backus hospital, where he remained for several weeks.

CONTINUANCE FOR WEEK IN CORMIER CASE

The continued case of Edward J. Cormier, 38, of Hartford, charged with manslaughter, was called in the city court Wednesday morning but was again continued, this time to November 12th. As Cormier has been unable to raise bonds he was taken back to jail to await disposition of his case. Coroner Edward G. McKay has not yet handed down his decision in the fatality which resulted in Cormier's arrest.

Cormier was the driver of a machine which skidded, struck a pole, and upset on Washington street, fatally injuring Philip Cormier of Framingham, Mass. The latter died at the W. W. Backus hospital, a few hours after the accident, which occurred October 21st. The men were on the way to attend the funeral of Richard E. Cormier, of Norwich Town who was killed in Northfield, Vt., in an automobile crash.

C. V. TO ESTABLISH LONG FREIGHT HAUL

A run of 181 miles without change of engine, one of the longest continuous freight locomotive hauls in the eastern part of the United States, will be established by the Central Vermont railway within the next 30 days when the first Central Vermont freight locomotive of the "700" class—the largest and most powerful freight engines in New England—commence running through to Brattleboro from St. Albans.

The "700" class locomotives, 10 of which are in Central Vermont service, are so powerful that they can haul a train of 3,000 tons between St. Albans and Brattleboro without a "helper" and despite the fact that a one-per cent grade near Roxbury must be climbed. Three thousand tons call for a train of from 75 to 100 loaded box cars, depending, of course, on the commodities in the cars.

Surprise Farewell Party

A largely attended surprise farewell party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Wysowski at 18 Kinney avenue Tuesday night. The home was attractively decorated in black and orange. The guests were attired in novel hats. The toastmaster of the evening was Mr. Aldrich. Music, dancing and games were enjoyed and Mr. and Mrs. Wysowski received many lovely gifts, their friends wishing them good luck and success in their new venture.

Attending the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. Novak from Shelton, Conn., Miss Shirley Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. Roylance, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens from Boston, Miss Lillian Roylance, Mr. and Mrs. Janik, Mr. and Mrs. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Kaminski, Mrs. Guzdowski, Russell Aldrich, Frances Diffley and John Ryan.

REPUBLICAN PLURALITY OF ONE IN SENATE IS ASSURED

Democrats and Republicans Remain Deadlocked in Battle For the House—Each Party Has Elected 216 Members, With Two Districts Still Doubtful—Republican Candidates Are Leading in Doubtful Districts, Vestal of Indiana by Three Votes and Yates of Illinois Just Ahead of His Democratic Opponent—Tie Would Leave the Balance of Power With the Lone Farmer-Labor Member, Kvale of Minnesota

(By The Associated Press)

Final returns for the senate in Tuesday's election gave the republicans a plurality of one and probable control of the organization.

Democrats and republicans were deadlocked in the nip and tuck battle for the house. With two districts still doubtful, each had 216 members with 218 necessary for a majority.

Representative Vestal, of Indiana, republican whip, was leading by three votes in one of these doubtful districts and Representative Yates, republican member-at-large from Illinois, was just ahead of a democrat in the other.

It was still possible for an even division which would leave the balance of power in the house with the lone farmer-labor member, Kvale, of Minnesota.

The lineup in the senate also was so close that it was entirely possible that the lone farmer-labor member, Shipstead, of Minnesota, might hold the decisions on organization there.

Reelection of Senator Schall, republican, Minnesota, and the defeat of Senator Robsion, republican, in Kentucky by M. M. Logan, democrat, ended the senate contests. The makeup of the next senate stands: Republicans, 48; democrats, 47; farmer-labor, 1.

This is the same division of parties as prevailed in 1926 and then Senator Shipstead voted with the republicans, who regained control.

Leaders of both parties continued to claim the house as final returns constantly kept shifting the standings. Democrats neared their goal by recapturing the five districts in Kentucky which they lost in the Hoover landslide and picking up a new one—that represented by Mrs. Langley, republican. She was the only one of the woman candidates defeated.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, returned to the capital last night but he awaited conferences and recounts before claiming control of the next senate.

"I will only say," he commented, "that whoever is in power in the next congress I hope prosperous times return to America."

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic national executive committee, insisted the democrats would organize the next house but republican chieftains disputed the contention while awaiting final results.

With control of the house hinging on downstate precincts, latest reports indicated Nesbit was more than holding his own in districts from which Yates previously had polled his greatest strength.

All of the LaSalle county returns were unreported. This county has a heavy labor vote—and Nesbit has long been prominent in state labor circles.

In Macoupin county, election officials revealed that a count of the congressman-at-large vote would not be made until tomorrow. This county was carried by James Hamilton Lewis, democratic senatorial nominee, by nearly a 6,000 plurality.

Of the 302 precincts unreported, 273 are downstate and the rest in Cook county—where Nesbit had piled up an early lead.

SWEEPING VICTORY FOR DEMOCRATS IN KENTUCKY

On the basis of unofficial returns tonight, the democrats elected their candidates in Tuesday's election for both the long and short senate terms over the republican incumbent, and had elected nine of the 11 representatives.

Returns from 3,602 of 4,115 precincts gave Judge M. M. Logan, democrat, 289,309 votes to 258,266 for Senator Robsion, Ben Williamson, running mate of Logan, led by about the same majority in the race for the short senate term.

In addition to regaining the five congressional seats lost two years ago, the democrats picked up a sixth representative in the tenth district, which gave a democratic majority for the first time in history. Mrs. Katherine Langley, republican, who succeeded her husband in congress, was defeated by A. J. May, democrat, by approximately 8,000 votes out of 59,000 cast.

NEITHER WIFE NOR HUSBAND KNEW OTHER WAS ARRESTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—While her husband and an associate were held today for a $200,000 mail fraud, Mrs. Bessie Griffin, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Tuskegee, Ala., sold a police dog for $150 to a detective who arrested her for assault and carrying a gun.

The husband, George W. Griffin, assistant treasurer of the L. C. Smith Typewriter company, was taken into custody on the mail fraud charges by federal investigators on the company's complaint. He did not know his wife was jailed, nor did she know that he was a prisoner.

After Griffin's arrest detectives seized Raymond Shannon, 38, of Queens, comptroller of the typewriter company, for alleged juggling of accounts in the New York office.

Meanwhile Mrs. Griffin gave police something to think about. While the two men were being held for hearing before a federal commissioner, she explained to interviewers that since she wore jewelry worth $30,000 she felt safer in prison. She said she always had craved prison fare "and now I've got it.

Mrs. Griffin was arrested in a Times square hotel when, police said, she attacked a waiter who brought a tray of food to her room, and pointed a pistol at three detectives sent to subdue her.

FORMER MAGISTRATE EWALD AND WIFE FINGERPRINTED

The former city magistrate and his wife, indicted on charges that Ewald's city judgeship was paid for, complied with the ceremony always required on criminally indicted persons only after a court order had required them to do so—and then they were a day late.

From headquarters they had to go before Supreme Court Justice McCook and explain their dalliance. They were stiffly lectured for having failed to appear yesterday as directed, but the justice did not forfeit their bail as he might have done.

DEATH TOLL OF COAL MINE EXPLOSION PLACED AT 79

MILLFIELD, O., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The inhabitants of this little mining village, who were spared in the explosion at the Sunday Creek Coal company's No. 6 mine, resumed their normal ways tonight although still stupified by yesterday's disaster. The explosion killed 79 persons, including seven officials of the Sunday Creek company, and injured 20 others who are in hospitals. Some of the injured are expected to die.

There was a possibility, officials said, that other bodies were still in the mine and might never be recovered. It was feared several others may have been blown to pieces by the explosion in the shaft or buried by falling walls and ceilings.

CHIARELLO AND ADAMO ACQUITTED OF MURDER

TORRINGTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Domenico Chiarello and Theodore Adamo were acquitted today by a jury in superior court at Litchfield of first degree murder in the slaying last May of Antonio Russo. The jury returned its verdict after deliberating four hours.

Immediately after he had been freed of the murder charge, Adamo was re-arrested by a state police on a bench warrant charging with blackmail. The warrant was issued by Judge Frank P. McEvoy, who sat in the murder trial, on the request of State's Attorney Walter Holcomb.

Adamo, police charge, demanded several thousands dollars from John De Michael, former state representative and road contractor, last April and threatened to "blow him up" unless the demands were met.

CONSIDERING CIVILIAN GOVERNMENT FOR PERU

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 6—(AP)—The military junta, now in control of the Peruvian government, is understood to be discussing the possibility of seeking collaboration of the civilian element as members of the cabinet.

Under the plan only the war and naval portofolios would remain in the hands of the military and naval authorities while the other posts would be filled by civilians.

It was learned from reliable sources that the transformation to a civilian government will occur within a few weeks when the junta will call a national assembly and general elections. As soon as the assembly meets the military cabinet will resign and the assembly will reform the constitution and proclaim Lt. Col. Sanchez Cerro head of the junta as provisional president.

BUFFALO COUNCIL AGAINST TAGGING OF AUTOMOBILES

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 6.—(AP) — The Buffalo city council has unwillingly legislated out of existence one phase of police work—tagging automobiles for illegal parking.

The council passed an ordinance prohibiting "the placing of any printed card, handbill or paper on or in any automobile while the same is on any street or public place of the city without the consent of the owner of the automobile."

The ordinance has not been signed by the mayor, who indicated he would send it to the city's law department for interpretation before signing it.

CLOSE CONTEST FOR GOVERNOR IN KANSAS

TOPEKA, Kans., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Revised unofficial returns from the 2,674 precincts in Kansas give for governor: Harry H. Woodring, democrat, 214,678; Frank Haucke, republican, 214,652, and John R. Brinkley, independent, 180,970.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR BRITISH LABOR GOVT.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The labor government tonight recorded a majority of 67 in carrying the education bill, which raises the age that children may leave school from 14 to 15, on second reading. The vote was 294 to 227.

Drys Find Solace In Outcome Of Election

Notwithstanding Wets Claim Election of All But 16 of the 160 Candidates They Supported

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—Wet claims of five senate and 70 house election gains for repeal of the 18th amendment were disputed today by prohibitionists in and out of congress, who contended the dry cause had not been damaged by the sweeping democratic victories.

One wet organization—The Federal Dispensary Tax Reduction league—replied that all but 16 of 160 candidates receiving its support had won in Tuesday's voting.

While conceding that the elections revealed a lack of efficient organization among the drys in many sections, the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, held the results were "democratic rather than wet."

The Anti-Saloon league took the view that the dry cause had "weathered the democratic landslide and the unprecedented wet campaign in a remarkable way."

A "very significant" fact, it added, was that "No former dry who wabbled or betrayed primary declarations was elected."

The reelected Senator Sheppard, coauthor of the 18th amendment, said the election indicated the people were swinging back to the democratic party and prohibition would be safe in the new congress taking office in December, 1931.

"Tremendous wet gains," might be indicated to the average reader at first glance, but in reality there would be little change in the "so-called wet and dry line up," said Edwin C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the National Temperance Bureau.

Another wet phase of the dry's news developed in the announcement at Reno, of Representative Arentz, republican, Nevada, who was reelected, that upon his return to congress he would urge a revision of the 18th amendment to permit a federal or government-state liquor dispensary system, or both.

The Methodist board asserted that "despite claims of hopeful wets, the dry majority in the house has apparently been reduced only a few votes and the overwhelming dry majority in the senate not at all."

While the "wet Mr. Bulkley" won the senatorial race in Ohio, the board said this was offset by the election of the "dry Mr. White" for governor.

Senator Hastings' defeat of former Senator Bayard in Delaware and Representative Dickinson's victory over Senator Steck in Iowa were both described as dry victories.

"The defeat of Mrs. McCormick and of Mr. Tuttle," the board added, "show clearly that it is suicide for the republican party to give aid and comfort to the wet cause in nearly any northern state."

The big majorities given the repeal referenda in Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts were described by the board as "held in distinctly wet territory."

RICKENBACKER PRESENTED CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.— (AP) — Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker, America's ranking World war ace, today was presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor while about him clustered veteran fliers whom he led on the western front to the largest number of victories of any American squadron.

The presentation was made by President Hoover, who faced a chilling wind at Bolling field to attend the elaborate ceremonies in honor of the fighter credited with 26 victories in the during the World war.

Only one of the flier's exploits was mentioned in the citation for which the medal was awarded him at the last session of congress. It told how, 12 years ago, Rickenbacker, while on patrol duty over the enemy lines, attacked alone seven planes, five of them Fokkers protecting two bombers, and shot down one of each type before retiring.

RECORD FLIGHT FROM NEW YORK TO HAVANA

HAVANA, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Nine hours and 21 minutes after leaving the suburbs of New York this morning, Captain Frank M. Hawks tonight set his mystery monoplane "13" down in the semi-darkness of Curtiss airport with a new record for an airplane flight from the American metropolis to the Cuban capital.

Captain Hawks left Curtiss field at 8:50 a. m., and landed here at 6:11 p. m. He lost 42 minutes en route, stopping for 23 minutes at Jacksonville and 20 at Miami this afternoon.

The previous record—14 hours—was made March 5, 192, by the late Wilmer Stultz, who carried Charles A. Levine and Miss Mabel Boll in a non-stop trip.

"Guss I've beaten the Mabel Boll-Charles Levine record by more than five hours, at that," Hawk said.

The flier told the Associated Press he averaged 182 miles an hour, flying against the 35-mile-an-hour wind.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF PLAN SUGGESTED BY MAYOR CURLEY

BOSTON, Nov. 6.— (AP) —Mayor James M Curley, of Boston, suggested an unemployment relief plan to the state emergency committee that provided for the purchase now by cities and towns of all unperishable supplies to be needed during the coming year. Curley estimated that if his plan were adopted throughout the country, it would mean a purchase of $900,000,000 worth of goods; would clean out storehouses, and would start the wheels of industry almost immediately.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT OF $40,000

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Police tonight arrested Mrs. E. J. Polizzi, 29, on a charge of embezzling $40,000 from the Eureka Homestead society. Mrs. Polizzi is a former employe of the society.

W. E. Wood, state bank examiner and assistant supervisor of Homestead and Loan association, said the Eureka society was protected by surety bonds aggregating $45,000.

Millions Of Russians To Celebrate Today

Thirteenth Anniversary of Communist Revolution—Lenin Tomb to Be Open to Public

MOSCOW, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The new tomb of Nicolai Lenin, "god of communism," on Red square, will be opened to the public tomorrow as one of the main events of the 13th anniversary of the communist revolution.

The tomb took 16 months to construct. Ten thousand tons of native granite were used, and it will be one of the sights of Moscow. Lenin's body, still as natural as life, has been lying in the Kremlin for the past 18 months and will be removed to the new tomb for the view of the public.

Delegations from other countries, including 55 American workers, have arrived here for the anniversary.

Millions of Russians this afternoon quit work in preparation for tomorrow's observance. Parades, lectures, speeches and meetings throughout the entire union will mark the anniversary. All vodka and liquor shops will be closed.

Tonight huge red banners were unfurled in every city in the soviet union and millions of electric lights illumined the streets. The government also issued orders for extra rations.

The biggest of all celebrations will be held in Moscow, where the highest officials, including Joseph Stalin, will review the longest parade of soldiers and civilian workers ever held in Russia. It is expected that one million persons will participate.

Later there will be thousands of workers' meetings, receptions and dinners. All theatres, concerts and motion picture houses will be thrown open free to the workers tomorrow and Saturday.

FIVE PERSONS REPORTED MISSING IN HOTEL FIRE

JAMESTOWN, N. D., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Five persons were reported missing today following the $300,000 fire which destroyed the Capital hotel and several other establishments here yesterday.

There was a possibility, police said, that the five might have perished in the fire. Names of guests unaccounted for were announced by the hotel management as Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Schmidt, W. H. Edgan, K. H. Cook and Leonard Miller.

Their addresses were not ascertained.

None of the five had checked out of the hotel, the management said, and attempts to locate them since the blaze have proven futile. A clerk at the hotel said he had aroused all guests when the fire first broke out. Miller may not have been in the building at the time, the management said, as he generally slept in his room during the day. Names of the five were obtained from a card index salvaged from the flames, the register having been destroyed.

An investigation did not get uner

An investigation did not get under way until today because the ruins still smouldered, but fire officials advanced a theory the fire may have been due to defective wiring.

NAGOYA, JAPAN, JOINS 1,000,000 POPULATION CITIES

NAGOYA, Japan, Nov. 6—(AP)—Nagoya has joined the list of cities boasting a population of more than a million, making Japan the only great power besides the United States possessing three cities of this size. This industrial center of Central Japan held a big municipal celebration when it was revealed that a preliminary check of the figures gathered in the national census of October 1 gave Nagoya a population of 1,031,895. Osaka and Tokyo, each with more than 2,000,000, are the other Japanese cities in the million class.

China has half a dozen cities which may or may not be of this class—Shanghai certainly and Peiping, Hankow, Canton, Hangchow and Chungking possibly—but Chinese population figures are mostly guesswork.

FACTS ABOUT THE SWEDISH METHOD OF LIQUOR CONTROL

Placed Before Law Enforcement Commission by John M. Morehead, American Minister to Sweden—Later the Commission Will Have Before It Facts and Figures Concerning the Canadian System and Other Control Plans in Every Part of the World

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—Facts concerning the Swedish method of liquor control, known as the Bratt system, were laid before President Hoover's law enforcement commission today by John M. Morehead, American minister to Sweeden, as part of the commission's investigation into various liquor control systems.

The law enforcement group already is deep in its task of preparing a report on just what, if anything, they believe should be done about the dry law in this country.

Considerable speculation at first surrounded the request to the American minister that he appear, but assurance was given later that the commission also will have before it facts and figures concerning the Canadian system and other control plans in virtually every part of the world. Morehead is in the United States on a leave of absence.

Under the Bratt system, upon which Morehead was questioned not only as to its provisions but as to its effect upon temperance, liquor is controlled under the government by monopolies financed by private capital. The quantities of liquor purchaseable by an individual are limited to a maximum of approximately four and one-fifth quarts of spirits a month.

A second witness to appear before the commission today was Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of the Pennsylvania state police, who is familiar with liquor conditions in that state. The detailed testimony of both witnesses was kept secret.

Other witnesses will appear before the commission later, and the possibility was advanced today that prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock might be among them. Woodcock has been summoned to return to Washington from San Francisco, where he was about to sail for Honolulu. He is expected to reach the capital by November 18.

Assurance was given today that completion of the commission's prohibition report before that date is not probable. A rumor that the group's recommendations might be in shape to lay upon President Hoover's desk by the end of next week was emphatically denied.

Chairman Wickersham himself answered with a smile when asked if his previously expressed hope for presentation of the report to congress "early in December" would materialize. He said:

"I won't make any predictions now. I might be wrong."

Later authorities assurance was given that a majority of the commissioners themselves have not finally decided upon just what the final form of their report will contain, and the possibility arose that a majority and minority report might result.

Several of the members have definite views, however, and some of them have placed their decisions in writing. Further, a court reporter has been employed to attend some of the sessions to record points upon which all agree.

Federal Judge Kenyon of Iowa arrived in Washington today and took his place with the group as it convened. Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, who is detained by a case in which he is counsel, was the only absent member.

Although Chairman Wickersham has planned to take a short trip to Wilmington, Del., tomorrow, he will return to Washington by Saturday and the sessions will continue uninterrupted.

SOVIET MINISTER DENOUNCES DISARMAMENT COMMISSION

GENEVA, Nov. 6—(AP)—Resuming its efforts to draft a general disarmament convention, the league of nations preparatory disarmament commision had its first sitting today enlivened by a critical ironic attack from Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign minister.

The Russian delegate, in a declaration declared out of order by Chairman Loudon, denounced the commission for rejecting the Soviet disarmament proposals at earlier sessions, spoke with sarcasm of the "speed" with which the league's disarmament program is advancing and told the assembled statesmen that Europe faces grave war menaces.

Since the commission met last in the spring of 1929, he said, new antagonisms, both political and economic, have arrayed nation against nation in a hostile posture against each other and created a situation dangerous for world peace. His attack was particularly directed against that school of political thought which demands security before disarmament.

SURPRISE CAUSED BY RECALL OF DRY DIRECTOR

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—Cutting short an inspection trip being made by Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, to the west coast and Honolulu, the department of justice has summoned him to Washington to prepare data requested by President Hoover and to confer with Attorney General Mitchell on the question of appropriations.

The recall of Woodcock caused surprise in circles close to the prohibition enforcement unit because of his known desire to spend more time in the field than in his Washington office. During the last two months Woodcock has been out of Washington most of the time visiting New York city, upstate New York, Chicago, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin points and on the present trip he planned not to return to the capital until after December 1.

SEVEN PERSONS HELD IN CONNECTION WITH SLAYING

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Six men and a woman were under arrest tonight for investigation in connection with the slaying of Alexa Adams, 24-year-old kitchen helper, whose body was found partially burned in a hotel furnace last night.

Police said Otto Schmidt, hotel chef, admitted quarreling with Adams, but denied knowledge of his death, as did the others. They were: John Nur—, 46, butcher; John Glaser, 32, poultryman; Abe Shop, 23, laborer; Billie Sutton, waitress, and Wayman De Shields, Negro bellboy, who found the body.

Police said Schmidt's right hand had been burned, and that they found what appeared to be soot on an overcoat and hat in his room.

GLORIA SWANSON OBTAINS AN INTERLOCUTORY DIVORCE

TUNNEY CONTINUES DEFENSE OF $500,000 SUIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Ghosts of the days when the late Tex Rickard was the king pin of the fight game and boxing was happy and prosperous, wandered today through the supreme court where Gene Tunney is fighting off a $500,000 attack on his bank roll.

Names to conjure with in the political field jutted out in the testimony of the retired heavyweight champion as Tunney fired every gun against Tim Mara's action for breach of contract dating back to Gene's pre-title days.

In his effort to prove that Mara, a Broadway bookmaker, had not alone made possible his chance to fight Jack Dempsey in 1926 and thereby won for himself the right to 25 per cent of his ring earnings, Tunney brought up most of the names in the political register of New York democracy, as well as some republican leaders.

BRIAND'S FOREIGN POLICY ATTACKED BY DEPUTIES

PARIS, Nov. 6— (AP) —Aristide Briand's foreign policy, particularly with reference to reapproachment with Germany, came under heavy fire in the chamber of deputies today.

Franklin-Bouillon, opposition deputy delivered the main attack this afternoon to the applause of the entire governmental majority and Foreign Minister Briand probably will reply tomorrow.

Despite the fact that Franklin-Bouillon expressed sentiments which pleased supporters of the Tardieu government, it was generally thought that the dilemma in which they would place the government if they should repudiate the foreign minister, will prevent defections that would endanger the life of the cabinet.

PINCHOT HAS LEAD OF 79,526 OVER HEMPHILL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Unofficial returns from all but 45 districts in the state in Tuesday's election give Gifford Pinchot, republican, a lead of 79,526 over John M. Hemphill, his democratic-liberal party opponent for governor. The totals for 8,276 out of 8,321 districts were Pinchot 1,067,629; Hemphill, 988,103.

The missing districts include Erie county, 21; Northumberland, 11; Philadelphia, 6; Luzerne, 5, and Lycoming and Wyoming one each.

These unofficial totals do not take into account discrepancies found in the official count of the Philadelphia vote begun today and not completed.

HOLLANDERS INSPECT GERMAN SEA LANE DO-X

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 6—(AP)—The big seaplane Do-X swung at anchor in the Schellingwoude basin today, catching her breath after the 600-mile flight from Altenrhein yesterday, but as the day wore on her officers and crew were exhausted.

Ten thousand Hollanders, surging in on bicycles, in watercraft and afoot, jammed the points of vantage ashore from which the huge plane can be observed and more than a thousand of them trooped through its 150-foot passenger deck, inspected its kitchenette and bar and even looked over the technical equipment.

IMPROVEMENTS AT METHODIST CHURCH ARE PLEASING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 6. — Much comment of favorable nature is being made of the redecoration of the First Methodist Episcopal church auditorium. The work was done at a cost of about $1,400 which is expected to be paid from Thanksgiving day offerings, many of which are already pledged. The committee is looking forward to a total in donations over the amount of the work done and in this event will utilize the extra moneys in a few added renovations to be made during the winter months.

The auditorium presents a most tasteful color combination. The ceiling has been beautifully stippled in cream and the walls are patterned in the modern sand swirl design of a rich ochre color, touched up in mottled design by raw sienna and umber-colored sand blown into the surface. A plain troweled border of burnt sienna runs between the two colors giving a simple but restful and worshipful effect. The dignified old colonial style of the building has been cleverly interpreted in the decorations. The woodwork has been cleaned, polished and varnished. The work was completed in 13 days by six expert workmen.

DEATH OF JOSEPH HEPEL FOLLOWS LONG ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 6. — Joseph Hepel, 53, died during last night at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam after having been a patient there for several weeks. The announcement of his death was received this morning with deep regret by his many friends and especially by those men still resident here with whom he served in the Spanish-American war.

Mr. Hepel, a son of the late Arthur Hepel, who for many years was employed here by the New Haven road, was born in Canada, but came here with his parents when he was a child. He attended local schools until he was about fourteen years of age, and then went to New Orleans where his uncle, who was a priest, was located for further study. Later, he returned to Danielson and was but 21 years of age when he went out with old Company F of the Third Connecticut infantry for service in the Spanish-American war. During the months he was in service his regiment remained in training camps at Niantic, Camp Meade, Pa., and at Savannah. After being mustered out he returned here, remained for a time and then enlisted in a regular army regiment. After being stationed in California for a time his regiment was ordered to the Philippines, where he was engaged in hard campaigning with troops under General Lawton. He took part in several engagements against the insurgents.

Having completed his term of service and being returned to the United States he made his home in New York for years and also lived for a time in Waterbury. For several years past he has made his home here. Mr. Hepel is survived by his mother, resident on Franklin street, and by a sister, Mrs. Arthur Huard, of Woonsocket. The body was brought to L. E. Kennedy's funeral home here today.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Jennie Kelley

Another death last night, at St. Joseph's hospital in Providence, was that of Mrs. Jennie Kelley, 42, for many years a resident of Danielson. Mrs. Kelley had undergone a series of surgical operations, the last one only a few days ago. Her condition had been extremely critical for a week prior to her death. She was born in Baltic, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph St. John. Both parents are dead.

Mrs. Kelley leaves a sister, Mrs. George Pope of Goodyear, and a brother, resident in Providence. The body is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nazaire Pepin, on Mechanic street.

A pair of boys were picked up this afternoon by State Officer Royal V. Scranton, for questioning. It appears that damage said to amount to $200 has been done by boys at the Gables, the many apartmented structure on Morin avenue, in the northern section of Danielson. Tile and drainage pipes are said to have been smashed as part of the damage and this afternoon state officers were endeavoring to find out who is responsible for the vandalism.

Israel Glassman, who was knocked down by an automobile in Main street, an evening the first of this week, said today that he is injured in greater degree than was at first indicated. He remained in bed yesterday and was given attention by a physician. Mr. Glassman said today that his side is injured and that he is to be x-rayed to determine the nature and extent of the injury. He said further that he saw the situation that was developing just before he was struck, but could not escape. The car that figured in the affair was operated by James Shipman of this town.

It was stated today that returns on the annual canvass here for the Day Kimball hospital have been delayed beyond the time limit usually assigned to their completion. It is necessary that these returns, especially the board memberships, be sent in at once to Mary L. Young of 217 North Main street. The membership fees are $1.00. This should not be confused with the appeal for the Nurses' Home fund of the hospital. It provides money for the hospital board to use in meeting the regular yearly needs of the hospital, and the money received is gratefully appreciated.

Bound Over For Embezzlement

W. A. Bowen, Pomfret, on complaint of his former employer, Byron M. Lewis of East Killingly, was before the town court this morning to face an embezzlement charge. He pleaded not guilty, but probable cause was found for holding for trial in the superior court for this county. His bond was fixed at $500. Bowen is specifically charged with having sold between July and December last year, to a man resident in Pascoag, milk to the value of $92. Mr. Lewis alleges that Bowen never reported these sales to him, nor turned in any of the money he is charged with having collected and retained. Mr. Lewis charges he never discovered the things he alleges against Bowen until September of this year when the Pascoag man came to buy more milk and made mention that he had purchased quantities of milk at the Lewis farm during 1929. Mr. Lewis says that is the first he ever knew of the matter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Handel and Mr. and Mrs. William Young, all of Attawaugan, left this morning to motor to Florida, where they plan to remain until spring, as has been their custom for the past decade. They will be at New Smyrna.

Because the regular date for the monthly well child conference here comes on Armistice day it is to be omitted for November.

Cards with Maryland postmarks have been received here from A. J. James, who left Danielson with Mrs. James and their daughter, Katherine, last Sunday for a motor trip through a number of southern states. They plan to spend the winter in Florida.

Workmen are engaged in the more or less perilous task of making repairs to the tower on the town hall building.

It is now indicated that Danielson will have a nice observance of Armistice day, and that business here will be quite generally suspended during the afternoon hours.

It has been pointed out that Louis D. Stone and Arthur Gauthier, who, as democrats, were elected justices of the peace in Killingly, cannot legally qualify, for at the town meeting in October both were elected constables. The offices of justice of the peace and constable cannot be held by the same person.

Numbers of Danielson's football fans will be in Providence on Saturday to see the Brown-Tufts game.

For the first time this fall the mercury dropped before 4 p. m. to below the freezing point. Below freezing temperatures have been recorded in the morning a number of times, but not by early afternoon this season.

Every membership helps to support the activities of the local chapter and contributes as well to the maintenance of the national organization." Red Cross expenditures in rendering aid after disaster amounted between 1881 and June 30 of this year to more than $84,000,000.

On Saturday, Nov. 15, at the Danielson Trust company and at the Windham County National bank, Joy Waller, Pauline LaMarche, Marjorie Mellor, Elizabeth Nash.

Headquarters are to be established at Woodward's store, corner of Main and Center streets. Workers there will include Miss Emma F. Pilling, Mrs. George M. Burroughs, Miss Marion D. Chollar, Mrs. E. H. Keach, Miss Ada King and Mrs. Alfred L. Reed. Supplies and information will be available there. Headquarters workers will be on duty all day next Wednesday and from one to four o'clock afternoons until the closing day of the drive on Nov. 19.

PLAINFIELD

The Halloween party at St. Paul's hall was a great success as is everything undertaken by the Girl's Friendly society. The decorations were by William Collin and daughter Edith, Mrs. F. B. Nigren, Miss Estella M. Bennett, Miss Helen M. S. Axelson and George Axelson. There was a large attendance and the grand march was led by Sonnyboy Bennett and Morris Allard, one being dressed as a baby girl, the other as a funny boy. Sonny won the prize for the funniest boy and his playmate Doris Allard won the prize for the funniest girl. Mr. Marsden was a prize winner, also Mr. Roberts, Miss Mildred Sykes and Jimmie Greenhaugh, Jr. There were games, dancing and fortune telling. Tea and doughnuts and sandwiches were the lunch. The judges were Mrs. Delaney, Miss Higgenbottem, William Collin and Geo. V. Axelson.

Mrs. Wilfred Allard was a caller Sunday at her mothers in Baltic, going there with her sister, Mrs. Mary Blanchard, of Baltic.

Friends of Mrs. Jackson were grieved to hear of her sudden death.

Another death was that of Arthur Dayon, which brought sadness to the townspeople. Mr. Dayon was very well known in this town having lived here for many years.

Still another death was that of Joe Walker who resided in town for several years.

Sonny Boy Bennett has been at Jewett City playing golf.

A jolly Halloween party was held by the teacher and pupils of Rock Meadow at the schoolhouse, Friday evening, amusing costumes were worn, recitations and songs, as well as games, were followed by refreshments. Parents and friends from nearly all homes in the district and guests from the Red school and from Staffordville attended.

Waldo Wellington, who has spent a long season at Lake Mashapaug, closed his cottage early this week and returned to his home in Watertown, Mass.

Miss Julia Heck, graduate nurse, of Springfield, spent the week end at her home in Rock Meadow.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Puffer of Glastonbury spent a day as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Sands at Mashapaug.

PUTNAM

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS HOLD SHORT EVENING SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 6.—The unique innovation of attending school at night was experienced by students in local schools tonight, the evening session being Putnam's participation in the American Education week, now being accorded a nation-wide observance.

Instead of starting off at the customary hours this morning, pupils enrolled in the grammar schools above the third grade, and the student body at Putnam high school, just turned over this morning when mothers, through force of habit, sounded their vocal reveille. However, at 6:30 o'clock tonight the sessions bells at schools rang and students tramped to classrooms to begin their routine under the light of incandescents.

Along about 7 o'clock, parents and friends began to arrive, making visitations in each room until 9 p. m., when classes were dismissed. Supt. of Schools L. M. Farrin said tonight that school officials were well pleased with the outside interest manifested in the schools. Visiting "days," such as the one held this evening, in the opinion of Superintendent Farrin, have many distinct advantages, chief among them being the bringing into personal contact of the teacher and the parent, the meeting being in the interest of the pupil.

Of interest to political observers is the fact that when ballots were counted following the close of the polls on election day, counters found that eight minority party tickets had been cast, five being socialist votes and the remaining ballots being for the support of the communist party state ticket. In state and national elections, a small number of socialist tickets have always been found in the box after the counting began, but general surprise was indicated with the trio of "red" tickets turned up. There were no local candidates running for office on either ticket.

PUTNAM PAPER PRAISES NEW SUNDAY EDITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 6.—The Putnam "Patriot," one of Connecticut's foremost weekly newspapers, in its edition today said editorially of "The Norwich Sunday Record":

"Enters New Field—From tabulated reports The Norwich Bulletin Co.'s entrance into the Sunday newspaper field was most auspicious. Its offering of 'The Norwich Sunday Record' seems to have been a successful excursion into a fertile field wholly undeveloped up to last Sunday when the first edition appeared.

"It is apparent from the make-up of 'The Sunday Record' that its sponsors are not ambitious to publish a newspaper with a state-wide appeal but is augmenting its week-day service with a Sunday morning edition that will bring to the readers of eastern Connecticut, the territory it serves, all of the local news of the section in which they are most interested, seven days a week.

"The make-up of the paper resembles the daily 'Norwich Bulletin,' with a first page devoted to news of the state and nation and paragraphs of world gleanings from its affiliated press associations. It brings the Saturday sports events at an earlier moment than did the Monday edition of The Bulletin. It carries an assortment of feature stories pertinent to its territory and it has eight pages of colored 'funnies' especially attractive to the children of the family, together with other comic strips and pictures of news events. It also devotes nearly a page to stocks and market reports.

"Outstanding in the new Sunday newspaper is its policy of adhering to its daily purpose of furnishing the happenings in each city, borough, town and hamlet in the territory it has so long served. In making its greatest appeal local in a restricted territory, a broad and thickly populated one, however, it recognizes the needs and desires of the readers of the week-day 'Bulletin' for a newspaper that will offer them an opportunity to peruse, during their leisure hours on the Sabbath, the happenings in the territory in which their interest centers. At the same time they may get a general aspect of state and national happenings as well as world events in condensed form. A double column of editorials and a short story rounds out a well-balanced newspaper.

"That The Bulletin Co.'s venture will prove successful seems assured from the reception of the first edition by the public and the generous use of its columns by advertisers. The Patriot adds its congratulations to those of many others, a word of praise for the progressiveness and foresight of the publishers, and its best wishes for the success of 'The Norwich Sunday Record.'"

Among the patients discharged from the Day Kimball hospital today was Mrs. Edgar M. Warner of South Main street, who has been ill for eight weeks. Mrs. Warner was a patient at the hospital for nearly six weeks. Although not entirely recovered, Mrs. Warner's condition is much improved.

Boston newspapers for the past few months, from time to time, have carried accounts of purse snatching carried on in large department stores and in the crowded cars of the street railways in that city. Yesterday a local woman became a victim of the actions of this band of culprits, when she discovered that her purse had been "lifted" while she was a passenger in an elevator.

COLORFUL FOX HUNT AT POMFRET SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 6.—One of the most colorful of sporting events to be staged in this section will be the hunt of the Jacobs Hill fox hounds, Benjamin L. Cook, M. F. H., with Wallace B. Kenyon acting M. F. H., which will take place Saturday afternoon at about 2:15 o'clock when the dogs are cast at the Hoxie farm, southeast of the Gary district. The hounds and riders will meet at the Ben Grosvenor Inn in Pomfret and will trot over the country roads to the starting point. Automobiles are requested not to follow huntspeople on this trek, but those interested in witnessing the start of the chase may get an excellent view of the whole affair from the state highway near the Darling-Stafford farms, where a few moments "check" will be made before the chase is resumed.

Social functions will accompany the hunt. Following the run Saturday, Dr. and Mrs. Goodridge will entertain the hunters' group at a tea to be given at their palatial home in Abington Benjamin L. Cooke, M. F. H., and Mrs. Cook, are entertaining at dinner Saturday evening at the Ben Grosvenor. At 10 o'clock Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Brunt Cushman are entertaining at the "Eastlands" with a hunt ball that will be complimentary to the master, hunt staff and members of the Jacobs Hill hunt. The occasion will be a brilliant one, as the visiting huntsmen will attend in scarlet evening dress

Many members of Connecticut society, as well as a number of socially prominent people from Providence, New York and Boston, will be in attendance at the ball.

According to Colonel Guy Cushman, U. S. A., retired, and former M. F. H. of the 11th Cavalry Hounds, who has prepared the courses, this section of Connecticut offers prospects for the development of the best hunting grounds in the country. In Colonel Cushman's opinion, the rugged northeast Windham county countryside compares favorably and in some instances is better than many of the favorite hunting sections of England, where the sport practically had its beginning.

The hounds will meet again on Nov. 11, at Brooklyn at 11 a. m., and after a flag raising will proceed to the farm of Mrs. Van Brunt, where another chase will be started. The finish will be on the farm of Albert Webb, about three miles east of Brooklyn.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

The first issue of "Tourtellotte Eye" school paper will appear the week of Nov. 17th, it has been announced by Sara Rhodes, circulation manager.

A Scoreless Game

The Tourtellotte Girls' hockey team played the Woodstock Girls at the Grosvenordale Athletic field. The game was close and fast, neither team being able to score.

Southbridge C. E. union will be guests of the Brandy Hill chapter at the Community house Saturday. The speaker will be Paul Swan, graduate of Clark university, now an instructor of English and athletic coach at Worcester Institute of Technology.

Metty Maitland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Maitland, has recovered sufficiently from burns on her face and arms to return to her studies at Tourtellotte Memorial high school.

Sang Song By Members

Quinnatisset grange met Tuesday evening. A miscellaneous entertainment was held, a song written by the members being a feature. There was a cooking contest for the women and a fruit and vegetable contest for the men. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Wing were the judges. Mr. Wing is the county agricultural agent.

John Chandler of Virginia and James Chandler of Keene, N. H., are in town, having come here for the funeral of their uncle, William B. Chandler.

The Hill school held a Halloween entertainment Friday afternoon with original stories and poems, and Halloween songs, followed by refreshments. Several of the pupils in masks and costumes made the rounds of the neighboring houses to share their fun with friends. Evelyn Krukoff's costume was voted the most comical, Alice Goodwin's the prettiest.

At Hickory Flat, Miss., crepe hanging on the door of the J. C. Simpson grocery store, attracted pedestrians and window shoppers to enter the store and inquire as to the death in the grocer's family. "Who's dead," they asked. "Oh, just business, that's all," said Simpson. Thereupon the shoppers undertook to revive business by making purchases. Simpson later removed the crepe.

THE CONGRESSIONAL SITUATION

Eyes are naturally turned to the situation which has been or will be created in congress by this week's election. Predictions of a decided change in party strength have been fulfilled, the balance of power promises to be cut so low as to be of slight advantage, and while this will have no effect upon the congress which resumes its work next month it will present a situation that will include plenty of difficulties for the new congress a year hence.

From all indications, and unless official figures vary considerably from the unofficial, there will be slight advantage for either party, control, in fact, depending upon the few undecided congressional districts. But even should the republicans be found to have nominal control the insurgents cannot be overlooked. They have furnished an element of trouble in the senate during the life of the present congress. They have played with the democrats persistently and if that same attitude is displayed in the house it will mean that while there may be republican control according to party designations there will actually be coalition control with all its uncertainties and bickerings.

While the house has been able to block coalition control in the past, the prospects of its doing so in the future are eliminated by the closeness of the strength of the respective parties. There have been certain members of the house who have been as anxious to follow the coalition of the senate as have senate insurgents, but they were unable to overcome the large republican majority.

The situation as it looms now is by no means favorable for, with no party able to control and the chance to dodge responsibility for such legislation as a coalition may promote, the outlook is by no means satisfactory. It is, however, a situation which has been created by the voters and one that will have a chance to present its own record.

STOPPING THE LEAKS

In connection with the desire to get the postoffice department on a basis where it will come much nearer to balancing its accounts, the suggestion has been made that too much money is being paid for leased property, where postoffices are established, and that there might be such a thing as fraud in connection with such deals.

Along about the time that claims were made regarding such leased property, it was charged that out in St. Paul the government was paying a yearly rent of $120,000 in a building which was assessed for but $300,000. This resulted in an investigation and the report that the corporation owning the building sold bonds to investors for "an amount obviously in excess of the sound value of the property."

The investigation by the department was continued further with particular stress being placed upon leased postoffice sites, which resulted in a report to the president in which it was denied that excessive prices were being paid for such property in the form of rent, but the postmaster-general expressed the belief that it would be highly advantageous for the government if it owned more of its postoffices. This was accompanied by the recommendation that during the next four years appropriations to the amount of about $43,000,000 be made for property for postoffices on which approximately $8,000,000 is now being paid annually in the form of rent.

The matter of postoffice leases is getting the attention of a senate committee as well as the department. The private inquiries which have been conducted are to give way to public hearings next week, the first to be held at Chicago. This should throw an additional light upon the activities of any ring that has been providing postoffice buildings and covering them with excessive bond issues which were sold to the public, and it should also furnish facts which will aid in demonstrating whether the postmaster-general's recommendations concerning the purchase of more postoffice property ought to be carried out as quickly as funds will permit. The effort to get the department on a better and more efficient basis deserves all the help that it can get.

WHEN REVOLUTION WINS

Being the largest country and having had the worst of the revolutions that have developed in South America, Brazil's method of meeting the existing situation is bound to be of considerable concern among other nations as well as in Brazil.

Dr. Vargas, who led the revolution, was the candidate for the presidency of Brazil who lost at the election. Having been called to take charge of the government in the successful effort to end the revolution and prevent further bloodshed, Dr. Vargas has become the head of the provisional government. He has done this despite the fact that President Washington Luis, though a prisoner, has refused to resign. Since his term of office expires the middle of this month, that fact can have no lasting effect.

What is of concern is whether the Vargas government is going to get the recognition of other governments and among them the United States. This country has not delayed long in giving recognition to governments in South America which have been set up following revolutions when it has been shown that such governments are in control and that there is the intention of holding, as soon as possible, elections to have the government established in a constitutional manner.

Some such method is naturally to be expected in Brazil. Indications point to the situation being well under the domination of the provisional government but as yet no plan has been developed for a special election. The idea has been advanced that there might be a recount of the ballots cast in the last election, when Dr. Prestes won, and whose term would open November 15 and have the "discovery" made that Dr. Vargas had been really elected but counted out. The purpose of this would be to avoid a new election, but whether any such means to an end would prove acceptable and overcome distrust is a question. Whether it would convince other countries of the regularity of such a government is uncertain. It would provide a much desired short cut and avoid any difficulties that might arise during an election but, in view of all the circumstances, would it be accepted as the will of the people?

CONGRESS IS RIGHT

Unwillingness to accept the action of congress in delegating power to the traiff commission and the president under the flexible tariff provision sent the question to the supreme court for the second time. It was undertaken under the impression that congress had no right to delegate such powers, that tariff-making was the duty of congress and that it was not legal for such work to be turned over to the president and a commission.

The test was made and the supreme court, after giving consideration to the appeal, has refused to review the validity of the congressional action. That means that the court will not interfere with the legislation, that it accepts the decision of the court when the same question was before it at a previous date and when it was held that congress had acted within its rights.

The flexible tariff provision takes into consideration the fact that congress is not in session all the time, that conditions may arise when it has adjourned which call for adjustment, that conditions are constantly changing and grounds for correcting injustices should be determined by careful study of the facts. It provides for the tariff commission to make such a study, to make recommendations as to what should be done if changes are found advisable, and gives the president authority to accept or reject such recommendations as the commission makes. There is a limit to any of these changes and the expectation is that actual conditions rather than political considerations will govern any change that is made. By this method there is eliminated the reopening of the entire tariff bill in order to remedy just a few conditions where relief in one direction or the other ought to be provided.

The supreme court has held that it is quite as proper for congress to act as it has in regard to the tariff commission as it is for it to give the interstate commerce commission the right to make rates. It is a case where congress is getting aid which it needs in dealing justly with the tariff problem and those who are affected thereunder. The supreme court can find no excuse under the law for holding congress to be exceeding its rights.

GETTING UNIFORMITY

Uniformity is a desirable thing in many respects. When it comes to having states enact laws of a similar character which have reference to common problems it is of advantage. This is particularly true in regard to the many regulations governing motor vehicles and in the general problem of handling traffic. Whether it is possible in connection with the idea of municipal traffic ordinances is a question. Uniformity as to signals and markings might be worked out without difficulty but conditions in cities vary so greatly that getting uniformity in regard to all details is out of the question.

Nevertheless, the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety has drafted a municipal traffic ordinance which calls for adequate and better designed streets; modern and uniform laws and regulations fitted to present conditions, simple in their application and easily understood and obeyed; balanced and coordinated administration and control, affording safe and efficient use of the streets, giving the maximum protection from accidents, injuries and deaths, and affording the largest degree of convenience in street use.

It is so at the present time that if drivers in some cities should undertake to apply the rules of their own cities to the use of streets in certain municipalities they would be subjecting themselves to the liability of being arrested. It would not be intentional violation of rules [illegible] respect for rules which have no application outside of their own city, and yet there are cities which take the view that rules are rules and should be obeyed whether there is any opportunity to become acquainted with them or not.

Getting uniformity is a desirable theoretical move. That it may be obtained to a certain degree seems probable and the importance of getting the full benefit of it can be appreciated by all auto drivers.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

John Moore left the house in a hurry right after breakfast. He neglected to kiss his wife good-by. It was the first time, she reflected, in seven years that this had happened.

"He must have been angry," sighed Mrs. Moore, gazing out of the window at her husband's disappearing back. "He's been in a hurry before, but never too hasty to give me at least a peck on the cheek. But what could be the matter?"

She tried to dismiss the matter from her mind by clearing the table and doing the breakfast dishes. Useless gesture. Mrs. Moore could think of nothing else but the inadequate parting with John.

Even the radio mocked her thoughts, for when she turned it on she heard "A Little Kiss Each Morning—" and switched it off indignantly.

"It must be the dress and shoes I charged last week," she finally muttered. John had warned her some time back that they were behind in the matter of finances. Perhaps he hadn't been able to pay for the Christmas things yet. What of it? Others had charge accounts that lopped over into March and April. Their credit was good. One dun in seven years wasn't such a bad record.

She walked over to the writing desk and pulled out the only drawer.

There it was! The bill from the department store—$66.55, Jan. 2, 1930.

Of course it was her fault. She had insisted on his buying suits of underwear, a tuxedo and shoes. She herself had bought a coat in another store where cash was necessary. They had paid out considerable insurance money, taxes on the lots and ever so many things. But his one bill had probably rankled in John's mind to the point where he was really angry with her.

She felt sorry for John, which thought took the form of action.

In the bottom dresser drawer was a wonderful luncheon set she had embroidered in odd moments many years back. It had been much admired by all who had seen it. In fact, Mrs. Dickerson, a cousin, had offered her $50 for the cloth and the twelve napkins. Well, $50 and—let's see—twenty in her private hiding place—there was ample to pay the long-overdue bill.

Cousin Mary was in, as luck would have it. Yes, she still wanted that luncheon set very much. And she also had the cash handy to pay for it. She would be glad to call for it at noon and have a bite to eat while there, too. Fine.

Mr. Moore came home whistling five minutes earlier than usual.

"Hello, dear," he began. "I called twice, but the operator said no one answered the phone—I suppose you were out shopping. And here's nine or ten kisses—I forgot this morning—I got thinking—"

"About the bill at the Big Store," laughed the wife. "It's paid, John. She kissed him happily.

"Certainly it's paid—a month ago. Why—what—what's wrong?"

"Well," cried the little lady, "I sent them a check—today—I deposited $70 to our joint acount in our bank and then—I—I sent a check to the store for $66.55 and—"

John stared with his mouth open.

"Where did you get $70, dear?" he managed to inquire.

"I sold that peacock luncheon set I embroidered and—what are you laughing at—and where did you get all that money in your hand?"

John handed his wife ten $10 bills.

"Here, have a new dress on me," he begged. "And don't ever sell any embroidery sets to any one. That's why I was so preoccupied this morning. I had a date to meet with the Kitchen Krockery company. They've bought my patent cream-whipping bowl—you know, the one that doesn't allow the cream to splash—and we can expect royalties, besides the $500 they gave me this morning—and—here's the kiss I forgot this morning."

"Will—will—will I get my check back from the store?" asked the wife.

"Then I could buy that set back from Cousin Mary."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—"There is no other record in our history of cabinets and cabinet ministers of so great a work so greatly done. . . . My considered judgment is that Newton D. Baker was the greatest secretary of war in war that our history has yet produced."

If he listened in on the air of a Sunday night in late October, Baker must have found those words sweet to his ear.

They were penned by General Harbord, Pershing's first chief of staff in France and later chief of the supply services "over there."

They came in the introduction Harbord contributed to Frederick Palmer's radio explanation of the significance of the work he is preparing from Baker's personal wartime files.

No Memoirs

Baker has never published memoirs. He had no intention of doing so, but yielded to the pleading of his friends that Palmer be permitted to undertake the work on his files.

And Palmer himself told the Bystander at the time that the former war secretary had turned over his papers, intact as they went with him from the war department, and with no reservation whatever as to use to be made of them, with no document reserved or censored.

From Ralph Hayes, Baker's secretary throughout the war, now comes further light on the detached attitude the slender, dark eyed little Clevelander who headed the vast war machinery of the United States during those grim days of 1917-18 takes toward the estimate history shall record of his work.

His papers went to Palmer, Hayes writes the Bystander, "on condition that Baker should not see the resultant manuscript to be prepared by Palmer, nor receive any profit from the published volume."

General Harbord's estimate must have been all the sweeter to Baker, if he heard it, for the fact that no suspicion of political partisanship could fall upon it.

Harbord was urged by American Legionnaires in the republican convention of 1924 for vice president. This year he headed a busy republican citizens' committee in New York state. He has been an active republican party worker since he left the army for the business world.

Baker's Answer

An estimate of Baker's war time services prepared some years ago for Encyclopedia Britannica, depicting him as a pacifist and saying his career as war secretary "was widely condemned . . . as lacking energy, foresight and ability," caused a storm of protest among his friends.

Baker was silent. Time has answered for him, Time and General Harbord and a distinguished service medal awarded by a republican administration 10 years after the war.

Artificial Respiration—A. P. C. Method (Modified Prone Pressure)

By Samuel R. Benedict, Chief Surgeon, Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, Alabama

Nothing that a man can do is greater than the saving of a human life. So every man, woman and child in these United States, and especially those in industry, should be well informed and thoroughly capable of giving artificial respiration. The first five minutes following an electrocution, drowning or gas poisoning, or anything else that causes the cessation of breathing, count most. The man who runs away from a person who has stopped breathing from one of the above causes in order to find his companions or a doctor is negligent of a duty, because he alone can save the victim's life. Artificial respiration is not difficult and is easily learned and no one can tell when he will need this most valuable knowledge.

The following instructions are especially for use in cases of electrocution, but apply generally in all cases wherein artificial respiration is necessary.

If a man who has been electrocuted is in contact with a charged wire, the first thing to do is break the contact as quickly as possible. There are a number of ways to do this. If the switch is convenient, this may be thrown, or else the man must be removed from the wire, or the wire from the man. Under no circumstances should the man be touched or the wire touched with anything such as wire, iron, wet pieces of wood or wet clothing, which are conductors of electricity. Instead, use a dry rope, a dry belt, suspenders, a piece of dry cloth, dry wood, or anything in this character. Beware of using anything wet for this purpose.

As soon as the man has been freed from the wire quickly start artificial respiration. As rapidly as possible run your finger into his mouth to see that he has nothing in it. If he has, remove it at once. Place him on the ground, then with your fingers covered with a piece of cloth, grab his tongue and pull it forward. If it is difficult to do this do not lose time. Place him face down on the ground turning his head to the side so that his nostrils will be open, bend one of his arms so that his cheek will rest on the back of his hand. In laying the victim out, be careful not to twist or distort any muscles, especially of the neck, arms or legs. As quickly as possible take off his belt, buckle it and slip it up over your arms to above your elbows. The object in placing the belt around the arms above the elbows is to prevent the arms from bowing out and also to assist in giving more direct pressure on the point where it is most needed.

Next, put his heels together, then straddle him, bracing your knees against his and placing your hands just below the edge of the ribs, throw yourself forward, putting all the weight possible on your hands counting one. While hesitating in advanced position, count two, then release pressure and return quickly to position, counting three. Rest momentarily without removing hands, and then repeat this operation. Be sure to throw your body forward as far as possible so that your arms are at an angle, keep your hips rigid, your knees off the ground, and raise your whole weight on your toes and hands. The further forward you are able to throw yourself, the greater the amount of weight that will be exerted and the more beneficial the results.

Do not hurry when you start artificial respiration. Going through the different positions deliberately and smoothly (not jerkily) realizing that this must be done not over 16 or 18 times a minute, is of paramount importance. If you hurry you exhaust your own strength and do not accomplish the results so far as the victim is concerned. Very few men can give artificial respiration for longer than four or five minutes, but this four or five minutes, probably counts more than all the rest of the two hours and 55 minutes which it is necessary that artificial respiration be kept up before all hope is abandoned.

If you, at the end of five minutes, are still alone, then to regain your strength, yell loudly into the victim's ear calling his name. Do this five or six times as rapidly as possible, then with a stick, or anything handy, hit him four to ten hard blows on the bottom of the feet, preferably the heel. Then continue artificial respiration. Never leave a man who has been electrocuted.

This method should be kept up continuously for three hours or longer. Keep it up until the body stiffens.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Bobby Is in a Bad Way

By Thornton W. Burgess

Never, never, never say
You know there isn't any way.
—Bobby Coon

Bobby Coon, like most of his neighbors, has more than once been in a tight place—such a tight place that there has seemed to be no hope at all. But Bobby long ago learned that the most foolish thing that one can do is to give up hope. Now, in one of the tightest places he ever had been in, he clung to hope.

"They won't get me! They won't get me!" he kept saying over and over to himself, trying to believe it. Every time he said it it seemed to give him new strength and put new speed into his legs.

Even so, Bobby was in a bad way. A dog with a good nose, a very good nose, was barking on his trail and, because Bobby was so fat and heavy, that dog was gaining on him. Bobby wouldn't have worried about this had it not been for the two hunters who were following the dog. He could escape the dog by climbing a tree, but he knew that this was just what the hunters wanted him to do. If he didn't do this the dog would catch him soon. This would not be so bad if the dog had been alone, for Bobby is a good fighter, but the hunters would be sure to catch up, and that would be the end of the fight and of Bobby. Bobby knew it.

As he ran he kept trying to think of some place where he would be safe from those hunters, as well as the dog, but the ledges deep in the Green Forest were the only places he could think of, and they were too far away. In the ledges were caves and winding passages where not even the dog could follow and where the hunters could not possibly get him out. He must think of some nearer place of safety.

So, while Bobby was making the very best use of his legs, he was at the same time using his wits. He missed no opportunity to mix his trail, so as to bother and delay the dog and all the time he kept going over in his mind all the hollow trees and hollow stumps and hollow logs and other hiding places not too far away for him to reach, hoping that he might think of one that would promise at least some degree of safety. He was more and more in despair, but still he clung to hope. He would do that to the very last.

All the time Bobby felt that something was wrong, terribly wrong. Where was Farmer Brown? Where was Farmer Brown's boy? Why had they allowed these dreadful hunters to hunt him? It wasn't fair. No, sir it wasn't fair. By keeping hunters away from that part of the Green Forest they had made it seem safe for those who lived there. This was why Bobby had not thought it necessary to be so watchful and careful and fearful as he would have been otherwise. He had not felt that he needed to be constantly on guard. Now, with no warning at all, these hunters had been allowed to enter the Green Forest to hunt him. It was hard to believe that Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's boy would do such a thing. But here were the hunters and here he was running for his life in the very place where he had felt so safe. It wasn't fair. No, sir, it wasn't fair.

"What to do? What to do?" sobbed Bobby Coon as he ran.

What Bobby Coon didn't know was that Farmer Brown, Farmer Brown's boy and Mother Brown had gone away to be gone all night. This was why Farmer Brown's boy had not been on hand in the woodshed to watch Bobby eat his dinner and to stroke him and talk to him and scratch him back of the ears. This Bobby didn't know but the hunters did. Somehow they had learned of it and had been quick to take the opportunity to hunt Bobby Coon. That hunter, who had seen Bobby a few days before, had been waiting and watching for just such a chance. He meant to have Bobby's beautiful coat to use in making a coat for himself. He knew how angry Farmer Brown would be if he knew what was going on, but he didn't mean that Farmer Brown ever should know it.

"What to do? What to do?" almost sobbed Bobby Coon as he ran, panting for breath and trying hard to think of a place of safety.

A. B. C.'s

Joe was reluctantly accompanying his aunt home for the week end.

"What's the matter Joe, didn't you have a good time the last time you were at our home?" inquired the gracious host.

"I had a good time with you, but I heard mother saying her A. B. C.'s on the telephone to dad, and I wanted to stay home and see whether they were going to have ice cream or candy," replied the observant lad.

Unseasonable

"Oh, let me see the paper," exclaimed the young lady as she entered the living room in the morning.

She scanned it eagerly but didn't stop till she reached the weather forecast and she read aloud: "Fair and warmer." Her nose wrinkled in disgust.

"What's the matter with the weather?" asked her sister.

"Darn it, it's going to be warm again, and I can't wear my new coat. It's been warm ever since I bought it."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The National Sherardizing & Machine Co., Hartford

The National Sherardizing & Machine company was organized in 1910, in New Haven, by Judson H. Root, J. McA. Kay Johnson, Shiras Morris and John F. Forward, all of Hartford, and A. F. Shoen, of New Britain, to promote the process of sherardizing a new method of rust-proofing iron and steel commonly known as zinc alloy, an invention of Sherrod Cooper Cowles, of London, England. The process proved to have so many advantages beyond general rust-proofing that it was adopted by the rubber industry on all mandrels for making rubber hose, inner tubes, etc. This opened up a new field and in 1920, the entire plant was moved to Hartford, where larger quarters were available for its expansion.

The Middlesex Machine Co., Middletown, which this company purchased in 1918, was also moved to Hartford in 1921.

In addition to the present Hartford plant they operate a branch plant in Akron, Ohio, which was established in 1923.

Its chief products are sherardizing furnaces and equipment, grinding and polishing machines, printing press guards, plating equipment, mandrels, stock shells and a general line of special machinery for the rubber industry. At both plants there are large departments for metal finishing and general rust-proofing such as copper, nickel, chrome, sherardizing and cadmium plating. This company was the pioneer in the mechanical chrome business which was undertaken for development in its Akron branch in 1926.

Its present officers are: A. F. Schoen president and general manager; F. F. Schoen, vice president and sales manager; W. B. Umberfield, treasurer; John F. Forward, secretary.

GOVERNOR-ELECT'S FAMILY ROOTS REACH TO EASTERN CONNECTICUT

With the little community of Gurleyville as his birthplace, Willimantic as the place where he was married and his bride of 41 years ago a descendant of the Averys of Groton, it is brought to light that eastern Connecticut has considerable of a claim upon Governor-elect Wilbur L. Cross.

The parents of Governor-elect Wilbur Lucius Cross were Samuel and Harriet M. (Gurley) Cross, who were residents of Gurleyville in the town of Mansfield when their son, Wilbur, was born April 10, 1862. He took his A. B. degree at Yale in 1885 and his Ph. D. in 1889 and on July 17 of that year married at Willimantic Helen Baldwin Avery, daughter of William Burrill and Helen Mary (Baldwin) Avery, who were residents of Groton when their daughter was born on Sept. 3, 1864. She was of the tenth generation of the Avery family of Groton and when her father lived in Willimantic he was station agent there. He was a Civil war veteran, having served in Co. 2, 21st Connecticut Infantry, and died in Willimantic, June 30, 1896.

Dr. Cross, on his paternal side, comes from William Cross, who took up lands in Windsor in 1644. On his mother's side he comes from the Curleys, who migrated from Northampton, Mass., to Coventry, this state, about 1760. The family later spread to Mansfield and were neighbors of Nathan Hale. His father was a farmer and Dr. Cross as a boy worked in the village store.

He went to Yale from Mauchaug High school at Willimantic and after gaining many honors for scholarship and work, began his teaching career as principal of the Staples High school at Westport. Then he went to Shady Side academy, Pittsburgh, and while there lectured each year on literature and brought out a book on the English novel (1899).

In 1894 he went to Yale as an English instructor in Sheffield Scientific school, becoming an assistant professor in 1897. In 1902 he was made a full professor, and in 1916 became dean of the Graduate school, in which post he did his most outstanding work in the university. In 1922 he was made Sterling Professor of English, and for one year, 1922-1923, he acted as provost of the university. On July 21, 1930, he was retired as Dean. He has thrice received degrees from Yale, and from the universities of South Carolina, Michigan and Columbia.

He long has been an authority on English literature and the English novel, and his particular liking has been for 18th and 19th century authors. He wrote the "Works of Laurence Sterne," English author, in 1904, bringing out much unpublished material, followed with "Life and Times of Laurence Sterne," adding these to the classics, and later a history of Henry Fielding. He was editor-in-chief of a series of English classics and of a Yale Shakespeare. As editor of the Yale Review, which he founded in 1911, he attained international acquaintanceships. Through this medium also, his friends say, he obtained those contracts which have enabled him to study political government and economics.

His research in literature brought him many honors. He has the French Legion of Honor decoration.

Professor Cross is a widower and has two sons, Wilbur and Avery.

BRAILSFORD GIVEN PERMIT FOR RIDING ACADEMY

By a decision announced Thursday, the zoning board of appeals has granted the appeal of Arthur Brailsford, Jr., of this city, giving him permission to erect and conduct a riding academy on his property on the New London turnpike, in the vicinity of East Great Plain. The petition is granted for a period of ten years, provided all activities at the academy cease at 11 p. m., daily.

Mr. Brailsford some time ago erected a residence at East Great Plain and established a riding academy on his property. He obtained a permit to erect a large barn on his property, the barn to be 150 feet by 50, the board of selectmen granting the permit. The contract was let and the foundation laid when neighbors complained to the zoning board and work was stopped pending a hearing. The hearing was held Oct. 24, at which time testimony pro and con was heard, the board reserving decision. The board's decision says:

"After public hearing held in accordance with law, at which hearing the appellant appeared and was heard, the board finds as follows: That the strict application of the ordinances and regulations of the town and city of Norwich relating to zoning districts imposes an unnecessary hardship upon the appellant.

"Whereupon it is hereby adjudged and decided that the appeal of Arthur Brailsford, Jr., be granted and that he be permitted to conduct a riding school at and on his property on the New London turnpike, town of Norwich, for a term of ten years from date upon further condition that all activities at the riding school conducted on said premises shall cease at 11 o'clock p. m."

One of the grounds of complaint against the riding academy, it is understood, was because of noise late at night made by alleged patrons or employes of the academy.

SECTION OF RICHMOND WHARF WENT INTO RIVER

Several hundred of the wooden flasks used in casting at the Richmond Radiator Co. went into the Thames river about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon when about 100 feet of the wharf with spiles, planking and the land behind and under it, suddenly sank into the river.

There was an extremely low tide at the time which is considered by Manager Joseph W. Curtiss to have been the chief reason for sinking of the wharf, carrying with it the heavy load of flasks which were piled up in tiers there.

Employes from the radiator works at once got to work with boats and ropes, dragging the flasks back to land so that all were recovered.

MADE ADDRESS BEFORE CATHOLIC WOMEN'S COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women was held Wednesday evening in the rooms of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service on Broadway. The president, Miss Mary Maloney, presided.

Reports from the various committees manifested the great enthusiasm of the council members.

An invitation to attend the state meeting of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women in Hartford Saturday, Nov. 8, was extended to all. A large representation from the Norwich council is expected.

Rev. John J. Reilly of St. Patrick's church gave a most interesting and instructive talk on "The Psychology of Sin in Social Work." He spoke in part as follows: "For over two thousand years the teachings of Christ have been known. All people recognize His kindness. The Bible is a story of love battling with sin. Youth is the harvest time of sin. Fear of death, education and baptism are considered as preventatives of sin. We are victims brought into the world with sin. Human nature is prone to it. The evil effects of sin are offset by the sacraments. The constituents of sin are blindness, cowardice and ingratitude."

In conclusion, Father Reilly said we should all avoid sin. It is a battle between good and bad. It is fought in our own senses. They are the outposts of attack. We cannot avoid it unless we flee from it. Sin may be alluring but its consequences are deadly. Mistrust yourself. Trust your God. Pray always for strength.

Stanley Pinski of East Lyme was found guilty of driving while under the influence of liquor by a jury in the court of common pleas at New London Thursday and given a suspended sentence of 30 days in jail by Judge Charles B. Besade was before the court as a second offender and had been given a jail sentence of six months by Judge A. F. Libby when his case came up in the Norwich city court, from which he took an appeal and was defended in the common pleas court by Attorney Edward G. Moran. The jury was out 20 minutes.

OVER $100,000 FOR CONN. COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP

The residue of the estate of the late Mrs. Lucretia L. Allyn of New London, amounting to $105,868, is available for the maintenance of a professorship at Connecticut college. The bequest is to be known as the Lucretia L. Allyn fund. Mrs. Allyn died Sept. 3.

The Lucretia L. Allyn fund is in securities aggregating at current market prices, $105,868 of which $14,770 is in bonds; $2,500 in cash and the remainder in stocks.

The estate is divided as follows: Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals in New London, $30,000; the Baptist church at Quaker Hill, Waterford, $2,000; ten nephews and nieces, $10,000 each; and $19,000 to be divided among some of her friends.

The whaling industry, which played such a big part in the early growth of New England, is more or less directly responsible for the gift to Connecticut college. Capt. Lyman Allyn, father of John Turner Allyn, who married Lucretia Brown of Quaker Hill, amassed a big fortune in whaling, being the owner of a large fleet of whaling ships. When he died, his fortune was left to his son, John, and his daughter, Harriet Upson Allyn, who had married her cousin, James Allyn. Both Mrs. Harriet Allyn and Mrs. Lucretia Allyn were greatly interested in civic welfare and supported many of the charities in New London.

The museum now being erected is built with the gift of almost a million dollars left to the city by Mrs. Harriet Allyn for a park and a museum. She also gave 50 acres of land to Connecticut college when the great educational project was first planned. She wanted the college to be on this land or near it. The rest of her estate she left to her sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucretia Allyn, with life use of the old Deshon place, the mansion, which was their home for so many years.

Mrs. Lucretia Allyn was born in Quaker Hill, the daughter of Sarah Browning Brown and Nathan Brown, who were also born in Quaker Hill. As a young girl she played the organ in the Baptist church to which she bequeathed $3,000. When she married John Turner Allyn, who was ninth in descent from Robert Allyn who settled Allyn's Point, she came to live in New London where her charitable interests were henceforth directed.

GUEST SPEAKER READ POEMS FOR MEETING

For its first meeting of the season, which was held Thursday afternoon in the club rooms of the Woman's City club in the Wauregan hotel, the literary department of the club had for its guest speaker Miss Azubah Julia Latham, professor of spoken English at Teachers' college, Columbia, who contributed a delightful part to the programme by giving a group of selected poems.

The subject of the meeting was Literary Norwich, being a continuation of a series begun last season, and Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, chairman of the literature committee, presided. On account of the absence of the vice chairman, Miss Louise C. Howe, the exhibition of books by Norwich authors was postponed until a later date. Only two were shown at this time, one, a charming book for children by Catherine Kuebler McCormick, the other an attractive volume, The Unknown Indian, by Gertrude Bell Browne.

Next week being children's week in libraries, Mrs. Rena Hamilton of the Otis library called attention to an exhibition of books which had recently been purchased for the children's department.

Mrs. Brewer announced the poetry contest, saying she hoped that every member would send in an original poem, the same to be in the hands of Mrs. William B. Birge before February first.

Miss Rose Driscoll then read a short story by Jane Cassidy Horan, entitled Lovers Talk at Twilight.

W. Tyler Olcott, author of several popular books on astronomy, is also a writer of poetry. Three of his poems, The Keeper of the Threshold, The Caravansary, and The Soul of the Great Bell were read by Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn.

Ruth Foss Brewer, whose poems have appeared in several magazines and "one slim book," closed the programme with readings both grave and in lighter vein from her published writings.

SHE LOVED TO EAT BUT WAS ALWAYS PUNISHED FOR IT

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right.

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine. I eat meats and anything I please. At the first sign of discomfort I chew a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the trouble is gone in a minute."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat. These tablets are like candy and just as harmless. If you would like to try them before buying, write Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. Dependable Treatment for Constipation

Millions of people have welcomed a new discovery of modern science that assures a safe dependable treatment for constipation. It is no longer necessary to shift laxatives or to suffer irregular, uncomfortable bowel action. Science now knows that the success of any laxative depends on uniform internal distribution—that unless it is thoroughly and evenly distributed throughout the intestinal tract irregular and unsatisfactory action will result.

This explains the success of the modern chewing gum laxative known as Feen-a-mint. As you chew this delicious gum, the tasteless laxative it contains is mixed with the saliva and carried to the intestinal tract evenly, smoothly, without shock to the system.

Because of its thorough distribution you will find Feen-a-mint effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. With the proper dosage it is not necessary to increase the amount or to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

PAYS REAL MONEY FOR PITCHER WHOM HE CHASED OUT OF PARK

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(AP)—Four years ago, Rogers Hornsby all but chased Ed Baecht out of Sportsman's park in St. Louis, when the youngster boldly announced he was a good pitcher looking for work. Today, the Cubs, now managed by the "Rajah", were happy to obtain him in one of the biggest deals of baseball.

Seven players and a large but unnamed amount of cash were sent to the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league for Baecht, now one of the stars of the minors.

Catcher Johnny Schulte, infielder Eddie Farrell, pitcher Al Shealy and another pitcher to be announced later, will be turned over to the Angels at once, and three more will be sent on option.

Baecht pitched 49 games for the Angels last season and won 26 while losing but 12. He pitched 362 innings and struck out 187 batsmen. His addition to the Cubs pitching staff is expected to make it one of the strongest in the National league, since the Hornsby-managed Cubs have picked up Bob Smith of the Boston Braves, Lester Sweetland of the Phillies and Jakie May of the Cincinnati Reds since the 1930 campaign ended.

Former Manager Joe McCarthy attempted to get Baecht for the Cubs last season but William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Cubs and the Los Angeles club, refused on the grounds that the Angles needed him in their own pennant drive.

MUCH DEMAND FOR AN ARMY-NAVY GAME

WASHINGTON Nov. 6—(AP)—New demands sprang up today for the Army to meet the Navy in a post season renewal of the service football classic for the benefit of charity.

Secretary Adams, questioned regarding the proposals, said the Navy was ready to play a charity game at the end of its regular schedule if a safe field could be secured.

Speaking for the Army, Major General William R. Smith, superintendent of the military academy, said it could not participate in a post-season game because of the climatic conditions which might result in injury to an Army player and consequent loss of time from his studies.

Adams agreed that a safe field would be needed because "frozen ground in December is not a fit surface for any game."

He explained the Navy could not play until the middle of December because its regular schedule does not end until its game with the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia December 6.

Outstanding among the proposals that came today was a telegram from George F. Getz, chairman of the Illinois unemployment and relief committee, to President Hoover, and Secretaries Adams and Hurley for a game to be played at Soldiers' field, Chicago.

Getz said if the government permitted the two teams to play at Soldiers' field, 150,000 persons could be accommodated and gate receipts would aggregate between $750,000 and $1,000,000, which would be donated to help relieve the unemployment emergency.

Meanwhile, Chairman Britten of the house naval affairs committee, said he would confer with Secretary Adams in an effort to secure the game for Chicago.

Another appeal for a charity game came from New York where it was announced that Grover Whalen, acting for a citizens' committee, would petition Secretary Adams for a Navy-Fordham game at the Polo grounds.

Earlier in the day, Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval academy, suggested the possibility of the scheduled game between Navy and George Washington university being played for charitable purposes at Annapolis on November 29.

HARVARD'S CHANCES BRIGHTER AS FOUR REGULARS RETURN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 6—(AP)—Harvard's football chances against Michigan, which appear woeful, brightened a bit today, when Head Coach Arnold Horween learned that four of his outstanding cripples have a slight chance to be of service against the Wolverines.

Dr. Tommy Richards, team physician, reported that George Talbot, regular lineman hurt yesterday, Eddie Mays, varsity halfback, and two of the Crimson's leading ends, Vic Harding and Bob Ogden, are all rapidly responding to treatment and might be in shape for Saturday's conflict.

Horween worked his squad in the stadium, where the varsity encountered the Michigan plays put on by the scrubs in a long dummy scrimmage. The regular team then ran through all of its plays in a fast signal drill, Wood, Crickard, Huguley and Schereschewsky holding down the backfield berths.

Coach Harry Kipke and his squad of 36 Wolverines will arrive in Cambridge tomorrow in time to workout in the stadium.

BULKELEY HARRIERS WIN MEET FROM LYMAN HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON Nov. 6—The Bulkeley school cross-country team defeated the Lyman Memorial high school harriers here Thursday afternoon by the decisive score of 19 to 36.

Carlton Alm of Bulkeley led the pack home, nosing out Howard of Lyman by a few feet. Howard perhaps would have finished first for he was leading at 200 yards from the tape but he took the wrong turn into the final straightaway and Alm broke out in front. Third place was captured by Gagnon also of Bulkeley.

The Tigers were well up in the lead throughout the race and it was only Howard who marred their chances for a perfect score.

The runners finished in the following order:

Officials—Hamlin, starter; Racine, timer; Melloon, scorer. Distance 2 1-2 miles. Time 12 min. 54 seconds.

AGGIES TO USE STRONG TEAM AGAINST NEW HAMP.

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 6—In the game with New Hampshire at Durham on Saturday, Connecticut Aggies will start the same lineup that started against the Coast Guard academy at New London last week. Coach Dole believes that he has at last found a winning combination and indications are that he will use it for the rest of the season.

The starting team will contain five sophomores, five seniors and one junior. The sophomores are as follows: Juringuis, le; Yesukiewelcz, rg; Eddy, re; De Rosa, qb; and Zavarella, lhb. The seniors are: Storrs, lt; Moore, lg; Glennon, c; Murphy, captain and rhb; and Harger, fb. Hakanson, rt, is the only junior on the team and he is president of his class.

Today's practice consisted of a long signal drill in which Re Rosa did the drop kicking, Harger, the place kicking, and Pierce, Glennon and Eddy the punting.

At least two full teams will leave here tomorrow noon to go to Manchester, N. H., where they will spend tomorrow night before going on to Durham the next day.

ACADEMY WINS FOURTH CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

The Academy's cross-country team kept its record clean by gaining its fourth victory of the season at the hands of the Bacon academy barriers from Colchester Thursday afternoon on the local course. The final tally was 23 to 36. This was the first loss for Bacon.

Wood, who set a local record last week against Chapman Tech, again was home in front today and his mark of 12 mins. 45 sec. was only three seconds slower than his record-smashing achievement. The Academy really won the meet because its "big three", (Wood, Hank Mahoney and Lambert this time. Lyons being out with illness) finished in the first five. Mahoney was third and Lambert, making his first start of the season was in fifth position.

The runners finished as follows:

Wood, N. F. A.; Krupnic, Bacon; H. Mahoney, N. F. A.; Zenowitz, Bacon; Lambert, N. F. A.; Wlodarczck, N. F. A.; Gregory, Bacon; Richardson, N. F. A.; Baranowski, N. F. A.; Falk, Bacon; N. Mahoney, N. F. A.; Tarrant, N. F. A.; Busel, Bacon.

Officials—Blanchard, starter; Navick and Howell, judges.

McGRATH DISQUALIFIED IN WILD BATTLE WITH GENARO

WATERBURY, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Pat McGrath, Irish lightweight of this city, was disqualified in the seventh round of his bout with Mickey Genaro, also of this city, here tonight for butting. The battle, one of the wildest seen here in many weeks, terminated three rounds before the end of the scheduled distance. McGrath fouled his rival several times before being disqualified, hitting him low on one occasion in the third round, requiring a three-minute rest before Genaro was able to continue. Genaro weighed 135; McGrath 138.

In the other bouts on the Waterbury A. C. card at Buckingham hall, Jackie Harmon, Waterbury, 110, outpointed Tommy Palacio, New York, 113, in four rounds. Angel Tejerio, Spain, 145, outpointed Joe Emmons, Waterbury, 148, in eight rounds; Baby Doll, Waterbury, 135, won a four-round decision over Sammy Fishbein, New York, 133 1-2, and Jack Beasley, New Haven, 165, was disqualified in the fourth round for going down without being hit, losing to Young McLarn of Watertown, 170 1-2.

LETO STOPS ATLER IN THE TENTH ROUND

HARTFORD, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Tony Leto, 125 3-4, Hartford, won on a technical knockout in the tenth round over Davey Atler, 130 1-2, of Sioux City, Iowa, in the opening indoor show held here at Footguard hall tonight.

In the semi-final bout that was scheduled for ten rounds Joe Smith, 165 1-2, Hartford, knocked out Eddie Day, 160, New York city, in the first round.

Eddie Reed, 121, Hartford, won an eight-round decision over Buster Nadeau, 118, Holyoke.

Jackie Dupont, 140 3-4, Holyoke, won on a technical knockout in the third round of the opening six-rounder with Johnny Pinkham, 136, Hartford.

TEMPLE UNIV. WILLING TO PLAY BENEFIT GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.— (AP) — Earl R. Yeomans, graduate manager of athletics at Temple university, announced tonight that he had been authorized by the council on athletics to arrange a post-season football game with any "nationally known" college team in the United States for the benefit of the unemployed.

"For the game to be a success financially, a ranking eleven must be brought here," he explained.

"We cannot play on Nov. 15, 22 or 29, as we have games already scheduled, but we are willing to stage the contest on any Saturday in December."

Temple meets the University of Miami in an indoor game at Atlantic City Saturday.

YUDICKY STILL REMAINS OUT OF GREEN LINEUP

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Stan Yudicky, veteran Dartmouth end injured in the Harvard game, today was definitely declared out of Saturday's game with Allegheny and fears were expressed that he would be unavailable for the Cornell and Stanford clashes. His injury, it was said, has developed into a severe case of water on the knee.

A heavy snowstorm covered the Green's practice field and the Indians were forced to drill under unsatisfactory conditions. It is likely that Allegheny may encounter extremely wintry weather here when it arrives tomorrow.

BLUE WINS FIRST MAJOR GOLF EVENT AT PINEHURST

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Halbert J. Blue, of Pinehurst, today won the 26th annual autumn tournament, first major golf event of the winter season, by defeating Edwin L. Scofield, New York, 3 and 2.

Blue had a round of 76 to 79 for his rival and succeeds Edmund J. Guggenheim, New York, 1929 winner, who was eliminated in the first round of match play.

Frank T. Keating, of Boston, won the playoff tie with R. C. Shannon, of Biddeford, Maine, in the opening handicap tournament of the Tin Whistles club with a card of 88-11—77 to 90-12—78 for Shannon.

BASEBALL
BASKETBALL
BOXING

Here's how we pick them for tonight: Curcio to beat Russo; Darr to win over Peterson; Koziol to take Nocchi; Caprio to outpoint Peloquin; Lacey to nose out Gauvin.

In the feature bout Curcio has the experience of years of boxing but Russo has the youth. Russo will wear himself out trying to knock the crown off Curcio's head while the Providence battler will jab, hook and uppercut his way to a verdict over the Westerly challenger.

We expect Darr to pile up a big lead in the early rounds of the bout which will carry him to a verdict over Peterson who will show to advantage during the last half of the bout. Darr in all his bouts has shown a tendency to start off like a whirlwind and then gradually lose his speed as the bout progresses. Peterson boxes at the same free and easy speed from round to round and finishes apparently as strong as when he starts. It would not be surprising in the least to see Darr flatten Peterson early in the bout, the first or second, but if it goes past the fourth stanza the decision will be very close.

Koziol should win by a kayo but if he doesn't Nocchi will take plenty of punishment for eight tough rounds. Koziol doesn't know the meaning of the word quit. Every minute he's in there he is throwing gloves and when those gloves land they hurt. He wastes a lot of blows but when he does land one it makes up for the two or three that he misses. We don't know much about Nocchi other than what we have heard and read. From all reports Nocchi is just as tough as Koziol and is capable of coming from behind to win.

The six rounder is a hard one to pick. Caprio is clever, a hard hitter and a boy who likes to mix it with an opponent. Peloquin is more on the Koziol type of boxer who is on top of his man throughout the bout, putting an opponent on the defensive. But we pick Caprio because of his stiffer punching ability and his experience both in the amateurs and the professional ring.

To Snooks Lacey goes our choice. Snooks is a clever youngster with all the tricks of a veteran. He has been swapping punches in the ring ever since he was old enough to toddle. Local fans will remember Snooks when he boxed exhibitions at smokers a few years ago. Even then he showed cleverly and as the years have passed he has gained weight and punching power. Gauvin, the Taftville youngster, is admittedly the harder hitter but he is far from being the boxer that Lacey is. It is through Lacey's cleverness that we pick him to outpoint the Taftville youth.

LEVINSKY GETS UNPOPULAR VERDICT OVER SLATTERY

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(AP)—King Levinsky, terrific punching Maxwell street fish peddler, whose right hand blasts have brought him into prominence as a light-heavyweight in the last six months, finished up winner of a ten-round decision over Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, in the Chicago Stadium tonight.

The verdict was decidedly unpopular, however, with the 16,500 spectators.

The fight was a slashing affair with the speedy and clever Buffalo boxer, once world's light-heavyweight champion, flashing a marvelous exhibition of boxing. The decision provoked the most violent demonstration of disapproval seen in Chicago since boxing was revived.

When Levinsky's hands were raised in victory, the crowd cut loose with a storm of booing that lasted for ten minutes. Slattery, whom unofficial observers credited with winning seven rounds, was accorded a thunderous ovation when he left the ring.

Norman Garrity, the referee, and Livingston Osborne, one of the judges, cast their ballot for Levinsky. The second judge, Fire Marshal M. F. Corrigan, voted for Slattery.

STRIBLING POSTS CHALLENGE TO BOX MAX SCHMELING

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.— (AP) —Young Stribling, Atlanta, Ga., heavyweight, filed a challenge with the Illinois state athletic commission today for a championship match with Max Schmeling, recognized as heavyweight champion of the world.

Stribling, through his father, "Pa" Stribling, who acts as his manager, posted a check for $2,500 and indicated his willingness to have the fight staged anywhere in the country.

Answering the report from Boston that Jack Sharkey had offered to fight Stribling, without compensation, with the receipts going to charity, "Pa" Stribling said he could not consider the offer as W. L. had signed to fight in the Chicago Stadium Dec. 12. Either Paulino Uzcudun or Tuffy Griffiths probably will be Stribling's opponent for the Stadium engagement.

NEARLY 20,000 TICKETS SOLD FOR FORDHAM-SAINTS GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Nearly 20,000 tickets already have been sold for Fordham's intersectional football battle with St. Mary's of California at the Polo grounds, Nov. 15, Jack Coffey Fordham's graduate manager of athletics announced today. Reservations pouring in by mail and telephone indicate a capacity crowd of 60,000, he said.

The contest between the Galloping Ghaels and Fordham's strong team, which has not been beaten in two years will mark the first game of the season involving the east and far west.

NIXON SAYS N. Y. U. MERELY VOLUNTEERED ITS SERVICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Al Nixon, graduate manager of athletics at New York university, reiterated today that N. Y. U. had merely volunteered the services of its football team to the city and was not issuing challenges to anybody for a post-season game. Selection of an opponent is in the hands of a committee to be named by Mayor Walker, Nixon pointed out, declaring that no one connected with N. Y. U. has proposed a game with Yale, as was announced in New Haven.

R. I. MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE AT STAKE IN CURCIO-RUSSO BOUT TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S CARD

R. I. Middleweight Title Bout

Johnny Curcio of Providence vs. Joe Russo of Westerly

Two Eight-Round Star Bouts

Vic Darr of Norwich vs. Ero Peterson of Worcester

Al Koziol of Norwich vs. Aldo Nocchi of Worcester

Six Round Preliminary

Rene Peloquin of Danielson vs. Tony Caprio of Providence

Four Round Preliminary

Snooks Lacey of Norwich vs. Honeyboy Gauvin of Taftville

A packed house is expected tonight at Parish hall to see the all-action all-star card put on by the Shyma boxing club, featuring the R. I. middleweight title bout between Joe Russo of Westerly, challenger and Johnny Curcio of Providence, present holder. Curcio has held the Rhode Island title for a number of years, waiting for a contender to come along who had a possible chance of toppling the crown from his brow. Russo seems to be the logical contender in Rhode Island for this title as he has fought his way up through tough opposition until today he stands head and shoulders above the other contenders.

The challenger has gotten into great shape for this bout which means much to him. He is down to the required weight and those who have seen him in training say that he is fast and hitting with the most power that they have ever seen him display. Curcio is in good condition, even better than two weeks ago when he stopped Young Siki in the fifth round. He has taken off considerable excess fat which has speeded his action to a marked degree. This bout should provide plenty of thrills for the crowd.

Supporting the title bout is a good under card with Vic Darr of Norwich out to avenge a defeat of last spring at the hands of Ero Peterson of Worcester. Darr rules a slight favorite over the clever boxer from Bay State. This bout brings together a mauler with some degree of science against a clever defensive boxer whose hitting power is sacrificed to speed. With Darr using that terrific left hand in the early rounds he should give Peterson some mean punishment.

Another Norwich favorite in the ring tonight will be Al Koziol of Norwich who does battle with Aldo Nocchi of Worcester, a whirlwind fighter of the same type as Koziol. As might be expected local sympathy is with Koziol to take Nocchi early in the bout. However, there can be an upset for Nocchi is reported to be a boy of fighting ability and one who finishes strong. He is noted for his ability to stand up under terrific bombardment and then come back strong to put his opponent away.

One of the most interesting bouts of the evening will be the six round preliminary between Tony Caprio of Providence and Rene Peloquin of Danielson. Caprio appeared on the last card against Jimmy Quinn and showed to advantage, keeping Quinn on the defensive throughout the bout. Peloquin is not a defensive boxer like Quinn but is full of aggressiveness. With both Caprio and Peloquin fighting the same kind of a bout there is bound to be some fast hitting.

Opening the card will be Snooks Lacey, West Side colored boy, boxing his first professional bout in Norwich, and Honeyboy Gauvin, game little youngster from Taftville. Snooks is clever and has a ring presence that would become a veteran of the squared circle.

From the ringside this card looks like a whirlwind of action from gong to gong but with the exception of the first two bouts fans may expect a sudden termination of each bout. And again they may all go the limit but it is highly improbable.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)— After another long drill today, lasting well after dark, Coach Lou Little of Columbia announced a line-up of which only about half the players were regulars as the one which would start the Colgate game. Lippoth, end; Tys, tackle; Nobiletti, guard, and Allen, center, are the new linemen. The backfield will be composed of Sheridan, quarterback; Cadogan and Hodupp, halfbacks, and Woolkind fullback.

NEW YORK—Coach Chick Meehan drove his New York university team at a fast pace in preparation for the Georgia game. The varsity was on the defense through the greater part of a dummy scrimmage but Team "C," using Georgia plays, could gain little ground.

AMOS AN' ANDY AT PALACE THEATRE SATURDAY

A New Start

I will start anew this morning with a higher fairer creed:
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear;
I will waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear.

I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise;
I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze.
I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread;
I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead.

I will not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread about me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty and be more concerned with mine.

YALE TAKES ALFRED LIGHTLY AND POINTS TO PRINCETON

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 6—(AP)—Yale's football squad, facing the prospect of an easy game with Alfred next Saturday began devoting some thought today to the season's windup with Princeton and Harvard.

The Elis, working out in near freezing weather, devoted two hours to new plays which they expect to employ against their ancient rivals. The plays were later tested in a scrimmage between the second and third teams, but no attempt was made at scoring.

Yale officials announced today that Capt. Vincent will remain here next Saturday for the Alfred game. Previously it had been announced that he would accompany a party of Yale coaches and players to Cambridge to witness the Harvard-Michigan contest.

SALVAGING OF RUM-RUNNER BEGINS AT WATCH HILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 6.—Salvaging operations of the stranded Helen were begun at Watch Hill by coast guardsmen from the New London base at the Connecticut state pier, who came to Watch Hill on Thursday in the 75-footer C. G. 290 and dropped anchor in the more quiet waters of Little Narragansett bay where the tow boat was anchored and the men started to work on the wreckage from the shore.

The Helen was tossed up against the bulkhead at Fort Mansfield by the heavy northeast wind and sea on Tuesday night.

With the continuance of the storm on Wednesday night the smashed hull was worked down the beach and more into the water and was resting about 30 feet below the high water mark. The hull of the Helen is a total loss, Captain Streeter of the Watch Hill coast guard station reported today.

The Helen carried two 300-horse power Speedway motors which are so valuable the coast guardsmen will work to the limit to save them. At high water the Helen had fallen so far back from the bulkhead that the engines were covered by water, but at low tide they were so far out of water that the men could easily perform their salvage work. If any value remains in the once powerful engines the government men are determined to restore them to usefulness.

LOUIS MOREY SUCCEEDS COMMISSIONER D. F. FINN

At the November meeting of the board of warden and burgesses Wednesday evening, Louis Morey was appointed on the board of electric light commissioners to fill the unexpired term of the late Daniel F. Finn. It was voted to build a cement walk on the east side of School street for the accommodation of the pupils of the Riverside grammar school. The town of Griswold is to be asked to aid in the cost of its construction.

Dr. Wm. O'Connor has opened a dentist office in the Beauregard building. Your patronage is kindly solicited. --adv.

Very Rev. Michael McCabe council, Knights of Columbus, held open house in their rooms Wednesday evening. There was a large assemblage to give their O. K. to the refreshments feature, and to enjoy the dance numbers, new and old, stepped to the merry tunes of Morey's orchestra. Without the formality of speechmaking, many matters were discussed that would have a bearing on the success of the order, the large membership of which is interested in its social and fraternal features.

Following 24 hours of clouds and rain, the weather cleared along toward morning Thursday and the wind, hauling into the northwest, blew at half-gale velocity all day. Everything and everybody that had anywhere to go, went there without wait or delay.

To Delay Viaduct Opening

The engineers for the state and for the Gammino Construction Co. have decided not to open the new viaduct to regular state road traffic until the furnishing, electrical equipment and general finishing touches have been completed. Although the big bridge could be used at present, it is deemed not advisable, as passing traffic would constitute a menace to the men working on the balustrades and smoothing up the floor. It is believed that the state will turn over the newly constructed Quinebaug cut-off to the borough. This street, or cut-off, leads from South Main to the new bridge and will be used for local traffic only when the through highway traffic is established over the viaduct. There will never be any building on either side of this cut-off as it is simply a dirt fill with a waterbound macadam surface, and with six-foot granolithic walks on both sides. A little less than 100 yards in length, it is built on an incline; at its intersection with South Main street two great sewer basins are being completed to take care of the surface water. Some still believe that the railroad company cannot legally close the Main street crossing, on account of ancient right-of-way grants to the one-time Fenner property, which are said to exist. A legal authority said Thursday: "Does anyone think for a moment that the railroad company would put around $20,000 into a crossing elimination project, with any uncertainty existing as to its legal rights in the premises?" Not so: there is plenty of substantiation before the fact, that they will close the crossing tight when the time comes. It was hinted at one time that the railroad company might look with favor upon a proposal to construct an underpass for pedestrians who desire to come up town from South Main street, but no encouragement was ever given, nor has the town ever asked for such concession.

To Visit Danielson Lodge

Members of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, F. and A. M., are planning to visit Moriah lodge, Danielson, at an early date. It is learned that a class of Connecticut state troopers is to be given the Master Mason's degree, with the entirely unusual if not unprecedented feature that the work of the evening will be done by members of the state constabulary.

Coon hunting is off to a rousing start, with "Doc" Wallace, who is doing a job for the state at the Mt. Misery game preserve, and O. C. Watson, out after 'em in the rain Wednesday evening. One they got and one they didn't. Mr. Watson's famous coon dog is suffering from a too close engagement with a skunk, which happened Sunday night over back of the Wiley Brook schoolhouse, so the two hunters were obliged to make the best of a bad coon night without the four-footed assistant. Two coons were treed about the time the weather changed Thursday, before daybreak. Doc says the wind blew so hard that the hair was blown off the top of his head, which he can prove by removing his cap, which he seldom does.

The game was actually blown from the small beech, up which they both had climbed. One succumbed to a whack with a fence stake; it weighed ten pounds. The other made his escape.

At a recent meeting of the Catholic Women's council, it was voted to hold a bridge and whist this month. Miss Anna Ruszenas is chairman of the following committee: Misses Catherine Barnett, May Driscoll, Margaret Driscoll, Anna Walsh, Josephine Ambot and Mrs. Horace Dawley and Mrs. M. E. Shea.

Hewlitt, Mrs. E. E. Scates, Mrs. Frank E. Robinson and Mrs. Thomas Brown attended The King's Daughters' state convention held in New London Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Ruby Martin, Roanoke, Va., has grown two roses of distinctly different colors in bloom on the same twig of the same rosebush. Roanoke Rose society representatives found the stem was of abnormal size and described the phenomenon as a bud mutation or "sport." The bush is of the "Frau Karl Drushki" variety, sometimes known as the American White Beauty. The two blooms grow on a nine-inch stem and have individual stems of three inches each.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

THE IMPORTANCE OF DISTRIBUTION

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

It seems to be a commonly accepted opinion among farmers as well as financiers that "farmin' is all shot to pieces."

Some time ago, as I recall it, you and I agreed that the first and most pressing phase of "the farm problem" was just "how to make the farm pay."

That, while indubitable and universally admitted, is still, as is self-evident, the answering one question by asking another.

It is equivalent to saying: the old farm doesn't pay; why doesn't it? and how're you goin' to make it?

Really a double-barreled query, you see. And there's where the trouble comes in for would-be solvers. Hardly two people in the country agree either as to the why? or teh how?

Take the U. S. senate, for example. It has ninety-six members. And they have 97 1-3 different opinions. This is on the basis of three separate and incongruous opinions held simultaneously by Senator Norris of Nebraska, and one-half an opinion each by Senator Norris of Nebraska, and one-half an opinion each by Senators Heflin, Caraway and Blease, as permitted by their mental capacities.

Even among the saner 120,000,000 who are not members of the senate, there is no agreement. One man says "Tweedledee," whereupon 119,999,999 roar indignantly "No!" When another feebly suggests "Tweedledum," an exactly similar outburst of protest greets him. And so it keeps on till long after the cows have come home and are beginning to wonder where the man with the milk pail is.

While no two people agree exactly, the more vocal of the crowd seem to fall into two general divisions. One party lays the blame at the doors of over-production; the other at the doors of under-consumption.

The idea common to the first school is that farmers are producing more than they ought to; the idea of the second school is that people generally are not using enough.

There is much to be said on both sides of this argument. There are many facts which lend themselves to the support of both impartially. Personally, I don't want to take the position of umpire to decide between them.

This, because I am far from being convinced that either side has got the right pig by the tail.

The mouth of the American people is too big and its swallowing capacity too absorbent to make acceptable the sole explanation that some six million farmers have satiated them, or are likely to satiate them.

On the other hand, the daily demonstration of the public's open intention to have what it wants and all it wants when it wants it, makes exceedingly doubtful the theory that it isn't buying and consuming all it can afford to.

There is a third factor which comes in to complicate the problem. Some of us are inclined to think it is the real "nigger in the wood-pile."

That factor is distribution.

It isn't enough for the farmer to raise potatoes or for the consumer to want potatoes. The spuds must be got, somehow, from the farmer's field to the consumer's kitchen. Until that is arranged for, the farmer has small chance to sell his crop, and the consumer has little likelihood of having potatoes for dinner.

Yet neither producer nor consumer has any effective control of the distributing process. The farmer delivers his tubers at the railroad depot or boat landing. After that he doesn't know what happens. The consumer goes to the local corner store and buys a pound or a peck or a bushel, according to what her purse will permit, without knowing anything about how they got to the store or what it cost to get them there.

What actually happens after his produce leaves the farmer's truck, is that it is taken over by a series of haulers and handlers and distributors, every one of whom takes a generous toll off it before he lets the next inbetweener get his claws into it. According to the statistics laboriously compiled by various seekers after accurate knowledge, these tolls aggregate about two-thirds of the ultimate price which the consumer pays. That is, the farmer gets about 3 cents for the produce the consumer pays a dollar for. The other 67 cents go into the pockets of the distributors.

Now, do you see why the matter of distribution is so important? It is responsible for two-thirds of the cost to the consumer, or two-thirds of the loss to the farmer, whichever way you choose to put it.

Sometimes it is responsible for more than two-thirds. I cut from my yesterday's New York paper the advertisement of a widely covering chain store offering as a special "bargain," eating apples at three pounds for 19 cents and cooking apples at four pounds for 19 cents. This means a trifle over three dollars a bushel for eating apples and more than two dollars and a quarter a bushel for cooking fruit. Yet, that very week, orchardists in the Hudson river fruit region were offering their best apples at 50 cents a single bushel or a dollar a barrel of three bushels and couldn't sell them all, even at those prices.

Most of their orchards are within 100 miles of the city store, and practically all of them within easy hauling reach of two trunk railroads running straight to the city. The "spread" between 33 cents a bushel at the orchard and three dollars a bushel at the store certainly seems to suggest that neither over-production nor under-consumption had anything comparable with distribution to answer for.

I read in The Bulletin, the other day, where the apple-growers of at least one Connecticut town were turning their fanciest fruit into cider, because that was the only way they could dispose of it, after the pigs had been fed all that was good for them.

The fruit-grower is refused a remunerative payment for his product, at the same time that the city consumer is being charged an exorbitant price for it. The producer is selling all he can get rid of and the consumer is buying all she can afford. Neither one is satisfied. The only people who are actually happy in the transaction are the distributors.

The farmer feels that he is being deprived of his rightful dues; the consumer feels that she is being overcharged, if not really robbed. The farmer can't sell half his good fruit because the price offered him won't pay for picking and hauling. The consumer buys only half what she would like and what would be good for her family, because the price demanded is beyond her means.

She'd buy all the apples grown in New England and make mighty good use of them, if she could get them at half the price asked in the city. The farmer would sell all he could pick if he was offered twice the pay now given.

Both those requirements could be met,—if it wasn't for the costs of distribution.

There are some of us who believe that both those requirements could be met, and all the really necessary costs of distribution, also, if only distribution methods were economically efficient and based on the idea of service, rather than of greed and graft.

Some years ago, the berry-growers in several New York counties near the big city were deep in the most doleful of dumps. Wages were steadily climbing and all other costs of berry-production were increasing. Yet the prices offered them by buyers and commission-men were as steadily lowering. In this emergency, they put their heads together. They saw that, individually, they were at the mercy of the distributors. If they were only combined the city markets would in some degree by under their control. As it was, Jim Stokes had to sell at whatever was offered him. If he didn't, Bill Smith would. But if Jim and Bill and Hank and Tom and all the rest of the berry-growers pooled their fruit and held it for a decent price, there was at least the chance of their getting such price. Anyway, they decided to try it.

Within three years, as one of them told me, they found themselves getting, without any trouble, fully double former prices, without any appreciable increase in the prices demanded from city consumers. He added that they hadn't heard of any city dealers losing money on the berries, either. All that had happened was that the distributors had been shaken loose from some of their plunder.

Everybody knows the story of the California Citrus association. When the orange and lemon growers of that state found they couldn't make a living, selling individually, they formed an iron-clad organization, sold on a state-wide instead of a one-orchard basis, demanded and obtained remunerative prices.

If such things can be done in a green tree, isn't it at least possible that something might be done in a dry?

"You can't get farmers to co-operate," says one critic. "They won't hang together." But the Hudson valley berry-producers and the California orange-growers have co-operated and do hang together. By which means they have escaped hanging separately, as Franklin pithily suggested the dilemma to the continental congress, which was preparing to declare independence from another oppression.

Of course, localized producers have an initial advantage over those whose crops are general and grown all over the country. But in these days of universal and easy inter-communication it would be almost as easy for the fruit-growers of the Atlantic border to get together, as it was twenty years ago for the citrus producers of California.

It's more a question of the will than of the way. Once the will is firmly fixed, the way will be found out.

CANTERBURY

The children of the Raymond school in the town of Canterbury gave a very enjoyable entertainment Friday evening, Oct. 31st. When the children arrived they were surprised to see a table all set for them with Halloween tablecloth, napkins and favors. Grinning Jack o'lanterns and yellow and black festoons decorated the room. On the blackboards the children had drawn various Halloween scenes many of which showed artistic skill. A play by the school was enjoyed by all. The children sang and participated in the Halloween games with their parents, friends and teacher. In spite of the rainy weather over 50 were present.

The schools seem to be improving in ever increasing strides along the path in which they are led by the new school methods.

MARKET RALLIED IN AFTERNOON FOLLOWING MORNING DECLINE

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Irregularity replaced weakness on the stock market today. Generally speaking, prices declined in the morning and rallied in the afternoon, although all of the gain was not held, leaving the market mixed at the close. Turnover of 2,446,590 shares was the largest in about a fortnight.

Wheat firmed after early selling had established new lows — which meant, of course, the lowest levels since 1906—and closed a cent higher. Corn made an even better recovery, but cotton closed 5 to 12 points lower. Bonds eased slightly.

Weakness of the utility stocks seemed the only development that could be called a carry-over from the election. Virtually every important member of the group, including American Telephone, North American & Consolidated Gas, touched a new low. Oils were soft on the omission of a dividend, the large increase in gasoline stocks and some further shading of prices. Standard of New Jersey, and Atlantic Refining made new minimums.

Rails turned downward and there were new lows for Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Railway and numerous others. Such industrial favorites as U. S. Steel, Westinghouse and American Can showed quiet firmness and led the rally, although General Electric, Eastman Kodak and DuPont reached new lows on an early decline.

Lethargy in the steel industry found reflection in the official figures on October ingot production. The daily average last month was the smallest since August, 1924, and the smallest for any October since 1901. Operations averaged 50.32 per cent of rated capacity.

Federal Reserve brokers' loans declined for the sixth successive week, dropping $58,000,000 to the lowest aggregate since May 26, 1926. The decrease in these recent weeks amounts to $768,000,000, which is still somewhat short of the June-July deflation.

There were few developments in the business world. Some of the chain stores reported that October sales had risen over September. In the case of Woolworth the gain was 18 per cent, although compared with 1929 that corporation's receipts were off 4 1-2 per cent. Railroad income in September was 22 1-2 per cent below the same month last year, an appreciable improvement from the 32 1-2 per cent decline of August.

Net changes in stocks were small. U. S. Steel, Kennecott, International Nickel, Sears Roebuck, R-K-O, Fox, Gillette, National Biscuit and American Tobacco "B" closed up a point or more. American Telephone, Radio, Vanadium, Atchison, DuPont, General Electric and Westinghouse improved fractionally. There were declines of a point or less in Bethlehem Steel, Anaconda, American and Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, Public Service of N. J., Standard Oil of N. J., American Power and Light, Pennsylvania Railroad, and Baltimore & Ohio. Southern Railway lost 2 1-2, New York Central, 1 3-4, and Union Pacific, 2. A few less active rails had larger losses.

Credit rates were unchanged, although call money firmed a trifle in the outside market. The weekly federal reserve statements reflected the usual operations for the first of the month requirements. Discounts and bill purchases increased, but holdings of government securities were stationary.

Foreign exchanges displayed rallying tendencies. Sterling cables were strong in sympathy with the retention of the Bank of England discount rate. The yen sagged on news of a gold shipment from Tokio.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(AP)—Indications of unlooked for rapid disappearance of world supplies of wheat did a good deal to bring upturns today in prices of all grain. The wheat market was further stimulated by disturbing reports that rust was spreading in Argentina. Corn and oats as well as wheat gave evidence of being in a sold out condition resulting from heavy liquidating sales of late.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, but near the day's top level, 3-4a3-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-8a2 1-8c advanced, oats 3-4a1 1-8c up, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 2c.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Gold imports at the port of New York for the week ended Nov. 5, totaled $178,000, chiefly from Latin-America, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported today. Exports amounted to $2,000,000 to Canada, and gold earmarked for foreign account increased $2,000,000 during the week.

Shipments by the Baldwin Locomotive Works in October, excluding subsidiary and affiliated companies, totaled $2,770,000, against $2,980,000 in September, and $3,460,000 in October last year. Total shipments for the first ten months this year, were $28,920,000, against $20,880,000 in the like period last year. Business booked in October totaled $209,000, against $4,560,000 in October last year. Unfilled orders Nov. 1 this year totaled $6,800,000.

General Bronze Corp. has prepared plans for a new unified plant near Long Island City, N. Y., to replace its three separate local plants. Julius H. Barnes, president, said that in suspending payment of the common dividend this week directors had in mind the erection of the unified plant, the installation of additional new equipment and the adoption of new lines of products.

Stockholders of E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., totaled 32,683, a new high record, as of Oct. 31, last, an increase of 62 per cent over the 20,114 on the same date last year.

Arde Bulova, chairman of the Bulova Watch Co., announced that earnings of the company for the first six months of the fiscal year, from April 1 to Sept. 30, amounted to $1.82 1-2 per share on the common, compared with $1.75 a share in the like period of 1929.

Bodell & Co., of Providence, New York, Boston, Hartford and New Haven, Conn., have been elected members of the New York Stock exchange. The floor member will be Frederick Bodell. The firm does a general investment banking business and for many years has been a member of the New York Curb exchange.

The board of governors of the New York Stock exchange has adopted a resolution providing that trading be suspended for two minutes at 11 o'clock the morning of Armistice day, Nov. 11.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6—(AP)—Treasury receipts for November 4 were $3,504,237.86; expenditures $10,162,360.17; balance $186,652,239.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—Further heavy selling of the utility shares in today's curb market drove most of the more active members of this group to new low ground, and unsettled the entire list, but the market made irregular recovery during the afternoon, a few shares showing net gains at the close.

Trading expanded further, with a turnover of 669,100 shares for the day, against 825,400 yesterday. The utility shares continued to dominate activity, although there was a fair turnover in some of the oils, where further new lows were recorded.

American Gas & Electric dropped 3 1-8 points to 82 1-2, another new low, then rallied to close steady. Electric Bond & Share sagged a point, but recovered under the influence of short covering to close with a gain of 5-8. Associated Gas A dropped more than 2 points to a new minimum at 20 1-8, but closed off only 1 1-8.

American Super Power, Commonwealth and Southern warrants, United Corp warrants, and Electric Shareholders, were among others which penetrated their previous resistance points.

In the oils, Vacuum was a firm spot, closing up a fraction, on declaration of the usual extra dividend of 25 cents and announcement that the end of the year should find a balance to be carried to surplus. General Petroleum, formed as a holding company for Vacuum and Standard of New York, dropped 2 points to a new low at 26, however. Imperial was again firm, and Cities Service closed steady, after sagging temporarily.

Standard of Indiana dropped 3-4 to a new low at 39 7-8, and closed at 40. Cosden was again heavy, dropping 1 5-8 to a new low at 3 1-2, which contrasts strangely with the year's high of 74 3-4. Further piling up of gasoline stocks and unremitting weakness in gasoline and crude prices continued to unsettle these issues.

There were a few firm spots in the industrials. Diamond Match new stock rallied 3-4 in a fair turnover. Marconi International sold up 3-4, then lost most of its rise. Novadel Agene gained 1 3-4 in a few transactions. In the aircraft issues, Detroit Aircraft sold up fractionally on report of record October sales for this unit, and General Aviation, formerly Fokker, was firm. Glen Alden Coal and Jaeger Machine, however, tumbled 4 points. Dresser B. Lehigh Coal & Navigation about 2, to new lows.

Some of the investment trusts also reached new minimum levels, including Securities Corp. general, off 2, and American Equities, off fractionally.

BOND MARKET

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. — (AP) — A slightly lower trend dominated the dull session of the bond market today. Selling was moderate but rather widespread and was particularly noticeable in the rail group where liquidation was influenced by the weakness of carrier shares.

While losses were the rule in virtually every class of bonds, on the constructive side was the firmness of legal rails and the advance of Liberty 3 1-2s to a new high for the year. In the foreign section where gains and losses were about evenly divided, continental European governments stole the center of the stage occupied for several weeks by Latin Americans. German 5 1-2s and British 5 1-2s were under extensive liquidation. On a turnover almost as large Norwegian 5s of 1963 rose to duplicate their year's high with a 1-2 point advance.

The reaction in railroad stocks was the only explanation given in bond circles for the liquidation of their obligations, as call money held at 2 per cent and time money was unchanged.

Van Sweringen issues were generally lower, including Chesapeake and Ohio, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate and Pere Marquette. Selling, however, was moderate except in Pere Marquette 4 1-2s C, which dropped one point. International Great Northern adjustment 6s dropped 9 points to 51, compared with a low of 45 and a year's high of 91.

New York Central 4s of 1998, Pennsylvania general 5s and construction 4s, Reading 4 1-2s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4 1-2s, were a little lower. On the constructive side Atchison general 4s were a little higher, and St. Paul adjustment 5s of 2,000 were accumulated 1-4 above the previous close.

A 5 point drop in Pathe warrant 7s was a conspicuous feature of the easy trend of stock privilege issues. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s reacted 1 1-4, Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, lost more than a point and Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s dipped 2.

United States governments were very dull and except for the advance in Liberty 3 1-2s, were a shade lower.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Futures closed barely steady, 5 to 13 points lower; spot quiet; middling 10.85.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—(AP)— Call money steady, 2 per cent all day. Time loans easy, 60 days, 2a2 1-4; 3-4 months, 2a2 1-2; 5-6 months, 2 3-4 per cent. Prime commercial paper, 2 3-4a. Bankers' acceptances, unchanged.

Cabbage consists of 91.5 per cent. water, 7.5 per cent. organic material, and 1 per cent. mineral salts.

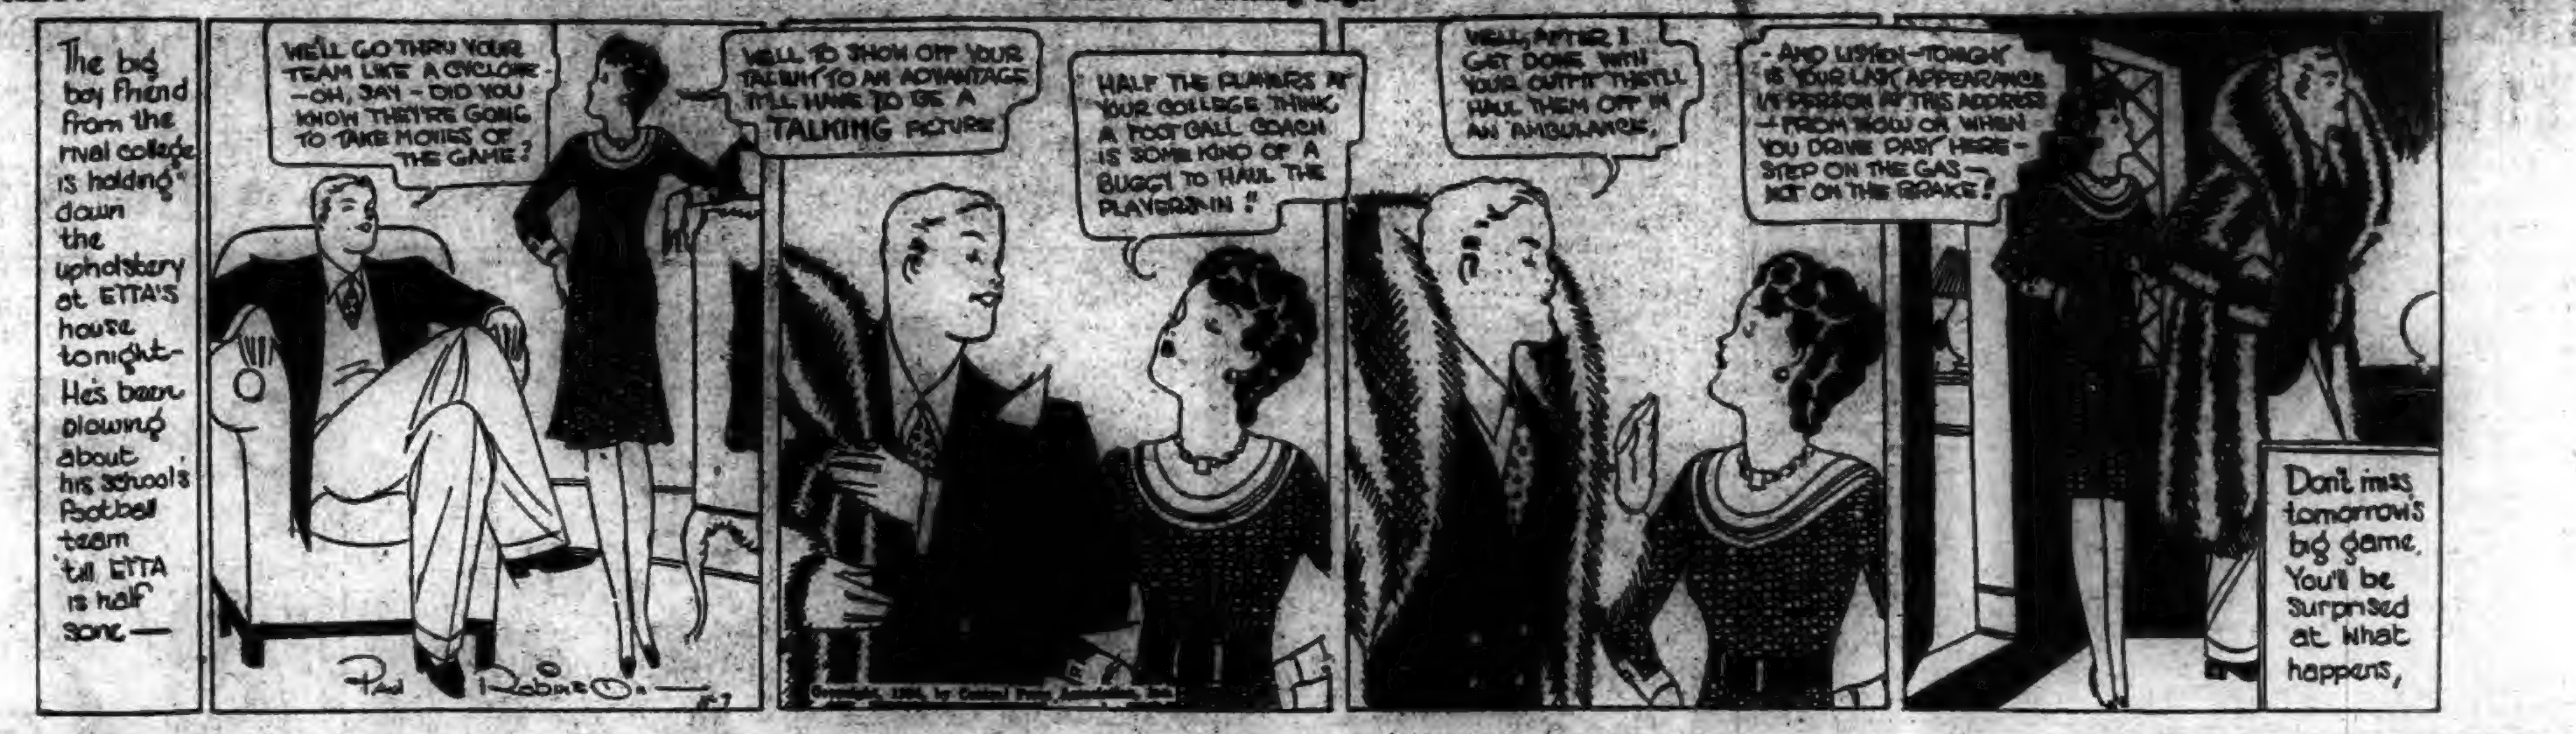
ETTA KETT

The NO Parking Sign

—By PAUL ROBINSON



The big boy friend from the rival college is holding down the upholstery at ETTA'S house tonight— He's been blowing about his school's football team 'till ETTA is half gone—
WE'LL GO THRU YOUR TEAM LIKE A CYCLONE —OH, SAY - DID YOU KNOW THEY'RE GOING TO TAKE MOVIES OF THE GAME?
WELL TO SHOW OFF YOUR TALENT TO AN ADVANTAGE IT'LL HAVE TO BE A TALKING PICTURE
HALF THE PLAYERS AT YOUR COLLEGE THINK A FOOTBALL COACH IS SOME KIND OF A BUGGY TO HAUL THE PLAYERS IN!
WELL, AFTER I GET DONE WITH YOUR OUTFIT THEY'LL HAUL THEM OFF IN AN AMBULANCE.
- AND LISTEN—TONIGHT IS YOUR LAST APPEARANCE IN PERSON AT THIS ADDRESS - FROM NOW ON WHEN YOU DRIVE PAST HERE - STEP ON THE GAS— NOT ON THE BRAKE!
Don't miss tomorrow's big game. You'll be surprised at what happens,

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A personality that breaks feminine hearts; a smile that's a magnet for popular favor; Chevalier brings all of his bubbling enthusiasm, his joyous laugh-making to his latest comedy-romance, "Playboy of Paris," a picture with all the sly and roguish appeal of "The Big Pond"; with a list of Chevalier song-hits that will be as popular as is his "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me"; with a new kind of love-making to a new kind of girl, Frances Dee, the Hollywood "extra" girl who skyrocketed into fame when chosen to play opposite the idol of France and America.

"Playboy of Paris" opens a four day run at the Warner's Broadway theatre starting Saturday. Imagine Chevalier as a waiter by day, a heavy-spending man-about-town by night. Picture him comically involved with three women, trying desperately to keep them apart. Think of the hilarious possibilities of a comedy, with Chevalier, Eugene Pallette and Stuart Erwin. That's "Playboy of Paris," the rollicking entertainment the Broadway theatre will open with Saturday.

Long before Chevalier made himself the "Idol of America," he was the "Idol of France," and, in "Playboy of Paris," he is again set in the city he knows and loves so well. He has a fresh and Frenchy part to play, and he knows how to play it for all the laughs that were written into it. The story itself, "Probably of Paris," is to the French what "Charley's Aunt," is to Americans, a perennial farce comedy hit. The screen play was adapted from an original drama, "The Little Cafe," by Tristan Bernard.

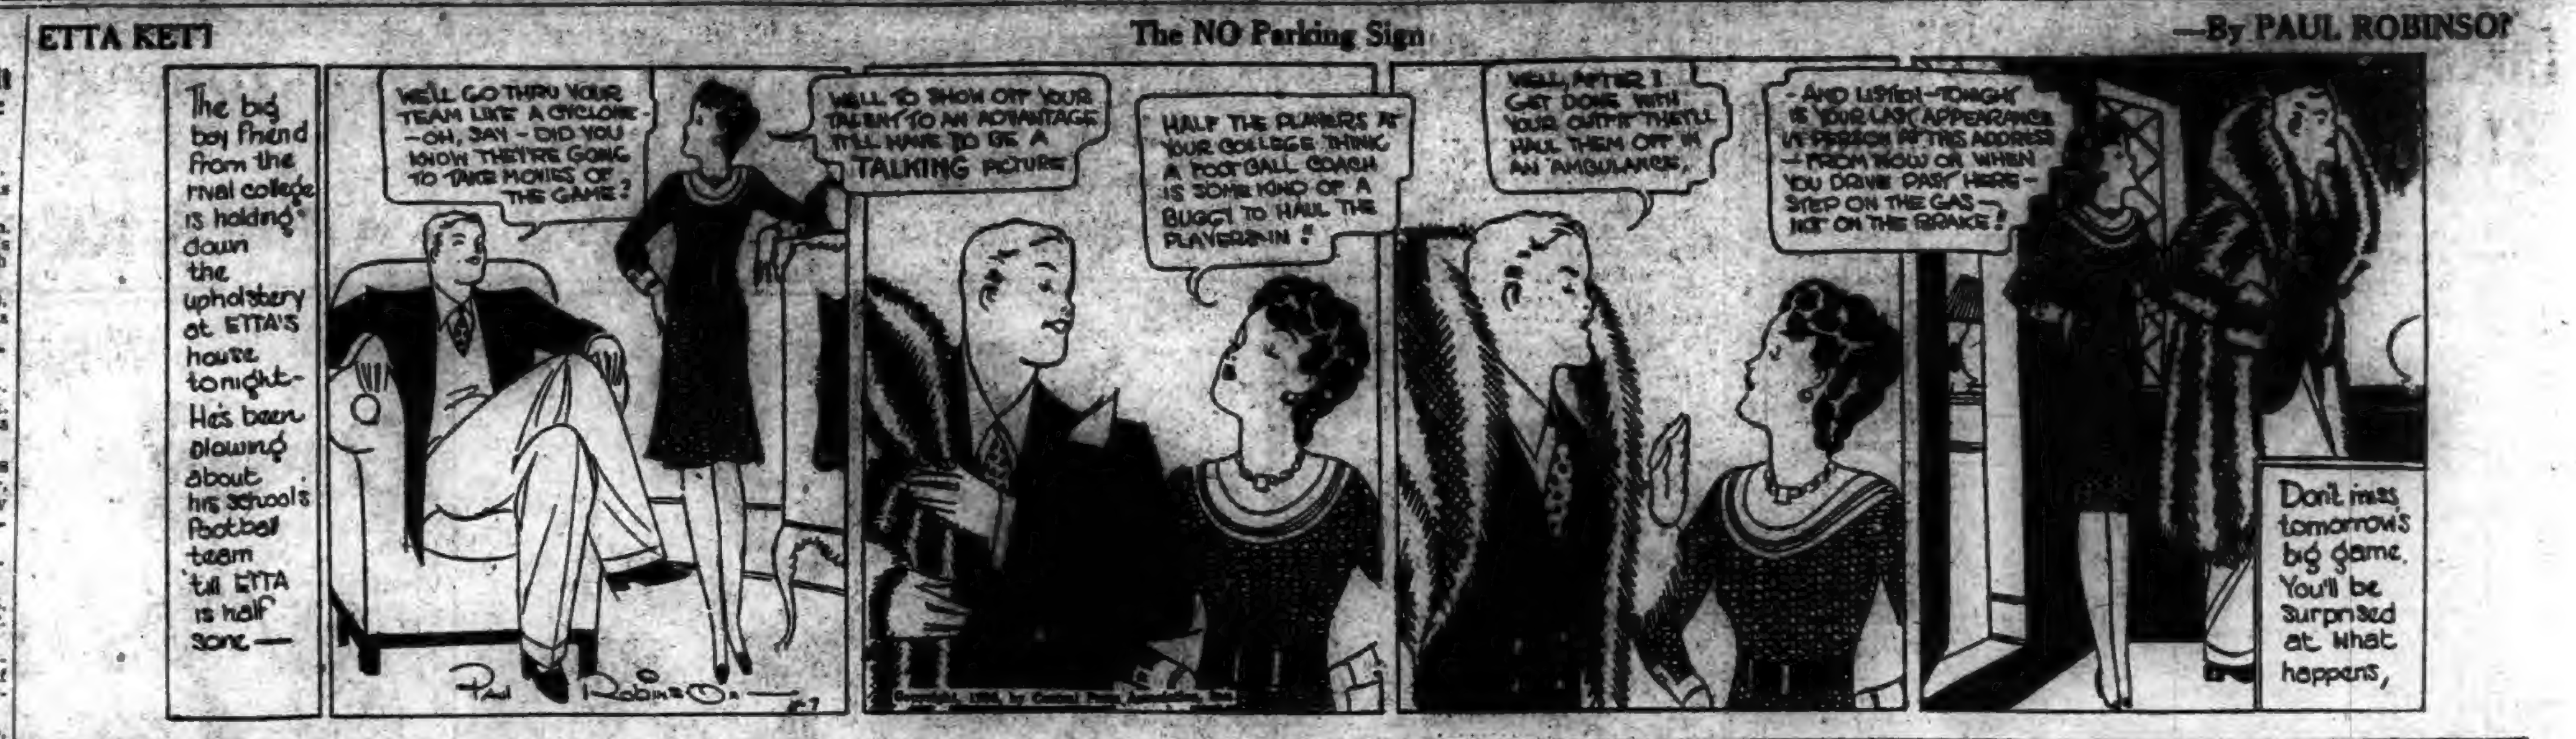
ETTA KETT — The NO Parking Sign —By PAUL ROBINSON



The big boy friend from the rival college is holding down the upholstery at ETTA'S house tonight— He's been plowing about his school's football team 'till ETTA is half gone—
WELL, GO THRU YOUR TEAM LIKE A CYCLONE—OH, SAY—DO YOU KNOW THEY'RE GOING TO TAKE MOVIES OF THE GAME?
WELL, TO SHOW OFF YOUR TALENT TO AN ADVANTAGE THEY'LL HAVE TO BE A TALKING PICTURE
HALF THE PLAYERS IN YOUR COLLEGE THINK A FOOTBALL COACH IS SOME KIND OF A BUGGY TO HAUL THE PLAYERS IN!
WELL, PETER I CAN DO ONE THING—WE'LL HAUL THEM OFF IN AN AMBULANCE!
—AND LISTEN—TONIGHT IS YOUR LAST APPEARANCE IN FRONT OF THIS ADDRESS—FROM NOW ON WHEN YOU DRIVE PAST HERE—STEP ON THE GAS—
Don't miss tomorrow's big game. You'll be surprised at what happens,

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A personality that breaks feminine hearts; a smile that's a magnet for popular favor; Chevalier brings all of his bubbling enthusiasm, his joyous laugh-making to his latest comedy-romance, "Playboy of Paris," a picture with all the sly and roguish appeal of "The Big Pond"; with a list of Chevalier song-hits that will be as popular as is his "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me"; with a new kind of love-making to a new kind of girl, Frances Dee, the Hollywood "extra" girl who skyrocketed into fame when chosen to play opposite the idol of France and America.

"Playboy of Paris" opens a four day run at the Warner's Broadway theatre starting Saturday. Imagine Chevalier as a waiter by day, a heavy-spending man-about-town by night. Picture him comically involved with three women, trying desperately to keep them apart. Think of the hilarious possibilities of a comedy with Chevalier, Eugene Pallette and Stuart Erwin. That's "Playboy of Paris," the rollicking entertainment the Broadway theatre will open with Saturday.

Long before Chevalier made himself the "Idol of America," he was the "Idol of France," and, in "Playboy of Paris," he is again set in the city he knows and loves so well. He has a fresh and Frenchy part to play, and he knows how to play it for all the laughs that were written into it. The story itself, "Probably of Paris," is to the French what "Charley's Aunt," is to Americans, a perennial farce comedy hit. The screen play was adapted from an original drama, "The Little Cafe," by Tristan Bernard.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

THREE ATTEMPTS AT SUICIDE BY POLIZZI, NEW LONDON PRISIONER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—Guiseppi Polizzi, a youth who is a stranger in New London, made three attempts at suicide in a cell at police headquarters this afternoon, after he had been locked up for his own safety, for there was no doubt as to his mental condition. Polizzi made two attempts at self-destruction by hanging and the third effort was tried by means of strangulation. Polizzi was arrested on Bank street about 9:30 by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan, who had been attracted to the youth by his strange conduct. Upon questioning the young man, Sullivan was satisfied that the Italian was suffering from a brain disorder and took him to police headquarters. He was not held, however, and an hour afterwards, Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh found Polizzi on North Bank street where the youth again demonstrated his mental impairment. Polizzi was taken to police headquarters and locked up. Shortly after 2 o'clock Acting Station House Keeper Henry Hick in going to the cell room, discovered Polizzi suspended from the top of the latticed steel. The youth had tied his belt to the cell and after placing the other end securely about his neck, stepped off from his bunk. Hick summoned help and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Anthony Turello, who happened to be in the squad room responded. Polizzi's belt was cut and the youth dropped to the floor in an exhausted condition. It was then revealed that Polizzi had made a previous attempt at suicide by hanging and by using his necktie as a noose, but the flimsy material of the tie would not hold. Within 10 minutes after Polizzi had been discovered suspended from the top of the cell, Hick again went to the cell room and found the youth strangling for he had thrust his handkerchief into his mouth. The handkerchief was forced out and to prevent his making any further attempt at suicide, Polizzi was handcuffed and with his hands secured behind his back. A short time later Polizzi was examined by two physicians and was committed to Norwich State hospital, being taken there by Captain Charles Pinney and Patrolman Dennis Murphy.

BEAT UP ROAD FOREMAN— CHAS. BLOOMQUIST IN JAIL

Charles Bloomquist, Quaker Hill, Waterford, arrested last evening by State Police Officers James Dygert and Frederick Johnson charged with breach of the peace, brought to New London and locked up, was taken to jail this afternoon in default of a surety on his bond of $1000. He will remain in jail until next Monday if he does not procure a bondsman, for the Waterford town court does not convene until that day. Bloomquist's act in bringing about his arrest constituted a more serious infraction of the law than was at first believed. He had been drinking yesterday and when a force of Waterford highway workers arrived in front of Bloomquist's home to scrape the road, Bloomquist for some reason remonstrated with the laborers. An altercation arose between Bloomquist and Foreman H. A. Perkins with the result that the former attacked and beat Perkins, who is about 75. Complaint was made to the state police and when Officers Dygert and Johnson went to Bloomquist's home the door was locked and the occupant refused to admit the officers. The door was forced and the accused was taken into custody.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—The Connecticut branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons concluded its annual two days' convention at the Second Congregational church today. The principal business transacted was the re-election of the board of officers as follows: President and council member, Mrs. George H. Prior, Jewett City; first vice president, Miss Ada L. Shelley, Windsor; second vice president, Miss Elizabeth G. Day, Colchester; secretary, Miss Jessie A. Whittlesey, Hartford; treasurer, Miss Emma G. Keeney, New London. Mrs. Newton Clark, Hartford, was elected a member of the executive committee and succeeds Miss Harriet Eaton, Hartford, who resigned recently.

Reports of various committees were read and approved. The principal address of the convention was delivered last night by Rev. J. Chauncey Linsley of New Haven, his subject being the watchword of the order, "In His Name." Other speakers were Mrs. George H. Prior, Jewett City, the state president; Miss Grace H. Manning, Norwich, president of New London and Windham counties; Miss Florence Bair, New London; Mrs. Harry H. Thurlow, Providence, international treasurer and Mrs. Howard C. Arnold, Providence, secretary of the Rhode Island branch.

W. H. M. S. CONVENTION OPENS AT METHODIST CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—The opening session of the two days' convention of the Women's Home Mission societies of the Methodist church, New England Southern conference, was held today at the Methodist Episcopal church, with about 50 delegates in attendance. The session was preceded by an organ prelude by Mrs. Beatrice H. Fiske of this city. Mrs. Robert A. Bitgood, president of the conference, conducted the devotional service. Memorial services were conducted for Mrs. Albert W. Rogers, for 17 years corresponding secretary of the department and memorial flowers the gift of her daughter, Mrs. Harriet R. Allison of Denver, Col., were on the table. The communion service was conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, assisted by Rev. Elmer G. Page. Mrs. Stephen A. Prentis, president of the local society, extended greetings to the gathering and the response was by Mrs. Robert Mawney of Attleboro, Mass. Reports were made by Mrs. Jessie E. Swaine, Fair Haven, Mrs. Edward M. Griffiths, Pawtucket and Miss Mildred Coddington, Danielson. An interesting address was given this afternoon by Miss Cora Downs Stevens, field secretary, her subject being "Methods".

Mr. and Mrs. O. Demosh and son, Melville, have returned to their home, on Woodbridge street, having spent three weeks in Quebec, Montreal and Boston.

Mrs. Ralph Mattson and infant daughter of Maxson place; Mrs. Emilio Mazzuca and infant daughter, 4 Truman street; Miss Sophie Janak, 31 Union street, Hartford; Miss Clarice Palmer, Noank; Miss Jacqueline Weiss, Noank, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today. Mrs. Walter Lowell, another patient, was discharged yesterday.

The New London and state police are maintaining a lookout for Joseph E. Oliver, who disappeared from his home in Providence today and who is driving a Dodge automobile, which carries Rhode Island registration, 33506. The young man is 17 and weighs about 138 pounds.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Walter Doucette, 632 Bank street.

George H. Dyer, 130 Park avenue, made complaint to the police yesterday because of the act of a malicous person cutting a clothesline in the yard of his home, which act caused the clothes on the line to be dropped in the mud. It is evident that persons residing in that vicinity are perpetrating malicious acts to annoy residents. A few nights ago young men entered the premises of John Hoggins and shot a goose.

Patrolman Anthony Turello discovered a window open in the sales room of the Thompson-Chevrolet company, Huntington street, last night. The officer secured it.

Wesley Charge Nolled

George Wesley, colored, residing on Main street, was in the police court this morning charged with assault and stealing an automobile. Because of the absence of the complaining witness, Anna Ayers, colored, of 17 Hill street, who is in Norfolk, Va., and refused to come to New London and testify against Wesley, the charges were nolled.

Edward Sinoski, 403 Main street, was charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. The charges were nolled and the accused was given into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

George L. Culove, 9 Grand street, charged with violation of the city's traffic regulations, had the charge nolled. Culove was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty when the driver operated his automobile in the wrong direction on North Bank street, which street is restricted to traffic only in a southerly direction.

James McCann, Bradley place, West Mystic, charged with passing an automatic danger signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets, had the charge nolled.

PILES
Ended Without Cutting or Salves
Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or cutting remove the cause.
Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts.
Dr J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and than decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee.
Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Lee and Osgood invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.

HANCOCK GETS $5000 BAIL— WANTED BY GOVERNMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 6—Vincent Hancock, 27, of New York, arrested here late yesterday by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey charged with being a fugitive from justice when the officer found Hancock on Broad street in an automobile with his wife and child, was in the police court this morning. The case was continued to Wednesday next and Hancock was released for he obtained a surety on his bond of $5000 in Louis Elfenbein of this city, whose services were obtained through friends of Hancock in New York. Hancock has been sought on charges of smuggling and conspiring against the federal government for seven years. He admitted that he was urgently wanted by the federal authorities.

Hancock, it is understood, is a member of a huge liquor ring who operate in New York and New Jersey. He and two companions were in New London several days last week and were guests at the Hotel Mohican. During their stay at the hotel one of the men deposited, in the hotel safe, $14,000, the bills being of the denomination of $1,000 each. It was believed that the trio were in this city for the purpose of arranging for the landing of a boat-load of liquor, either at New London or some nearby point. When the man attracted the attention of the police, officers were assigned to check-up on their movements as were the state police and customs house officials. The men realized that they were being watched and two of them, including Hancock left the city. The next day a request was made of the local police to arrest Hancock, but he was not to be found. He returned to this city yesterday and was headed for the Hartford turnpike when arrested. Hancock is represented by Attorney Hallee, of New York, who is counsel for many of the men arrested on boats for violation of the liquor law and has defended many boatmen, tried before United States commissioners in New London. Hancock gave his occupation as mechanic.

Mrs. Max Hertz and infant son, 51 Federal street, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Painters, who have been engaged for a week in painting the lobby of the post office, have completed their task. The color scheme is white and gray.

Two Fires in Groton

The Groton fire department responded to two fire calls this morning. The first was in response to a still alarm. A rubbish fire was discovered in the rear of Douglass and Trask's garage, Thames street, and was quickly extinguished without damage resulting. The second fire completely destroyed a barn owned by Jacob Orkney on Mitchell street. When the fire was discovered the structure was blazing briskly and a high wind caused the small building to be enveloped in flames. The firemen responded to an alarm sent in from Box 24. Not until a half hour later was the fire subdued, but by that time the barn and its contents, which consisted of hay, had been destroyed. How the fire originated is not known.

New Haven railroad painters are improving the appearances of switch houses in this city by the application of a coat of pain.

Winsted Driver Intoxicated

Another driver, who entertains the idea that he is capable of driving his automobile while intoxicated, was revealed tonight when Stephen D. Webster, Highland Lake camp, Winsted, was arrested by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty. Webster was locked up and will be in the police court tomorrow. Webster was on Potter street about 9 o'clock and the manner in which he guided the car was observed by Moriarty. The officer signaled the driver to stop and when he did so it was plain that Webster was intoxicated.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Palace Theatre

Amos and Andy, the two radio fans who hold the country spellbound every evening shortly after dinner have made a talking picture which has created just as much of a sensation as they do in their sketches.

Here for the first time radio admirers will have an opportunity to see and hear in person these two characters who speak many words of truth in jest.

"Amos 'n' Andy," which is the title of their film comes to the Palace theatre Saturday where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week. There is no man, woman or child in Norwich who will want to miss seeing this screen sensation and to become better acquainted with those two inspiring characters who together own the well known "Fresh Air Taxi-Cab" company. While Madam Queen and Ruby Taylor, their two "girl friends," do not appear in the picture we hear just as much about them as we do over the radio.

These two colored impersonators are not the whole show themselves, however, they are supported by an excellent cast which adds greatly to the interest in the picture. There is something of an intrigue in which Amos and Andy play an important role and they are right in their glory when it comes to straightening out a "sitchiation."

A double-feature bill combining "Those Three French Girls" a comedy starring Fifi Dorsay, Cliff Edwards and a large cast and "The Last of the Lone Wolf," a drama of the underworld with Bert Lytell and Patsy Ruth Miller will be shown at the Palace for the last times today.

New Market Thames Square

Mr. Kenneth Kuchnia, well known Willimantic merchant, who for the past two years has operated The City Cash Market in that city, on Saturday November 8th will open a market at Thames Square, Norwich, which will be known also as The City Cash Market.

Mr. Kuchnia has had a wide experience in food merchandising as has been shown by his success in Willimantic and is a very competent buyer ever looking after the needs of his customers and affording them the opportunity of the best in foods at the lowest possible prices.

He has the best wishes of success from a large following of friends, satisfied customers, and business associates who feel that his success in Norwich is already assured. Read the advertisement in today's papers for the "biggest meal your dollar ever bought."

Hillcrest Theatre

Responding to popular demand, Manager Schwartz of the Hillcrest, The House of Perfect Sound, has been fortunate in arranging with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to hold over Greta Garbo in her second and greatest talking picture for another day, Friday. This arrangement has been made to accommodate the many people in both Taftville and Norwich who, thru unforeseen circumstances, were unable to get to the opening on Thursday night.

"Romance", Miss Garbo's second talkie, is considered by many to be the supreme achievement of the talking screen. In "Romance" Miss Garbo proves her right to the title, "The Divine Garbo."

On the surrounding bill are an exceptionally fine group of all talking short featurettes. There will be two shows, one at 6:45 and the other at 8:45.

SIX BANDITS SCARED OFF FROM EAST GREAT PLAIN HOLDUP

A gang of bandits, intent on robbing the home of Louis Weber, Hebrew farmer, near Ford's ice houses, at East Great Plain, Thursday morning, were frightened off before they had a chance to get away with any loot. Warned by one of their number that Mrs. Weber was on the way to get help, the six bandits escaped in their machine, a Buick, carrying New York registration plates.

Mrs. Weber informed the police that about 9 o'clock, while she was milking in the barn, a stranger posing as a real estate man approached her and asked if she knew of any farms for sale in the vicinity. Mrs. Weber mentioned one or two and then the stranger said: "I like the looks of this place." He learned from her that Mr. Weber was not home. Mrs. Weber told him that the farm was not for sale, but the stranger insisted that he and some friends who were waiting in a machine nearby be allowed to inspect the house.

Mrs. Weber, suspecting that all was not right, finally consented to show the men through the house and the stranger left to summon the other bandits. While he was gone Mrs. Weber hurried into the house, took over $100 in cash from a bureau drawer and threw it under a piano. She also hid her jewelry.

The New York sedan drove into the yard and three of the bandits went to the house, leaving the other three crooks posted as lookouts. Mrs. Weber once more informed the crooks that the place was not for sale, but they started to go through the house. One of the gang then informed her that there was no use for any more "monkey business" as they were prohibition agents. The bandits displayed badges and one of them was ordered to keep Mrs. Weber in the kitchen while the others were ransacking the house. Robinson, in the meantime, went into the house and was ordered to sit down.

Mrs. Weber, while the men were ransacking the place, backed into a bathroom off the kitchen, locked the door, and then ran out of a second door which led into the farm yard. She then ran down the road to the home of Richard G. Raymond, a neighbor. Mrs. Raymond notified the police that there was something wrong at the house and Chief Linton sent Officers Clifford Crary and Michael Carroll to investigate. The officers found Robinson at the farm and he told them that he had been robbed of $300.

While Mrs. Weber was racing to the Raymond house, the bandit who had been guarding her evidently told the others that she had escaped for the three ran to their machine and drove away, picking up the three lookouts in the road on the way.

No money was secured by the bandits, as the cash Mrs. Weber threw under the piano was found by the police when they moved the piano. A bag in which Robinson told the police he had $300 had been taken from his room but was found in a hallway, where it had been forced open. It was evidently being searched when the bandits hurriedly left the place. Robinson's money, $265.25 in four envelopes, was found in the bag. Although he originally told the police that there was $300 in the bag, he later informed them that the money was all safe.

Robinson kept his money, the savings of six years, in the bag because, as he told the police, he was afraid of banks. The state police were notified and Officer Clarence Hoxie was detailed to conduct an investigation for that department. An alarm was broadcast by the state police, asking the police in all cities in the state to be on the watch for the fleeing gang.

Mrs. Weber described one of the men as tall, heavy, and about 40 years of age, and said he wore a blue suit, dark coat and soft hat. Another she described as of medium height, abo[illegible] 40 years old, and wearing a gray c[illegible] The third, she described as about [illegible] years old, of medium height and of slim build. No description of the three men left in the road was obtained.

REPORTS KING'S DAUGHTERS OF TWO COUNTIES RAISED OVER $3,500

King's Daughters' circles in New London and Windham counties raised over $3,500 in the year, as was shown in the annual report given by Mrs. Grace H. Manning of this city, county president, before the state convention of the King's Daughters which concluded its two-day meeting in New London on Thursday.

In her report which summarized the work for the year, Mrs. Manning said:

"New London and Windham counties are steadily working along the usual lines, aiding the needy, comforting the ill, and remembering the shut-ins. Last January, I had the pleasure of going to Groton and meeting a number of adult people interested in the King's Daughter work; as a result the Fellowship circle was formed and today is one of the five circles entertaining the convention; so the two counties now number 19 senior and two junior circles, of which the smallest membership is four persons, and the largest 120. Trusting circle of Willimantic works diligently for the Card home and all of the Norwich circles work for the Johnson home, and often entertain the members of the Sheltering Arms, the Riverside home and the county home. The New London circles labor for the churches of which they are a part and for the hospitals.

"The Jewett City circles aid their own churches and willingly lend a hand in any charitable work. The other circles in small places are each doing their best to speed the Master's kingdom.

"We are proud to announce that we claim several "Sons". I am sorry to say that only four circles report regular Bible study, but all have a devotional service at each meeting, and there are 51 subscribers for the Silver Cross.

"All circles combined have earned a little over $3,500 and they have expended about $3,000, so we must have brought cheer to some of God's children and we hope to continue faithfully working for Him so long as we are able.

"Let us put a shoulder to the wheel and try to do still more for our loving and loved King."

Included in the attendance at the convention from the Norwich circles were Mrs. Manning, Mrs. William Whiteman, Miss Maria S Briggs, Mrs. Edward Briggs, Mrs. David M. Dean, Mrs. Allen Kinney Mrs. Fred S. Armstrong, Mrs. Althea Brown, Mrs. Neville Blicque, Mrs. John Smith, Mrs. Aubrey W. Jarvis, Mrs. Homer D. Gager, Mrs. Robert E. Hull, Mrs. Harry J. SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION IS PLEDGED BY DEM. LEADERS

Seven Leading Democratic Leaders Make Avowal That the Party Will Be Glad to Cooperate With President Hoover and With the Republican Members of Congress in Every Measure That Conduces to the Welfare of the Country—House Now Stands Republicans 218, Democrats 216—With the Senate Republican 48-47 Brookhart Offers to Join the Democrats in Organization if They Support His Program

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Leaders of the republican and democratic parties pledged themselves to cooperation in the nation's interests yesterday as Tuesday's biennial congressional election ended in a virtual deadlock that threatened legislative chaos.

Still confident and fighting to overtake an apparent majority of one for the republicans in the house, seven national democratic leaders tonight issued a joint statement declaring, in part:

"The democratic party faces its duty with a firm determination to permit no thought of political advantage to swerve it from the course that is best for the country. It has neither the time nor the desire to punish anybody or to exalt itself.

"To the extent of its ability it will steer the legislation of the nation in a straight line toward the goal of prosperity, nor permit itself to be diverted either by political expediency or a desire to show that it now dominates the enacting branch of the government.

"To this end the seventy-second congress will not be an obstructive body. It will not seek to embarrass the president of the United States, but will be glad to cooperate with him and with the members of the opposite party in the house and senate in every measure that conduces to the welfare of the country."

This statement was signed by the democratic leaders in congress, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, and Representative Garner, of Texas; by the democratic presidential nominees in 1920, 1924 and 1928—James M. Cox, of Ohio, John W. Davis, of New York, and Alfred E. Smith, of New York, respectively — by John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, and by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic national executive committee.

President Hoover, in his first conference with newspaper men since the election which carried the democrats to the threshold of power in congress, said simply that the task ahead of the nation now is to "concentrate on measures of cooperation for economic recovery." Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, likewise pleaded that "whoever controls the next congress, let us all join together in a spirit of cooperation to bring back prosperity to the nation."

House

Republicans, 218.
Democrats, 216.
Farmer-labor, 1.

Senate

Republicans, 48.
Democrats, 47.
Farmer-Labor, 1.

But the republican majority of one in the house included victories in Indiana of two republicans by margins of less than 15 votes. Representative Vestal's lead of nine votes in the eighth Indiana district was immediately challenged by the democrats. Representative Purnell's margin of 13 votes in the ninth Indiana district was also under attack.

Senator Brookhart, republican, of Iowa, threatened the republican plurality in the senate with a statement asserting he would join the democrats for organization of that body of they would support a program he outlined, including the export debenture principle of farm relief.

Thus, it is obvious that until the next congress actually convenes it probably will not be certain whether the republicans or the democrats will organize either the senate or the house. Deaths, resignations and contests in the meantime may vary the standing.

The new congress does not meet in regular session until December, 1931. It could be called into special session anytime after next March 4, when the present congress dies, by order of the president.

While Senator Brookhart is advocating such a special session next spring unless the export debenture farm relief plan, to which President Hoover is opposed, and unemployment legislation are enacted at the short term, there was no indication from the democratic leaders that they would seek to force it.

"There will be no holding up of necessary appropriations, no rejection of fit appointees to important places merely because these appointments are made by a president of the opposite party," declared the statement of the democratic chieftains.

Jouett Shouse, the democratic campaign manager, steadfastly refused to concede republican control of the next house last night as the election clerks continued to finger the ballots in rechecking the many close contests.

While the republican majority in the house rested upon such slim decisions in many places, the republicans were expecting a recount in the twenty-fourth Illinois district to give them back a seat listed as democratic in first returns.

James P. Heidinger, republican, and Claude V. Parsons, democrat, were involved in a contest in this district; they were separated by only a few votes. Parsons' election had been declared and his name was included in the total of 216 democratic votes.

The election of Representative Yates, republican member at large in Illinois, who finally overtook a democratic opponent Friday, gave the republicans the 218 majority on the face of the final but unofficial returns.

Apparently the senate contest is [illegible] and there is every probability despite the threat of Senator Brookhart, who indicated that he also spoke the mind of Senator Shipstead, farmer labor, of Minnesota, that the republicans would organize this branch on the basis of the present standing.

Thus, the fight centers in the house. More than a score of contests already have begun for these seats.

MASS INTERRUPTED BY CHANT OF MOSLEM SERVICE

CORDOBA, Spain, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The high chant of the Moslem religious service rose in the ancient cathedral of Cordoba today for the first time in 500 years, interrupting for a moment a Catholic mass being sung by the local clergy.

A group of Moorish students, touring the old province of Andalusia which was wrested from their forbears five centuries ago, halted in a corridor of the cathedral where verses of the Koran still decorate the walls.

Oblivious of their whereabouts, they burst into the chant as the Catholic service was in progress in another part of the church. The Catholic clergy, realizing that the students were touring under government auspices, suspended their mass until the chant ended.

It was probably the first time in history that services of the two religions have been performed simultaneously without restriction in the same temple.

RIVALRY OF GRAPE VENDORS BLAMED FOR SHOOTING

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Rivalry among men who vend grapes for wine-making to the residents of Harlem was blamed today for the critical wounding of Joseph Trambaturi, 40.

A rifle and a sawed off shotgun were discharged and the automobile sped away. A short distance from the scene of the shooting the discarded weapons were found.

Trambaturi, with the entire charge of the shotgun in his face, recovered consciousness in a hospital. He told police he was a chef and unemployed, but a search of his clothing revealed a check for $1,600 signed by him.

In April, 1928, Miss Offield attracted attention while attending a Washington seminary, by being invited by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge to tea at the white house.

WEATHER NOT PROMISING FOR TAKE-OFF OF THE DO-X

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Stiff winds whistled across the English channel tonight; gale warnings were hoisted at Calshot, the naval base near Southampton, and prospects for tomorrow's promised flight of the seaplane DO-X to England were not promising.

Nevertheless, the big plane's crew proceeded with preparations for their salt water debut—a flight to Calshot on the second stage of a transatlantic voyage to New York by way of the Azores and Bermuda.

The 400-mile stretch of open water between here and England would consume not more than three and a half hours, and at Southampton, it was reported, both the German embassy and the British air ministry had invited 200 guests to witness the arrival of the biggest seaplane in the world.

It was thought possible that the Prince of Wales might fly over from London in his private plane to take part in the reception.

A crew of 15 and 21 passengers are to make this first flight of the DO-X between two important seaports, and with only 36 aboard the ship will be flying light, for on her trials she has carried as many as 169.

Train Robbers Get About $60,000 Loot

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 7.—(AP)—With the dispatch of modern racketeering and some of the flare of the old west, a band of outlaws held up a Southern Pacific passenger train near Nobel today and escaped with loot estimated at $60,000 or more.

Passengers were not molested but were thrown into a panic when a transformer on an adjoining electric line blew out. Eye witnesses agreed but one shot was fired by the six or seven armed and masked men. The escape was made in a stolen motor car.

The train, No. 36, runs daily between Oakland and Tracy, Cal., leaving Oakland about 7 a. m. Authorities believed two of the robbers boarded the train at Berkeley as passengers.

Near Nobel, seven miles from here, an armed, masked man, who had climbed across coaches and tender, jumped into the locomotive cab and in a high, thin but calm voice commanded the engineer and fireman to stop the engine.

R. E. Lemery, engineer, and S. E. O'Brien, fireman, were forced to lie on the ground. A large sedan was waiting beside the track with other robbers in it.

Two machine guns were mounted on the car and each robber was armed with a rifle, except one who had a shotgun and the man who climbed into the cab with a pistol.

Methodically the robbers entered the baggage car, held up John McClintock, baggage man, and took an undetermined number of bags of mail, including approximately $55,000 consigned by the Federal Reserve bank in San Francisco to the American Trust Co. branch at Pittsburg to be used in cashing payroll checks for the Columbia Steel Works Co.

The workers were lined up ready to receive their checks when news of the robbery came. Company officials held up the checks, tentatively.

The bandits fled in the sedan and the train pulled on to Stege, where authorities were notified.

Postal inspectors, federal reserve officers, sheriffs' deputies and Southern Pacific special police organized for a search of north central California. All roads were ordered blocked for miles around.

The sedan was stolen last night from an Oakland garage by two men who held up an attendant. The attendant gave police a good description of the men, who were thought to have been members of the holdup gang.

Passengers expected to be robbed They got out their money and valuables and had them ready, but the robbers were after, bigger game.

Miss Mabel Skaale, a commuter, said she believed there were six men in the gang but some passengers told of seeing seven. She was in a coach next to the baggage car and saw a mail sack passed out to a bandit on a flat car who passed it on to men in the waiting sedan.

ATTORNEY ARRESTED FOR RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Franklin P. Ferguson, attorney, of Park avenue, was arrested tonight, accused of receiving stolen property. His arrest followed a disclosure that part of the $250,000 loot taken in a Lincoln, Neb., bank robbery had turned up in the financial district.

As police told the story, Ferguson presented $15,000 worth of bonds for sale today to Jepson, Tremaine and company, brokers in whose office he has desk room. The securities were sent to a bond brokerage office whence they soon came back with a message declaring them to be part of the securities stolen in the daring daylight robbery of the Lincoln National Bank and Trust company, September 17.

Ferguson then declared, police said, that he would take the bonds back to a man who had given them to him. He left, police were notified and a detective was sent after him.

WOULD HAVE CHARITY IMBUE THANKSGIVING OBSERVANCE

President Hoover in His Annual Proclamation Calls For Venting of Thanks By Giving Aid to Those People Who Are in Need and Suffering From Causes Beyond Their Control—We Should Make Sure That Every Person in the Community "Shall Have Cause to Give Thanks For Our Institutions and For the Neighborly Sentiment of Our People"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.— (AP) — Observance of Thanksgiving day by aiding those people who are in need and suffering from causes beyond their control was urged upon the country today by President Hoover.

In his annual proclamation designating Nov. 27 as a day of national thanksgiving, the president suggested that "a proper celebration of the day should include that we make sure that every person in the community, young and old, shall have cause to give thanks for our institutions and for the neighborly sentiment of our people."

"Our country has many causes for thanksgiving," Mr. Hoocer said. "We have been blest with distinctive evidence of divine favor. As a nation we have suffered far less than other people from the present world difficulties. We have been free from civil and industrial discord. In a large view we have made progress upon the enduring structure of our institutions. The arts and sciences that enrich our lives and enlarge our control of nature have made notable advances. Education has been further extended. We have made gains in the prevention of diseases and in the protection of childhood."

His full proclamation follows:

"By the President of the United States, a Proclamation:

"Notwithstanding that our forefathers endured the hardships and privations of a primitive life, surrounded by dangers and solaced only with meagre comforts, they nevertheless bequeathed to us a custom of devoting one day of every year to universal thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessing of life itself and the means to sustain it, for the sanctuary of home and the joys that pervade it, and for the mercies of His protection from accidents, sickness or death.

"Our country has many causes for thanksgiving. We have been blest with distinctive evidence of divine favor. As a nation we have suffered far less than other peoples from the present world difficulties. We have been free from civil and industrial discord. The outlook for peace between nations has been strengthened. In a large view we have made progress upon the enduring structure of our institutions. The arts and sciences that enrich our lives and enlarge our control of nature have made notable advances. Education has been further extended. We have made gains in the prevention of disease and in the protection of childhood.

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, president of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, Nov. 27, 1930, as a national day of thanksgiving, and do enjoin the people of the United States so to observe it, calling upon them to remember that many of our people are in need and suffering from causes beyond their control, and suggesting that a proper celebration of the day should include that we make sure that every person in the community, young and old, shall have cause to give thanks or our institutions and for the neighborly sentiments of our people.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the seal of the United States.

"Done at the city of Washington, this sixth day of November, in the year of our Lord 1930, and of the independence of the United States of America, the 155th.

(Signed) "HERBERT HOOVER."

INVENTOR DE FOREST FILES $2,770,000 DAMAGE SUIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Dr. Lee De Forest, inventor of radio and talking motion picture devices, filed a $2,700,000 damage suit in the supreme court today against the Western Electric Company, Inc., the Electrical Research Products, Inc., and John E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products.

He charged the defendants maliciously prevented him from selling control of the De Forest Phonofilm Corp., in 1926 to William Fox. He said they feared Fox might become a formidable competitor.

The inventor further alleged the defendants represented to Fox that he or his companies did not own the sound film patents whose sale he was negotiating with Fox.

Fox then refused to exercise an option to purchase De Forest stock, the plaintiff said, at a price which had been fixed at $2,500,000. If the option had been exercised, Dr. De Forest asserted, he was also to have been employed by Fox for five years at $50,000 a year.

GANGSTER CONTINUES TO ELUDE CHICAGO POLICE

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.— (AP) —Terry Druggan, beer baron and "public enemy," continued to elude police tonight, although efforts to capture him were redoubled after the discovery of a letter which investigators said implicated him in a plot to assassinate "Scarface" Al Capone, czar of Chicago's gangdom.

This letter, seized by detectives who raided the wealthy Druggan's downtown hotel suite and his luxurious north side apartment during the day, contained an offer to "take care of the big fellow."

Investigators declared "the big fellow" could mean no one but Capone.

Detectives seized many other letters which indicated, they said, that Druggan is in close touch with criminals in many other parts of the country. Deeds and records also were found which investigators said would reveal Druggan as one of the wealthiest in Chicago rackets.

Coroner Conducts Inquest

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson conducted an inquest today into the death of George T. Platt, Andover mail messenger, who was fatally injured when struck by an automobile in Andover on the evening of October 27. The coroner reserved his decision after questioning the following witnesses at police headquarters; Sumner C. Lang, 70, of West Somerville, Mass., driver of the car; State Policeman Henry Zehrer of the Stafford Springs barracks; Grand Juror C. G. Ketcham of Andover; Medical Examiner Dr. C. E. Simonds of this city and George L. Randell of Lebanon. Mr. Platt died in St. Joseph's hospital three days after the accident.

Mrs. Pierre J. Laramie of 146 Valley street will be confined to her home for several days with a painful leg injury sustained Thursday evening when she slipped as she was about to enter an automobile after leaving from a visit with her mother, Mrs. Mathilda Martin of 411 Valley street. Main street, Willimantic, is the only long business street on the route from Harvard to Yale, advocated by the state police for use two weeks hence to get to the Yale Bowl for the football classic of the two great colleges. The route mapped out by John H. Macdonald, highway commissioner and Robert T. Hurley, police commissioner, brings traffic away from all heavy traffic in Hartford, Middletown and central New Haven. There being no shorter from Danielson to Middletown, this football traffic must past through the heart of this city.

The admission this week of four new members into the auxiliary to James J. Shea post No. 19, American legion, brings the total membership of the unit to 142. The new members are, Mrs. Lillian Overholt, Mrs. Catherine Dore, Mrs. Helen Hurwitz and Mrs. Alma Gates.

A charge that the statements of salesmen for Hoyt Brothers, Inc., of Newark, N. J., to the effect that 10 per cent of the net profits of their sales is donated to the Passaic Home and Orphanage Asylum of Passaic, N. J., do not represent a substantial sum and are therefore made for purely a purpose of promoting sales, is made by the Willimantic chamber of commerce. The Hoyt Brothers salesmen are at present canvassing the city for sales of various extracts, soap, spices, toilet articles, etc. Information received from the Passaic chamber of commerce is to the effect that the Hoyt Brothers give 10 per cent net profits to the asylum and have done so for several years. This is taken to mean, here, that after all expenses are paid, including salesmen's commission, transportation charges, etc., that the net profit, which could not be learned by the chamber of commerce, may be 10 cents on the dollar. It is deduced that 10 per cent of 10cents would be one cent which the orphanage and asylum would receive on a dollar sale assuming the net profit to be 10 cents.

Members of the Connecticut Agricultural college faculty will be the speakers at the Exchange club meetings the ensuing two weeks. Tuesday evening, November 11, Armistice night, Dr. Dewey G. PUBLIC SERVICE DRIVER COMMITTED TO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 7.—Now numbered among the prisoners at the county jail in Brooklyn is Thomas Clement of Worcester. Clement was committed when he could not produce sufficient funds to pay a fine of $25 and costs assessed against him in the town court of Plainfield, at Central Village.

His difficulties arise out of the fact that he was operating a Worcester-New London public service car last Tuesday night when the machine crashed into a horse-drawn vehicle loaded with apples, the accident happening near French's crossing, below Central Village. It was foggy at the time. Louis Superio, Central Village, owner and driver of the horse, was pitched headlong from his seat to the highway and was considerably shaken up. The horse was so badly injured that it was necessary to kill it. The load of apples was scattered in all directions and the wagon was smashed to kindling wood.

Clement did not await the arrival of a state officer to check up the accident, but proceeded to New London, though his car had sustained no damage. There were no passengers in the vehicle. Superio was coming toward Central Village when the accident happened and had a lighted lantern on his wagon.

It was not until yesterday that state officers were able to get in touch with Clement, and when he appeared at the barracks here he was placed under arrest on a charge of reckless driving. His court appearance and fine followed.

Brooklyn Fox Hunt

An Armistice day spectacle that will be novel to the people of Brooklyn and Danielson is the hunt planned to be held in Brooklyn. The hounds will start from the Van Br[illegible] farm and are expected to work eastward into the Allen Hill section. While there has been hunting with hounds in Pomfret this fall, the one planned for next Tuesday will be the first in this immediate territory. Many plan to go over from Danielson to get a closeup of the doings, which are certain to be very interesting.

FUNERAL

Joseph Hepel

From L. E. Kennedy's funeral home the funeral of Joseph Hepel, Spanish-American war veteran, was held this morning, the services being at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. F. X. Baldwin, M. S., Rev. Fr. Tobin, M. S., and Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S., were officers of the solemn high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, Rev. Fr. Baldwin conducting the committal service. A firing squad paid the usual honor to the soldier dead. The bearers were Spanish-American and World war veterans—Charles Rapp, Carl Anderson, Eugene Bibeault, G. A. Hamilton, Walter W. Murphy and Arthur DeForest.

Three Skeletons Unearthed

Out of Foster comes the gruesome tale of the reburial of three skeletons unearthed when excavating was being done a short time ago, incident to the building of a new state highway through the Moosup valley area of the town. The matter comes to attention through the $15 item of expense for reburial that appeared in a financial statement at a regular meeting of the town council. It appears that there are unrevealed reasons for believing that one of the skeletons was that of a woman who had been a slave during her existence in this world.

It appears at this time that next year will witness the completion of a state highway from near the southern boundary of the town of Canterbury into Lisbon, where it will connect with the present state highway from that point into Norwich.

Building of this final link will make available a good state road all the way from Norwich to the Connecticut-Massachusetts line at North Woodstock, and for that matter, from North Woodstock right on into Southbridge and return.

Canterbury already has made the necessary financial arrangements for the part of the work remaining to be done in that town, and the understanding here is that Lisbon also will be ready in the spring.

The route is an ideal one scenically, cuts down the distance from Norwich into this section of Windham county and will be less congested than the present trunk line from this section into New London county.

It was brought out at the meeting of Windham county section of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, held at the Baptist church in Moosup yesterday, that Moosup has the signal honor and record highest attendance in the country at adult education classes. Mrs. Eric Johnson of Danielson presided in her capacity as president of the Windham county clubs and introduced the speakers. The record attendance referred to in the Moosup adult education classes was 97 per cent.

Miss Mary F. Potter, chairman of the Americanization committee of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, was one of the speakers at the meeting and during the course of her talk paid tribute to the clubwomen of this area of eastern Connecticut for their splendid efforts. A number of federation state officers and department chairmen attended the meeting.

FIRE DESTROYS ANCIENT DWELLING AND BARN; HORSE BURNED TO DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 7.—Fire that broke out late this afternoon destroyed an ancient and unoccupied dwelling and the nearby barn, the property owned by David Jassin, on the highway running westward from Attawaugan crossing close to the north shore of Alexander's lake. A horse owned by Kenneth Boswell of Danielson was burned to death. Boswell and a companion had been hauling out wood from nearby territory for Everett T. Tillinghast of Danielson. They stabled their horse in the old barn late this afternoon to leave him there for the night. About a half hour later the fire broke out. Assistance was summoned from the surrounding territory but nothing could be done to stop the spread of the flames, which soon communicated from the barn to the house. The loss is comparatively small.

PUTNAM

COUNCIL LACKS QUORUM ADJOURNS TO DECEMBER 2

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 7—Through the consent of Mayor Charles A. Richard and four republican members of the common council, the November meeting of the body has been adjourned until the first Tuesday in December, when the aldermen will be called upon to discharge municipal duties that will range over a period of two months. The action of the mayor was necessitated Thursday evening when the number of councilmen taking their seats in the chamber was not sufficient enough to form a quorum.

On Tuesday evening, election night, Mayor Richard obliged the councilmen who requested an adjournment until a later date, and postponed the November meeting until Thursday, Nov. 6.

When Clerk T. P. Ryan called the aldermanic roll Thursday night the following councilmen were absent: Eugene Berthiaume, ward 1; Joseph Dubois, ward 2; Francis X. Vadnais, ward 3, M. Edward Duffy, ward 4, all democrats and David O. Breault, republican, ward 5.

The four remaining republican members of the council were in their seats. Bills and other items of municipal business were informally discussed and prepared for action, after which Mayor Richard was informed that the body was in readiness for opening of the session.

Asked by the mayor for their pleasure relative to the next adjournment date, Alderman John M. Dean, moved that adjournment be made to Tuesday, December 2 date of the next regular session.

NO APPLICATIONS RECEIVED FOR FIRE CHIEF'S POSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov 7—In an interview today Mayor Charles A. Richard stated that the fire committee as yet is not prepared to recommend to the common council for ratification a candidate to succeed the late Ralph E. Thurston, as chief of the fire department. The mayor added that in the event a quorum had been present at Thursday night's adjourned session of the aldermanic body, no action would have been taken upon the fulfillment of this vacancy. "The fire committee has received no applications for this appointment as far as I know. Assistant Chief Dumas, who is now acting chief of the department is about the oldest fireman in the point of service and from this viewpoint, he is entitled to the position," the mayor said.

Mr. Richard added that until a new chief is appointed the fire committee and members of the council are satisfied that affairs pertinent to the fire department will be properly discharged under the able guidance of Acting Chief Dumas.

Discharged at Hospital

Miss Alice Washburn, 22, of Marlboro, Mass., injured Saturday evening when a car in which she was a passenger was in collision with another at the Dayville four corners on the Putnam-Danielson road, was discharged this afternoon from the Day Kimball hospital, where she was a patient since the accident. Miss Washburn suffered a severe scalp wound and lacerations of the face which have disfigured her features. Miss Helen Snyder, also of Marlboro and a passenger in the car with Miss Washburn, is still a patient at the hospital. Her condition was reported as considerably improved. Her injuries are similar to those sustained by the Washburn girl.

Both young women were riding in the automobile owned and operated by State Policeman George Stanley of the Topsfield barracks of Massachusetts state police. The policeman sustained minor injuries but was not forced to remain at the hospital any length of time.

Fifteen Persons Apply

Almost fifteen persons claiming to be unemployed have visited the two registration booths in the city, established by the Putnam Unemployment relief committee, and signed their names in quest of jobs. Walter N. King, president of the chamber of commerce, said this afternoon that the jobless are reporting their needs slowly, but expects the number of registrations will increase considerably during the next few days. In the north end of the city, J. J. Dupre, in charge of a registration booth in that section, said that only four applied for registration blanks today.

Horses to be used in the fox hunt to be held in Pomfret, Saturday afternoon arrived here today aboard specially constructed vans. The hunt will start from the Hoxie farm in the Gary district at approximately 2.15.

TO LAUNCH CAMPAIGN AGAINST RECKLESS DRIVERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov 7—In the interests of pedestrians' safety and for the protection of autoists on Grove and Providence streets, police tonight were preparing to launch a campaign against speeding and reckless drivers whose careless acts are constantly endangering life and limb.

Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil stated tonight that drastic action is to be taken at once against perpetrators of these acts of recklessness with an aim towards the prevention of a possible tragedy or serious catastrophe. Captain Dubreuil added that fragrant violators are to be arrested, summoned into court and fined. Prosecuting Attorney E. H. Johnson, he said, is cooperating with the police in the proposed movement to end the dangers constantly existing through the outrageous rates of speed at which irresponsible operators are driving their automobiles through the two principal residential thoroughfares of the city.

On Providence street, the most heavily travelled highway in the north end, cars are continually whipping through at speeds that clearly indicate drivers have no regard for public safety, or for traffic regulations. The same conditions exist in the Grove street section.

Captain Dubreuil intimated that he has not as yet outlined a definite programme for the apprehension of violators, but said that officers will probably be stationed at a vantage point along each street, prepared to run offenders into speed traps.

The warning, the police captain said, is issued to all in hope that those to whom it particularly applies will heed it and prevent the necessity of police intervention.

BLACK HILL

SOUTHERN SIGHTSEEING OF THE NUTMEGS ABROAD

Writing from Asheville, N. C., Everett E. Brown says:

Several enjoyable days have been spent at Asheville. Received some daily Bulletins. Found very interesting people at the chamber of commerce who furnished us a great variety of booklets as well as other information. Found an extra good restaurant and best cafeteria I ever struck. One innovation was to have a good looking waitress go around with a big coffee pot and cream pitcher and replenish your coffee free of charge. It really made you wish to stay all winter.

Asheville has 60,000 population. Its city government was founded 133 years ago. At first mostly a pleasure and health resort, it is now a big business center, with an elevation of 2300 feet, 13 newspapers, 10 leading hotels, with a room capacity of 2,425, 60 churches.

"Potato Knob" nearby, has an elevation of 6,419 feet. A large part of the water supply comes from Mt. Mitchell. They have a storage reserve of 650,000 gallons, enough for 60 days.

Asheville is the only mountain city where I ever saw big oranges lying around loose on sidewalks and gutters. Help yourself!

For many miles each way from Asheville the woods were filled with rhodendrons, many of which are shipped north annually for planting. They must be a wonderful sight in springtime. Beyond Murphy we commenced to climb higher up the mountains till when we passed through Neel's Gap, Tenn. We were 3,108 feet up. Coming down again it was a steady eight mile stretch and a drop of 1,600 feet. But all went well except a drizzle of rain, which at times obstructed the view. When down in the valley on the Georgia side we commenced to see cotton.

Atlanta A Big City.

Atlanta is the biggest city since leaving home and seems like New York, with its Flat Iron building and sky-scrapers. It is well called the Gate City of the South. I cannot begin to describe it, 300,000 population and still growing. Being the capital of Georgia, it has many fine state buildings, county buildings, city buildings, immense factories of national reputation. There are over 600 factories, turning out over 1,500 different commodities, which are shipped to nearly every country of the world. Notable educational institutions are "Georgia's School of Technology, Emory university, Oglethorpe university, Agnes Scott College for Women, Campbell hall and Columbia Theological seminary.

Stone Mt. Memorial.

We passed near the noted Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial. The roads from Atlanta to Florida were wonderful, mostly of cement through a gentle rolling country, growing large fields of cotton, which gradually changing to pecan orchards, orchards stretching for miles, then gradually changing to pecan orchids. Peaches are said to be very profitable this year. We stopped at night at Valdosta, which I was surprised to find such a snappy hustling city. It is at the junction of several trunk lines and is growing rapidly. From Valdosta we drove 212 miles in one day to Tallahasse capital of Florida. Too much of a drive, but we couldn't find a place to stop earlier that suited us. Tallahasse is one of the oldest cities in the state, created capital over 100 years ago, when there were almost no railroads. Like Rome, Tallahasee is built on seven hills and the rolling country contains many interesting drives. In the last six years the population has increased over 170 per cent. It is now above 16,000. The town has an elevation of 240 feet. The Florida State College for Women was established about 1905 and now has some 1700 students. There are a number of minor schools.

Call At Lapsley Home.

We made a very pleasant call at Meridian Plantation, of 10,000 acres, the winter home of Arthur B. Lapsley, who has the beautiful apple orchards in Pomfret, Conn. The view from his lawn is the most beautiful we have seen in Florida.

VOLUNTOWN

At Tuesday's election, local democrats carried their state ticket by an average majority of 3[illegible], or 115 to 82. There were 107 straight democratic ballots and 78 straight republican.

The vote for representative gave McBirdsey Palmer, dem., 114 and Mr. Walter C. Turner 88. Majority for Palmer 26. Mr. Palmer being declared reelected for a second term. George B. Sheldon, running for reelection as justice of the peace polled the highest vote of the day, 120.

The following justices of the peace were elected: George B. Sheldon, d, 120; Birdsey G. Palmer, d, 117; Roscoe Bitgood, d, 115; Wm. H. Kaufmann, r, 85; Thomas McDonald, r, 83; Warren E. Tanner, r, 80.

Both parties worked hard in bringing out their supporters with the result that aproximately 80 per cent of the registered voters cast their ballots. There were registered 246 electors and 205 checked as voting. That the voters understood their business of the day was evidenced by the fact that only two ballots were rejected by the counters.

There were no challenges during the voting nor any untoward events, in fact the campaigning and election was carried in a quiet and friendly manner as it should be, without personalities or bickerings of any kind.

The election officials were as follows: Moderator, Henry Young; checker, Moses Tatro; ballot tenders, George A. Tanner and Frank Watson; The official counters were George B. Sheldon, Charles A. Downing, Edward E. Clark and Howard E. James. There was a good sized audience in the hall when the results were announced and the victors were loudly applauded. During the evening the democrats staged an impromptu demonstration, parading the village streets with several noise making devices, also adding their cheers to the noise.

Dinner Well Patronized

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church served a chowder during the afternoon on election day. The waiters were kept busy supplying the hearty appetites of the voters and other patrons.

A new sewing club has been formed in the village and met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Dupont. From their experience at the first two meetings they are considering a very appropriate name, "The Rainy Night club." They should have started this club earlier in the season.

The Ladies Aid Sewing club met with Miss Bertha Lewis Thursday afternoon.

THE SENATE CHANGES

Though it will be some time before the senators elected Tuesday, except those for unexpired terms, will get into action at Washington, it is already possible to picture some decided changes. There was the time when death and elections brought about the vacancies and replacements, since few resign, but now the primaries can be and often are furnishing quick means of elimination.

Senators Ransdell and Simmons have gone down in primary contests and two of the stalwart democrats have thus been eliminated. Senator Blease likewise fell before the primary attack of a party opponent, but his departure from the senate will awaken no regrets, while the defeat of Senator Heflin will be looked upon as a relief.

Out in Oklahoma Senator Pine has been replaced by former Senator Gore, while Senator Schall in Minnesota had a close call. These two have had strong insurgent tendencies and their troubles election day may be attributed in part to that. Senator Robsion of Kentucky has likewise had a leaning in the same direction and he goes down to defeat. But along with him goes Senator Allen of Kansas, a strong administration supporter, and also Senator McCullough of Ohio, whose dryness was not moist enough for formerly dry Ohio.

Massachusetts has added one more to the democratic strength and so has Illinois, wetness figuring prominently in their campaigns, but Delaware returned Senator Hastings over his wet opponent and Pennsylvania got its second senator for the first time in years without that question entering into his campaign. Iowa replaces Senator Steck with a republican, the natural result in the state where the tall corn grows, and where a democrat would never have had a look-in but for the situation created by the troublesome Senator Brookhart. The return of Senator Glass of Virginia was a foregone conclusion, while Senators Morrow and Hull will add strength to each party.

Thus, strong as the democrats and the insurgents were in the past sessions, the democrats are all but in control without coalition efforts. They are in position to make all kinds of trouble with but little assistance and it will be interesting to note whether they will be as anxious as in the past to be the tail of the insurgent kite.

Interest attaches to the fact that the situation encourages the possibility of putting the south back in the saddle, a prospect that can be none too pleasing.

RECOUNT TALK

Whenever elections are close and candidates are ahead by a small number of votes there is quick resort to the thought of a recount. It is not an unreasonable view where voting is done by paper ballots and there is an opportunity for the counters to make mistakes and pass judgment upon what voters intended to do. There have been so many errors made in previous cases and such conditions have been revealed in recounts that suspicions are easily aroused by the closeness of votes. There is always that chance that figures have been put in the wrong column, a bit of poor addition has crept in, or a bunch of ballots has been overlooked.

Thus it is not surprising that we are hearing about talk of recounts in the belief that others than those declared chosen in certain states were really elected. In contrast to such a feeling, it will be noted that such is not the situation in those communities, naturally the cities and the large towns, where voting machines are in use. They give an assurance and a finality to the count, they inspire the confidence of the voter that his ballot has been registered and counted as he intended it should be, they leave no opening for clerical errors and omissions, and at the same time that they are providing accuracy they are also furnishing the public with speedy information concerning the vote.

The repeated instances where recounts are insisted upon, the expense involved in the count and recount and the delay in finding out the correct expression of the electorate, serve to convince those doubting communities that they should replace their paper ballots with machine voting and do away with the uncertainties which have been maintained too long, and the necessity for recounts.

HELPING NICARAGUA

Much satisfaction always follows a job that is well done. None can appreciate this more than Nicaragua, the Central American republic which has experienced so much trouble and bloodshed in connection with the election of its officials.

When that country was being devastated by revolutionary activities, following the withdrawal of American marines who had been stationed there to insure peace, conditions became so serious that this country intervened. Later, as election day approached, it was recognized that American supervision would be needed and this country was willing to be of service. Under the direction of Americans, with marines stationed at the polling places to insure the right to vote to all entitled to cast a ballot, that election was conducted in an orderly and satisfactory manner and resulted in the election as liberal president of one of the revolt leaders, General Moncada.

He has served for two years and directed a government that has been in marked contrast to the troublesome conditions that previously existed. This year the election called for changes in the congress of that country much the same as in this. It was recognized that the protective and assuring aid of the United States would be required. It was asked and this country was perfectly willing to assist again. It was, in fact, one way of telling us what a fine job had been done before and how much the help had been appreciated.

This year's election has gone off as smoothly and as satisfactorily as did that in 1928. It was again a victory for the liberals, but what is particularly pleasing is the fact that the conservatives are open in their recognition of the "liberty and fairness" that prevailed at the election supervised by Americans.

No better evidence of a grateful people could be asked. This country has had no other than an altruistic purpose in connection with what it has done for Nicaragua; it received the help that is needed and it recognizes that it was impartially rendered that all entitled to vote were permitted to do so, and it must be apparent to them that the settlement of elections by ballots rather than bullets is far preferable. Further than that, it discloses to other countries which deplored our policy in Nicaragua that their views were not justified.

LABRADOR'S LOSS

Labrador doesn't come in for much attention unless transatlantic fliers land there, unless Newfoundland seeks to sell it or some disaster occurs there.

Probably no one has directed greater attention to that bare and lightly settled end of Canada than Sir Wilfred Grenfell. He made a study of the conditions there, found the people in need of help and improvement and he has not only devoted years of efforts to better their conditions but he has spread a knowledge of Labrador and the work he is doing far and wide throughout the world. He has awakened interest and assistance in that philanthropic work.

When it is learned that the hospital, which was built under his inspiration for the benefit of Labrador people at Battle Harbor, had been destroyed by fire, it was as if a large part of the public had some personal concern therein, so general is the interest in Sir Wilfred's sacrificing service and so many are there who have been attracted to that region through actual visits, through extension of services or through the provision of funds. It is easy to understand what a blow it is to the Grenfell mission to have this hospital, though it has seen service for nearly 40 years, wiped out by fire.

It doesn't mean, of course, that the work it was doing will cease. It doesn't mean the end of the Grenfell mission or the Battle Harbor hospital. Rather does it mean that disaster has simply pointed out the need for immediate replacement and probably the construction of a larger, more modern and better protected institution.

CHINA'S DESIRE

"Never will China regain her full sovereignty and proper place in the family of nations unless extraterritoriality is abolished." Such is the view of Foreign Minister Wang of the nationalist government in China.

That feeling is in accord with one which has been given frequent expression in China for a considerable time. That country wishes to be free from some of the handicaps imposed by other days. It desires to throw them off like the discarding of an old coat.

While China feels that it will not recover full sovereignty and regain its proper rights until extraterritoriality is ended it has reason to give thoughtful consideration to the fact that nothing stands in the way of such abolition more than its own attitude. It has been repeatedly made clear to China that those countries which enjoy rights extended in other days are perfectly willing that they should be discarded but they want some degree of assurance that the protection which is given to their nationals under it will be provided under the changed situation.

China takes the attitude that all is fine and everything is safe but, while it is making such declarations from the front porch, those who are ready to upset it all are entering by the back door. China has discussed the ending of extraterritoriality and knows how the other nations feel about it. It likewise knows what they expect and why they are reluctant to give up their treaty rights until China has demonstrated both the will and the ability to meet the situation and do it effectively year in and year out.

China's ambition might well be directed to convincing the other nations that extraterritoriality can be abandoned in safety.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Politics can bring as many melancholy days as the weatherman.

It is quite evident from the election result that unemployment is going to be extended soon to certain members of congress.

The warmth of the campaign and election doesn't seem to have provided any lasting safeguard against the cold north wind.

The drought is held responsible for the political overturn in some states, which shows how much was expected of the republicans.

In deciding that all new Zeppelins will carry helium, Dr. Eckener requires no further evidence of its importance than the disaster to the R-101.

With all the growth of crime, and the worst kind of crime, in this country, there are those who think more encouragement should be given to it through increased leniency, open and luxurious clubhouses for the convicts and a general admission that punishment should cease with a slap on the wrist.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

There was a time in the writer's life when—probably in common with others—he used to wonder why it was that conventions of all description were so largely held between the extremes of heat and cold. After years of experience the real reason seems to be much clearer. If you should hold conventions in mid-winter, some of them are so cold and lifeless everybody attending would be in grave danger of freezing solid; while others functioning in July and August, would generate so much heat that united with natural heat would cause a general explosion. This would be particularly true when the mercury soars up into the nineties. In all human pursuits it is a good idea to stand about midway between icebergs and volcanoes. As far as we know this was in the Creator's mind when he provided October and November.

With the Apostle Paul doctrinal discussions lead to practical conclusions. Now this more than any other single thing is what makes the writings of the great apostle so valuable. He never argues for the mere sake of arguing. With him it is always the foundation for great practical results that are helpful in the highest degree to all those who are seeking to live the Christian life. Paul has that keenness of intellectual perception that enables him to see spiritual things in their right relations. He realizes that the human personality is not all spirit. Of course man is composed of body, mind and soul, and no injury can come to any part of this triad without disturbing the totality of human life. Let us be thankful for this mighty composit. Very likely the great Shakespeare had this idea in mind when he referred to man as "the paragon of animals."

While the apostle was broad enough to see man in the completeness of his being, unfortunately the same cannot be said of many theologians who came after him. Standing high as many of them did for character and intellectual ability, they did not seem to possess—at least they did not exercise—such a breadth of outlook. We recognize the superior qualities of such men as Thomas Aquinas, Saint Bernard, Augustine, John Calvin and our own great Jonathan Edwards. The philosophy and general learning of such men do not atone for the narrowness of their theology. A theology that they insisted others should accept. Why is it they did not see so clearly the handiwork of God in man's body as they did in his spiritual nature? Why was it in many instances they looked upon the body as a clog to his spiritual progress? Was not God the author of the one as well as of the other?

A few days ago there appeared the following: "The Amherst college football team is in a critical situation as a direct result of the opening game with Wesleyan on Pratt field last Saturday." Then follows a condensed statement of the several casualties: "Captain Tener sufficiently injured to send him off the field in the early minutes of the play." He will be out a week. "Westfall and Cadigan are in the college infirmary." Westfall is out for the rest of the season. The brilliant quarterback, Bob Greenough, is very badly shaken up. The star halfback, Joe De Pasqua, is in the infirmary. "Knowlton and Gotleib are all that is left of a once powerful first string backfield combination." When we think of Abie Booth carried out on a stretcher, we ask the question, does football pay?

The word "atmosphere" is more and more coming into general use because new conditions come into vogue to which this broad word has some application. The time was—and not so very long ago—when it was used only in relation to the weather. As a first definition, Webster calls it "the whole mass of aeriform fluid surrounding the earth." But we have learned to apply the word to conditions as well as to the air. When one does not live rightly, we say he is in a bad atmosphere. Is it not possible for one to create an atmosphere that is elevating and inspiring? When you meet a child on the street just smile and say gently "hullo," and if he smiles in return, you have created an atmosphere that will be permanent. Think for a moment what probably would happen if everybody, in all parts of the world, would try to create a pleasing atmosphere for every other being!

Recently the Westinghouse Electric and Mfg. Co., issued a leaflet to stockholders and friends of the corporation containing well-written sketches of the important things done by the great man whose name it bears. George Westinghouse is going down in history as one of the greatest men that America has produced, and that is going some. It is well that the city of Pittsburgh has recently been honored by a memorial of one of its greatest business men. To show that he was honored by the men in his service, it is enough to state that 60,000 of them contributed to this memorial. If possible he will be longer remembered as an inventor than as a business man. To have been the inventor of the air-brake alone would give him immortality, but he patented over 400 inventions mostly connected with electricity. Whatever may happen to the great industry he built, America will never forget George Westinghouse!

While these immortal items are being committed to paper, for the purpose of giving proper mental and moral instruction to the world, there is some considerable hubbub on the streets by a chorus of young voices that some day may make more discordant noises in the halls of congress—judging from what sometimes happens in that august body. As to the fun of the thing I think that the lads on the street are to be commended. At least their disguises are all on the outside. I am sure that no one but an incorrigible old crab would restrain the boys in thus working off their extra vim. Of course there may be instances where exuberance casts caution aside and property is damaged, but this is a very minor part of the usual Halloween exploits. I believe the majority is saying as these words are written, "God bless you lads, but don't lose your caput!"

Stories That Recall Others

Recognized

A bombardment of tin cans announced the arrival of a group of costumed tots of the neighborhood for a premature Halloween visit. The door bell rang furiously, bringing wide eyed Ann to the front door. She turned the knob and the door fairly burst open with the pressure of the masked and costumed gang.

"Why, mother," the little hostess cried with delight and awe, "they are Halloween people."

Them Was the Old Days

Two veterans of the livery stable days were talking over other days and the time when New Year's calls were in vogue. The hacks were hired weeks in advance by young men who, "all dolled up," went to make society New Year's calls in a hack.

"I often laugh, Charlie," said one.

"What about?" queried the other veteran.

"Well, in them old New Year's day jobs us hackmen could take on the anti-freeze, like they have in taxicabs now, but the horses couldn't."

WIND THAT BLEW 'COONS OUT OF TREE RECALLS LOCAL HUNTING MARVELS

In yesterday's Bulletin the Jewett City correspondent reported that during Thursday night's high wind two treed coons were blown out of their perches in a small beech. One escaped; but the other, weighing ten pounds, fell a victim to a whack with a fence stake, administered by one of the hunters, "Doc" Wallace and O. C. Watson.

The incident recalls other hunting marvels preserved in the files of The Bulletin. Thus the issue of May 4, 1889, tells of:

Dog Co-partnerships

"The brute creation do not reason, and however much their actions may appear like the result of reasoning," says an olden time writer, "there is no proof they are directed by anything higher than instinct." This may be so, and it may not be so. Some performances by dogs have the appearance of intelligent combination of force and a comprehensive realization that cooperative work is surer of success than individual effort.

The first dog co-partnership in Norwich was in the West Chelsea district, where a bull-dog and an English setter ran together to hunt and kill cats. The cats were too wily for a single dog to cope with, so the setter made it his business to confront the cat and bring her to a stand, while the bull-dog assaulted her from the rear and broke her spinal column. This pair of dogs hunted nightly together and killed many pet cats, and after one of the dogs had been killed, the other abandoned the business.

At Norwich, a bull-dog that had a reputation for ugliness formed a hunting relation with a small black and tan terrier for the purpose of hunting woodchucks. The bull-dog could dig, bite off and pull up obstructing roots, and the little terrier could make its way into the hole and drive the woodchuck out. As the result of this combination scores of woodchucks were killed. There is an appearance of intelligence in this work, and in man it would be considered a mark of ability as well as intelligence.

Dog Captures Trout

From the issue of Sept. 3, 1891:

C. C. Palmer has a dog that is an expert fisherman. The dog's favorite pastime is hunting frogs in the brook below the house. While engaged in that pleasing occupation he captured a trout that weighed eight ounces after being dressed. Although it is a close season, Mr. Palmer had the trout for dinner.

Log-Rolling Gulls

They made their first appearance in The Bulletin on March 4, 1892:

An example of the cunning of gulls was observed recently, when several alighted on a bunch of logs that has been in the water for a long time, with the submerged sides thick with barnacles. One was a big gray fellow who seemed to be the captain. He walked to a particular log, stood on one side of it close to the water, and then uttered peculiar cries.

The other gulls came and perched on the same side of the log, which under their combined weight rolled over several inches. The gulls, step by step, kept the log rolling until the barnacles showed above the water. The birds picked eagerly at this food, and the log was not abandoned until every barnacle had been picked.

An Eel-Hunting Canine

This hunting marvel was set down in The Bulletin of March 3, 1893:

An Irish setter dog, owned in Noank, a few weeks ago surprised his master by appearing by his side when near the Noank Ice company's pond with a large eel in his mouth. The incident created the suspicious that he had taken an eel from the pole of some fishermen along the shore of the pond and no notice was taken of it.

Pretty soon he appeared with another good-sized eel in his mouth, and the way in which he came by this eel became a cause of inquiry. The owner thought that he would follow the dog and see whose eels he was stealing.

The dog seemed pleased to have the attention of his owner and ran to a part of the shore of the pond that was not frozen and along which large quantities of dried leaves were packed in the water. He ran along the edge of the leaves, and in a moment or two made a snap at something in them and brought forth another large eel.

His owner then explored the spot with a stick and found that the eels were huddled there together in a mass passing the winter. He called the attention of a gentleman to the fact, and he proposed to see how many eels were beneath the leaves.

Having no eel-spear, he procured an ordinary pitchfork and proceeded to throw the eels out. The number astounded him, and when counted they numbered just nineteen dozen, or 228 eels. It was as good a haul of eels as has been made in Noank the past winter.

But the most horrendous game ever to have been hunted in eastern Connecticut undoubtedly was that mighty creature described in The Bulletin of July 5, 1897, as the

The Screw-Tailed Pleisaurus

Two Willimantic boys, noticing the fake stories which are accepted by certain city papers, set to work to solve a romance, and as the result of their efforts, under the head "Connecticut Folks Alarmed—Because of the Awful Screw-Tailed, Cave-Digging Pleisaurus at Large," the Chicago Blade prints the following blood-curdling tale, together with a sketch of the "pleisaurus" in operation:

Willimantic, Conn., June 26.—Editor Blade—People residing near Bailey's ravine, especially the Mathieu family and J. Calvin Brown's, are greatly excited over some megatherium animal that is several times larger than an elephant. The monster recently appeared upon a hill close by where about 25 persons were holding a picnic and nearly frightened them to death, especially the young ladies.

Everybody says the monster is a genuine screw-tailed, cave-digging pleisaurus, a species thought to have been extinct many centuries ago. This curious monster makes huge excavations in the earth by standing on its tail and whirling rapidly around. The tail being hard as iron, and having a large thread running spirally around it, thus enables the monster to quickly disappear when pursued. Several large, freshly made holes have been seen in Bailey's ravine, and one or two hunters noticed streams of fire coming from the holes at regular intervals of five or six seconds. This is thought to be the monster breathing. A band of determined and plucky men will soon go out to effect its death with dynamite. Its capture is out of the question.

WILLIMANTIC, July 4 (Special)—Mansfield stage drivers report strange animal monster in that vicinity. Great excitement. Stage upset and nearly consumed by fire in hole. Passengers all safe. Particulars later.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Bobby Coon Is Inspired

Inspiration is a thought
From out the very ether caught.
—Bobby Coon.

Running, panting, tired, frightened, almost in despair, yet refusing to give up hope, Bobby Coon did his best to think of some way to outwit that dog barking on his trail and those hunters following the dog and urging him on. The hunters and the dog were having a good time. They were enjoying it. To them the hunt was sport. They gave no thought to the feelings of Bobby Coon. Isn't it strange how some people can find pleasure in the distress of others?

Bobby was getting desperate. He couldn't run much longer. No, sir, he couldn't. He was getting very short of breath. He panted. His legs ached. His heart felt as if it must burst. Yet all the time Bobby felt sure that there was a refuge, a place of safety, if only he could think of it.

"They never have caught me, and they won't this time," he kept saying over and over to himself. Each time he said it he seemed to gain new courage. "I'll fool them. I will! I will! They are not going to catch and kill me. I'll fool them yet!"

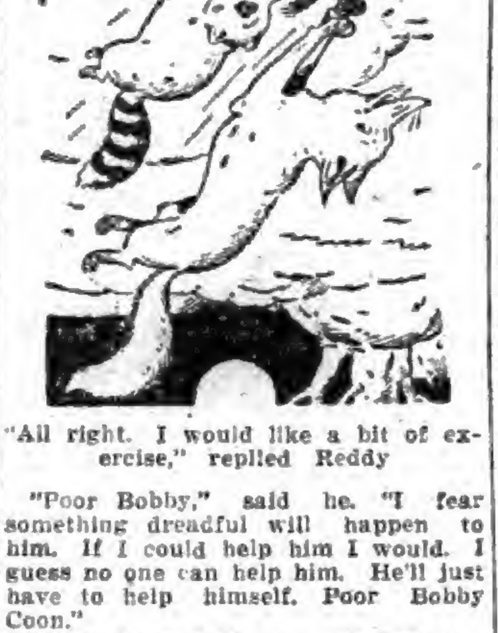
To fool that dog Bobby had tried every trick of which he knew. Now and then one of these tricks gave him a wee bit of time to get his breath and a little rest. But that dog was wise in the matter of tricks, and in the end that wonderful nose of his worked out the trail and Bobby was forced to run as before. Once he crossed the trail of Lightfoot the Deer. He had a glimpse of Lightfoot bounding away as only Lightfoot can, and he followed Lightfoot for a short distance, hoping that that dog would pick up Lightfoot's trail and follow that. He knew that Lightfoot could easily escape should the dog do this. But that dog had been taught to follow one scent only, the scent of a raccoon, so he refused to be led away by the stronger scent of Lightfoot the Deer.

One Reddy Fox bounded out from behind a stump and ran beside Bobby for a short distance.

"Lead him off and give me time to get my breath, Reddy, and some time I'll do as much for you," begged Bobby.

"All right. I would like a bit of exercise," replied Reddy. "I'm not afraid of that dog or those hunters."

So Reddy dropped back and waited for the dog to come up. Then in plain sight in the moonlight he trotted off to one side, sat down and grinned at the dog in the most impudent manner. The dog didn't so much as look at Reddy. He wasn't interested in Foxes. He was hunting Bobby Coon. He meant to catch Bobby Coon and he would let nothing distract him from his purpose. So there was nothing Reddy Fox could do to help Bobby Coon. Reddy shook his head sorrowfully.



"All right. I would like a bit of exercise," replied Reddy

"Poor Bobby," said he. "I fear something dreadful will happen to him. If I could help him I would. I guess no one can help him. He'll just have to help himself. Poor Bobby Coon."

Now, Bobby had been running in a big circle, so that at last he found himself near the edge of the Green Forest where he was in the habit of leaving it to go over to Farmer Brown's woodshed for his dinner each night. He caught a glimpse of Jimmy Skunk in the moonlight. If only Jimmy would use that little but powerful scent gun of his on that dog! It was then, right then, that Bobby was inspired. Into his mind flashed an idea. He knew just what to do, just where to go to be safe. If only his breath would last a little longer! If only he could keep ahead of that dog for just a few minutes more!

That dog had been gaining. Now he was dangerously close. But Bobby seemed to find new strength. The hope he had been holding fast to so long became a certainty. He knew now that he would fool that dog and he would fool those hunters.

The next story: "The End of the Hunt."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—It must be a proud day for Lieutenant Colonel Allen Gullion, J. A. G.; U. S. A.

A high school boy son has won international oratorical honors at a session to which the president of the United States lent the dignity of his presence.

That's a lot to induce fatherly pride; but there's more to it than that for Colonel Gullion.

For this particular soldier-lawyer has had a day in court himself as an orator. The son is a chip off the old block, apparently. And that undoubtedly is a greater matter of pride to Colonel Gullion than any other aspect of his boy's victory. Fathers are like that.

Remember?

If you have much of a news memory, you will recall "Pa" Gullion.

You can rest assured, also, that no less a one-time celebrity than ex-General Billy Mitchell, whose undisciplined pen stirred such an aviation fuss back during President Coolidge's time, noted the name of that boy orator. General Billy would have good reason to recall it.

For "Pa" Gullion was the young fellow drafted into the court martial that resulted in General Billy's resignation from the army under sentence. His job was to answer in kind the fiery attack of counsel for General Billy. That counsel was Representative Frank Reid of Illinois and the fur flew whenever he got to his feet.

So the army high command, what part of it was not sitting on the court to furbish Mitchell with a jury of his military peers, decided it needed somebody to go back at Reid without gloves and "Pa" Gullion got the job.

His oratorical efforts had a biting quality about them decidedly novel in a military court.

His young son will have to wait a long time before a similar opportunity to unsheathe his tongue under circumstances so certain to give him national front page place falls to his lot. Mitchell court martials and the civil life equivalents don't happen every day.

Pre-Lindy

Thinking it over now, what a lot of subsequent history might be traced back to General Billy and his aviation crusading. He was of the pre-Lindy period; perhaps he paved the way for that national and international state of the public mind as to aviation which made the Lindy era possible.

Then here's another old happenstance. Billy Mitchell spot-lighted the situation that resulted in political discovery of Dwight Morrow.

But for Mitchell's outbreaks there might never have been a Morrow aviation board, or an Ambassador Morrow or a Senator-elect Morrow, as he probably will be when this is printed.

In that event, Lindy might never have become son-in-law to Morrow or Morrow himself grand-daddy to a Charles Augustus, junior.

So much for the Billy Mitchell aftermath.

YOUR HEALTH

By Samuel R. Benedict, Birmingham, Alabama.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

When a person has been drowned, it is absolutely necessary that the water which was taken into the lungs be gotten out before artificial respiration is started.

After a person has regained consciousness, stimulates such as aromatic spirits of ammonia, one teaspoonful to one-half glass of water, black coffee, or alcoholic drinks are beneficial. Do not attempt to force anything down the throat of a man who has been electrocuted until he has sufficiently recovered to place his hands on the glass and assist you in carrying it to his lips.

It is important that you memorize the instructions relative to giving artificial respiration, but it is of far greater importance that you actually learn the movements by practice on a live subject. He can tell you when your work is effective whether your grip in the hands and the stroke are giving results, something that an electrocuted or drowned man cannot do. Practice makes perfect in artificial respiration as in all things, and it is a duty to your fellow-man to perfect yourself in this work. Remember that the knowledge that you possess is of no value so far as you personally are concerned, except that your knowledge may bring to life some one who is near and dear to you. Do not stop here; teach the other fellow.

A brief summary of the above instructions follows:

1. Remove the man from the wire with a dry piece of wood, leather, or rope. Never use metal or anything wet.
2. If alone, do not run for help. The first few minutes are the most important.
3. Place the victim on the ground, relaxed position, head turned to one side, cheek resting on hand.
4. Pull out tongue and remove anything that may be in his mouth.
5. Begin artificial respiration at once.
6. Continue as long as possible, taking the operation slowly and smoothly.
7. If help does not arrive and you are exhausted, pause a moment, and while resting, yell the victim's names in his ear.
8. At internals hit him on the soles of his feet four or five times.
9. Continue the work for three hours. Don't give up before the full time limit.
10. If help arrives, take turns applying the pressure. Divide the work.
11. When consciousness returns and the victim is able to hold a glass give water, aromatic spirits of ammonia (teaspoonful to 1-2 glass of water), alcoholic drinks, etc.
12. Don't leave the victim, keep working, and stay with him. You reward—life.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

What The World Needs Today

To make Christ supreme in the hearts of the individuals and the nations is the only solution the many problems of today. How, like the mist before the sun vanishes, our problems vanish when the glorious son of righteousness reigns in our hearts?

We know that if Christ were king of every heart there could be no war. It would be impossible. We know it would settle at once the prohibition problem, for it would be impossible for one who has made Christ the master of their life to so desecrate their body which is the temple of the living God as we read in His word. If we have the true spirit of our Master such things are very repulsive. A true follower of the Master would never offer liquor to another in any form. He would also do all in his power to protect his weak brother, and make it easy for him to become the man God planned. Every true follower of the Master not only does right himself but does all in his power to help others to be their very best.

We know the Christ filled person never takes advantage of another in any way. They are always trustworthy, always dependable, never treacherous, never profess as much as they are and live. As a friend always loyal, always inspiring the best in others. A Christ filled life is never selfish.

O, that we were as diligent in leading others to the glories of the Christ filled life, what a blessing each life might be.

O, that we might realize before it is too late the supreme importance of giving our whole heart to Christ.

How lacking the life without Christ and the sad part those without Him seem unable to realize their great need and the one thing that will fill it. They try everything else and meet with failure.

A life without Christ is like a ship at sea with nothing to guide it. The result in each case being shipwreck. But how much more serious the wreck of an immortal life than that of a ship. If we take the Christ as the guide of our lives we know we shall reach the port in safety. He is not only master of our lives, but is master of the sea of life, and will make our lives a blessing and inspiration to others, but will make life a joy and blessing each day.

O, that all would give their hearts to the one who fashioned them and understands them as no other can, and enter the glorious life planned by our Master for each.

Why are we so unwise and blind to the real values of life?

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

The Tongking Border.

The Tongking border, where the territory of France in Indo-China touches China proper, is reported to have been the scene of recent clashes between French troops and Chinese communists. The region is the subject of a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The Chinese-Tongking frontier, northeast of Hanoi, capital of Tongking was looked upon as a new and promising trade door to China by the French colonial leaders who entered Tongking in 1885," says the bulletin—"a back door that it was hoped could be remodeled into a front door. But the region has proved to be economically disappointing.

"Kwang-Si, the Chinese province that touches Tongking on the northeast, is one of 'pauper provinces' of China. Scenically, it is a wonderland of hills and valleys, crags and towering mountains, all masked by luxuriant vegetation. But it lacks wealth, and even many of the conditions that promise a development of wealth. Much of the country is rough and rocky; the population is relatively scant, and consists largely of backward and diverse tribes.

"As the French developed their newly acquired region of Tongking, two major railway extensions into China were planned. One was to penetrate northwestward into Yunnan province, and the other northeastward into Kwang-Si. The first was built for more than 200 miles into China, to Yunnan city, and has proved a valuable outlet and inlet for trade.

"The second of the proposed railways was built to Langson, a Tongking town just short of the Chinese border, and an extension was run for a few miles along the frontier, but the plan to have the rails cross into China and penetrate 25 miles to the Chinese town of Lung Chow and beyond, has never been carried out. A branch of the railway runs exactly to the frontier at a point called 'Porte de Chine.' On the Chinese side, barring the way, is a short section of masonry wall. A highway to Lung Chow penetrates the wall through a gate which the Chinese call Nam-quan, 'The Southern Toll Gate.' The wall was blown up by the French in 1885 when they drove Chinese troops from Tongking and followed them into Kwang-Si.

"Lung Chow was made a 'treaty port' soon after the French became established in Tongking. Some trade is carried on over the highway between the city and the border. Its volume, however, has never seemed to justify extension of the railway. Much of the trade of the province folows the river valleys down to Canton.

"Kwang-Si, in which Lung Chow lies, has come to be known more as a breeder of trouble than as a producer of goods. It was in this far southern state that the famous Tai-Ping rebellion originated in 1850, spreading throughout southern China at a cost of millions of lives."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Frissell Fabric Company, Middletown and Higganum.

The Frissell Fabric company was incorporated in July, 1920, by Frank H. Frissell, Howard Warner, Arthur D. Chaffee, Frank H. Frissell, Jr., of Middletown and Ferdinand Richter of Hartford, for the purpose of manufacturing textile fabrics, namely weaving, braiding and dyeing of cotton, wool, silk and other materials.

The company commenced operations in Higganum in August 1920 making awning braids and braids for other purposes. Later a dyehouse was added which has materially helped in expanding the business, as a substantial amount of dyeing is being done for other concerns. The water in the Higganum stream is particularly adapted for use in this process.

In 1925 a modern factory was built on Silver street, Middletown, for the purpose of weaving narrow elastic fabrics. The most modern equipment was added and the business was a success from the start. The capacity of the factory was doubled in 1927.

The concern makes a full line of elastic and non-elastic webbing and braid for concerns making corsets, garters and suspenders, as well as selling to jobbers.

The main office of the company is located at 50 Silver street, Middletown and the New York office at 1170 Broadway.

The present officers are: Frank H. Frissell, president and general manager; Howard H. Warner, vice president; Carl G. Johnson, secretary; John R. Campbell, sales manager.

HEIFETZ IS ACCLAIMED AS MASTER VIOLINIST

An audience that filled Slater hall Friday evening for the first concert in the course for this season, acclaimed Jascha Heifetz as the master violinist of any which a Norwich audience has had the privilege of hearing. His consummate genius produced a performance that was flawless and held his audience enthralled from beginning to end.

The programme was given as follows:

JASCHA HEIFETZ

Chaconne, (Vitali, 1650-?).
Concerto, (Mendelssohn), Allegro molto appassionato; Andante; Allegro molto vivace.
Ave Maria, (Schubert); Menuet (Mozart); The Girl with the Flaxen Hair (Debussy), arranged by Hartmann; Hora Staccato, (Dinicu-Heifetz); Sevilla, (Albeniz-Heifetz).
Caprice, No. 24, (Paganini-Auer).

After the Hora Staccato number the applause of the audience would not be stilled until the artist had repeated the number and there was another insistent encore call after the final selection in this group, to which Heifetz responded with "On Wings of Song," by Mendelssohn.

When the programme came to an end with the Paganini-Auer number in which the artist displayed his amazing command of technique, there was another ovation which continued until Heifetz returned to the stage and thrilled his audience with an equally brilliant rendition of Sarasate's Zapeteabo.

OBITUARY

Miss Harriet E Averill

Norwich friends were notified Friday of the death early that morning at her home, 8 Terrace place, Danbury, of Miss Harriet E Averill. Although in frail health for some time Miss Averill had apparently been much stronger of late, had been able to be out and to take long rides. The end came unexpectedly but very peacefully.

Miss Averill was the elder daughter of Roger Averill and Maria White of Danbury, her father having served for a number of terms as lieutenant governor of Connecticut. She was a frequent visitor to Norwich when her brother, the late John Chester Averill, resided at 160 Broadway. Through these visits she had gained many firm friends in Norwich to whom the news of her death brought keen sorrow. Her brother, who had come to Norwich from Danbury through the family friendship for the late Attorney Jeremiah Halsey, served as clerk of the superior court, of the supreme court and of the civil side and criminal side of the court of common pleas, between 1881 and his resignation in 1915. In these years Miss Averill and her sister spent much time in Norwich with Mr. and Mrs. Averill.

The Misses Averill had spent a number of seasons in European travel and of late years had passed the winters at Charlestown, S. C. Members of the First Congregational church in Danbury, they had given several beautiful memorials to that church in the name of their parents.

Miss Averill is survived by her sister, Miss Maria White Averill. She was a member of several literary clubs and patriotic organizations in Danbury, and was a woman of remarkable culture and charm. To the end she retained her interest in Norwich and in those public institutions of which her brother had been such a liberal benefactor through the division of his large estate ten years ago.

Several Norwich friends will go to Danbury for Miss Averill's funeral Sunday.

George Gilbert Allen

George Gilbert Allen, 38, died Friday afternoon about 5 o'clock at his home in Palmertown, as the result of a shock suffered Wednesday. Mr. Allen was born June 26, 1892, and was the son of Mrs. Harriet Edwards Allen and the late Henry R. Allen. October 1, 1919, he was united in marriage with Myrtle Davis and since their marriage they had made their home in Montville, where Mr. Allen was employed as a mill hand at the Robertson Paper Co. plant.

Mr. Allen was a World war veteran. He enlisted as a private with Battery E., 103rd Field Artillery, June 4, 1917, and served with the American expeditionary forces in France. He saw service at Chemin des Dames, the Toul sector, Aisne Marne, both offensive and defensive, the St. Mihiel salient, the Troyon sector and the Meuse-Argonne.

Surviving are his mother, his widow and five children, Canorada, Henry, James, Duane and Donald Allen, and seven brothers, Reuben Allen of Boston, William, Richard, Charles, John and Bernard Allen, and a sister, Mrs. Sadie LaGran. Mr. Allen was well and favorably known to many residents of Montville, who were shocked to learn of his sudden death.

Tree On Fire

Flames from burning leaves set fire to a tree near 132 School street Friday night and the fire department was called it put it out about 10 o'clock, Deputy Chief Brennan and Squad A responding and using pump cans. The tree was on land belonging to Charles W. Cassidy.

COUPLE ESCAPE DEATH WHEN AUTO PLUNGES 60 FEET TO R. R. TRACKS

Eric and Hilda Sudmin, man and wife, of Moosup, miraculously escaped death about 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, when their machine, a Cadillac sedan, plunged through a fence and rolled down a 60-foot embankment to the N. Y., N. H., and Hartford railroad tracks, at Tunnel hill, on the Norwich-Jewett City highway. Thirty stitches were required to close cuts in Sudmin's head and two of his ribs were broken. Mrs. Sudmin escaped with an injured back. Both were able to return to their home later in the evening, after being attended by Dr. John W. Callahan of this city.

Sudmin was driving north on the Jewett City highway, at what is said to have been a fast rate of speed. His machine, for an undetermined reason, collided with the fence along the highway, and glancing off, again struck the fence about 100 feet further along the road. Tearing down over 100 feet of the frail fence, the machine plunged over the edge of the steep embankment, and rolling over and over, landed, a mass of wreckage, on the railroad tracks 60 feet below. The heavy sedan landed on all four wheels.

Mr. and Mrs. Sudmin crawled out of the wreckage and were assisted by passing autoists to the highway where they were placed in a machine and driven to Dr. Callahan's office in this city. In the meantime an emergency call had been sent to the W. W. Backus hospital and the ambulance responded, but the injured persons were on the way to the physician's office at the time.

The accident occurred shortly before a long and heavy north bound freight train was due to pass the spot. Constable Aubrey Potter of Lisbon, who was notified of the accident, called Captain Thomas P. Murphy at local police headquarters, informing him of the fact that the wrecked machine was across the railroad tracks. Captain Murphy immediately notified the New Haven railroad authorities and the freight train was flagged at Taft's station.

The train proceeded with caution to the scene of the accident and was held up for sometime until the tracks were cleared. A south-bound train, also due about that time, was notified that the tracks were blocked.

Constable Potter conducted an investigation as did also State Police Officer Roy Scranton of the Danielson state police barracks.

BIG AUDIENCE ENJOYS SENIOR LEADERS' PROGRAM

An appreciative audience of several hundred attended an interesting entertainment and social held Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building under the auspices of the senior leader corps of the association. The programme included a combination of gymnastic exhibitions and musical numbers and was the first venture of the senior leader corps in this field of entertainment. Owing to the large turnout and success of the endeavor officials at the Y announced Friday evening that it will be continued and made an annual event.

The different gymnastic events, which were performed with precision and skill, comprised work on the parallel bars by the senior leader corps, drill by junior gym boys, pyramid building by junior leader corps, pyramids by intermediate leader corps, tumbling by senior leader corps. Adding to the attractiveness of the programme were vocal solos by John Faulkner, Mrs. M. Russell, Alex Finlayson, Alfred Langlois, John Lockhart and John McKean, a duet by the Misses Rita Peloquin and Palmena Pedace, and quartet selections by the Misses Wheeler, Dziomba, Ksiazek and Pedace. The accompanists for the singers were Mrs. A. Olson, John Marchant and Mrs. Harry Stebbins.

Other numbers on the programme that were well received were a tap dance by "Chip" Dugas, Jr., of Taftville, and the girls gym class, Luxenburg waltz by the men's and women's division, waltz by Barbara Dziomba and P. Pedace, special dance by Edith Blackburn and Helen Taft, and the work of the clowns, Harry Lasch, Howard Ludlow and Gerald Goldfadden, who kept the audience in an uproar. FINDS CRIMINAL LIABILITY IN DEATH OF CORMIER

Edward J. Cormier, 33, of Hartford, is held criminally responsible for the death of Philip Cormier, 40, of Framingham, Mass., in this city Oct. 21, by Coroner Edward G. McKay, in a finding announced Friday. Philip Cormier was riding in a machine driven by Edward J. Cormier, and the men were on the way to attend the funeral of a near relative in Norwich Town, when the machine skidded, struck a pole and upset on Washington street. Philip Cormier died about six hours later at the W. W. Backus hospital.

The driver was arrested shortly after the accident on a charge of drunken driving and after the death of Philip Cormier a manslaughter charge was substituted, bonds being placed at $2,500, in default of which Cormier had been held in jail here. The coroner finds that the accused was driving in a grossly reckless manner and was intoxicated at the time. In his finding Coroner McKay says:

That the said Philip Cormier died in the town of Norwich, Connecticut, on the 21st day of October, 1930, from fractured skull with lacerations of the brain and intercraukal hemorrhage, which injuries were received in the town of Norwich, Connecticut, on the 21st day of October, 1930, when an automobile owned by William P. Cormier of Hartford and operated by Edward Cormier in which car the said Philip Cormier was a passenger overturned and struck a telephone pole at Harlands Corner in Norwich. The scene of this accident is located at what is known as Harlands Corner in the town of Norwich. At this place two of the town's streets intersect, Washington street and Town street. Washington street runs generally in a northwesterly direction to the corner then turns to a northerly direction. Town street begins at the intersection and continues in a northwesterly direction. Traffic coming from the southeast on Washington street going from Washington street to Town street makes no turn when entering Town street. However, in continuing on Washington street, a turn to the right is necessary. At the intersection the road slants in a noticeable degree toward the southwest. A motorist riding on Washington street and wishing to continue along Washington street at Harlands Corner must drive at a very moderate rate of speed in order to turn around the corner. Trolley tracks run along the middle of Washington street southeast of the corner and as they approach the corner they bear to the north east side of the road, and they follow Washington street along the northeast side of the curve.

At about 8.40 a. m. on October 21st the said Edward Cormier was operating his brother's Essex sedan northwesterly on Washington street and approaching Harlands Corner. He had come to Norwich the night before to attend a funeral of a relative who lived in Norwich Town. He spent the whole night at the home where he funeral was to be held on October 21st. During the night he got no sleep and had eaten nothing. About 7 o'clock or a little after, in company with three other relatives he went to visit in Greeneville. He stopped at the home of a relative in that section and while there drank some intoxicating liquor.

This party did not stay long in Greeneville because they wished to return to the funeral in Norwich Town. After partaking of the refreshments Edward Cormier, George Cormier and Philip Cormier entered the automobile that was later wrecked and started for Norwich Town. Edward was driving. George was sitting in the front seat and Philip was sitting alone in the back seat. They came down through the city and eventually came onto Washington street. George was directing Edward which streets to take to get to Norwich Town. When Edward came to Harlands Corner he was then going at a fairly fast rate of speed. For some reason he applied the brakes of his car as he crossed the trolley tracks at the intersection. From the progress of the car it appeared that he was attempting to turn around the corner and continue along Washington street. However, at the rate of speed which he was traveling it was impossible to do this. The car turned about so that the front of the car was pointing northeast. The car slid along on its wheels sideways, finally tipped over and slid into the telephone pole in the northwest corner of the intersection.

After the car came to a stop it was found that Philip Cormier was lying in the back of the car unconscious. George Cormier was able to take care of himself but Edward Cormier was unable to get out of the car without help. He had a slight abrasion over the left eye and seemed to be confused. The Backus hospital ambulence arrived and Philip and Edward were taken to the hospital. While at the hospital Edward was causing some disturbance there and the officer in charge took him to the police station. Philip was unconscious all of the time and died later in the day from his injuries.

From the evidence submitted in this case it appears to me that Edward Cormier was intoxicated at the time of the accident. He admitted having taken one glass full of beer before he started on the ride that ended in the fatality. Whether or not he had more liquor the evidence does not disclose. When he came to the intersection the testimony indicated that he was going at fast rate of speed. Immediately after the collision had occurred his actions indicated that the liquor that he had drunk was taking effect. His injury was not so serious a nature that it would control his actions. I am satisfied from the testimony that his acts were influenced by the liquor that he had taken.

Edward Cormier was an unlicensed driver although he had considerable experience in driving. On the morning that the fatality occurred he had been up all night and had nothing to eat. He had drunk some beer with his stomach empty. He was then hurrying to get to the place that the funeral was to be held. I believe that he was not in a fit condition to be driving a car at the time the accident happened.

There was another automobile in the vicinity of the collision but I do not find that this contributed to the collision. This automobile was coming from Washington street in a southerly direction toward Harlands Corner and arrived near the intersection just as the Cormier car was turned into Washington street. This car turned to the east side of the road to avoid the Cormier car and was not struck by the Cormier car.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Philip Cormier was caused by the criminal act of Edward Cormier in driving an automobile upon the public highway in a grossly reckless manner while the said Edward Cormier was intoxicated and I have so notified the prosecuting attorney of the town of Norwich, Conn.

REPLIES TO MASONIC CORPORATION INVITATION

The following reply to an invitation from the Masonic temple corporation to participate in flag raising on Armistice day has been sent by Chairman Charles B. Gilbert of the American Legion Armistice day committee:

Mr. Howard L. Stanton,
Masonic Temple Corporation,
Norwich Conn.

Dear Mr. Stanton: Confining our telephone conversation relative to the participation in the exercises of raising the flag at the Masonic temple grounds, on Armistice day, November 11th, 1930.

We do not think it is quite fair to the organizations in the parade or to our guests to halt the parade, before passing the reviewing stand.

We will, however, be very glad to take part after the parade or later in the afternoon, but as you stated it is necessary to have a band, which we could not assure you of having, you stated that the matter would be called off.

If, however, you still have it in mind for us to participate, and wish to have us do so, we will be very glad to discuss the matter further with you at any time.

Yours very truly,
Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4,
American Legion.

Armistice Day Committee.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Atterbury, Jr. of Jewett City road, returned early in the week from a visit in Webster, Mass.

The members of the St. Louis society met Friday evening for their monthly business session.

Friday evening, at Sacred Heart church, there were devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, as is customary on the first Friday of the month. This devotion began as a result of the vision of St. Margaret Mary Alacoque, a French nun, and is commemorated one day each month in most parishes.

Those who frequent the woods surrounding the village report that there will be an abundance of bayberries, dogwood berries and bittersweet for fall and winter decorations.

A local man is still pondering the mystery as to how one of his well-worn gloves was removed from the seat of his parked car, and a brand new fur-lined one left in its place.

With the Thanksgiving holidays in the offing, much attention is being focused on some of the excellent birds in the turkey flocks of local farmers. Because of the dry weather this season, turkey mortality was low, and there are some fine specimens of this American national bird ready to grace the tables at the Thanksgiving feast.

Charles Volkman and his daughter, Miss Annie Volkman, of Norwich avenue, are visiting the former's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Volkman of Portsmouth, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey of Fanning avenue, Norwich, have been guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wood of the Old Canterbury turnpike, who also entertained Mrs. Laura Weeks and Miss Bertha M. Weeks of Yantic and Edward Weeks of Groton.

Local people, who were guests at a bridge given by Mrs. George Kramer this week at her home in Norwich were Miss Augusta Thoma, Mrs. George W. Weller, Miss Gladys Thoma, Mrs. Richard Krauss, Miss Helen Thoma, Miss Flossie M. Meyer, Mrs. Robert J. Gelino.

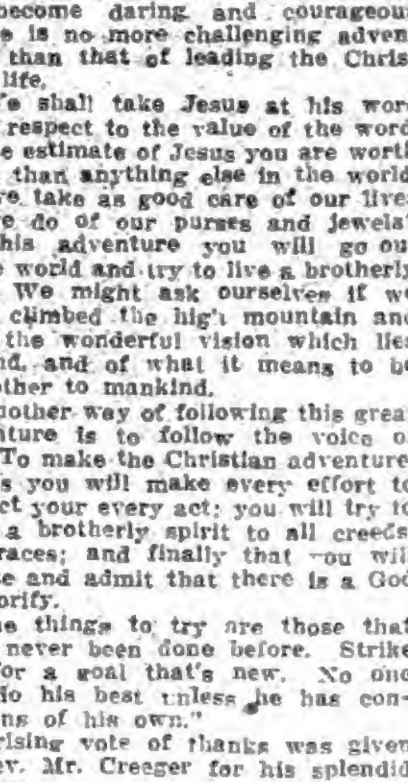
At the next meeting of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church, the members will have the pleasure of hearing a lecture on Radio by John L. Reinartz of South Manchester. Mr. Reinartz accompanied Commander Byrd on his South Pole expedition as radio operator and will be able to give a very interesting lecture. All men in the village are invited to attend.

NORWICH C. E. UNION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The 42nd annual meeting of the Norwich Christian Endeavor Union was held Friday evening at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich Town, preceded by a supper at 6:30 in Grange hall with in attendance of 175 and a fine menu provided.

At 7:30 the members adjourned to the church for the meeting. After selections by the Christian Endeavor orchestra, the devotional service was led by Rev. George W. Potter, pastor and prayer was by Rev. John Waldon of Franklin.

Some of the young people of the Goshen choir sang "Savior Lead Me Day by Day." The business meeting was conducted by the president, Rev. Howard R. Bushnell. There were reports from the recording secretary, treasurer, missionary committee and music committee and publicity committee. The roll call of the secretaries showed a large representation. The First Baptist society received the banner for the largest percentage of members present.



REV. HOWARD R. BUSHNELL
Re-elected President

The report of the poster contest was given as follows: First prize—First Congregational senior society, Miss Elizabeth Avery was the maker of the poster. Second prize to the First Congregational Intermediate society, Miss Alma Wilton made this poster. Honorable mention was given to Miss May Wilton of the First Congregational senior society.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President Rev. Howard R. Bushnell; Vice President Dorothy Conklin; Recording Secretary Dorothy Thornes; Corresponding Secretary D. Louise Sterry; Treasurer Lewis Aldrich. A vote of thanks was extended to the entertaining society for the use of the Grange hall and the Norwich Dairy Ice Cream company.

A vote of thanks was given Mr. Bushnell for the way he had conducted the Union as their president. After the business meeting Stephen Gorski sang "Near to the Heart of God." Rev. Marion J. Creeger, the Methodist representative of the Connecticut State C. E. Union, was the speaker of the evening his subject being "Christian Adventure." He said the adventure of the Christian life is the greatest of all adventures. This is a call to become daring and courageous. There is no more challenging adventure than that of leading the Christian life.

"We shall take Jesus at his word with respect to the value of the word. In the estimate of Jesus you are worth more than anything else in the world. Do we take as good care of our lives as we do of our purses and jewels? In this adventure you will go out it the world and try to live a brotherly life. We might ask ourselves if we have climbed the high mountain and seen the wonderful vision which lies beyond, and of what it means to be a brother to mankind.

"Another way of following this great adventure is to follow the voice of God. To make the Christian adventure, means you will make every effort to respect your every act; you will try to have a brotherly spirit to all creeds, and races; and finally that you will realize and admit that there is a God to glorify.

"The things to try are those that have never been done before. Strike out for a goal that's new. No one can do his best unless he has convictions of his own."

A rising vote of thanks was given to Rev. Mr. Creeger for his splendid address.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benedition.

FRENCH PREMIER TO REPLY TO CRITICS NEXT THURSDAY

PARIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The blind Georges Scapini and Ernest Morbihan, one of the younger members of the chamber, led the debate in the chamber of deputies today as the opposition resumed its attack on the policies of Foreign Minister Briand.

Scapini, who lost his sight in the war, held the chamber silent as, running his trembling fingers across notes in Braille characters, he warned that revision of the treaty of Versailles would result in the demoralization of central Europe.

"Attempts to revise the treaty," he declared, "would mean war. It is a grave risk to think of Franco-German rapprochment without providing safe guarantees against the fluctuations of German policy."

Morbihan won the approval of virtually the entire chamber with his declaration that Franco-German differences must be settled amicably but that "revision of frontiers is only a snare."

"We must remain strong," he cried, "we must refuse to permit revision of the treaties as a condition to co-operation with Germany, but we must recognize, the German nation as a force alongside us and we must strain every effort to reach an economic and political understanding."

M. Briand, whose German policies are under fire, probably will reply to his critics next Thursday morning, when the chamber will reconvene.

ACADEMY SQUAD FACES MEDIOCRE WEAVER ELEVEN AT CAMPUS TODAY

The Academy returns to the campus gridiron this afternoon for the first of the final three games of the season, all to be played here, and will have as an opponent Weaver high of Hartford.

The Academy with two victories and four defeats to show for its season's work to date and outscored 97 to 25 points, will have to how a decided reversal of form in the remaining tilts to make this 1930 campaign anything but a dismal failure. After Weaver comes Stonington and Bulkeley.

Weaver, like the Academy, has been hitting the bumps plenty in the current journey through the schedule. Its worst upset came only Monday of this week at the hands of Commercial high of New Haven, by a 32 to 0 score. Commercial, itself, is not up among the leaders this year so it appears that Weaver is having a decidely "off" campaign.

The Academy has lost its last four games and if it is going to win again this year, today's game seems to present the most favorable opportunity. The Wildcats have already beaten one of the Hartford teams this year, Bulkeley, by a count of 6 to 0, and would like very much to take it out for previous reverses on these big-city teams. The Hartford schools, incidentally, are having tough times this year.

The Academy's record shows wins over Chapman Tech and Bulkeley and losses to Harding, Fitch, Westerly and Windham.

The game will start at 2:30 and should attract a good-sized turnout, as it is the only clash in the city. In fact, the Academy eleven is the city's only football representative this season.

BULKELEY IN TIE SCORE WITH MANCHESTER HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

MANCHESTER, Nov. 7—In a closely contested game, the Bulkeley football team tied with Manchester high at 6-6 here this afternoon.

The Tigers got off to a fast start and scored in the first few minutes of play after a march from their own territory. Hallfteras, Bulkeley quarterback, took the ball over with a plunge. In the second period, Manchester, with a succession of long runs, mainly Squatrito, came back into the playing took the ball to the Bulkeley four-yard line. Squatrito went over on an off-tackle plunge.

The Tiger's line displayed a great deal of power and on the offense ripped open wide holes. It showed equal strength on the defense by throwing the Manchester backs for several losses.

The main cogs on the Manchester team were Squartrito, star back, who made five of the upstate team's six first downs. He was equally outstanding in backing up h's line.

WINDHAM PLAYS BRISTOL AT BRISTOL SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 7—The same line-up that started in the victorious encounter against the Norwich Free academy last week will be used in the opening of the game with Bristol at Bristol, Saturday afternoon, it was announced today by Coach Thomas A. Callaghan of Windham high school. "Brick" Jordan, regular tackle who has been laid up with injuries, will accompany the team and may be pressed into service during the game. Windham, while in a determined frame of mind, has taken note of the power of the Bristol outfit. Caution and hard-playing will be the watchwords. Victory in the two remaining games on the W. H. S. schedule would about make for an outstanding success of the present season and the players will be accompaniedby a goodly delegation of rooters in a united effort to see if this cannot be accomplished. Coach Callaghan has never experienced such a series of injuries as he has this season since becoming mentor of the Crimson and Blue eleven. The showing of the crippled team against the Academy was a revelation of his coaching prowess and wins over Bristol and Manchester would be fitting tributes to "the most popular coach the hill has ever had."

GEORGETOWN BRINGS STRONG TEAM TO FACE B. C. EAGLES

BOSTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—The Georgetown football team, which now has its new Rockne attack working in high gear, arrived here today for its gridiron clash with the Boston college Eagles. These Jesuit rivals will face off tomorrow at Fenway park.

The Hilltoppers last met the Eagles in 1927 and handed out a 47 to 0 defeat, the most humiliating ever suffered by a Boston college eleven. Tommy Mills' outfit, though it will be outweighed by a wide margin, appeared to have enough speed and deception to offset this advantage.

McKenny will be able to start his strongest team in several weeks for Bud Norman, one of his best linesman, returned to the squad after a long absence due to injuries. The Georgetown starters appeared even stronger than the eleven that opened last week's 14-13 victory over Michigan State.

ALFRED CONCEDED LITTLE CHANCE OF BEATING YALE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 7—(AP)—Yale's varsity football squad today rounded out an easy week of preparation for tomorrow's game with Alfred with a signal drill.

Only four regulars appear in the lineup which was announced tonight for the contest. They are Captain Vincent, tackle; Barres, end; and Parker and Dunn, backs.

Alfred, making its first appearance on a Yale football schedule, arrived tonight with a squad of about 25 players. Conceded very little chance of beating the Elis, the visitors will be further handicapped by a list of injured which includes Captain Martin Staiman, guard, and at least three other players. Captain Staiman is not expected to play.

The New York staters arrived too late for a workout and may hold a short practice tomorrow morning.

Six members of the Yale squad, including Albie Booth, and Coaches Stevens and Walsh plan to attend the Harvard-Michigan game at Cambridge tomorrow. The party is expected to include besides the coaches and Booth, Crowley, Linehan, Loeser, Austin and Beane.

The Yale lineup for the game, scheduled to start at 2 p. m., will consist of Avery and Barres, ends; Hall and Vincent, tackles; Bronkie and Rotan, guards; Walker, center; Sullivan, quarterback; Parker and Dunn, halfbacks, and Muhlfeld, fullback.

Delaney, Servatius, Obourn and Phillips are expected to be Alfred's starting backfield, with Murray and Perrone, ends; Lockwood and Kickman, tackles; Gaiser and Grantier, guards, and Monks, center.

ROCHNEMEN SOAR OVER FIRST NORTHWESTERN, ARMY, TRO

SOUTH BEND, Ind. —(AP)— The Rocks are over their first hurdle in Notre Dame's steeplechase to another mythical national football title.

While Southern Methodist gave the Irish a tantalizing workout in the first game, and Navy a game battle in the second encounter, the Carnegie game was considered the first real test of Rockne's strength.

Notre Dame easily bowled over the Techmen, 21 to 6.

There are other hurdles and water jumps ahead. In fact on only two Saturdays will Notre Dame have easy going. Saturday the Rocks meet Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh, and that's a tough one.

Indiana will give Notre Dame a rest before the Pennsylvania game at Philadelphia. Drake should be fairly easy on November 15. After that, however, there is Northwestern, the Army and Southern California to meet, all away from South Bend.

In downing Carnegie, Notre Dame downed the two-year jinx. Last year the Rocks whipped the Scots, 7 to 0, but in 1928, Carnegie galloped all over the Irish, 27 to 7 and two years before, in 1926, the undefeated Notre Dame team lost 19 to 0, with a national title ahead.

The 1928 loss was the first in more than 20 years on old Cartier field.

Up to 1926 Notre Dame always had won the Carnegie game. The "four horsemen" had a scare in 1924 but finally pulled out 40-19. In 1925 Notre Dame scored 26 to Carnegie's nothing. The 1922 score was 19 to 0 and the '23 score was 26 to 0.

PITT YET TO LICK IRISH AT FOOTBALL

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— The University of Pittsburgh never has defeated Notre Dame at football, and if Knute Rockne keeps turning out teams like the one which defeated the Panthers 35-19 here it doesn't look like it ever will.

Prior to the late debacle the last meeting of the schools was in 1912. Rockne played end, and Charley Dorais dropkicked for a 3-0 win for the Irish. In 1909 Notre Dame won 6-0, and two years later the teams played a scoreless tie.

The teams have played no other football games.

[illegible], picking three out of five bouts is not so bad and gives us a batting average of .600 for the night.

The two bouts that went against us were the Caprio-Peloquin and the Russo-Curcio bouts. The Caprio-Peloquin go was just about as we predicted a close bout with the decision going either way. We picked Caprio but Peloquin rubbed it into us with that last round rally. We're not squawking a bit, for Peloquin certainly deserved the verdict. It was a great bout, plenty of action and real fighting. Two willing boys this Caprio and this Peloquin.

As for the victory of Russo we're inclined to think it was more or less of a fluke. It was a sweet sock that Russo gave Curcio and it's all in this game of leather pushing. That knockout surprised all and sundry and one of the most surprised persons in the hall was Joe Russo himself, if expressions on a person's face mean anything. Russo did not look any too confident when he entered the ring and he did not show any too well. We did not think he had it in him to knock out Curcio, but he apparently did. Curcio gave an exhibition of ring instinct when he tried to carry on after being knocked down. He was completely out when he tried to get to his feet and put up a feeble attemtp to box. He didn't know what it was all about for minutes after he left the ring.

We've heard tell of boxers being completely out on their feet and not falling but we never saw it until last night. When Al Koziol knocked out Nocchi, the Worcester boy stood there just balanced on his feet. As you watched him wondering what was holding him up his knees trembled like a reed in a wind and then he toppled to the floor. Koziol looked pretty much the killer last night but he was up against a boxer of his own type and he always looks good against that kind.

Vic Darr showed that he is a fighter who is going to be heard from very soon if he doesn't let his success get the better of him. He looked mighty good and last night's victory was the most important of his career. It even surpassed his victory over Koziol for Peterson is not only a clever boy but he demonstrated that he can hit.

And little Snooks Lacey. What a boy. Clever to the last word and a hitter with that left hand of his.

SOCCER LEAGUE GAME SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY

The following are the games to be played in the Eastern Connecticut soccer league this Sunday as given by the league secretary, Joseph Rose, Jr., of New London. Owing to seven teams in the league now, one team is forced to be idle every week:

New London Rangers vs. Plainfield, at New London; Jewett City vs. J. B. Martin, at Jewett City; Wauregan vs. Baltic, at Wauregan. Putnam, bye.

The Wauregan team won a protest which came up last night and will have to play the game with Putnam over later in the season.

POMFRET ENGAGES MILTON IN SATURDAY CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Nov. 7—The Pomfret school football squad under the direction of Coach Bruce McPhail, former Dartmouth star, left today for Milton, where they will engage in their annual tilt with this old time rival Saturday. The McPhail boys suffered a terrific beating last week, when they were taken over by a score of 41-0, rolled-up by the heavy, fast moving grid eleven representing Taft prep school.

Walker Beats Risko.

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, champion of the middleweights, boxed and slugged his way into a place among the contenders for the heavyweight championship by decisively defeating Johnny Risko in a ten round bout at Olympic arena tonight.

"Standing room only" signs were out at Olympia as 19,000 persons acclaimed the "toy bulldog" in his first serious appearance against a heavyweight.

SEVEN BIG INTERSECTIONAL TILTS SLATED FOR EASTERN BATTLEFRONT

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—(AP)—All along the eastern gridiron battlefront today, from the mountainous regions of West Virginia to the cloistered walls of Harvard, the echoes of marching football battalions signalized the biggest invasion of the season from the south and mid-west.

At least three of the frays, Notre Dame-Pennsylvania, Georgia-New York university, and Fordham-Detroit, involve national championship ambitions. Tradition favors the Harvard-Michigan classic at Cambridge. Service color is reflected by the Army-Illinois and Navy-Ohio state contests. Two plain but quite rugged football clans meet when West Virginia entertains Kansas Aggies.

Close to 350,000 spectators are likely to watch these seven intersectional affairs, distributed about as follows:

Army-Illinois at Yankee stadium—65,000.

Harvard-Michigan at Cambridge—55,000.

Navy-Ohio State at Baltimore stadium—50,000.

Detroit-Fordham at Detroit—20,000.

West Virginia-Kansas Aggies at Morgantown—10,000.

There are no "set ups" on either side. If there are any pronounced favorites, they are the undefeated Notre Dame team and Army's high powered eleven, but these two also are likely to have their hands full before the boys have broken from the last huddle.

Not since Red Grange ran wild against Pennsylvania at Franklin field five years ago has the visit of any team attracted so much interest or so big a crowd in Philadelphia as Notre Dame. The Quakers do not expect to stop the fighting Irish, who have another national championship in sight, but no inferiority complex will keep them from putting up a good game. Penn upset Kansas last week and looks to be decidedly on the upgrade, whereas it took Notre Dame two periods to get going a week ago against Indiana.

Army has a score to settle with Illinois for last year's reverse at Champaign, and the new-model Cadet machine appears capable of settling it against a sub-normal Zuppke product. Anyway, the Illinois brought a 160-piece band to startle the folks. West Point's cadets will parade and the game will be the most colorful of the season in the big town.

RUSSO WINS MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE FROM CURCIO; DARR, KOZIOL WIN

Coming like a bolt from the blue, Joe Russo's sweeping left hand crashed solidly against Johnny Curcio's jaw and the impact jarred the Rhode Island middleweight crown loose from the Providence boy's brow where it has rested for several years. Russo promptly picked it up and today has it in his home town in Westerly, where he is a popular idol. The bolt of lightning that felled the rugged Curcio came after 1 minute and 35 seconds of boxing in the second round of the main bout of the Shyma club show at Parish hall last night.

It was so entirely unexpected that it left the crowd gasping for breath for a second, because Curcio had shown himself to be the superior boxer and was leading slightly during the second round, the first round being even. Curcio, a veteran of the ring, looked cool as he jabbed and countered while Russo swung often and more or less wildly at Curcio's head.

The bout opened with Russo taking the aggressive and carrying the fight to the champion. Curcio jabbed with his left and crossed a right but although they counted they had little effect on Russo. The challenger scored often in the opening round with a left but at the end of the round matters stood very even, there being little or no advantage for either. At the opening the second round, Curcio speeded the fighting, taking the aggressive, and backed Russo around the ring several times, jabbing and crossing, and apparently piling up a good lead without much of a return from Russo. Then suddenly, without the least warning, Russo let loose a left hook that stopped with a sickening thud on Curcio's jaw. Curcio shook like a mighty oak that has been struck by lightning, his knees waved, and then he toppled to the floor, Referee Frankie Porelle started his count and at eight Curcio struggled to his feet by sheer nerve and fighting instinct. He made a feeble attempt to put up his hands but he was out on his feet and the referee stopped the bout. It was some minutes before Curcio returned to consciousness and he was very shaky as he went to his dressing room. Curcio weighed 156 and Russo 152 1-2.

Darr Stops Peterson in Sixth

Vic Darr, local favorite, who is mounting the ladder of fistic fame by leaps and bounds, scored another impressive win last night when he won on a technical knockout in the sixth round over Ero Peterson of Worcester. Darr's victory did not come with the suddenness of the main bout, for as early as the fourth round it was seen that Darr was getting stronger as the fight progressed, while Peterson was feeling the strain of Darr's continuous hammering. The end came after 35 seconds of fighting in the sixth round, Peterson going down and his seconds tossing in the towel to save him from a knockout.

Darr did not get going until the third round and things did not look any too bright for him during the first two stanzas. Peterson showed more aggressiveness during the first two rounds than during any bout in which he has participated. The Worcester lad jabbed Darr frequently in the first two rounds and in the second raised a mouse under Darr's right eye when he crashed through with a left that found its mark. After dropping the first two rounds by a point in each, Darr opened the third round in his whirlwind manner, using his right to stand Peterson up and then crossing his left to the body and head. In this stanza Darr got back a point. The fourth was a repetition of the third, with Darr showing stronger while Peterson had noticeably slowed down. In this round it became evident that Darr would win if he could keep up the pace he had set. In the fifth round Darr entirely outclassed Peterson. With two minutes gone in the round, Darr swung a left to Peterson's mouth that dropped the Worcester lad for a count of eight and opened a nasty cut on his lip. Peterson closed in and weathered the round but was showing the effects of the knockdown in the previous round when he came out for the sixth. Darr wasted not a second in following up his advantage. He pummeled Peterson about the head and body and then shot out that devastating left that again caught Peterson full on the mouth, and down he went. He reclined on the floor in mid-ring while the referee started the count. As Peterson was bleeding freely from the cut on his mouth, his seconds tossed in the towel as the count reached eight. Darr weighed 142, Peterson 139.

Koziol, The Killer

Al Koziol, another local boy, showed himself once again as the killer of former days. The Laurel Hill Mauler tore at Aldo Nocchi of Worcester for two torrid rounds, dropping him for the count after two minutes and 20 seconds of fighting in the second stanza. While it lasted it was a terrific battle and gloves flew like hail in the ring. Nocchi proved to be a willing mixer of the same type as Koziol but lacked sufficient kick in his gloves to stop the local lad. In the first round, Nocchi looked as though he might go the route but at the opening of the second stanza it was seen that the end was not far off. Koziol clipped Nocchi time after time with lefts and rights early in the second and the blood started to stream from the Worcester lad's nose. Shooting at this blazing beacon, Koziol rocked Nocchi with a terrific right, Nocchi's eyes rolled back, his knees shook and he crumpled to the floor. He made a game attempt to rise, got to his feet and then pitched to the canvas to be counted out. Nocchi had a two-pound weight advantage on Koziol, who weighed 144.

Peloquin Gets Close Verdict

In the six-round preliminary, Rene Peloquin of Danielson shaded Tony Caprio of Providence by a point with a last round rally. The bout was one of the best on the card and the margin was so very slight that it looked pretty much like a draw if such a decision could be given in this state. The boys went at it hammer and tongs during every round, both giving and taking from gong to gong. Going to the final round with everything all even, Peloquin landed about two more blows than Caprio to give him the verdict. Caprio showed to good advantage, mixing it with Peloquin at every opportunity, and will no doubt be matched for another card at the Parish hall arena in the near future.

Lacey Too Clever for Gauvin

Snooks Lacey, West Side colored youngster, had too many tricks and a too powerful left hand for Honeyboy Gauvin in the opening four-round bout. Lacey took three of the four rounds with Gauvin getting an even break in the third. Lacey, with his weaving and bobbing, proved an elusive target for Gauvin, who only landed at intervals on the ebony boy. Lacey's left hand was his most potent weapon and he used to to good advantage, beating Gauvin to the punch time and again. Lacey pleased the fans with his cleverness and has secured a place for himself on other cards.

The attendance was not as good as the card warranted, there being less than 600 in the hall.

MUCH IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—(AP)—The year that has elapsed since publication of the Carnegie Foundation's famous "Bulletin 23" on college athletics has seen considerable progress in remedying abuses, particularly the recruiting and subsidizing of athletes, Dr. Howard J. Savage, principal author of the bulletin, said today.

At the same time Dr. Savage stated emphatically that the foundation did not claim credit for the changes but merely noted them.

While little has been heard from Dr. Savage and his associates on the subject of college athletics since the sensational results of their study were made public on Oct. 24, 1929, they have been far from idle.

By means of letters to the presidents of institutions all over the country and personal visits by Dr. Savage to a few located in the middle west and in New England, the Carnegie Foundation has been and is now engaged in following up its original investigation and evaluating progress made, it was revealed.

Dr Savage was unable to say when the results of this check-up would be made public but indicated it would not be for several months.

In the meantime he declined to amplify his general statement that there is less recruiting and subsidizing of athletes now than there was a year or so ago to cite specific examples of improvement.

Replies are now coming in from the various college presidents, Dr. Savage said. The foundation's method was to question each college head concerning the particular conditions which "Bulletin 23" indicated were prevailing at his institution.

"The foundation does not deal in questionnaires," Dr. Savage remarked.

In cases where personal visits have been made to certain universities, he said, they were paid at the request of the college officials who desired to know whether they were on the right track in their efforts to put athletics on the proper plane.

The current agitation in favor of the post-season football games for the benefit of the unemployed has attracted the interest of the Carnegie Foundation, which is assembling all available information and opinions on the subject.

GERMANS SCORE IMPRESSIVE VICTORY AT HORSE SHOW

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—(AP)—Giving a hint of what is to follow in the battle for the coveted international military trophy, the German army team tonight scored an impressive victory as the officers and jumpers from six nations clashed for the first time in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden.

In an almost faultless exhibition of jumping over the strenuous C course, Lieut. Ernst Hasse and Lieut. Harold Monn rode Derby and Kampfgerell, respectively, to a clean cut triumph in the class calling out the best of pair jumpers. The Germans faltered only on the last fence, knocking off a thin slip for a record of one-half a fault.

The event was only an overture for more important battles to follow later in the show but it indicated that the Germans, winner of the international team trophy in 1928, will be the team to beat. The victory was made even more significant by their perfect performance in the Boston show last week.

New York society, packed teir on tier around the Tanbark, sensed the German victory, rising as one man as the two brightly clad officers took their mounts over every obstacle like a team.

Following the German pair into the arena, Lieut. Halson Gisla and Capt. Rolf Oern of the Swedish army, rode Lake and Vidar, respectively, into second place, being charged with only one fault. Third went to the United States army team of Avocat and Nigra, ridden by Captain William B. Bradford and Lieut. Edward Wofford. The Irish Free State pair of Moonstruck and Roisin Dubh, ridden by Capt. J. G. O'Dwyer and Capt. Cyril Harty, were fourth.

Devereux Milburn, the great back, calls the late Harry Payne Whitney the best poloist he ever played with.

Capt. Ben Ticknor, Harvard center, made approximately 40 per cent of the tackles in the game in which his team was licked by Dartmouth, 7-2.

Lefty O'Doul, new slugging outfielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers, says that Clise Dudley now with the Phillies gives him more trouble than any other pitcher in the National league.

Georgia Fullback Leads As Scorer

JACK
ROBERTS

By DILLON GRAHAM

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

ATHENS, Ga.—(AP)—They call him "Jack the Ripper" and he's the nation's leading scorer.

Built along the lines of a halfback, with the speed of a deer and the strength of a bull, young Jack Roberts, of Georgia university, pounds through tackle or sweeps an end with equal ability and result.

This alert fullback from Albany, Ga., who weighs 180 pounds and stands five feet nine inches from the ground, has stamped his cleats in opponents' touchdown turf eleven times in four games.

His 66 points rank him as America's collegiate touchdown king—at least for October.

As a sophomore last year, Roberts understudied Benny Rothstein, but as a junior he comes into his own. His only weakness has been his defensive play and his habit of fumbling in his eagerness to be off.

He has the knack of spinning and whirling about just as a would-be tackler dives at him. Roberts finds that this system works better for him than the stop-go tactics employed by other successful backs.

He's the siege gun of a mighty Georgia offensive which has bowled over Yale and North Carolina on successive Saturdays. Just as Albie Booth peps up the Yale attack, so does the Georgia offense sparkle as Roberts enters a game.

He is Harry Mehre's ace card and rarely does he miss touchdown bids.

"Jack the Ripper" ripped through Mercer for four touchdowns, counted three against Oglethorpe and North Carolina and bucked over Georgia's winning score against Yale.

In 64 rushes this year he has gained 280 yards for an average of 5.9 yards a try.

POETRY

Crowned

God made a golden highway
  For October's dancing feet;
He filled her fruit with ripeness,
  And He made her vintage sweet;
He gave to her the rapture
  Of a fairy world outspread,
With red leaf and rose leaf,
  Soft-brushing overhead.

He made her morns of crystal,
  And her noons of gold and blue;
He made her nights of damask,
  With stars a smilin' through;
He over-brimmed her splendor
  With the sumac's crimson flare,
The wine-red of the maple
  And a thousand colors rare.

On every hill and valley,
  In every leafy shrine,
He crowned her vivid beauty
  With tender glow and shine;
The gleaners' song is silent,
  The autumn winds blow late
But 'neath her jeweled corona'
  October sits in state.

—Frank Grubbs, in the Columbus Dispatch.

Common Sense

She came along the gathering crowd,
A maiden fair, without pretense,
And when they asked her humble name,
She whispered mildly, "Common Sense."

Her modest garb drew every eye,
Her ample cloak, her shoes of leather;
And, when they sneered, she simply said,
"I dress according to the weather."

They argued long, and reasoned loud,
In dubious Hindoo phrase mysterious,
While she, poor child, could not divine
Why girls so young should be so serious.

They knew the length of Plato's beard,
And how the scholars wrote in Saturn;
She studies authors not so deep,
And took the Bible for her pattern.

And so she said, "Excuse me, friends,
I find all have their proper places,
And 'Common Sense' should stay at home
With cheerful hearts and smiling faces."

—James Thomas Fields.

WANTED

As an auto owner you want your car to give you the power, speed, comfort, pleasure, the service you paid for. That service depends largely upon three things:

1 The Power In Your Motor

The first requisite is power. You cannot get the full power of your motor if your valves are faulty. When your valves are bad, the whole motor is off. Valves must be correct in form and correct in operation. And there is only one proper system of correction that will maintain your full power, and that is the KWIK-WAY SYSTEM.

2 The Valves In Your Motor

Motor valves work at high speed, under terrific heat. Because of that heat, they change form, they warp, twist out of true and leak. The valve seats also warp out of true. Again, you cannot get the full power out of your motor unless the valves and valve seats are correct. They can be properly and accurately corrected with mechanical precision by the KWIK-WAY SYSTEM.

3 The Care Of Your Motor

The old method of treaty leaky valves by "grinding them in" with grinding compound is no longer in use in modern service shops. Today motors are equipped with gasoline filters, oil rectifiers, air cleaners to protect them from the grinding effect of the dust, dirt and grit of the road. Likewise grinding compound is positively injurious when used in your valves. That's why we use the KWIK-WAY SYSTEM.

Let Us Look At Your Valves!

Keep your car in shape! See that its valves are correct and you'll get real enjoyment out of it. Let us look it over—it will cost you nothing to drive in and see how the KWIK-WAY SYSTEM of scientific valve correction protects your motor in a safe, sane, sensible way. Drive in—we'll be glad to see you any day—the sooner you come the better it will be for your car.

EAST PROVIDENCE DUCK HUNTERS FINED IN LONG COURT SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 7.—It was 1:30 p. m. when the regular Friday session of third district court with Judge Oliver H. Williams on the bench adjourned, having been in continuous session without recess. Violators of Rhode Island game and motor vehicle laws were brought before the court, the greater part of the session being taken up with the trial of a Bridgeport, Conn., and two East Providence, R. I., sportsmen on vacation the past week in Westerly and Charlestown, R. I.

Jesse P. Abby, 20, of Wyoming, town of Richmond, R. I., was presented in court by R. I. State Trooper Sherwood F. Healey, charged with the operation of a motorcycle, unregistered, on the Nooseneck Hill road on Nov. 2.

The state police informed the court that the defendant was teaching two young fellows to operate motorcycles and was following them on an unregistered motorcycle. He was said to have resided near the Hope Valley barracks and had the reputation of being a reckless operator. It was during the time that Abby was following the new motorcycle riders that one crashed into an automobile, sustaining injuries as the result of which his death followed at the Westerly hospital shortly after he had been taken there. Abby told the court that he had an operator's license but had not registered the motorcycle as he did not intend to use it. Judge Williams found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

To the following cases of alleged violations of R. I. motor traffic laws brought by the state police department there were no court appearances and the cases were continued:

State, Sherwood F. Healey, vs. Murray Diamond; State, Sherwood F. Healey, vs. Raymond C. Vars, of Westerly; State, Corp. Albert L. Taylor, vs. Harry L. Gossaling.

Joseph H. Tucker, 19, of Tuckertown, R. I., pleaded not guilty to the reckless operation of an automobile on the new straight stretch of state highway about a half mile from Alton, R. I., at 5 p. m., on Sunday, Oct. 12. At the time he, with a companion, George Johnson, of Green Hill, R. I., was returning from a baseball game in Broadford to Alton when their car was pulled out of a long string of autos to smash into the side of the auto driven by Dr. Herbert E. Rouse, who was accompanied by Clarence Sherman. Dr. Rouse testified that he went over the center highway line about two and a half feet to pass another car parked on the right side of the highway. As he did so the auto operated by the defendant crashed into the left side of his auto, smashing the running board and fender, and the other car went off into the brush by the roadside. On cross-examination by Attorney Chase, the doctor said he had not reached the parked auto when his auto was struck. His companion, who was a sufferer from infantile paralysis, became ill on the witness stand, and Prosecutor Ferguson after calling Dr. Rouse to attend him said that he would dispense with his testimony.

Trooper Healey testified that the brakes on the Tucker car did not operate to best advantage and that the Overland touring car driven by the accused could be checked up by the tire marks in the highway and that the collision occurred close by the rear of the auto parked by the roadside.

Joseph Tucker, a helper for his father, James Tucker, farmer, took the stand in his own defense and testified that his auto was crowded off the highway and that when it was brought back onto the highway surface from the soft dirt shoulder it swung across the road and was hit by the Rouse auto. George Jackson also testified for the defense.

Tucker was found guilty by Judge Williams and sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

Civil Docket—Robina Wills vs. Arthur A. Guarino. Continued one week for trial.

In the cases, Louis Silverstein and Clyde Mills, Inc., vs. Joe Stedman, the respondent appeared in court to say that a continuance of another week had been agreed upon and a settlement was in process of being carried out.

The cases of the Boston Lightning Rod Co., against Gaetano Grispino and Amos Champlin were each continued one week.

Massachusetts Bonding & Indemnity Co. vs. Lawrence H. Hepworth. Continued one week.

Dwight E. Stagg, of Bridgeport, Harold S. Peterson and Edward P. James, both of East Providence, R. I., arrested on Nov. 5 by R. I. Deputy Bird Commissioner Chester T. Whaley, of Wakefield, R. I., each entered pleas of not guilty to charges of killing and pursuing migratory game birds, wild duck, between the hours of sunset and one-half hour before sunrise. They elected to have all their cases tried together and each appeared as their own attorney.

Deputy Commissioner Whaley testified that following several complaints, the identity of the parties he refused to state, he had gone from Wakefield to Charlestown, R. I., and caught the hunters, the first gun having been heard when fired by the party some 12 minutes before the hour set by the law. He said that on Nov. 5 the sun-rising time was 6:24 o'clock. Whaley claimed that the three men had seven ducks. Winwood Gardner testified that he was with Whaley and that they arrived at the pond at 5:22 and he then heard a shot fired. Later, he said, he heard 17 or 18 shots and he saw the ducks.

It appeared from the testimony that James, Stagg and Peterson were on a vacation hunting trip in Charlestown at the time. On the morning in question James said they got up at about 5 o'clock and left the house at 5:20 o'clock. He said he figured it would take 12 minutes to drive down to the Hoxie place on the Post road and from 5 to 8 minutes to walk from the road down to the pond.

He said they watched at the pond for 15 minutes before the birds flew. James said the shooting lasted about 8 or 10 minutes and he first saw Whaley at about 10 minutes after 6 o'clock. Both James and Stagg said that neither of the hunters had his watch with him. Stagg said that he felt that there was something malicious about the complaint brought against them. He said that they had all paid for their licenses and had done nothing to harm the state. Stagg told the court that the warden did not approach them in the midst of the shooting.

Judge Williams, after a lengthy review of the case, found the three men guilty as charged and sentenced them to pay fines of $10 each and costs which included the actual charge of mileage of the deputy commissioner in making the arrests in Charlestown and travel to the Westerly court.

ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR ANNUAL RED CROSS DRIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 7.—Henry L. Burdick, chairman of the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross, has announced plans for the coming week in the annual drive of the Red Cross to secure new memberships for the furtherance of the work of the Red Cross. He declares: "Individual membership is an established Red Cross principle. We believe that personal offering to citizens of an opportunity to support this humanitarian service will be immediately productive of results.

"The existence of an organized Red Cross gives definite assurance to this and neighboring communities that in time of disaster help will be immediately forthcoming. It also sponsors a far-reaching service program on the part of the national organization, coordinating the work of the local chapters.

"Every membership helps to support the activities of the local chapter and contributes as well to the maintenance of the national organization. This national body, backed by years of experience, in turn aids the local unit in an advisory capacity and strengthens its functions through an infusion of ideals of service with practical instruction."

Pat Incorporates

By LOUIS LORRAINE

THE ROMANCE OF A YOUNG RADIO ENTERTAINER WHO NEVER REALIZED THE NEED OF A MANAGER UNTIL MR. PETTY APPEARED

PAT sat on the edge of her narrow bed, shoulders hunched in despair. Pat had no money. What was worse, she didn't know where she could get any money. A mop of silver hair almost obscured her face, drooping downward dejectedly, but a sweet little profile showed through: long, dark, curling lashes; just a suggestion of the darkest of eyes; a mouth, upturned at the corner exposed to view; determined, yet not-too-determined chin. Pat was in Manhattan, and what a fight it was putting up to one small girl.

In the midst of her whirl the telephone rang. Her head snapped up and her eyes glowed as she reached for the receiver.

"Hello."

"Miss Keen?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Petty is calling to see you."

"I don't know any Mr. Petty."

"Just a minute, please. * * * Miss Keen, Mr. Petty says it is quite important that he see you."

"All right. Tell him to wait. I'll be right down."

Pat flew to the dresser, ran the comb through her hair, smoothed a new tan make-up on her face and neck, softened the rouge on her lips with a fingertip, took a final glance in the mirror, snatched up her key and ran out of the room. Going down in the elevator, Pat's mind went off at a tangent. P'raps this was a break. Probably one of the agents had heard of her work and was going to talk business.

At the desk a young man came up to her with outstretched hand. She noticed with pleasure his surprised admiration.

"Miss Keen?"

"Yes, and I s'pose you're Mr. Petty. How do you do? Shall we sit down?"

"By all means," and they both giggled like silly school children.

Pat led the way to a davenport in the lobby, which was a sure sign that Pat approved of Mr. Petty. Usually she led callers to the straight-backed chairs.

This was going to be fun, thought Pat. He was a darling. He wasn't so much taller than she, but well built. She decided that the one streak of gray his crinkly black hair was no drawback to his appearance. Pat raged inwardly at the warm flush that so surely crept upward, dyeing her neck and face. She would have blushed even more furiously could she have read this pleasant young man's rather remarkable thoughts at the same moment. What a precious she was, and what glorious hair, so ash blond as to gleam silver! Deep-set brown eyes, large and liquid!

"Miss Keen, I guess you're wondering who I am. Allow me. My card," and with an exaggerated bow and flourish he offered her the conventional white cardboard.

"MICHAEL PETTY"

"I represent Simms & Smith, that famous firm of stock brokers. Your name has come to our attention through your radio work. You have certainly been wonderful, to our way of thinking, and I'm here to try to make you realize the advisability of wisely investing some of your money so that you'll have more and more as time goes on."

"Yes, Mr. Petty, but you might just as well save your breath. I have no intention of investing any of my money."

"Oh, Miss Keen, you know there comes a time in every one's life when he or she——"

"Please," laughed Pat. "You see—well, I might confide in you. I sorta have a feeling you'd understand."

He was all ears. She went on:

"You see—pardon me, won't you smoke?"

He nearly dropped hat, newspaper and briefcase in his haste to pull out a pack of cigarettes.

"Will you, too?"

"Thank you," and their hands touched back to back as he held the lighter for her.

"This is a long story, so if you must leave in a short time, there's no use beginning."

"I have the rest of the day and evening, and my time is yours." There was no denying the sincerity underlying the light statement.

"IN FEBRUARY I came here from Philadelphia, where I had been for three years, managing a shop for a New York concern. I was homesick, you see." She smiled shamefully at this mention of her weakness.

Mr. Petty merely nodded understandingly.

"When I arrived I looked up Dave Brown, an old friend, and he offered me a job as his secretary until I could find something better to do."

"Well, I was happy at the prospect and started to work for him. He asked me whether I could sing. I said 'No, but I know one song.' He immediately dropped to the piano bench and played it. I sang. He seemed delighted with my interpretation and rushed me over to General Broadcasting company. Through him I was given a program and I was able to be fairly successful.

"G. B. C. sent me on a personal appearance date in St. Louis with all headliners, a huge radio show given at the Coliseum. You must know how frightened I was. A rank outsider I considered myself. Dave Brown and his sidekick, Dick Foster, were among the notables who appeared with me.

"To make a long story short, Dick was jealous of me professionally. All the way on the train he berated me for being there, and I had no business on the program, and * * * oh, everything to make me uncomfortable. The time came for my appearance. I was extremely wrought-up and nervous. I was placed before Dave and Dick on the program. I was touchy as a cat over my pianist, a studio girl from the St. Louis station. I wasn't sure of her. Dave knew it. There were five grand pianos stretched across the back of the mammoth stage. Dave whispered that he would take the piano nearest offstage and play for me, guiding my pianist. I went on and put it over. I could feel absolutely at ease because Dave was playing.

"Well, when we came off, Dick came up to Dave and started a rumpus, said their act was ruined because Dave had appeared. Of course, Dave and I both knew it was unethical for him to go on that stage before his turn, but we also knew, and Dick, too, that no one had recognized him. Anyhow, Dick called him a vile name under his breath and Dave struck out. In that one punch he blackened Dick's eye and cut his cheek. It took a great deal of make-up and persuasion to get Dick on that stage. He wasn't a true trouper. He was a baby. Wanted to lie down and quite cold. But they went on and stopped the show.

"The rumpus got back to the officials at G. B. C. and all three of us were suspended from the station.

"Dave's wife heard of it and forbade him to have anything to do with 'that girl,' meaning me, and here I am * * *

"I've tried the theatrical agents and I've tramped Broadway for weeks, trying to get a break in a show, vaudeville or anything, but I just haven't made the grade.

"I don't have any more funds to carry me through and now I'm at the end of my rope," she brought the narrative to a close with a twisted smile.

He said nothing for a short time, then asked:

"Miss Keen, will you spend the rest of the evening with me, first, of course, having dinner?"

She studied him intently for a moment, then nodded.

"Good. I believe I have a plan, rather nebulous, it's true, but it may work out.

"S'pose you get ready. I'll wait for you. Then we'll hop a cab and I'll show you a little French restaurant where we can have something cool to drink, anything you care to eat and a chat."

"You make it sound inviting. I'll hurry." She was gone.

She was back very soon. Being an observant young man, he noted that her clothes, while a bit shabby, were worn in such a manner as inevitably to catch the eye. Her carriage was so graceful as to immediately denote the poise of the trained dancer. Mr. Petty felt a tingle of pride that he was to have her companionship for a few hours.

Mr. Petty swept Pat from the depths to a carefree mood in an extremely short time. She was happy. Something pleasant was happening to her. It was in the air. She just knew it.

The restaurant was a ducky little place. Tiny tables. Soft lights. Ice clinking in tall glasses. Flowers. The musical hum of a Continental tongue. Jollity. Appetizing odors.

Pat sank back against the bench she shared with Mr. Petty and drank it all in. Mr. Petty grinned at the enthusiastic, sparkling eyes. The menu was presented.

"What do you have a yen for?"

"You order. I warn you, however, no matter how hungry I am, it takes very little to satisfy me. I don't seem to have the capacity for lots of food. Rather, small quantities more often," she smiled.

HE WAS one of the few diplomatic men who took her words at their face value. He did not insist upon her stuffing herself. It is just such small things which endear a man to a girl like Pat. Usually dinner was tiresome with the men she knew. She was frank about what she liked and disliked. Always before they had tried to change her mind for her. Score one for Michael.

The dinner ordered was quite sufficient and entirely tempting. Pat enjoyed it. The talk matched his choice of food. Two chance acquaintances discovering their common tastes in literature, in sports and so forth. Not once did he touch on the theatre, nor did she.

With the table clear before them excepting for two green glasses, with their cigarettes curling smoke around their faces, Michael came to the point.

"Now, Miss Keen, let's get down to business."

"You may call me Pat or Patricia if you like."

"Thanks, Pat, it helps a lot. And you call me Mike. Everybody does."

"Do you like that name?"

"No." The tone of voice left no doubt as to his distaste.

"Well, I like Michael. How about that?"

He looked at her with astonishment. She laughed at his wide eyes. He had never heard his name before the way she spoke it!

"Gee, it sounds great, the way you say it, Pat."

"All right. Now go on."

"Well, since I'm down on the street, I see everything in terms of stocks and bonds. Your problem can be solved, I believe, by the same application. Here it is. Why don't you incorporate?"

Pat was bewildered.

"How could I do that?"

"I haven't the thing worked out myself, but the idea is that you incorporate yourself. Any one who knows of your work should be willing to take stock in you. Think of the dividends you'd pay later on."

"Why, I don't know what to say."

"Don't say anything. Just listen." Michael was warming up to the subject. Their heads drew closer together. The conversation grew heated. Pat was no slouch herself when it came to brain-power. The pros and cons were discussed.

"What say? Let's."

"Just a minute, Michael. What do you get out of this?"

"Well, if you insist on making it a business proposition, I'll take my usual commission less 5 per cent, because I'm particularly interested in this stock myself, you know."

"Oh."

"The next thing for me to do is to see you work. I've heard you on the radio, but I'll have to see you in action. Dance?"

"A little."

"Got a dance you can do all the way through?"

"You mean a routine. Yes, but I'll have to brush up on it and put a few new twists here and there."

"Let's go."

It never occurred to her to question where. They were just going. The reckoning paid, they hurried out. This Michael was rather a breathless person, thought Pat, when he was sold on anything.

He hailed a cab. It seemed natural for her hand to make a small fist in his. Excitement swept over her. Michael dismissed the cab in front of a house on 12th street off the avenue. He pressed the doorbell to a basement apartment. They were inside. She was introduced to a surprisingly tall, lanky youth.

"Hello, Toby. This is Pat."

"Charmed, Miss Pat."

"How do you do, Toby?"

"I want to see what the little girl can do. No questions now, Toby. Tickle the ivories."

Toby was nonchalant. Apparently there was nothing unusual in folks dropping in at all hours to hear him play the piano. He touched the keys. Pat looked at Michael. He had picked a comfy old armchair and was sprawling with a ridiculously self-satisfied smirk on his face. Pat smiled. He looked so like a naughty little boy who had filched the jam and eaten it. He motioned her to and walked over to Toby. They chose the right key. The performance was on. Two numbers and a stumbling thirty-two-bar dance.

Michael, however, saw her ability. She danced with her whole body and face as well as with her feet—personality plus.

TOBY was let in on the secret. The three of them buzzed and smoked innumerable cigarettes till the wee, small hours. When good night was said, everything was planned to the most minute detail. Not only planned, but down in black and white.

Pat sank back in the cab. Her eyes were misted. Friends. At last. Two real friends in this cold, marvelous town. It was so quiet that Michael stealthily glanced at Pat. Good heavens, was the girl crying? He patted her shoulder.

"What's the matter, Pat?" His kindness was too much. That was all. Pat turned to him, buried her head in his coat and sobbed.

He merely held her. The choking little gasps subsided. A flicker at the corner of her lips and she smiled brilliantly at him. The sun shining through the rain.

"That's better. Now tell me if you want to."

"Oh, Michael, I know I'm foolish, but girls cry at the silliest times. I guess I was too happy. You have been heavenly to me. And Toby. How in the world two strangers should take so much interest in a nobody! Even all the people who have pretended to be my friends have never done anything. And you have done so much. Oh, I'm so happy," and another trickle of tears followed.

"You dear. We are doing it because we like you and want you to get that break. S'pose we don't think any more about it tonight." Pat's swimming eyes turned to his. A twinge of compunction caught her. He looked wan, tired.

"Michael, I'm a selfish beast. Here I've been keeping you up all night only interested in myself. You'll be too worn out tomorrow to work. After you've been so good. Forgive my thoughtlessness, won't you, Michael, dear?"

Michael felt very tender at that "dear." He drew her close to him and they rode silently on, cheek to cheek. The sky was gray when he let her down at the hotel. She turned her lips to his and they kissed. A childish kiss. A sweet kiss.

The elevator was not running.

Pat's eyes were cradles of dreams as she climbed the stairs.

She was asleep before her head touched the pillow.

The hotel was on fire and a gong was a-clanging. She was being smothered. She was panic-stricken. She was burning to death. She opened her eyes. She was tangled in the covers. The telephone ringing was the gong.

"Hello."

"Hello, there. The top o' the mornin' to you. Twelve o'clock. Time for all busy little girls to be up and at 'em."

"Oh. Good morning, Michael, how are you?"

"Fine. Sittin' on top of the world. How about your getting dressed and letting me buy your cereal?"

"I don't eat cereal, I'm no child."

"No. You're a baby. Hop to it. I'll be downstairs waiting."

That day was the busiest Pat had ever lived through. Michael had planned the campaign. He would go far, that boy. For after mapping out a course of action he carried on. A lawyer's office. Papers to be signed. A man Michael had found, heaven knows where, to fix Pat's routine. A final rehearsal at Toby's.

THE next day Michael and Pat began the rounds of her friends. The surprising part of the whole business was that the stock sold. The money began pouring in. A miracle had been performed. It was unbelievable.

Michael and Pat were inseparable and Toby managed to be always near.

Within a week Pat was offered a part in a road show. She would have taken it immediately, but Michael would not consider it. She was offered a spot in a unit for ten weeks. Michael made her refuse. There were other offers. Strange. Everything came at once. She could afford to wait now, so many opportunities were opened to her.

Seeley listened to her and watched her work. He chewed on his inevitable unlighted cigar. His ugly face was a mask. But he didn't thank her. When they say "thank you" on Broadway, you know you simply haven't clicked.

The spot was found. The contract signed. Michael managed to wangle an extra hundred a week for her. Work. Work. Work. Pat was so worn out when she reached home at night she cried herself to sleep.

The opening night. No food. There must be no risk of nervous indigestion. Fright prickling through her. Wide eyes. Trembling knees. Clammy palms. A bromide as the orchestra played. Strange calm. Coolness. Levelheadedness. Before the black velvet curtain. When you worked in the spotlight there were no people there. Ridiculously easy. Triumph. She sold herself. Mad applause. Delight. She was made.

Backstage a surge of bodies around her. Michael came. She suffered herself to be gently taken to a cab. Through the daze of wonderfulness, Michael was talking.

"We have to celebrate, you know. So I've arranged a simple party for you. Just Toby, you and I at Toby's. O. K.?"

"Oh, yes."

"And, darling infant, I say goodby tonight."

"Michael," she very nearly screamed. "You're not going away?"

"I'm not exactly going away, Pat, but I'm not going to see you any more. I've done all I can now. It is written that you are to be great. I must make my exit."

"Why, Michael, whatever nonsense are you talking? What could I do without you? Don't be a silly."

"No, Pat, I won't be a silly. That's just why I'm fading out of the picture. There won't be any time for me now. And I won't stand in your way."

PAT was looking at him. What in the world was the matter with him? He seemed crushed. Broken. Beaten. Then she knew. He loved her. The precious! But he was going to say "goodby" so that he wouldn't be an obstacle. She guessed she had something to say about that. With a quick movement she drew his head down to her, that beloved head which was so dear to her.

"You are too silly, Michael. It's written all over me. Yet you make me go the whole way. I love you. Love you. Love you," and she punctuated every "love you" with a kiss. With a whoop Michael changed. From then on he was the masterful lover.

A jolt which neither felt! An open door! A face grinning at them! They came down to earth with a thud.

Toby was standing at the curb.

"Where've you been so long?" and then, reading their faces, "Well, you rascals! I'll say this is going to be some celebration."

"Pat Petty, Inc.," exulted Michael. "Say, how about that, marvelous?"

"I like Mrs. Michael Petty better," and she raised her eyes to his. It may have been an illusion, but Michael saw a brilliant star shining in each lovely eye. He kissed each one reverently.

Toby put his arms around them and led them inside.

Vera Mirova

"Vera Mirova gave a dance recital at the Play house and earned thereby the thanks and enthusiastic acclaim of as many as the theatre could hold and the disappointment of a hundred or so not so fortunate enough to gain admittance." Thus wrote Hazel Moore in the Chicago Tribune after witnessing the dancing of Vera Mirova.

Similar tributes have been given her by the press of America and of European nations. At her performance in Paris, writes "La Semaines a Paris," "every place was filled, and spectators were standing in the aisles and in the boxes; and all that immense audience was stirred, vibrated, and aroused to enthusiasm over the beauty of her performance. Mme Mirova is imbued with the spirit of the dances she interprets for us"—and even the said New York Times, in last Sunday's issue decides that "she is decidedly worth the effort of making the trip downtown to see."

But no effort is required to go to the Masonic temple auditorium this coming Monday evening and enjoy the dance recital Mme Mirova will give under the auspices of the Norwich Art association. Do not fail to see this internationally famous artist and assure yourself of an evening of enjoyable entertainment. See adv.

Hillcrest Theatre

"The Road to Paradise," a First National and Vitaphone all talking picture featuring Loretta Young and Jack Mulhall in the starring roles will be the main attraction at the Hillcrest on Saturday, and will be shown at the matinee at 2 o'clock and twice in the evening, at 6:45 and 8:45. "The Road to Paradise" is a thrilling story of gangland, a story which every one will enjoy.

For the Sunday feature, Manager Schwartz has once again scored a "scoop" by being able to present to his patrons a picture, scenes for which were taken in this locality, "Heads Up" starring Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Helen ((Boopa-doop) Kane and Victor Moore. This is another Paramount picture that hasn't played Norwich.

The United States coast guard at New London, Conn., is publicized for the first time in its 140 years of existence in "Heads Up," the romance-thriller with music which comes to the Hillcrest theatre on Sunday.

An Our Gang comedy, a Novelty and Fox Movietone News complete this exceptionally fine programme.

Coming Tuesday and Wednesday—Maurice Chevalier in "The Big Pond."

Picture At Y. M. C. A. Sunday

The seven reel feature moving picture titled "Square Shoulders" will be shown at the Sunday afternoon service in the large gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock.

This is a splendid story of the devotion of a wayward father to his son, with the colorful, dashing background of a military school. Although the father is a derelict, the boy believes him to have been a great man. The father accidentally decides to try to live up to it. In order to be near him the father gets a job as a stable man.

To this picture service the adult public is cordially invited, and youth fifteen and over will be admitted.

A free will offering will be taken.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

A Timely Toot

Summer's harp is on the willow,
And the pumpkins' glowing gold,
Shimmers like a Klondike billow,
O'er the cornfield richly rolled.
Oh, the thistle-down is flying,
And the frost is on the plum,
And the zephyr's softly sighing,
While the partridge plays his drum.

Oh, no more the bumble's bumming
Round the hollyhock and rose,
For the buckwheat cake is coming,
As the happy schoolboy knows.
And the wheat the farmer's binding,
While he carols in his mirth,
And the cider-mill is grinding
All the day for all it's worth.

Oh, the rabbit's gayly skipping,
And the robin's on the scoot,
And Matilda's townward tripping,
While her charms we fondly toot.
Oh, the popcorn is exploded,
While the flame is on the hum,
And the gun that isn't loaded,
Swift eliminates the thumb.

Oh, the rooster is the roaster
That the finest rapture yields,
While the autumn, like a poster,
Spills its omelette on the fields.
Oh, the oyster's fondly straying
On the polished walnut bar,
And the cackling pig is playing
On his sandal-wood guitar.

Oh, the very air is wistful,
From the nightfall till the morn,
While the farmer, by the fistful,
At the hen projects the corn.
And 'tis soon we'll don the "porous,"
While our hearts go pit-a-pat,
For we hear this fiendish chorus,
As we travel, "shoot the hat!"
—R. K. Munkittrick.

The Turkey's Ambition

"I'm thankful that Thanksgiving day Comes only once a year,"
Sighed Mrs. Turkey Gobbler
In her husband's right hand ear.
"Tis dreadful to rear up a brood
Of children, fine and fat,
To help the farmer feed his friends
In country, town or flat."

"My dear," old Father Turkey said,
"This world is full of work,
And we must set a pattern
That it doesn't pay to shirk.
If people must have turkey
To grace Thanksgiving day,
Then we should teach our little ones
To please in every way.
And every little turkey's
Very highest aim in life
Should be to grace a happy feast;
So cheer up, turkey wife!"

Patchwork Quilts

Whoever saw a patchwork quilt
Without a tender feeling?
And once again, I hear the craze
Is o'er the ladies stealing.
They gather at a neighbor's house
With scissors, thread, and thimble;
The way they make their fingers fly—
It surely proves they're nimble.

They take all kinds of colored cloth
And smooth it on a table;
They cut this up in pieces small,
(As far as they are able)
To match the cardboard pattern blocks
Of ev'ry shaped dimension.
Whoever planned those patchwork quilts
Had talent for invention.

They mix the dark ones with the light,
Ofttimes, with each, exchanging;
For some run out of colors that
They need when thus arranging.
Then when they get the cloth all cut
And planned to satisfaction,
They sew it up and soon produce
A quilt of great attraction.

Some pieces came from sister's dress,
And some were baby brother's;
A light blue once was father's shirt,
The apron, there, was mother's.
The men look on and greatly scoff
At this old form of patching,
But you just linger 'round a while
And see if you're not catching.

Some one of them, when winter comes,
Within a clothespress peeking,
And when you ask them what they want—
It's patchwork they're seeking,
So let them laugh, if fun they get,
From out this work and trouble;
They know for looks and warmth those quilts
Will beat new blanket double.

CORNER LOSES TWO OLD MEMBERS

Dear Editor and Corner Folks: Within the past two weeks two of Club No. 4's oldest members have been called to their heavenly home. Pisces who was 7[illegible] and Ann Tenna, [illegible]. Both were endowed with a fine sense of humor, so their letters were always up to date, witty and interesting. Ann Tenna's health did not permit of her attending many meetings, but she did enjoy writing for the Corner page and I know we all looked for her letters. Pisces was a faithful attendant, but not hearing very readily could not get the enjoyment out of them that most of us do.

It was very sad that Effie M should be called from this life while yet so young. We sympathise with all who have had to part with loved ones.

Was in Putnam to the Corner meeting, had a nice time visiting, a very nice dinner and know I missed a fine program, but had something else on my mind so felt obliged to leave early. Glad to see so many at the meeting. Congratulations to the hostesses for the nice way everything was done.

Aries: I took some purple flowers, similar to the ones you asked about, to the meeting in Dayville. Cannot tell you the name of the plant, but imagine it belongs to the alfalfa family. It grows wild in our blackberry patch and you are welcome to all the roots you want in the springtime. It looks very pretty even before it blooms.

Solar Wylie: Glad to see that name again and did enjoy reading your letter. It brought to mind some of my experience with pigs. When we bought this place we bought stock and all and included in that was a mother hog. At that time voting was done in the old town house in Killingly Center. We came here in August and on election day in October a neighbor came hustling in and said your old hog is lying right across the road on the hill feeding her big family. Zany was at work, so, of course, it was up to me to get them back where they belonged, which I accomplished after getting very angry, but I forgave the old girl that time, thinking she was very proud of her family and wanted to advertise them for us. Luckily for all hands there were no autos in those days for if there had been there might have been fresh pork all over the road. The climax came some time later when she got out again and insisted in traveling in the road. Thought if I could get her into the stable she would be safe there till Zany came. Well, she got mad this time, grabbed one of our nice Plymouth Rock pullets, tore it in pieces and eat it before my eyes. Before she could get another one I shooed the others away and finally got her inside, but she was so mad then she hoisted the door off the track at the bottom, but did not get out. That night we decided someone wanted her more than we did and the next day we bid her good-bye and good luck with her future families.

POSTPONEMENT

There will be no meeting of Club No. 2 Nov. 11 as it is Armistice day and Norwich has a parade. The next meeting will be in December.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

Nov. 12—Club No. 1 meets in Y. M. C. A. rooms, Willimantic.

Frosted window panes will soon be with us again, so perhaps we can take a tip from this clipping which amused me. A Rhode Island woman noticed her husband blowing his breath lustily against the windows and could not account for it until she took up a paper he had laid down and there read that "incrustations of frost upon window glass can be prevented by the application of alcohol."

As cold weather and cold storms are now with us am sending in this recipe.

Poultice for pneumonia: Take six to ten onions and chop fine, put into a large spider over a hot fire, add about the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to make a thick paste. Stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer five to ten minutes, put into a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs and apply it to the chest as hot as the patient can bare it. Before it gets cool apply another and thus continue reheating poultices. In a few hours the patient will be out of danger. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient but continue always until perspiration starts from the chest. This remedy was formulated many years ago by one of the best physicians New England has ever known. It is said he never lost a patient by the disease. It is also an excellent croup remedy when applied to the throat.

An onion will cure the earache quicker than any other remedy. Place an onion in the ashes until baked, place the heart of the onion in the ear as hot as the patient can bare it.

Cenzi: Hope you are feeling much better after your month of sickness. Hope all who have not been feeling well are much better now.

BUSY AND NOISY PLACE

Mr. Editor and Friends: I will give you all a surprise this week and send in a few lines. I am still on the rock of sure foundation, but it looks very much like having the foundation shook a little as they are blasting very near and as the ledge is clear under the house they may shake me up a little. They are shaking up Providence Rose a little as they are blasting at the same time very near her house. My but it sure is noisy here, now! All day I hear noises from three drills, a steam shovel and 20 trucks, and at night I have a fine concert by about ten bugs, all of a different voice, and about 15 cats, all of a sweet voice; then to help them out about a dozen young skunks tune in. Oh, it is a very musical place down here!

Butterfly: I think you and hubby and the rat trap will have to pay me a visit. I do believe those darned rats know I like them. I feel like going out and climbing to the top of one of the highest trees across the road and sing, but my nerves say go back ten miles into the backwoods out of all this noise and hear the birds sing. I had a phoebe, a blue bird, a robin, a blue jay, a starling and I don't know how many crows sing to me Sunday. That sounded pretty to me. Wish they would sing all winter.

Aries: I don't know if I answered your last letter, if not, let me know. I have been awful busy.

Icavilia: You were very lucky to have water to clean your house. We had to get ours from the city until it rained. Hope you got it all done good and nice. Hope you don't get froze up so you can't come down Thanksgiving.

1492 and Keziah Doolittle: Never mind, my tub was rozen over this morning; that means that snow will soon be here.

Skipper, L. T. H. and Violet: Hope you are fine. I hope the sick are on the gain.

Kochia: Hello, you poor child. Hope they don't continue to keep you on the go. You take your ma and come down here. The snakes have all gone to sleep down here.

May God be with all and bless you and the shut-ins.

NONESOPRETTY (Club No. 4).

LETTER FROM BONIE

Dear Social Corner Editor: I thought I would not be a slacker any longer this year, but would try and make up before the roll is called before Jan. 1, 1931. Am going on a trip, not to the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, but to the wheat fields of Pennsylvania.

I have looked around, but did not see Calla Lily. She said she lived near here at one time, also for Liberty Belle. I can hear the chick-a-dee over in the woods. Nellie Bly comfort Wetona. Shuggie's charity to Mary Jane. Mayfayer chauffered Faith to Cypress at Blue Top. Necia Bee True to Scottie for you don't know what Humble Bee will do to Bumble Bee. A friendly voice told me if I got Lonesome Pine she would play Tiddle Winks. Red Rose said come again. So will close for this time. Regards to all the sisters. You will hear from me again. BONIE.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE FAN

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: Many thanks for the yellow slip. I intend to pay my Red Cross membership with it. Election is over and I'm glad. Maybe now things will settle down and the candidates will stop calling names. Some will be pleased, others disappointed at the results, but that is true of all things in life, and that is well, too, as life would be tame if we all thought alike.

To those who attended cooking school in W. and got this recipe, do try it:

Muffin or corn bread: 2 cups Johnny cake meal, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder (mix thoroughly), add 1 egg and 1 cup milk beaten together. After putting in pan, sprinkle 1 cup of diced bacon on top. We thought it great.

Im glad to know others do cross-words. I find the pastime good for "nerves." I have one cross-word puzzle that has 277 horizontal and 357 vertical words, it is claimed to be the largest cross-word ever made. I've had it two years and it isn't finished yet as I only try at long intervals. Then I often try stub pencil golf. Silly maybe but then I enjoy it.

CLUB NO. 1 MEETS NOV. 12

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: Hello, each and everyone. What cold and frosty mornings we are now having, just a reminder that old man winter is on the way.

With a wood shed full of wood and plenty of fruit and vegetables in the cellar, one has a lot to be thankful for.

Betsy Bobbet: If I ever get caught in a blizzard down your way will know where to stop.

Wild Geranium: Hope the hand is getting better and son is improving.

Anona: Just dug my gladioli today but don't believe they are hurt.

Club No. 1 meets Nov. 12 in the Y. M. C. A. rooms in Willimantic.

Bring your dishes as usual and something good for the table and those that can please bring something for the program. Come one and all and try to make this meeting one of thankfulness is the wish of

WISTERIA.

SELF CONTROL

Dear Social Corner Friends: Every child and person should be carefully trained into the habit of self control from infancy up.

We are all creatures of habit and the habits we form in infancy and childhood become instinctive and the natural and first way that occurs to use to do in times of provocation, confusion and excitement. And it grows more and more important in the modern conditions of living that we react in the best and quickest and safest way in emergencies.

An infant's education begins the moment it is born, and its environment establishes the line of action that will fix his habits into good or bad ones, and those that will be helpful or harmful to him perhaps all his life.

For it seems almost impossible to eradicate entirely the wrong impressions the infant receives.

We have failed to realize how serious the child problem has become. One of our educators recently said, "Our teachers should not think of their work as purely educational." Teachers now should expect to find out all about the child, his home environment, and what his life has been now and before he was of school age.

"If the object of education is just to see that the child learns the various subjects, the school money may nearly as well be thrown away."

Not only must the child learn his lessons, but we must teach them to work together, to cooperate in various ways, to play safely and carefully, to be gentle with smaller children, to respect children of other nationalities, to behave properly at all times and in all places and circumstances, to reason and to form the habit of behaving according to the standards that will make them safe and reasonable behaving adults. We are often surprised at the peculiar ideas or actions of some adult who we had assumed was a normal human being. This shows his lack of proper childhood training.

One of the wisest mothers said she "adopted the system of dealing with her children of training and explaining to them very early in life that there are certain elementary things which every human being had to do. To go to bed, to get up in the morning, to keep clean, to eat regular meals each day and to keep the bodily functions in good order."

She taught her children that such things admitted of no discussion as they were common to everyone and must be accepted as a matter of course. So with them their things are never wrangled over and argued about, but carried out as regularly, naturally and automatically as all good habits should be. She has trained them so that they expect to go promptly to bed at a reasonable hour and eat without faultfinding whatever kind of food is prepared for them.

Our greatest need is to make sure that each infant and child is coming up in the environment which will make him a child and as adult a safe person to be with others in home and school and society.

IMPROVEMENT.

MY READING

Dear Social Corner Friends: Do you know "My Antonia?" I met her for the first time this week, but already she seems like an old friend. Willa Cather wrote this story of a Bohemian girl and her life on a farm in Nebraska so convincingly that she really does seem like a person one has always known. If one is looking for thrills they will surely be disappointed in this book for it is the simple story of a commonplace but courageous and beautiful life. With Antonia we may learn the hardships of pioneer life in Nebraska—and the pleasures of that life also, although they were so few. "At any rate, that is happiness; to be dissolved into something complete and great. When it comes to one, it comes as naturally as sleep." And Antonia because she lived so completely and fully the life given her, was happy.

It is a far cry from a dugout on a barren homestead in Nebraska to the vatican, but that is the journey that I made. The second book was very small, in reality a short story and it required very little time to read it. "Pontifex Maximus" by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews has but a simple plot but it is so vividly and beautifully told that it will long remain in a reader's memory.

No less than seven people told me last year that I would like Thornton Wilder's "The Bridge of San Luis Rey but I am not ready to say yet whether they were right or not. I will bet the last ginger snap in the jar, that the main reason it was so popular was because it was so very easy to read. You've heard all about it, probably read it and forgotten it yourself, so I haven't any excuse to say very much about it. It did seem rather hard that the old priest who spent six years of his life trying to find out why those particular five people should have been on the bridge when it fell, should have been burned as a heretic in payment for his efforts. Didn't you think so? I liked the last lines of the book, didn't you? "But soon we shall die and the memory of those five will have left the earth and we ourselves shall be loved for a while and forgotten. But the love will have been enough; all those impulses of love return to the love that made them. Even memory is not necessary for love. There is a land of the living and a land of the dead and the bridge is love, the only survival, the only meaning."

Till next week. PERNICKETY.

PREFERS LIGHT LITERATURE

Dear Editor and Sisters: Thanks a lot for check. It was very acceptable. Will be used for material for Christmas presents. I hope a lot of you will try the lamp shades as it really is not so hard as it seems when you read the rules. My kiddies are entertaining chicken pox so are all home from school. Only one has it so far, but he has it quite hard. Hope the rest hurry up if they are going to have it. It means the loss of so much time in school and it is hard to make up.

Pernickety: You sure do choose deep subjects for your reading. I like that kind, too, when I'm in the mood for it, but light stuff is more in my line right now. Something I can skip through in a hurry. Perhaps it doesn't do as much good, and too, it may be a waste of time, but I do get enjoyment out of it. Milky Way has a failing for detective stories (Fletcher preferred, I think), but to me most anything will do as long as I haven't read it, although I have read Scott's Ivanhoe, Quentin Durward and Guy Mannering several times and some of Sabatini a couple times. And I liked Doyle's, The White Company. In the spring I start Burgess all over with the youngsters and get a lot out of them.

Sister Rhody: Do I talk? and how! I hope we meet sometime and you can see how close you came in your description. Not only grange meetings, but on any subject, whether I know anything about it or not. Little thing like that don't make any difference. Some one told me once I had Floyd Gibbons beat. But, you know, I'm inclined to think he was being sarcastic. At any rate I didn't stop. You see, it is a reputation that I have to uphold, for when I don't talk everyone around thinks I'm sick or something. What a predicament!

Prairie Chicken: Mr. E. was over to see us the other day. I haven't seen him before in years. He doesn't change much does he? Only grows older. Says he is 71.

Well, as I had two letters last week guess I will stop this before it gets any longer. Hope to see a good crowd in Westerly a week from Tuesday, Nov. 18. SUMAC (Club No. 6).

MEMBERS SHOULD WRITE OCCASIONALLY

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: As I have a little time, will write a few lines to our dear Corner. Am sure you were all as pleased with the rain as I was. It seemed too good to be true. It is too late for the flowers, but the grass in the pastures will be helped.

How I have enjoyed the letters about the flower gardens. And how grateful we should be to the sisters who wrote of them.

Then this thought came to me. How many of us belong to different clubs and societies. We pay an entering fee, and then yearly dues and enjoy ourselves. We know if we fail to pay our dues, we would soon have our names crossed off the list. But how different in the Social Corner. We simply write and ask to be allowed to join, and then find ourselves accepted and eligible for all the pleasures, etc. Of course, we should write occasionally. But we do not, just sit still and let the other sisters do it. And we enjoy the fun, "not cricket is it?" We each of us, should contribute once in a while.

I wonder how we would feel if some Saturday morning we opened The Bulletin to the Corner page and saw this notice, "The corner seems to have outlived its usefulness, and will be discontinued." My, what a cry would be heard! I really believe they would hear it down at The Bulletin office. And how many disappointed members would say, "I wish now I had written oftener." So decide now, you will do better and stand by it.

The Corner page is where I open my Saturday Bulletin first, and then I read the news.

Diana's Sister: Accept my sympathy in the loss of your sister. You were so faithful in caring for her, and you will be so lonely without her.

Thirty Two: Were the blocks, 7x9, that were to be sent to the ex-war nurse? I really meant to send her some, and will do so when I am sure of the size.

As to the 18th Amendment, I hope we won't lose that until something better takes its place, and that won't be the "saloon." Pray, hope we will never see the free sale of liquor again. When I think of the suffering of women and children when the open saloon was licensed! It seems dreadful that any sane person would ever want it back.

In the death of Mrs. John Parsons, we have lost another member. I met her only once or twice. She will be missed.

Tuny Ann: Was sorry I could not come to your picnic. Perhaps you knew I helped at our last meeting. Was sorry you were not well, and so could not attend. Hope you are better.

Helper: Presume by now you are in the sunny south. We will miss you, as you have been so kind. Hope you will enjoy every minute while you are away.

Yours Truly: Why don't you write a letter to the Corner? Am living in hopes I can get to see you. Perhaps if I learn to drive a car, I can.

Lady Nell: Am sure you miss your good neighbor, Mountain Climber. I see she has moved away, and I am sure the boys will be sorry to leave Aunty Nell.

Motherwort and Old Town: Welcome to the Corner. Am sorry we had to give up the schoolhouse as I won't be able to see you so often. Time to retire. OLGA.

Mrs. Eva Bugbee had her nephew, Archa Walker, and family, from Eastford, as guests Sunday.

A number from the Baptist church attended the Universalist church, Sunday. The pastor, Rev. C. Newton, gave a very interesting and helpful sermon on "I Am Not Ashamed of the Gospel of Christ."

The much needed rain has come at last and was greatly appreciated, as many wells were dry and springs very low.

The protection of the wild turkey hen during all seasons for the last ten years has brought Alabama to the top in the production of wild turkeys. Along with Texas, Alabama has far surpassed the neighboring states in wild turkeys, according to a survey made by the Wild Turkey Conservation league.

STOCK PRICES DROP TO THE LOWEST AVERAGE LEVEL SINCE AUGUST, 1927

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—(AP)—The bear market in stocks rumbled on without a halt today, crowding prices to the lowest average level since August, 1927.

Selling was most active in the last hour and there was almost no covering at the close. Sales totaled 3,367,-550 shares, the largest volume in three weeks.

Quotations on seasoned investment rails crumbled severely and it was in this group that the largest losses occurred. Union Pacific was off 9 points net, Pere Marquette 10, and Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred 8. Baltimore and Ohio touched the lowest price in five years. New York Central and Pennsylvania made three and four-year minimums, respectively. This represented real liquidation in addition to pressure from the shorts who have been pushing the rails consistently for many months.

The sources of the selling remained obscure. Banking circles professed to be in ignorance of any piece of bad news that might be hanging over the market. It was suggested that some of the offerings were for foreign account, France in particular, but the quietness of European exchanges weakened the point of this interpretation.

It was said also that two or three large investment trusts were liquidating rails apparently on the theory that a few dividend rates were in danger. Whatever the origin, the decline ruled the market throughout the day, spreading to bonds which were sold freely to protect equity accounts. Commodities, however, were firm.

The average drop in 90 stocks was 4.5 points, which meant that the closing composite stood at 127.3. The average for 20 utilities, with a 7 point loss, was in new low ground for the year in common with the rails and industrials, but nevertheless remained about 8 points above the November, 1929, low. Twenty carrier shares finished with an average of 100.5 against the year's high of 141.6.

The weekly reviews reported quiet in trade. Bradstreet's said regular seasonal business hardly reached full proportions, "leaving the satisfaction of holiday needs and regular retail buying to furnish chief occupation until the closing month of the year is entered." Dun's observed that the few encouraging signs did not obscure "the lack of a broad trade revival."

Some comment was heard on an unofficial report that U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage schedule for last month would be relatively favorable, and that a small increase might be shown when the figures were published next Monday.

The day's new lows on the stock exchange aggregated slightly more than 250, or about 30 per cent of the number of issues traded during the session, and included virtually every important share with the exception of American Can and Woolworth. U. S. Steel, closing at 140, was the lowest since 1928 and was heavily sold at that figure, which represented a net decline of 3 3-8. American Telephone put up some resistance at 190, but finally broke to 188 1-4, later rallying a point. It, too, had a net loss of 3 3-8. National Biscuit, Radio, Westinghouse, General Electric, Bethlehem Steel, Johns Manville, American Can and DuPont dropped 1 to 4.

Three point declines in the utilities were numerous and covered American Power and Light, Electric Power and Light, and Consolidated Gas. Stone and Webster and North American broke six, Public Service of N. J., and American Water Works, 4, and Peoples Gas, 12. Of the specialties, Canada Dry, Case, Coca Cola and Eastman Kodak tumbled 4 to 6. Youngstown Sheet and Tube lost 7.

Gains in wheat were small. The firmness was based on large exports and reports that the rust was spreading in Argentina. Corn was also nominally higher, reflecting firm cables and small receipts. Cotton was up 55 to 75 cents net.

France's calls on her billion dollar balances abroad, because of a recent bank failure and increased economic unsettlement in that country, firmed the franc slightly. Foreign currencies generally were steady.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—In a week broken by election day, commercial failures in the United States totaled 483, compared with 402 defaults reported for the corresponding five days last year, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. With the larger aggregate of insolvencies, those with liabilities of more than $5,000 each numbered 304 this week, in sharp contrast with the 219 similar failures a year ago.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Stock exchange seat at $226,000, a decrease of $14,000 from the previous sale.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—(AP)—Treasury receipts for November 5 were $1,278,019.32; expenditures $6,-270,768.17; balance $181,659,489.84.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Futures closed very steady; 11 to 15 points higher; spot steady; middling 10.95.

MONEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)— Call money steady 2 per cent all day; time loans easy 60. days, 2a2 1-4; 3-4 months, 2a2 1-4; 5-6 months, 2 3-4 per cent. Prime commercial paper, 2 3-4a3. Bankers' acceptances, unchanged.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Selling swept through the curb market in increasing volume today, grinding the more active issues down still further. The day's transactions aggregated 855,100 shares, the largest since October 10.

Some unsettlement was caused by an erroneous rumor that trading had been suspended in Cities Service. This caused actual suspension of trading in this issue for a few minutes in Boston. What actually happened was that the curb market specialist in the issue became swamped with orders and informally held up transactions for about one minute, while he adjusted his book. The stock was heavily liquidated, selling off about 3 points to 20 3-8, only 3-8 above its 1929 low, then rallying to close at 20 7-8.

Electric Bond and Share was again the most heavily liquidated of the utilities, where selling again converged. This issue broke nearly 4 points to 43 3-4, a new low. Central States Electric dropped 3 points, to a new low at 9 5-9, then rallied to 10 1-2. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, American Super Power, Niagara Hudson, Middle West Utilities and United Light "A" were among issues declining a point or so to their minimum prices. A few infrequently traded issues broke widely. Public Service of Northern Illinois declined 9 1-2 to 242.

Oils remained under pressure, but in the main, losses were small. Standard of Indiana was an active feature, declining fractionally to another low. Kentucky dropped a point to a new minimum, and Gulf lost as much. In the low priced issues, Lion Refining dropped 3 1-2 to a new low at 6 1-4, then rallied a point.

In the industrials, Aluminum company dropped 7 1-2, then rebounded six. General Aviation, Deere, Dresser B, Safety Car Heating, U. S. Radiator and Tungsol Lamp were among issues declining 1 to 3 to new lows. Ford, Ltd., lost 3-4.

In the investment company group Pennroad declined about a point to 7, a new low, in sympathy with rails on the big board. Blue Ridge preference stock dropped 3, and Intercoast Trading 2, to new bottom levels.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 7—(AP)—Forced backward by heavy selling that resulted from unsettlement of stock market quotations, all grain today receded from an early advance. Stripe rust, which last year caused havoc in the wheat crop of Argentina, was reported today as having spread to several provinces of that country and was largely responsible for the transient advance of grain prices. Despite [illegible] resistance to selling pressure, however, the influence of fresh breaks in values of securities practically outweighed stimulating factors [illegible] as the day's trading [illegible].

Closing quotations on wheat were [illegible] at the same as yesterday's [illegible] to 3-8c a bushel higher. Corn [illegible] off to [illegible] up, oats at 1-4c [illegible] to 3-8c gain, and provisions varying from 5c setback to a rise of 2c.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 7—(AP)—Heavy selling orders for domestic corporate obligations, particularly railroad issues, [illegible] the sharpest decline of the year in the bond market [illegible] traders had their busiest [illegible] in more than a fortnight.

The [illegible] decline in share prices [illegible] to liquidate their [illegible] holdings at concessions which in many instances were 1 to 3 points under lows for the year, including some local issues.

The average price of ten railroad bonds was off 7-10 of a point and the average of a level of 20 domestic bonds [illegible] of a point to 98.6 against a year's low of 98.4. United States governments were the lone exception among domestic securities in the listed market, holding firm. Treasury 3 3-4s of 1940-43 and 1943-47 reached new highs for the year, while Liberty 1st 4 1-4s again equalled their [illegible] price.

Both stock privilege and lien issues of carriers were under heavy pressure and losses ranged from 1 to 3 points. Among convertibles Allegheny Corp. bonds of three issues were down from 1 3-4 to 2 1-2. Atchison 4 1-2s dipped 2 points to 120, a new 1930 low. New 1930 lows also were reached by Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s, Rock Island 4 1-2s, Erie Convertible 4s A. Among lien issues, Erie 5s of 1967 and 1975, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis 4 1-2s C, St. Louis-San Francisco 4 1-2s, reacted to new lows for the year. Seaboard Airline refunding 4s sagged 1 1-2 to a new 1930 low following announcement security holders' committees had been organized to effect readjustments in the road's capital structure. Seaboard 4s of 1950 were down 1 5-8.

St. Paul 5s of 1975 and adjustment 5s of 2000, Chicago & Northwestern general 4s, Rock Island 4 1-2s A, Missouri Pacific general 4 and 5s F 1977, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s C, and Southern Pacific 4 1-2s (Oregon division), sagged a point or more each.

American Telephone issues were in supply. American Telephone debenture 5s of 1965 reacted 3-4 and the debenture 5s of 1960 were 1-4 lower on large turnovers. The convertible 4 1-2s yielded 4 1-2 points. Colorado River Power & Light 4 1-2s, Denver Gas & Electric 5s, Interborough Rapid Transit 5s, Utah Power & Light 5s and 5 1-2s, were in supply 1 to 2 points below the previous closing figures.

Consolidated Coal of Maryland 5s, Cuba Cane Products 6s, International Paper 6s A and Colon Oil 6s reached new lows for the year, the latter on a 4-point drop. Pan-American Petroleum 6s dipped 1½ in a thin market.

The trend among foreign bonds was mixed. Bolivian 8s soared 4 and closed 2 1-2 net higher, Sao Paulo City 8s advanced 2. Principal European governments were steady to lower, British 5 1-2s held at 106 1-2, while German 5 1-2s sagged 3-4 and Italy 7s declined 1 point.

HANOVER

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jones and their daughter, Hazel, of Allenton, R. I., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Hazen.

Mrs. Myron Allen was elected delegate to represent the Congregational church at the state conference held at Willimantic Tuesday and Wednesday. Several others attended the sessions.

The Harvest supper and the local movies shown by William G. Park at the parish house last week Wednesday evening brought out a good audience. The Halloween party on Friday evening found 48 children enjoying themselves in the primary department, and a good many more than that number of older ones, nearly all in costume, in the larger hall at the parish house. The gathering was enlivened by ten young men and women who came as guests from the First Baptist church, Norwich.

Rev and Mrs. Charles H. Peck of Broad Brook, after attending the state conference at Willimantic, came to Hanover, and are visiting at the Eadie home.

Miss Peggie Eadie, who has been spending some time here with her aunts, and at the home of her grandfather, James Tucker, has returned to her home in Boston.

The local Y. P. S. C. E. society was hoping to get out a large number for the supper and annual meeting of the Norwich union, held at the Norwich Town M. E. church Friday night, and thus retain the beautiful banner awarded them for a year for the largest proportionate attendance. The last annual meeting was held at the First Baptist church, Norwich.

The society is inviting the Epworth league of the M. E. church at Baltic to be their guests Sunday evening next.

Mr. and Mrs. John Scott have moved down to Cranston, R. I., where Mr. Scott has bought a fruit farm with which a filling station is connected.

The business meetings of the school board of the town of Sprague are being held in rotation at the school houses of the three villages, according to a decision recently made. This week's meeting will be at Hanover village.

The League of Women Voters will hold a meeting next Monday evening.

In order to assure the inhabitants of the village of the best drinking water, Airlie Mills reservoir has recently been divested of its entire fishey population by the state game and fish wardens. A great quantity of fine specimens of pickerel, perch, bass, bullheads, and suckers were netted and taken to other ponds in which fishing is permitted. It is rumored that the authorities will restock the waters with trout, which are supposed to add to the good qualities and purity of the water for drinking purposes.

On Hunting Trip.

Norman Standish of Baldwin, Long Island, with his English setter, Pat, came up for a hunting trip early in the week. He was joined by his cousin, Charles H. Standish, of Norwich, and together they tramped over much of the territory in which they used to hunt, and perhaps trap, when they were boys.

A physician estimates that half the older children in United States cities have had their tonsils and adenoids removed.

B'NAI B'RITH

The B'nai B'rith is the oldest and largest world wide Jewish fraternity. It functions in nineteen countries and has a membership of 77,651. It is not a secret organization, nor a mutual aid society. It is democratic in its principles, altruistic in its purpose.

Varied philanthropic activities are carried on by the B'nai B'rith. In all of these, service is given regardless of whether the beneficiary is or is not a member of the fraternity. Many institutions of the order are conducted on a non-sectarian basis and minister to the needs of Jews and non-Jews alike.

A designated portion of the membership dues is passed into an "Emergency Fund" which provides relief in emergencies throughout the world.

In 1913, the Anti-Deformation league was organized to prevent deformatory attacks on the Jew. The league cooperates with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in their effort to create and promote good will and better understanding between Jews and non-Jews. It broadcasts information as to the Jewish contributions to art, science, literature and ethics.

The B'Nai B'rith Hillel Foundation conducts work among Jewish students in state universities. The Aza functions among Jewish boys between the ages of 16 and 21.

The B'nai B'rith is helping several thousand Jews who took refuge in Mexico, when they found themselves barred from admission to this country. They would have perished or become demoralized if the B'nai B'rith had not come to their aid.

The B'nai B'rith Palestine House Building fund makes it possible for Jews to build homes for themselves on easy terms, and under favorable conditions on the suburbs of Jerusalem.

The B'nai B'rith magazine (The National Jewish Monthly), reaches more than 50,000 homes monthly. It may be had at any library.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

The regular meeting of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war, was held at the Buckingham memorial, Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Bogue, presiding.

A fine parade flag was presented to the Boy Scouts, Troop No. 7, at the opening of the meeting. The patriotic instructor, Mrs. Georgiana Keech, with the aid of the color bearers, presided at this ceremony, and the flag was accepted with a few fitting remarks by Asst. Scout Master John Boldrighine.

The ritual work of the order was rehearsed in preparation for the annual inspection November 18. There will also be a reception to the department president and her staff at 5.30, followed by supper and the meeting.

The results of the contest for the red, white and blue for this year was announced, the winning team being the blue, Miss Gladys Newberry, leader. The losing teams will entertain the winners at some future meeting.

The officers for 1931 were nominated and the election will take place December 2.

The committees were chosen for the annual Christmas fair and plans made to insure its success.

A fine Armistice program was prepared by the patriotic instructor which consisted of readings and singing. The president gave a few interesting remarks about the Legion convention recently held in Boston.

The meeting closed in usual form by the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

The officers of Mercier assembly remind the members to meet in the Assembly hall Tuesday morning, at 9.15, for the Armistice day parade. Parade decorations will be ready and given to them at that time.

ODD FELLOWS

Uncas lodge, No. 11, I. O. O. F., held its regular meeting Monday evening, November 3, at which time the initiatory degree was conferred on a class of candidates.

The committee is composed of members of Uncas and Shetucket lodges and Hope Rebekah lodge, and a large delegation of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs is expected to take part in the parade.

Plans are now under way for an Armistice eve dance.

NEW LONDON COAST GUARDSMAN FOUND DEAD ON SUBWAY TRACKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 7. — Lebun Hooper, about 27, familiarly known as "Harry" Hoope, a member of the United States coast guard residing at 18 Viets street, where he has a wife and one child, the latter an infant of a year and a half, was found dead on the subway tracks in Brooklyn, N. Y., early today. His body was terribly mutilated as a result of it having been crushed beneath a train. Whether Hooper was the victim of accidental death or murder has not been definitely established, for the circumstances surrounding his death are such that it is possible Hooper was either killed and his body thrown in front of a train, or that he was forced upon the tracks by racketeers when a train approached. The fact that the body was found some distance from the station has led to the belief that Hooper may have been murdered, more so, through the fact that he has been active as a secret agent of the coast guard in pursuing experiments by which a rum-runner seeking communication with contact boats could be established. Hooper, by his own admissions, has revealed the fact that he was a coast guard, undercover worker; if this knowledge was possessed by New York gangsters there is a possibility that Hooper was murdered. The body is being forwarded to New London and will arrive here tomorrow. The news of the death of Hooper was received here at 3 o'clock this morning when a message was received by the New London police from John J. Sullivan, acting chief deputy inspector of the New York department. Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell was dispatched to the Viets street residence and imparted the tragic news of Hooper's death to his wife. Mrs. Hooper left for New York on an early morning train and is accompanying the body to this city.

Hooper, an expert radio man, was a member of the crew of patrol boat 210 and had been stationed in Brooklyn for several months. His duties, according to the coast guard officials in New London, were experimenting with radio communication. About 2:30 o'clock this morning a trackwalker, employed by the railroad, came upon the body of Hooper between the DeKalb and Myrtle avenue stations. Because of the location where the body was found, neither railroad employes nor Brooklyn police could advance a reason for it being there. The body was taken to King's county hospital where it was held pending an investigation by a medical examiner.

Hooper was well known in New London. He gained considerable prominence two years ago by his success as a fighter in bouts staged by the coast guard.

S. D. WEBSTER, WINSTED, IN JAIL LACKING FUNDS

Stephen D. Webster, residing at Highland lake, Winsted, was in the police court this morning, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. Webster was driving on Potter street last night when the course followed by the auto attracted the attention of Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty. When the officer signaled Webster to stop and observed the condition of stupor of the driver, he was arrested. When fined in court, Webster was without sufficient funds to pay the penalty imposed and was committed to jail. Since then circumstances have been revealed that indicated that Webster had been drinking freely in some of the speakeasies and that while in one of the resorts he was robbed by either the proprietor, employes or frequenters of the resort. This supposition is being investigated by the detective bureau.

Annoyed His Wife

Raymond McCullough, 171 North Bank street, was charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his wife. After warning McCullough to keep away from his wife because the latter has instituted proceedings for a divorce, Judge Daniel M. Cronin ordered the case continued to May 11th. In the meantime, McCullough will be in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. McCullough, who is a marine firemen, and he and his wife have been estranged for several months. When Mrs. Cullough was in a restaurant Wednesday night, her husband entered and held her up to public abuse. When McCullough again accosted his wife on the street Thursday and imposed added abuse upon the woman, the latter made complaint to Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer, who issued a warrant for the firemen's arrest. He was taken into custody at his home by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman Clyde Murphy.

FR. TIERMAN EULOGIZED FOR LEARNING AND SANCTITY

Largely attended funeral services for a former New London curate, Rev. Father Thomas Henry Tierman, were held Thursday morning at ten o'clock at St. Mary's church, Unionville, where he had been pastor since August, 1919. A solemn pontifical mass of requiem was celebrated by Right Rev. John J. Nilan, D. D., bishop of the diocese, assisted by the following officers: Archpriest, Right Rev. Msgr. Thomas S. Duggan, V. G., D. D., rector of St. Joseph's Cathedral, Hartford; deacons of honor, Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, LL.D., rector of St. Mary's., New London and Rev. Ignatius Freeley of Baltimore; deacon of the mass. Rev. John J. McCabe, of St. Mary's church, Jewett City; subdeacon, Rev. James L. Smith, of St. Patrick's, Collinsville; acolytes, Rev. John J. Delaney, curate at Holy Trinity church, Wallingford, and Rev. Thomas E. Hayes, curate at St. Michael's, Hartford; thurifer, Rev. Alexander Wollschlager, rector of Sacred Heart church, East Portchester; masters of ceremonies, Very Rev. Msgr. William H. Flynn, chancellor of the diocese, and Rev. Francis P. Keough, assistant chancellor.

The eulogy was pronounced by Rev. M. Ernest Wilson, pastor of St. Aedan's church, New Haven. Father Wilson's text was:

"A good life hath its number of days, but a good name shall continue forever." Ecc. XLI, 16.

Regarding Father Tiernan, this week's Catholic Transcript says editorially: His years spent at the Polish Seminary in Detroit and at the Latin Seminary, at Lemberg, Austria, enabled him to acquire a fine command of the Polish language and the varying Slovak tongues. He had a fair command of German and French. While in Moodus, 1904 to 1914, he was able to preach to the Polish residents of the town. For the last nine years he was called upon to minister to parishioners of many tongues and many dialects. He was equal to all requirements, and his passing at the early age of fifty-one, when he ought to be at the height of his physical and intellectual powers, will prove a severe loss to the Diocese of Hartford.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

James A. Garfield was elected president of the United States fifty years ago this week by the republican party. His election was received with marked enthusiasm in this locality and in honor of the event, the Norwich republican organizations held a large parade with a banquet at Breed hall, followed by bonfires in Franklin square. Norwich went republican by a large majority. Interesting extracts of those exciting times in Norwich, as taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of the first week in November, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, Nov. 1, 1880—The Garfield and Arthur Battalion and the Norwich Veterans association go to Mystic tonight on the steamer Ella to participate in a grand republican parade there.

This evening Col. Wait makes his last campaign adress at Palmertown and it is expected that the large numbers of working men and women who are interested in the currency, tariff and labor questions will be present as they have a pecuniary interest in the success of the republican party.

To cast the entire vote of the first district tomorrow, 22 electors will have to vote every five minutes from the time the polls open at 9 a. m., until they close at 5 p. m. Republicans should be on hand early.

Tuesday, Nov. 2, 1880—A vote taken among the boys at the Norwich Free academy yesterday resulted in 45 votes for Garfield against 16 votes for Hancock.

David G. Frost made a temperance address before the Norwich Reform club on Sunday, and is to hold a series of gospel-temperance meetings here this week.

The schools of the Greeneville district are about to adopt the moulding-boards in the study and teaching of geography, as is at present the custom in the central district.

It is treason to trade. Don't give aid and comfort to the enemy on the very day of battle.

Wednesday, Nov. 3, 1880—Victory! President Garfield, good morning! 207 republican electors are assured and 222 not unlikely. New York joins the solid north. Maine once more in the ranks. "Old 329 did it!

Yesterday was one of the fairest of November days and augured well for the republican party, which polled its largest vote and its largest majority in this town. The Norwich vote for state officers and representative in congress follows:

For governor:
Hobart B. Bigelow, r, 2255.
James E. English, d, 1641
For lieutenant governor:
Wm. H. Bulkeley, r, 2253
Charles M. Pond, d, 1634.
For secretary of state:
Charles E. Searles, r, 2255.
Stephen S. Blake, d, 1630.
For treasurer:
David P. Nichols, r, 2258.
Merrick A. Harcy, d, 1623.
For comptroller:
William T. Bacheller, r, 2257.
Charles R. Fagan, d, 1619.
For representative in congress:
John T. Wait, r, 2288.
M. H. Sanger, d, 1580.

The vote for the presidential electors was, republican, 2260; democrat, 1633.

Wauregan Hook and Ladder Co. had a chowder and collation in their house at 12 o'clock last night, to which a score or two of members and their friends sat down. It was one of the best chowders ever served this side of Cape Cod and was much enjoyed by all present. May the boys live long and have chowders often.

Thursday, Nov. 4, 1880—Shake! Grip hard! More cause for jubilation. Most sanguine expectations realized. Garfield has 216 electoral votes—63 majority. Republican gain of 18 congressmen! Republican plurality in congress, 11; majority, 5.

Since all the ideas which Garfield stands for have triumphed, the country has occasion to be thankful that his triumph was decided. There will be no questioning his title. He will have the confidence and respect and obedience of the whole nation from the very start, and a most dangerous root of bitterness is eradicated from our national politics. What is more we have narrowly escaped the bloodshed, business paralysis and enormous expense of a possible civil war. In the thanksgiving for this phase of the result, everyone can participate.

When this election is calmly, thoughtfully contemplated in all its respects, we believe it will be considered one of the most fruitful in permanent good, this country ever held.

Chief Engineer Carrier deserves special praise for the watchfulness and care of public property Tuesday night, while the streets were all ablaze.

Friday, Nov. 5, 1880—The republicans were in high glee last night and the celebration of the victory of Tuesday was one solid expression of gratitude and joy. Main street was radiant with light, and as the men passed through it with gleaming torches, rockets sped north and south across it, above the house-tops leaving a delicate streak of fire against the sombre sky.

The companies arrived at Breed hall at 11 o'clock where a splendid collation was served to the Second regiment and a large part of the First. Nine tables extended across the entire length of the hall and several were set upon the platform. Plates for 1,000 men were laid and the liberal donation of edibles made by the ladies not only bountifully supplied them, but also furnished tables for 400 more, in Steiner's hall, where a portion of the First regiment was fed. The collations were finished at about midnight after which followed the usual closing acts of courtesy, the salutes, the escorts, etc. At half-past one o'clock the companies had all disbanded, but the inspiration and enthusiasm of the occasion could not be suppressed. Huge bonfires were built up on Franklin Square around which squads of men gathered, singing songs, cheering and blowing the diabolical horns, which furnished a large part of the evening's music, until late in the morning.

Saturday, Nov. 6, 1880—The second of the People's course of entertainments will be given at Breed hall next Monday evening by the ever popular John B. Gough.

A boy named John Hanson, aged about 12, who is employed in the mule room of the Falls mill, caught his left arm in the machinery yesterday forenoon, and broke the bones just above the wrist.

The Norwich post office has been supplied with a stamp to mark the day on which letters are received here. The arrangement will have even greater value when we have a carrier system.

GIVES ADVICE FOR BABY CARE IN FIRST WEEK

In a radio talk from WTIC Thursday afternoon by Sarah R. Addison, director of the bureau of public health nursing of the state department of health, she gave advice upon the care of the baby in its first week of life.

In part she spoke as follows:

"Infancy, in days gone by, was in many ways an experimental period, and beset with many dangers to the baby, but modern science has robbed this period of many of its perils. Even so, as some one has expressed it, "the business of being a baby is a most hazardous occupation." Therefore, as the care, training and surroundings of the baby in early infancy will in large measure influence his health and character in later life, intelligent planning becomes, not only a sacred trust but brings with it the happiness of watching day by day, in his physical growth and character development, the results of a conscious guidance toward that most priceless possession—"a sound mind in a sound body."

"What then are some of the safeguards with which this little infant is to be surrounded in order that the requirements of normal development are met? Assuming that the mother has had adequate pre-natal care, that the baby has been born under proper conditions and that its birth has been promptly registered, it then becomes a question of arranging a daily program that has as its basis regularity of habits, proper feeding, sunshine, hygienic surroundings and simplicity of clothing.

"Babies are not born with habits, but they acquire them with astonishing rapidity, so that training should begin with the first few days of life. Regularity of sleeping, feeding, bathing should be established. His exercises he will take himself by stretching and kicking and for this reason clothing should not be confining. The morning bath gives him a wonderful opportunity for exercise. Crying expands his lungs and fills them with much needed air. Fresh air and sunlight are as necessary for babies as for plants. He should be feed at regular intervels, and if asleep at nursing time, he should be awakened. He will soon learn to wake at the proper time. His clothing should be simple and adapted to the climate, season and age of the baby and also to his physical condition, a robust baby needing less clothing than a weaker one.

"Since modern science has provided methods of protecting children against smallpox and diphtheria, plans should be made for vaccination and the administration of toxin-anti toxin within the first year of life. During this period, also, the baby should have a monthly checking up by his physician, as physical defects are not always discernible to the parents and what may seem of minor importance may be the forerunner of a serious trouble.

"As mentioned above, from the moment of birth, the child should be laying the foundation of good mental health as well as developing sound physical habits, it being at this early stage that behavior difficulties often have their origin. It may not always be possible to control all situations surrounding the child but the parents may influence the attitude the baby takes toward his experiences and they should begin early to train him in habits of disposition and as he grows older, in habits of self-confidence and resourcefulness.

"Many kind friends will want to advise, as to the 'royal road to health,' but the parents' guide should always be their physician and in addition an intelligent knowledge of the physical laws which govern growth and development."

CATH. WOMEN'S COUNCIL SPENT $10,000 IN YEAR

A meeting of the chairmen of the New London county branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women was held recently at the rooms of the Diocesan Bureau of Social Service, New London. Mrs. Clarence A. Carr, county chairmen, presided at the meeting at which plans for the development of the work in the county for the coming year were discussed.

In New London county there are eight local branches of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, with headquarters at Colchester, Jewett City, Montville, Mystic, New London, Norwich and Westerly. The Norwich report follows:

Norwich council membership shows 185 enrolled. This council was founded in 1921.

Faithful assistance has been given to the Norwich bureau since its inception by the council of this place. Card parties, sales, lawn parties and other social events have provided funds. The educational program of the council has comprised lecture programs and courses of talk with informal discussion; classes for the Italian children in sewing and religious instruction and other classes in French and handicrafts such as basketry and millinery.

Institutional visiting has taken place at frequent times at Backus hospital, Uncas-on-Thames sanatorium, the almshouse, Norwich state hospital and the New London county home. At Christmas and May day special remembrances are made, with gifts, refreshments and reading material. Communion sets have been presented to Backus hospital, Uncas-on-Thames sanatorium, Norwich state hospital and the almshouse.

An active garment committee has co-operated with the bureau, sewing for the needy and supplying first communion and confirmation outfits.

EXTA LOW TIDE GAVE NIANTIC CLAM HARVEST

The lowest tide known at Niantic for years occurred Thursday afternoon and the clam diggers took advantage of it. The channel of the river could be crossed with high boots in several places and several bushels of clams were taken out, also many oysters. The wind coming from the northwest in gale force made the work bitter cold. It was hoped the low tide with wind blowing would open the Bride brook outlet where millions of young fish are imprisoned and being eaten by gulls and a large flock of crows. Arrangements were made to open it on low tide Friday. These fish are hatched in Bride brook each year and leove in the late fall for salt water. There are also many young bass in the pool which will die if not liberated before long. Theey have been there for several days. These same fish come back each spring to spawn where they are hatched.

CHECKING UP TO SEE IF DREDGING IN RIVER PASSES INSPECTION

With the near approach of the completion of the dredging of the channel of the Thames river from Allyn's Point to Norwich engineers from the army office at Providence have begun a survey of the work that has been done by the dredging firm. It is expected that the work will be completed in about ten days.

The contract for the work calls for the channel to be dredged to a depth of 18 feet from Allyn's Point to Norwich and soundings are being taken by the survey workers to make certain that all provisions have been complied with.

Application has been made in New London for a deepening of the harbor channel and formation of a turning basin and it was expected that the engineers might make a preliminary survey at this time, but the Providence office made the statement that this will not be done now.

Recently a preliminary hearing on this matter was held in the council chambers at New London with Major Taylor of the engineering office presiding. At that time sentiment of New London marine men and persons interested in an increase of marine activities there was that a deepening of the harbor channel and the establishment of the turning basin is at any rate desirable and is necessary if vessels of greater draft than those now coming to the harbor make this port a terminal.

The engineers' office at Providence stated Friday that a survey of the harbor at New London to definitely ascertain conditions will be made if a favorable report is made on the data compiled at the former hearing.

BOZRAH GRANGE RECEIVES PRIZE LOVING CUP

At the last regular meeting of Bozrah grange, Wednesday evening, with Master E. Ethel Abell in the chair, an outstanding feature of the evening was the presentation of a loving cup which the athletic team of Bozrah grange won at the Norwich Grange fair in September.

Members of Norwich grange came in a body for this occasion. Clarence Lillibridge, chairman of the athletic department of Norwich grange, in a few fitting words, presented the cup, which was accepted on behalf of the athletic team of Bozrah grange by Nathan Gilman, captain of the team, followed by fitting remarks by F. S. Armstrong, chairman of the fair; Mrs. Ida E. Richardson, secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Murray, lecturer; C. L. Rathbun, treasurer.

Mrs. Nathan Gilman, lecturer of Bozrah grange, was in charge of the literary programme, which was as follows: Community singing by the grange; recitation, Neighbors, by Alice Abell; A Crowded Car, by Arthur Fulton; vocal selections and solos by Albert and Mildred Polson; recitations with encores by William Tarbox were heartily enjoyed by all, followed by a social hour and refreshments were served.

RUNNING BOARD FREIGHT MAKES EXTRA HAZARD

Two questions frequently asked at the office of the state department of motor vehicles were answered by Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel in a bulletin prepared for and read Thursday afternoon from WTIC. The questions were whether a box may be carried on the side of an automobile, if it projects beyond the width of the vehicle, and whether the law requires that a pedestrian walk with or against traffic on the open highway.

In regard to the first question, Commissioner Stoeckel stated that the law prohibits the carrying of a load on the left side which projects beyond the running board of an automobile. It does not specifically prohibit the carrying of packages on the right side of automobiles but the act is bad practice. It often provides a hazard. "There might be a legal question in case of an accident," he added. "If a pedestrian was hit by a box which projected from the right side of a vehicle, there might be a damage suit against the owner or operator for creating an unexpected hazard.

"It appears reasonable to argue that everyone has a right to expect that an automobile will be equipped in accordance with certain standards. The public has become accustomed to cars without projection beyond the regular lines. Consequently, people are not on the look-out for that sort of thing."

In discussing the procedure of pedestrians on the highways Commissioner Stoeckel said: "It is not to be expected that there ever will be anything except the most general laws governing walking on the highway. The highway belongs to all of its users alike. That is a principle in law well grounded on fact and decisions, but of course the duty which each user of the highway owes to all the other users is intensified by the method of use. The duty owed by the pedestrian is to take care.

"The practice of walking against traffic has been a vocated for years as a safety measure. Statistics of Connecticut seem to show that it is safer to do so. In three months of 1928 only three persons were injured walking against traffic, while twenty-four were injured walking with it. In 1929 the respective figures are seventeen as against twenty-six. While it appears that it is safer to walk against traffic than with it, there would be danger in making such a rule into a law. There are many places on every road where to direct a man to walk on it according to any one plan would mean sending him into danger. In other words there are as many bad places on one side of the road as the other. The situation is a matter for education and not control by law. Any person on the highway needs to use his common sense."

DROUGHT HELPED PARASITES CONTROL PEACH MOTH

Drought helped the parasites in the first year of the statewide experiment in controlling the Oriental peach moth by parasites and the result was a reduction in injury estimated at $100,000, compared to 1929. A crop worth almost $500,000, bigger than last year's or the average of the last five years, was produced this summer in Connecticut. In 1929 certain Connecticut peach growers lost 80 per cent. of their crop, and the injury as a whole was 50 per cent. This summer the average of wormy peaches was one in ten, and the pest took only half the crop in the most heavily infested orchard in the state.

Six million trichogramma parasites were reared by the experiment station and distributed to 140 growers, in culmination of an elaborate project begun last October. This parasite attacks the egg; 12,000 specimens of another species, the Macrocentrus, were made available to growers. Two more incubation units have been added to the experiment station parasite laboratory for the winter's work.

"Next year, if all goes well, we expect to have twice the amount of parasites reared last summer," Dr. Philip Gorman, of the state experimental station said, "and the outlook for controlling the peach moth is more favorable, since the infestation was so small this year."

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION FOR FIREMAN'S DEATH

Compensation Commissioner Albert J. Bailey has awarded to Mrs. Johanna Brennan, of No. 12 North Thames street, workmen's compensation at $19.25 a week for 312 weeks, for the death of her son, Fireman Patrick J. Brennan, killed in line of duty October 13th. Mrs. Brennan is also allowed $200 for funeral expenses. The award totals approximately $5,000.

The late Mr. Brennan, member of Engine No. 6, Thamesville fire station, responded with his company to fight a brush fire. He was overcome by smoke and exhaustion and died at the W. W. Backus hospital, the same day. Mr. Brennan resided with his mother, who was dependent on him for support.

According to Corporation Counsel Edmund W Perkins, the award will have to come out of the general funds of the city, as the city is not insured against emergencies of this kind.

No payment can be made from the firemen's pension fund, as there is a special statute, passed in 1919 to the effect that no money is to be paid out of the pension fund for purposes of this nature, until the fund reaches $50,000 or more. At present the fund is but $35,000.

FLAT DENIAL OF MARRAIGE MADE BY AMELIA EARHART

But Town Clerk Bailey of Noank Says That He Issued a Marriage License to the Aviatrix Saturday Afternoon—Judge of Probate Anderson Had Waived the Connecticut Five-Day Marriage Law—Miss Earhart, in Washington, Declared There Was Not a Word of Truth in Reports That She and George Palmer Putnam Had Been Married

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly across the Atlantic, said tonight there was "not a word of truth" in reports that she and George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher, had been married.

"There is not a thing to it at all," she asserted.

Asked if she had been to Noank, Conn., recently, she replied:

"Oh, yes, I go up there quite frequently."

She added, however, she knew nothing of a marriage license being issued there yesterday to her and Putnam.

"Some time in the next 50 years I may be married," she explained, laughing.

Miss Earhart, a vice president of the New York, Philadelphia and Washington Airway corporation, said she came to Washington early today on business and would remain here several days. She said Putnam was not here.

License Issued Saturday Afternoon

NOANK, Conn., Nov. 9—(AP)—Henry L. Bailey, town clerk, tonight said that he had issued a marriage license yesterday afternoon to Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly across the Atlantic, and George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher.

At the same time Probate Judge Arthur P. Anderson said that he had waived the Connecticut five-day marriage law for the couple. Although Miss Earhart and Putnam were reported to have been married here after they had obtained the license and the waiver, a check made tonight of several persons eligible to marry the couple had failed to bring confirmation of the wedding. Under the Connecticut law, the wedding must be performed in the community in which the license is obtained.

Mrs. Frances Putnam, the publisher's mother, who maintains a summer home here, declined either to confirm or deny that the marriage had taken place.

Miss Earhart and Putnam left here last night by automobile after communicating with the railway terminal at New London. It was believed they had boarded a train there either for Boston or New York.

$250,000 GIFT TO BE USED IN UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF WORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Donation of $250,000 from the Milbank Memorial fund and the selection of former Governor Alfred E. Smith as chairman of a committee of 100 to unify relief work were outstanding developments in the city's war on unemployment today.

The $250,000 gift was made to an emergency employment committee headed by Seward Prosser, chairman of the board of the Bankers Trust company. Albert G. Milbank, president of the fund said:

"Our directors viewed this unemployment situation as an emergency of such gravity that they were willing to make the appropriation out of the principal fund."

The fund was established in 1905 by Mrs. Elizabeth Milbank Anderson as a memorial to her mother and father, with an appropriation of $10,000,000. Its purpose is the improvement of the physical, mental and moral condition of humanity and the general advancement of charitable and benevolent objects.

REPUBLICANS ACCEPT ASSURANCE OF DEM. LEADERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)— Republicans today formally accepted "with full faith and credit" the assurance of the democratic party leaders of cooperation for national welfare in the deadlocked congress resulting from Tuesday's election.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, spoke for his party in a formal statement issued through the republican national committee, which concluded:

"We are faced with a national situation where the only patriotic solution lies in cooperative action and I welcome it and I am sure my colleagues will welcome it also."

The formal declarations from the party chieftains was regarded at the capital as meaning there will be "no rocking of the boat" in the continued battle for political control of the next congress that might hinder America's recovery from the depression.

WINDHAM COUNTY JAIL NOW HOUSING 90 PRISONERS

BROOKLYN, Conn., Nov. 9. —(AP)— The quest of the unemployed for shelter and food has ended for many, temporarily at least, at the Windham county jail.

Sheriff Charles A. Gates tonight said that 90 prisoners, the greatest number since he took office in 1914, are now confined in the jail. Many of these, he said, sought incarceration to provide themselves with food and shelter.

Only the hospital and solitary confinement cells are now unoccupied, and the sheriff expects to press them into service during the week.

Of the 90 prisoners, three of whom are women, 60 are held on liquor and breach of the peace charges and three have been bound over on various charges.

FOUR MEN WENT DOWN WITH BARGE OFF COAST OF FLORIDA

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 9.— (AP) — The barge "Northern Light" sank during heavy seas off Cary Fort reef below Miami early today, according to Commander R. L. Jacks of the coast guard base at Fort Lauderdale. One man of the crew of five was rescued. Searching parties looked without success for other members of the crew, Commander Jacks said.

Commander Jacks said an airplane was sent today from the Key West Naval station to look for the other members of the crew. The coast guard boat Perry, which has been operating in the neighborhood of Palm Beach, was dispatched to the Florida Keys today to aid in the hunt for the survivors.

The barge was in tow of the tug Ontario when it sank.

FISHING PARTY OF THREE MEN DROWNED

WARWICK, R. I.,—(AP)—John Taylor, 19; Thomas Taylor, 21, brothers, and John Askew, 33, all residents of Oakland Beach, were drowned while fishing from a skiff anchored in Greenwich bay, today. Members of a party fishing some distance away saw two men jump from the boat. It was thought that one of the men lost his balance in reaching for an oar which had fallen overboard, and that all three were drowned when the other two tried to save him. The body of the elder Taylor had not been recovered tonight

SCHOONER SANK WITH CAPTAIN AND CREW OF 17

EUREKA, Calif., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Putting out to sea in the face of one of the worst gales felt here in years, the steam lumber schooner Brooklyn sank while attempting to cross the bar at the entrance to Humboldt bay, carrying down with her, her captain, T. Tufvesson, and a crew of seventeen.

After part of a night and day of search by coast guard patrol boats and harbor craft, no bodies had been recovered although wreckage of the little wooden steamer, including a smashed lifeboat and the pilothouse, was washed ashore. Coast guard crews patrolled the beach today, should bodies come ashore.

Towering waves struck the schooner late yesterday, crushed her sides, and within a few minutes she turned over and sank in the shallow water a half-mile from the bar. The Brooklyn, carrying 250,000 feet of lumber, had started for San Francisco.

Coast guard officials said their lookout noticed the Brooklyn steaming out of the harbor while a strong wind was blowing and a heavy fog settling. Apparently, they said, nothing was wrong as the ship passed through the channel. A few minutes later the steamer whistled four times, indicating distress, as huge waves broke over her. For several minutes she seemed to drift helpless, then turned over and sank.

GEN. TASKER H. BLISS

Mrs. Eleanor Frances Knope of New Haven, Conn., were at his bedside when the end came.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday and burial will be in Arlington cemetery. Famous military and naval officers will escort the body to the grave.

General John J. Pershing, Secretary Hurley and General Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, were the first to express regret at the passing of their war-time comrade and counsellor.

Of his comrade, with whom he had served for many years, General Pershing said, "the army loses a great soldier and the country one of its distinguished citizens," and added: "He lived his life in fulfillment of the motto of his alma mater (West Point), Duty-Honor-Country."

During his military career, prolonged by a special act of congress after he had reached retirement age, General Bliss became known as one of the foremost soldier-statesman of his era.

Born at Lewisburg, Pa., December 31, 1853, one of the 13 children of George R. and Mary Raymond Bliss, he entered the Military academy in 1871. Four years later he entered the army. His career took him through the Spanish-American war, the Porto Rican campaign, the Philippine disorders and difficulties with Mexico.

It was ten years after his time for retirement had elapsed, that he actually returned to civilian life in May, 1927, and lived in retirement in Washington.

TELLS OF ELECTION GAINS BY ANTI-PROHIBIONISTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. — (AP) — Claims that 144 of its 160 endorsed candidates for senate, the house, and governorships were elected Tuesday, were made today by the national constitutional convention which convenes here December 8.

Dr. F. W. Buck, executive secretary of the convention, said "it was very hard to understand how the Anti-Saloon league can be satisfied with results like this."

"The 144 candidates elected does not, by any means," he said, "represent the total number favoring modification in the house and senate as many were elected in districts where we did not endorse because both candidates were equally favorable to us."

The gain of the anti-prohibitionists was greater, he said, than that of the democrats.

TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY OF GERMAN REPUBLIC

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The 12th anniversary of the proclamation of the German republic passed quietly throughout the country today.

No official cognizance was taken of the anniversary except for the broadcasting of a commemorative address by the social democratic, Heinrich Schultz, former statistician in the ministry of the interior and close friend of Friedrich Ebert, first president of the German republic.

Schultz said that 1918 still was too close to permit a verdict by history, but he branded as a consummate lie the allegation that the social democrats had plotted the German revolution.

The arrival of the republic was simply fate, he declared, but he added that since democracy had taken over the former empire it would never shirk its responsibility.

"There's no turning back," he concluded.

TRAFFIC IMPROVEMENT AS A MEANS TO PROVIDE WORK

Suggestion Made By Secretary of Commerce Lamont—Points Out That Traffic Accidents Cost About $1,000,000,000 a Year—Mentions Street Widening, Railway-Highway Separations and Subways For Pedestrians

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Improvements to facilitate street and highway traffic were suggested today by Secretary Lamont as a means of increasing employment.

The commerce secretary also advocated the changes to promote safety and for economic reasons. He pointed out that traffic accidents cost approximately $1,000,000,000 a year while "the losses, delays and other inefficiency resulting from traffic congestion and inadequacy of traffic facilities are estimated at more than $2,000,000,000 per annum."

The recommendations included improvement in traffic signs, removal of obstructions to view, snow removal, protection of physical hazards, pedestrian safety lanes and clearing away street obstructions.

"The carrying out of street widenings, highway grade separations, railway-highway grade separations, pedestrian subways and other major improvements," added, "afford an obvious means of aiding in the present situation where plans and arrangements are or can be sufficiently advanced to permit the work to be undertaken.

"Several cities," Lamont continued, "have followed the practice of building pedestrian subways near public schools which are located on busy traffic routes. Scores of pedestrian tunnels of this kind have been built in Los Angeles and have resulted in eliminating accidents to school children. Tunnels of this character cost an average of less than $10,000 each and readily pay for themselves over a period of years in lowered police costs."

Lamont said many of the materials required for construction could be obtained at a more favorable price than usual and "now would seem to be a very favorable time to undertake a kind of community house cleaning with respect to traffic matters."

The program outlined by the commerce secretary followed recommendations of the national conference on street and highway safety, of which he is chairman.

Delegations from the American legion post and auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign wars post and auxiliary, United Spanish war veterans camp and auxiliary, Francis S. Long post, G. A. R., Woman's Relief corps and Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil war were comprised in a large and representative attendance.

A special Armistice service emphasising the need to cultivate and mature the peace idea was effectively used with responsive scripture readings from the various pastors. A prayer by the congregation was followed by the sounding of Taps by Bugler Hadley Williams and the reading of the Renunciation of War as embodied in the Kellogg pact. The assemblage then took a pledge of allegiance to the peace idea and Mrs. Charles H. Beebe, organist, played Handel's Hallelujah Chorus. There were selections by an augmented united choir with Edwin F. Cross director. The Calvary Baptist church quartet favored with the old Negro spiritual, Ain't Goin' Study War No More. The service was presided over by Rev. Wilfred D. Hamilton, pastor of the Methodist church and the speaker of the evening was Rev. David Witslow Lovett, pastor of the First Baptist church.

In his sermon-address at the union Armistice day service held in the Methodist church tonight, Rev. David W. Lovett of the Baptist church took as his subject, Can Any Good Come Out of Suffering, in which he expounded the fact that suffering is the most direct result of war and that "the Christian influence is reaching out effectively in the abatement and elimination of warfare. The evolution of the treatment of suffering with the element of Christian influence was traced in theory and fact by Rev. Mr. Lovett through three definite stages. The first stage was that of the olden-time rejection of suffering as well as treatment. Then came the submissive acceptance of suffering without relief, and finally, in the work of Our Lord we reached a stage where we not only sympathised and helped the suffering but redemptive measures were accorded—And the Sufferer Shall be Redeemed.

DANIELSON

BOUCHARD HAS WIFE AND DAUGHTER IN NEW BEDFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 9.—The body of Joseph Bouchard, 61, lay in Dougherty Brothers undertaking rooms in Plainfield today, awaiting the arrival of relatives from New Bedford. Bouchard was fatally injured on the state highway between Central Village and Plainfield last night when struck by a truck, south-bound, being operated by Abraham Steinman, of Moosup. A passing motorist picked up Bouchard and took him to the office of Dr. A. A. Chase.

Bouchard, said to have been walking along or across the highway, was not seen by Steinman until he was directly in the path of the truck and avoidance of the accident was impossible. The dead man is said to have been a resident of Plainfield at one time and a worked there. It had been established today that he has a wife and daughter living in New Bedford, and also is believed to have relatives in Danielson.

CIVIC FEDERATION IS DOING VERY FINE WORK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 9.—Generous relief is being rendered by the Civic federation through its visiting nurse and other workers, it is revealed in the report of the organization for October. Within that period 77 garments, 7 pairs of shoes, two hats, two blankets, four overcoats, grocery supplies for three families and other things were given to the deserving needy. During the month contributions of clothing were received from Mrs. John McFarland, Mrs. Harold Roberts, Miss Carrie Fellows, Mrs. Glen Lyon and Mrs. Joseph Gaylord.

As to the nursing service by the federation's nurse, Miss Miriam Boomhower, it is noted that 15 cases were carried over from September. Eight few cases came to attention during October, and five patients were discharged from treatment during that period. One died. At the beginning of November 17 persons remained under care. The number of paying patients during October was six, the number of free patients 17.

Miss Boomhower made 93 nursing visits, 18 advisory visits and 27 social visits. She spent 9 half-days in schools. In October there were 18 medical patients, two surgical patients, two tuberculosis patients and one obstetrical patient. The work of the month on the part of the visiting nurse included calls at the town farm, where there are now 19 inmates.

Sunday Edition Goes Well.

On its second appearance here, The Bulletin's Sunday Norwich Record clicked merrily along, maintaining its circulation lead over all other Sunday papers sold in this locality. Today the hundreds of copies of the issue sold was impressive, but there was a shortage in Danielson's allotment, a fact that accounts for the sales being less than would have been the case had a full supply been received. News dealers told this afternoon of receiving numerous additional subscriptions from persons who were not on the advance order list when the paper made its appearance for the first time a week ago today.

At Brooklyn Saturday afternoon at o'clock, Miss Elizabeth Gardner, of Danielson and Francis Coffey, of South Killingly, were united in marriage by Rev. Richard D. Hatch. The attendants were Miss Eleanor Gardner, sister of the bride, and Oliver Hargraves. Mr. and Mrs. Coffey are to make their home here.

Tonight at the Westfield Congregational church there was a union Armistice service at which the sermon was preached by Rev. Edwin P. Wright, pastor of St Philip's Episcopal church at Putnam. The music for the service was by the Girls' choir of the Westfield church, under the direction of Mrs. Earl Bragg.

Some parts of the responsive reading was taken from "All Quiet on the Western Front," and from the Kellogg peace pact; others were recognized as selections from the Hebrew Prophets. The words of the choir selection were written by Thomas Curtis Clark. The music setting was that of Ase's Death, by Greig. The service closed with the singing of "God the All-Powerful."

Frank L. Davis, assistant manager of the New England Dairy and Food council, and now located at Boston, will attend the annual meeting of the Windham County Farmers' association to be held next Wednesday in the grange hall at Hampton. Mr. Davis formerly was county agent for the Windham County Farmers' association. At Wednesday's meeting he will give a talk on "The Work of the New England Dairy and Food Council."

"Morning light" means something now in this day and age—at least to Windham county poultrymen. It has to do with the illumination of poultry houses, usually by electric lights, while the average citizen is snoozing comfortably along toward sunrise, or a considerable period of time thereafter. Artificial lighting practices for poultry have become fairly well standardized, but the feeding practices, in connection with the lights, are not as near systematized, and are, in many cases the cause of unsatisfactory results. Lights are used for the purpose of inducing heavier food consumption, through having the hens awake earlier than otherwise would be the case at this time of year. It is being advised that artificial light should be used on all pullets, and also the use of scratch grain.

Automatic controls throw on the lights, these November mornings at many poultry houses in this sections from 5 to 6 a. m. Roy E. Jones, extension poultryman of the Connecticut agricultural college has prepared material discussing the subject of "morning light" for the use of Windham county poultrymen, and he points out that the benefits of artificial lighting can be measured in advance through food consumption, as food consumption must increase before egg production can increase.

All barber shops in Danielson will be open until 9 p. m., Mon., Nov. 10, and closed all of Armistice day.—adv.

Mrs. James Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of Boston will be guests of Miss Margaret Sullivan of Academy street, over the Armistice holiday.

The selectmen are engaged just now in an effort to obtain the co-operation of public service corporation whose employes dig up streets, for service installations, to restore them to proper condition. They have not been doing it in many cases, and as a consequence the selectmen hear from owners of automobiles complaints about broken springs and other damage to cars.

The mild period of weather that this section experienced over the week end rates with many people as the real Indian summer due about this time in November. A characteristic of the season is the purple haze benevolently enshrouding the horizon.

There has been a material addition to the reserve water supply of areas in Killingly outside of Danielson. Wells that have been dry for many weeks are beginning to restore themselves. Out of Brooklyn comes the story, on an alleged investigation of records dating back 125 years, that not in all that time has there been such a period of drought hereabouts as during 1929-1930.

Solicitors who ring door bells so persistently are adding one more irritation to the life of householders hereabout these days. These callers who have something to sell appear to be without number.

"Make the campaign 100 per cent." is the slogan of the Windham County Farmers' association in the war it is staging for the extermination of rats. The big day is Nov. 21, and the suggestion is that all persons who happen to know where rats abound get in touch with the office of the farmers' association and ask to have an order placed for the red squill poison bait that is to be distributed in every town in the county. The big feed for the rats is to be prepared under the supervision of Chief Ernest M. Mills of the U. S. biological survey.

BAPTIST CONGREGATION TO HEAR DR. JEFFERSON

At the morning service Sunday the large audience at the Baptist church voted unanimously to attend the union service at the Congregational church, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, of New York, will address the meeting, which is to be held Sunday, Nov. 16.

E. E. Gilbert is constructing a new cement walk in front of R. W. Dearnley's property on Main street. The sidewalk to be made on School street is part of an agreement made with Mr. Dearnley when he deeded a strip of land to the borough to widen this approach to the new Riverside school.

Tramp House Not Needed.

The board of selectmen is repainting and repairing the buildings at the town farm, in Hopeville. The tramp house, which for many years used to be maintained there was discontinued a long time ago, the Weary Willie type of wanderer having practically passed from the picture.

Barber shops open all day Monday, closed all day Tuesday.—adv.

Holiday Schedule.

The markets and stores within the borough will be closed Tuesday, also the banks, schools and library. It is probable that the mills will run as usual, and that the post office hours will not be curtailed.

The American Legion boys are expecting a fine trip to Stonington, and wil go in a special bus.

Mrs. Frank Davis and son, Louis, have returned home after attending the funeral of Mrs. Jennie Kelley in Danielson.

BOROUGH CATH. COUNCIL EXPENDED $1,232 IN YEAR

When the eight councils of the New London County branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women held a county meeting recently at New London, Mrs Carr, widow of Admiral Clarence A. Carr presiding as county chairman, the report made by the Jewett City council was excellent.

This report follows; Jewett City council has a membership of 45 and has been formed since 1923.

The wants of the poor and the needs of the parish have been the incentives of the activity of this council. Card parties and other social events have furnished funds for food and clothing. A pledge of support was given to the building of the new parochial school. Institutional visiting has taken place at the town farm and at Uncas-on-Thames. To these places cheer has been been brought at Christmas time. At various times, classes in sewing and basketry have been held with pleasurable results.

Amount expended was $1,232.39.

OF THE POPULAR FLIVVER PLANE

OF THE POPULAR FLIVER PLANE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 9.—Edwin Nichols, youthful Boston aviator, dropped down out of the skies in his flivver plane Saturday afternoon to tell the people over at Kum-Along-Inn on the West Side, that the temperature was 2 below zero 1,000 feet up in the air, that he was cold and that he wanted a drink of hot coffee.

He was graciously received by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Brindamour, who operate the resort, and he got his coffee and relished it. The tiny one-man plane he was flying was equipped with a 2-cylinder motor and the gas tank had a capacity of only eight gallons, yet he was on his way from Boston to Hartford when he decided to glide down to earth here for tea, or was it coffee?

Nichols told Sergeant G. L. Gardner of the Danielson state police barracks that he knew there was an emergency landing field near Danielson, probably the one at the Kimball farm, where numbers of machines have come down and taken off, but he just did not locate it. The land all around Kum-Along-Inn is comparatively level, he noted the fact and came down. Nichols is an expert pilot and with the small plane he flies would almost convince one that he could land it in a hotel lobby.

Warmed and otherwise refreshed, Pilot Nichols went out and grasped the little plane's tail skid when he was ready to continue his journey to Hartford and, unassisted, dragged it back some distance, that he might have a bit of a run for his takeoff for Hartford. The little plane darted into the air with not much of a run at all, and in about two minutes was lost to sight to the westward.

Those who saw the Nichols plane with its little motor and a gas tank holding no more than that of a small automobile could not help but reflect on the likelihood of the air being filled with such machines in the not too distant future.

PLAINFIELD

CONG. PASTOR CALLED TO NO. BROOKFIELD, MASS.

Rev. William C. Prentice, pastor of the First Congregational church, has received an unanimous call to become pastor of the First Congregational church at North Brookfield, Mass.

The annual union Thanksgiving service will be held this year at the Congregational church, Plainfield. Rev. Re W. E. DeWolfe, of Moosup, will preach.

The six church conference will be held at Plainfield Wednesday, the 12th, at 11 a. m. Dr. Henry J. Kilburn, of Brookfield, will preach and Rev. Joseph Vasey of Putnam will give an address. James Royle and Mrs. William Krauss will sing a duet.

The Connecticut players of Storrs college are to put on the play, The Mollusc, at the Community house in December, under the auspices of the Congregational church.

Ernest H. Herbert, employed at Norwich State hospital, was in Plainfield Thursday.

Miss Antoinette Hebert has resigned at Norwich, and is at home.

The Boy Scouts plan to visit the Wolf Den on the afternoon of Armistice day.

PENDLETON HILL

John Geer and Orrin Harris of Ashaway have the distinction of bagging the largest coon ever caught in these parts. The animal weighed twenty-six pounds and was in prime condition. A smaller animal recently caught by Mr. Geer has an unusually well-marked pelt.

Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer dined on coon Monday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Palmer and family of Bradford were guests.

The harvest supper Saturday, given by the Sewing society, was a success. A party of fourteen of our friend and benefactor, Harry Kenyon, came from Providence. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Miner brought with them a party of five, including Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Maine and two children also of Providence. Road church was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Noyes; Second church by Mr. and Mrs. Irving Maine; Westerly by the artist Macomber and family, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thern and Mrs. Libbie West.

Mrs. Charles Cottrell, of Oak Lawn, R. I., has been the guest of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell and grandsons, George and Charles the third.

Miss Cecile Palmer returned to her home on Tuesday to vote.

Mrs. Jennie Thompson is spending some time with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thompson, who are moving to their new home on Greenman Ave., Westerly, R. I.

This section of the town was thoroughly canvassed by both parties in the interest of votes. It would appear that the machinations of the republican machine were too patent to please the majority in this town, and voters showed their resentment by casting other votes for the opposite party. A healthy rivalry should make for better government. It is evident in this case that the machine defeated its own ends.

Seven Miles To Vote

As an evidence of loyalty to her suffrage and to her friends, Mrs. Vernon walked in the rain more than half the distance to the polling place, seven miles from her home, to cast her vote, and was quite willing to walk the rest of the distance under the same conditions, when overtaken by conveyance.

Miss Lucy Lester voted in Ledyard after the close of school.

Henry Johnson has been working on the road with his truck and Harry Pierce has had his horses at work drawing logs on the Myron Kamree wood lot.

A party of seventeen dined at the parsonage on Sunday. Mrs. Jennie Thompson donated a huge chocolate layer cake, a greatly enjoyed surprise.

The Sewing society met Wednesday as usual. Six dined on tomato bisque and toast, hash, creamed cabbage, mashed turnip, boiled potatoes, rolls, pumpkin pie and coffee.

Has 300 Turkeys

One farmer in this town has three hundred turkeys, and a thousand bushels of potatoes, among the many valuable products of this fine farm.

Marvin Palmer and a fellow worker have rented a bungalow and keep house in Ashford where they work for the Veto Construction company.

Miss Amelia Palmer drove from her school in Manchester to Voluntown to vote.

Thomas E. Wheeler recently purchased a carload of fine herd grass from northern Vermont. The car contained about eleven tons.

Lyle Gray, representative-elect, is a Hill man by birth and ancestry, and Roy Kimmell is a Hill man by adoption. Gray recently purchased and rebuilt the so-called Joseph Spaulding place. Mr. Kimmell is working for his doctor's degree in the graduate school at Yale university.

Herbert Wells and Herbert C. Wells of Kingston, R. I., were callers Tuesday at the Palmer homestead.

Halloween decorations, consisting of Jack-o'lanterns, red and orange streamers, red berries and autumn leaves, adorned the parsonage for the harvest supper. The floral decorations of double calendula and galardia were from the gardens of Miss Sarah I. Palmer.

Elongated residents of Hutchinson, Kas., after suffering bruised foreheads have complained to city officials that awnings on the main streets are too low.

PUTNAM

LOCAL PERSONS HAVE AUDIENCE WITH POPE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 9.—Ernest L. Richards, of Church street, and his daughter, Miss Evelyn Richards, who recently returned from an extended vacation spent in Italy during their stay in Rome, were among the small number of American tourists received in private audience this summer by Pope Pius XI. After negotiations were completed by high dignitaries of the church, which is the usual procedure before a meeting with the Roman pontiff can be affected, Mr. Richards and his daughter were ushered to the papal palace in Vatican city on September 11, and were received by the Pope at 12.40 p. m. of that day. The audience, Mr. Richards said, endured for nearly 15 minutes, during which time both his daughter and himself conversed with Pius after which they kissed his ring and knelt for reception of the papal blessing, which terminated the interview.

During their stay in the Italian capital, the Putnam tourists visited all sites of historical interest. Several hours, Mr. Richards said, were spent by his at Pompeii. In traveling across the country they made stops at Naples and while in France visited in Marseilles.

Frank L. Davis, former county agent of the Windham County Farmers' association and well known in this city, will be one of the principal speakers at the annual meeting of the farmers' association which is to be held in the Hampton grange hall on Wednesday, November 12, beginning at 10.30 a. m. Word of Mr. Davis' intentions of being present at the Wednesday meeting was received yesterday at the farm bureau office by County Agent Raymond E. Wing, who succeeded Mr. Davis as head of the county agricultural society. Mr Davis is now associated with the New England Food and Dairy council of Boston, Mass. He will take for the subject of his talk, "Work of the N. E. Food Council."

At the executive session of the annual meeting officers for the ensuing year will be elected, organization plans will be formulated and a program outlined.

The meet of the Jacobs Hill Fox Hunt members held yesterday in Pomfret attracted widespread interest. A large number of local and out of state people watched the progress of the driving hounds and the excited riders, from vantage points along the state highway between Putnam and Pomfret. Two officers of the state police barracks at Danielson were detailed by Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer to patrol the trunk line road at points where the trail led the pack and pursuers across the highway. Reporters and photographers, representing metropolitan newspapers were on hand to cover the hunt from its sporting and social angles.

A second meet will take place at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Ernest Cutler of West Glocester, R. I., is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital suffering from shock, three fractured ribs, and other injuries sustained Saturday evening when she was struck by a truck owned by the By-Rolly Transportation company, of Providence, R. I., which was being operated by Leo A. Brunell of 21 Auburn street, Springfield, Mass. The accident occurred on the Putnam-Providence highway in the village of West Glocester. Mrs. Cutler had been to the village store and was returning with provisions. She was walking along the right side of the road, she told police, when the truck came upon her from the rear. The driver told police that he did not see the woman until the fore part of his vehicle was almost at her back. To avoid striking her he swerved the wheels to the left so suddenly that it threw the rear of the van against the pedestrian. An investigation was made by Rhode Island state troopers, but Brunell was not arrested.

Arthur Wallen, of Dorchester, Mass., is visiting with his mother, Mrs. Mary Wallen of South Main street.

Luther A. Keith, supervisor of the landscape bureau of the state highway department, spent the week end at his home on Grove street.

Only one arrest had been made by police over the week end, according to a report made tonight. At 1.30 o'clock this morning Officer Joseph Page entered a lunch room and quelled a disturbance after arresting a frequenter on charges of intoxication and breach of peace.

Miss Alice Andrews, of Worcester, visited Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Andrews, of Farrows street.

Contractors in charge of the reconstruction of the piping system of the city water department are now engaged in the laying out of a new main

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The people of Norwich will not fail to bear in mind that this is the week when memberships in the American Red Cross are renewable and when new memberships are solicited. There is a service being rendered by this organization at all times, and provisions have been made for meeting and adequately dealing with emergency conditions wherever they may develop, which the people of this country know about through repeated activities in the past.

Naturally the local branch looks for a renewal of all memberships and hopes for a liberal increase. It is an organization in which everyone has reason to be interested. The local branch is engaged in providing milk for school children, gives aid to the home service department of the United Workers and has a fund for needy ex-service men. Beyond that, it does whatever else it is able along similar lines in keeping with what its funds will permit. Thus the larger the membership the more the local branch can and will do.

Half of the funds obtained through the Red Cross memberships goes for local work. The remainder goes to the national organization, which stands ready at all times to step in and render assistance when called upon or when it is apparent that disaster or emergency conditions require it. The part of the individual in making it possible for such aid to be ready to go at almost a moment's notice cannot fail to appeal.

Whether it is the work of the local branch, the home work in furnishing relief where it is needed, or the backing of the national organization with funds to prepare equipment, supplies and qualified leaders ready for call in anticipation of most any kind of trouble in which human suffering is involved, there cannot fail to be a common desire to have a hand in and to help the good work along. It is humanitarian work that not only gets widespread recognition but in which it is only natural to want to participate. Membership in the Red Cross provides that opportunity and in such a manner as to justify the hope of the officials that there will be a liberal increase in the annual memberships in all local branches.

COVERED BRIDGES

Because someone started the craze, brought together a fine collection of old timey things, took a deep interest in them and really had something to brag about from a family or historic standpoint, others have been inspired to do likewise. The quest for antiques has, therefore, become so strong as to develop experts, dealers and reproducers of such things. It has likewise spread out in all directions.

While there seems to be no limit to the collection of ancient articles, those of 100, 200 or 300 years ago, and the entrance into different fields simply serves to arouse others, there seems to be little probability that the latest endeavor on the part of Henry Ford will arouse keen competition.

Mr. Ford wants a covered bridge. He has probably had an opportunity to see some of the choice varieties which New England offers and knows where they are to be found today in limited numbers and disappearing with the demands of highway users who are forcing new and better roads and, therefore, new and different bridges.

Covered bridges, which still form an attraction in northern New England, are for the most part ancient. They represent other days but they invariably disclose wonderful workmanship and stability. There are different types, some much more attractive than others, but the fact that Mr. Ford wants one, wants it to take away for preservation, isn't likely to interest many others in doing the same thing. There will be an expense involved in taking any such structure down, transporting and rebuilding it, which will not appeal to many, however much they might like a covered bridge of their own.

Thus it is a safe inference that Mr. Ford will experience no great rivalry in securing such a bridge as he wants, provided he makes it attractive enough to the town or towns that own it, and if it meets his requirements as to age, type and historic value he is not likely to balk at that. He may encourage some towns to retain the preservation of any such structure that they have for the appeal it may have to tourists, but the chief rivalry which Mr. Ford is likely to stir up is that to see which town will be successful in selling its bridge to him.

Beyond that, the craze for covered bridges will probably be restricted to collecting pictures of them.

RELIEVING PORTO RICO

While conditions in Porto Rico have been brought to attention more particularly since the hurricane which caused so much devastation there, they have not been what they should be for a long time. This has been made evident from the surveys which have been conducted in the island by organizations and individuals.

The opportunity and the need of doing something more for the islanders was recently emphasized in a report made by Governor General Roosevelt following a visit of inspection throughout the island. He stressed the importance of financial assistance in order that there might be better schools and that steps might be taken to make a more successful fight against disease. This was backed up later by a report following an investigation by the American Child Health association.

It is not only a case of taking care of these conditions and advising the Porto Rican authorities but of providing certain financial assistance with which to accomplish it. There are conditions there which have been under development for a long time. Porto Rico has not been able to meet the problems and it isn't new. To look for improvement of any great amount until different methods are undertaken is out of the question.

An important fact in this connection has been set forth by President Hoover. He declares, in a letter giving his support to the plan of starting a determined fight against disease in the island, and thereby to indirectly reduce the poverty, that, "It is an American job. The Porto Ricans are American citizens, living under the American flag. We must help them toward self-protection as we would any other of our own people in similar distress."

A plan has been drafted for providing relief and rehabilitation for the Porto Rico children, a plan involving an expenditure of $7,000,000 over a period of six years. Disease, poverty, malnutrition, must be fought first in order to correct conditions which are creating other serious handicaps. The health conditions have served to center attention upon early and effective remedies and there cannot fail to be full sympathy with the view that is expressed by the president. As long as the Porto Rico conditions exist, there will be plenty of opportunity for corrective work.

TURKEY RAISING

The fact that there were 50 turkey raisers who gathered in Windsor at a meeting arranged for them by the state department of agriculture doesn't mean that they are the only ones in Connecticut who are raising turkeys or that they are necessarily the chief turkey raisers of the state. It does disclose, however, that there is an interest in this side line of the country residents and that there was time and disposition on their part to get together for the purpose of exchanging views and promoting the business.

There is a good opportunity for turkey raising in Connecticut. There are many who have proved it. There are certain problems connected with it, quite the same as with any other line of activity on the farm. These problems must get full and proper attention. Whether this is given marks the difference between the expert and the hit-or-miss turkey raiser.

Aside from the technique of turkey raising, which doesn't appear to have monopolized the attention at the Windsor meeting, emphasis was placed upon the chance to develop the market for Connecticut birds and in this connection Commissioner of Agriculture Buckingham stressed the importance of supply and demand and the inadvisability of trying to get too high a premium price for their turkey crop. As a means of encouraging greater demand for native turkeys, that point deserves careful consideration.

Perhaps that would be one of the most effective ways of getting the people of Connecticut more deeply interested in demanding Connecticut-raised turkeys, especially when they can be assured through the efforts of Connecticut raisers that they are getting genuine Nutmeg turkeys. It is, at least, a point that cannot be wisely overlooked by those who are in the business and who are hopeful of making it as profitable as possible over a long period.

WHAT POLITICS DOES

How politics works is interestingly disclosed, though perhaps painfully to those directly responsible, in the 12th Suffolk district in Massachusetts over the choice of a representative to the legislature. It is a republican district, but evidently there was such a rush to comply with the call for a change or the election of certain candidates for other offices that there was little thought given to the rest of the ticket, and in the democratic sweep results were obtained which on careful reflection after election are not so pleasing.

This district, instead of following its usual custom, went democratic. Instead of reelecting its legislative representative, his democratic opponent was chosen. It so happened that the unsuccessful candidate was a Baptist minister but it is being brought to attention now that the election is over that his successful opponent served a term of three years in state prison between 1924 and 1927 for stealing an auto, that he served 18 months in a Michigan prison for attempted burglary and he has been arrested many times but without further convictions.

For a district to make such a change in its representative is unusual. The indications are that republicans as well as democrats were responsible for the choice of such a legislator, a choice that too often results when there is little heed given to what is being accomplished through an effort to spank a party or take sides on a particular issue without regard for the far-reaching effect that may be involved. That Massachusetts district seems to have joined in that blind, mass voting which certainly produces upsets but also produces unexpected and undesirable results in many instances. That the district is much disturbed as well as amazed over its political judgment in this case can be imagined, but there can be no difficulty in placing the blame.

EXPERT WORK

"I think," said Mrs. Mixer dreamily, making finger marks on the window glass and mentally noting that it must be washed immediately, "that this year I shall have the dahlia bed over there in line with the lilacs and have that rose garden made that I've always wanted. When you begin to spade up the—"

"Hey!" cried Mr. Mixer in great alarm, throwing down his last piece of breakfast toast and arising agitatedly from the table, "how do you get that way? I don't like that little touch about spading, either. I thought you quite understood I meant what I said last summer when it was a hundred in the shade and the hoppers and the aphis and all their visiting cousins ate up all the plants we'd slaved over and the mildew ruined all the phlox and the pansies curled up and died in the clay soil which baked like a brick, and there weren't any zinnias at all nor snapdragon, and the dogs dug up all the Rocky mountain columbine, I said that gardening was a poor game, a racket, if there ever was one, and I was blamed if I'd ever court sunstroke again trying to get next to the soil. And you agreed. You said it was cheaper to buy 'em at a dollar a dozen and to save your hands and your back and get a chance to read. I'll bet you've got hold of an illustrated catalogue—"

"It came yesterday," Mrs. Mixer confessed. "This year it has double coreopsis in six colors all over the front page. And you never in your life saw such gorgeous things as they have in the new specimen section! There's a gladiolus that—"

"I know," said Mr. Mixer bitterly, hunting for his cigar lighter. "Discovered by a hermit who has spent his life in the great American desert crossing dandelions with morning-glory vines and sells for $10 a bulb. And he has a relative, too, who is putting out some climbing pneumonias that are wonderful, to say nothing of the dwarf eczemas that are but three-fifty for each ten seeds. Nothing doing. Grass seed on the garden for me!"

"And I think I'll have a double row of asters all down the path to the garage," proceeded Mrs. Mixer, leaning against the window casing in a very graceful fashion.

"Did you hear what I was just saying?" demanded her husband with some heat. "You're left! In the 981 hours I gardened last season clad in overalls and a bitter spirit I could have acquired the Russian language and been in line for a possible future ambassadorship. Do you realize how few men in this country know even the Russian alphabet?"

"What's that got to do with nasturtiums?" inquired his wife in an annoyed tone. "I must have nasturtiums for that deep blue bowl near the bookcase. Oh, yes—we'll need about three loads of black dirt—"

"Listen!" roared Mr. Mixer, "that's out, too! At $6 a cubic yard! I could buy an overcoat or a year's shirts. The whole idea is extravagant, preposterous, tiresome and foolish. I'd rather sit under a tree and read good literature. It hasn't a redeeming feature. Don't you remember the blight on the tomatoes?"

"Henry Splatter said from the very first that you didn't know how to grow tomatoes," remarked Mrs. Mixer with intensity. "He said it took a special intelligence and a sort of feeling for gardening that very few men had—"

"Say!" croaked Mr. Mixer, waving his hands and getting red in the face, "do you mean to say that Henry Splatter—why, say! I could run circles around the sort of garden he put up. Listen! Just because he grew some forget-me-nots and three larkspur does he think—why, if I didn't have to run for my train I could laugh my head off! Huh! Feeling for gardening talent! That blight came from Asia and the papers were full of it! I guess I know—say might as well order that black dirt before it'll be all gone and when I get home tonight I want to go over that catalogue! Got to run!"

Mrs. Mixer continued to lean gracefully against the window casing. She gazed out onto what was to be the garden with a speculative eye—and smiled knowingly.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—Speaking in Pretoria, American Minister Ralph Totten said the other day that during his consular and diplomatic career he had "travelled a total distance of about 14 times around the earth."

It had taken him, he added, about a quarter century as a career man of the foreign service to complete this journey of "erratic wanderings" from his native Nashville, Tenn., to Pretoria.

That is a lot of ground to cover although possibly no record among the globe trotters of the foreign service. They are forever on the go.

Totten said he had found traveling from post to post "hard work," adding that he would be glad to round out his official life in the South African capital.

And right there he gave an inkling of a special talent which probably has made this particular Tennessean a popular lad wherever he roved.

He is rated as the state department's best Negro dialect story teller. Despite all those years of rambling, he has never lost touch or lacked for a new tale with which to cap a dinner speech.

"For life, after all, is but a comparative term," Totten said to his fellow diners. "You remember the Negro visited in the penitentiary by a friend:

"'Well, Mose', said the friend, 'you'se in fo' life, aint cha?'

"'Naw,' said Mose, 'not fo' life; jes' from now on.'"

Crack Shot

Minister Totten seems to have found time for something besides official duties. He is a noted rifleman, it seems.

At one time he was instructor of rifle shooting for the national guard of the District of Columbia, having once been an officer of the Tennessee guard. Perhaps it was that early contact with official life in Washington that led him into the foreign service to go traipsing all over Europe, Asia and Africa as well as Latin America.

Any way, as he traipsed, Totten hunted. He has gunned for big and little game everywhere he went. And now that he seems to have sort of lit more or less permanently in South Africa, the Bystander hears he has begun writing a book about it.

Goodness knows he ought to know something about the game trails of the world if he has followed them in every country where his government job has taken him.

Bear Stories

Some day the Bystander would like to get blackbearded Representative Tinkham of Massachusetts and Totten of Tennessee together. What a vast lore of the hunting craft they could unfold if placed on each other.

And if you could add to the party folks like Colonel Latrobe, one time Coolidge military aide, and Kunnel Starling, Coolidge mentor in clay pigeon shooting in the days when the former president took to that sport, what a gathering of Nimrods it would be.

YOUR HEALTH

Does It Pay The Diabetic To Take Insulin?

By Byron D. Bowen, M. D., Buffalo General Hospital, Buffalo.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Before insulin, which was discovered by Dr. Banting and his co-workers in 1922 was available, the patient with diabetes who could not take sufficient food to nourish him without having sugar in the urine, was relatively short lived and severely handicapped economically. Time has proven that with insulin the patient who has only diabetes, even if his case be severe, can "throw away his crutches" and take a normal place in society, with promise of living his span of years, provided he follows the advice of his doctor.

In an analysis of eighty-one patients whose diabetes was severe enough to require insulin, who had been under treatment for a long enough time to bring about maximum improvement, the following facts were determined: 1. All patients were at their normal weight and in a splendid state of nutrition; a few were overweight which in some people is difficult to avoid. 2. Over 80 per cent felt as well as ever and many of them stated that they felt better. 3. None of the patients had physical weakness in the ordinary routine of their work and many of them were able and did do manual labor. 4. Nearly all patients believed that they were capable of doing as efficient mental work as ever. 5. Only a few found it necessary to change their occupations because of diabetes and similarly only a few suffered any reduction of earning capacity. 6. The majority of patients who did not measure up to the normal standard did not receive treatment until their lives had been nearly wrecked by diabetes. 7. All the children observed were able to keep up with their playmates in all respects and as a class seemed above the average intelligence.

The only dependable treatment for diabetes is diet and insulin. The administration of insulin to be practical and effective must be given by the hypodermic syringe; this is usually done by the patient uncomplainingly because he feels so much better. Reactions from too much insulin may occur but when symptoms come on they are quickly dispersed by orange juice or some other food containing sugar.

Diabetic patients should be guided entirely by their family physician in matters of dosage. If your doctor has asked you to report once a month or oftener, do not let the fact that you are feeling better cause you to decide to skip a visit every so often. If your symptoms or reactions change, get in touch with your physician at once. He is the one to suggest treatment.

The patient whose diabetes is not controlled may develop coma which is the result of the formation of poisonous acids in the body; his arteries may "rust" earlier and infections are more serious.

CHILD TRAINING

Making An Exception

Rebecca Dunlap

"Yes, she has a remarkable memory for such a tot. Lucy! Lucy! Come here darling—no—the rest of you can go back. Well, stay then, if you want to, but Lucy's the one we want—to hear her say her little poem about the bird in the treetop. Now, stand right there like a little lady, and say it."

Lucy, a rather chubby little girl whose innocent prettiness was hidden beneath a spoiled, smug expression, needed no urging. She lisped about the birdie in the treetop with the presence of a prima donna, and sure enough, her reward was a chorus of "Isn't she darling!", "Perfectly precious!", laughter and other forms of appreciation. While she performed, the other children, grinning with generous approval, climbed to different points of vantage.

And looking up to see one little boy just beaming with a missing-tooth smile of shy delight, one motherly visitor swung an arm around the slender little fellow and dragged him to her lap. Overcome with shyness he smiled into her face and dropped his head. "How about you? You don't know any pieces, do you?" she said good-naturedly. He shook his head. She laughed, and released him.

It was Lucy this and Lucy that. Lucy's golden hair was curled in careful ringlets. Lucy's feet were shod in delicate slippers.

"Charles, stop troubling that child this minute! Come, mother's darling, did that bad boy make my baby cry?"

"Mama, Lucy was throwing sand at Charles first." The loyal friends of Charles stood by him.

"Well, Charles is a big boy, and Lucy's just a little girl—just a sweet little girl — who didn't know any better."

And the mother went on, sublimely unconscious of her mistake in putting Lucy on a pedestal — a little queen who could do no wrong — and expecting the other children to accept her as such.

When Lucy would come in slyly whimpering that the other children had been "mean" to her, her mother would go out and tell them that they must play nicely with the little girl, or she would punish them. And Lucy was not very popular.

Then Uncle Charles came home — their idol. He romped, played, and laughed with the children. He teased them and loved them for a whole month, and then it was time for him to go. His sister looked at him fondly, and asked complacently, "Well, Charles, what do you think of my little family?"

He looked away, uneasily, and then, honestly into her eyes. "Let me ask you a question first," he said. "You remember Enid Smith?"

His sister's mouth straightened. "Yes! I despise her very memory — spoiled, selfish, conceited, smug—and a 'tattle tale' besides. I don't care ever to see her again as long as I live!" Charles understood; they had all been young together. He squared his shoulders and plunged in.

"Well, Sis, I will answer your question now. I'm wild about Janey, think Charles a vast improvement on myself, and Jim and Ellen are such darlings I can't bear the thought of staying away from them, but I wouldn't care if I never saw Lucy again."

His sister sat up, incredulous, choking, blinking, gasping.

He nodded. "Just that. She probably has good qualities at bottom, being your child and Jim's, but you have catered to her, adored her, sacrificed the other children to her, until you've made her a selfish little simpleton. All the children despise her without realizing it."

His sister looked as if she would choke.

"Hard, I know, hard for me to tell you. But if you keep it up you're going to make just the sort of woman out of Lucy that Enid's mother made out of her darling, precious littlums Enid. Quit it, Sis, like a good sport. Give the kid a chance with the rest. I'll be back in a month," as he leaned over and kissed his still speechless sister gently, "to see how you undo it!"

Norwich 100 Years Ago

From
THE NORWICH COURIER

Denison Wattles, Esq., 100 years ago this month, addressed the New London County Temperance society at a meeting held in what was then known as the Brick Meeting house in Labanon, according to The Norwich Courier of a century ago. Delegates from various associations and the friends of temperance were invited to attend the meeting, according to the issue of The Norwich Courier of November 10 1830. In Griswold that month and year, Rev. Mr. Jewett united in marriage Henry Safford of Preston and Miss Hannah Rix. Alexander Williams, a Revolutioner, of Plainfield, and Miss Lydia Gates, according to the same issue of The Courier, were united in marriage at that time.

There was in those days a stage coach operating between Norwich and Springfield and the fare was $2.50. The stage left Kinney's hotel, in this town, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 7 o'clock in the morning and returned Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Look At This! is the heading of what was no doubt considered a flashy advertisement in those early days. The advertisement reads: "The subscriber having taken the blacksmith shop recently occupied by Joseph B. Palmer, situated in East Chelsea, respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he contemplates on carrying on the Carriage Smith Business in all its various branches. Those who will favor him with their custom, will find their requests faithfully and punctually attended to." John Cox was the proprietor of the above business.

Stages from this town connected, at Essex, with the "splendid low pressure steamboats with copper boilers," operating on the Connecticut river, between Hartford and New York. Two boats operated up and down the river and through the sound to New York. They were captained by Thomas Snow of the Oliver Ellsworth, and Daniel Havens of the McDonough. The boats sailed daily and the fare from Norwich to New York was $2.50 and "found." Stages left Hyde's hotel, this town, for Ely's Ferry, Essex, to connect with the steamboats, every day except Sundays, at 1.30 o'clock.

Dewy Brumley, notified the public, through the columns of The Courier, that "he has on hand and is constantly manufacturing, at his shop, three doors south of the Norwich bank, at the sign of the Large Gilt Top Boot, a good assortment of gentlemen's, ladies' and children's boots and shoes, of the best quality and most approved fashion, which are warranted well made, and will be sold as low as can be had, of equal quality, at any other store."

Parahyba Produces Sugar, Coconuts and Cotton.

"Increasing production of sugar in Parahyba, Brazil, makes that state one of the important contributors to Brazil's overflowing sugar bowl," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"With the states of Rio Grande do Norte and Pernambuco, between which it is sandwiched, Parahyba forms the easternmost shoulder of South America. The state extends so far east that the longitude of its Atlantic shoreline is nearer Lisbon than New York.

"Parahyba ranks 14th in size among the 20 Brazilian states. It is larger than Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont and New Hampshire combined; but Boston alone has more than six times as many inhabitants.

"Although the Parahyba coast is 75 miles long the state has only one port of any consequence—Cabedello. To reach it large vessels must avoid sand bars and reefs in the harbor. The city lies at the mouth of the Parahyba river. Frequently Parahyba shippers transport their exportable products to Pernambuco where ocean-going vessels may anchor safely.

"The state has about 200 miles of railroad. The main portion runs near the coast with short branch lines penetrating nearby regions. The absence of railroads and good roads in the interior shifts the burden of native shipments to Parahyba river and its tributaries.

"Twelve miles up the Parahyba lies Parahiba, the capital and largest city in the state. Boats of 14-foot draft, carefully navigated can reach the city. A traveler need not penetrate the remote portions of the state to learn what its inhabitants produce, for cargoes in the city warehouses and shipping lists reveal the state's contributions to Brazil trade.

"Cotton, the finest in Brazil, is the principal product of the state. The sugar which Parahyba contributes to Brazil's commodity lists helps that country maintain its rank as the world's fourth largest sugar producer. Tobacco and coconuts are brought from the interior to the port, as well as hides from the growing cattle business in the state.

"The capital is a sort of two-in-one city of 52,000 inhabitants. The old part of the town, now the commercial section, hugs the river bank. The modern portion of the city, with the state's government buildings, schools and churches and residential section, is standing on a hill overlooking the waterfront.

"The flat coastal zone of Parahyba is from 20 to 30 miles wide. Beyond this zone, near the center of the state, rises the Serra da Borborema mountain range, which affords the inhabitants a cool retreat from the hot, humid climate in the lowlands. From the mountains to the western border are grazing lands and forests. In the latter are rubber trees from which the natives extract a small quantity of crude rubber."

Which?

Dick's Secret

Dick and his dad returned from the drug store with a quart of ice cream —just in time to find that "company" had arrived. Luckily they had entered by the rear door and left the ice cream in the refrigerator.

The conversation with the "company" lasted some time. Dad and mother apparently forgot all about the ice cream but not so with Dick. He sailed into the kitchen and called his mother. They had some muffled conversation in the kitchen.

Soon Dick emerged and announced to the company, "We got some ice cream we're going to eat when you leave."

RESIDENTS PRAYED WHILE FIRE THREATENED VILLAGE

BEDMINSTER, Pa., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Residents of this little Bucks County town prayed in its streets today for deliverance as flames swept through its main buildings and for a time threatened the village with destruction.

While firemen from 17 nearby towns were speeding to aid the frantic villagers two engines overturned, killing one volunteer fireman and injuring seven others, one so seriously he may not recover.

Two large three-story buildings, a general store and a warehouse, and two garages were destroyed and the village school and several other buildings damaged. Persons whose property was damaged or destroyed said the combined damage was approximately $100,000.

EDWARD WUTTKEY DIES FROM CARBON MONOXIDE

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Edward C. Wuttkey, 42, president of the T. M. Bixbee Co., accountants, and a junior executive of the Charles W. Scranton Co., brokers, was found dead this afternoon in his garage from the effects of carbon monoxide.

Several hours before his body was found, Wuttkey had told his wife that he was going to his garage to clean his automobile. Alarmed when he failed to return for dinner, Mrs. Wuttkey went to the garage and found her husband's body clad in overalls, lying face downward on the floor near the rear of the automobile. A cloth with which he had been cleaning the machine was clutched in his hand.

Dr. Marvin M. Scarbrough, medical examiner, said that Wuttkey, one of the most prominent tax accountants in the state, died about three hours before his body was discovered.

Besides his widow, Wuttkey is survived by his parents and three sisters.

From what relatives in this city learned of the fatal accident it is believed that the doors of the garage must have blown shut while Mr. Wuttkey was at work on his machine. He had gone to the garage about the middle of the afternoon while his wife was taking a nap in the house and when she awoke and found he had not returned she visited the garage to see what had detained him. She found the doors shut, the motor of the engine running, with Mr. Wuttkey on the floor beside the car.

Mr. Wuttkey was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wuttkey of 115 Roath street, this city, where the early part of his life was spent and where he was graduated from Norwich Free Academy. Mr. and Mrs. Wuttkey's home in New Haven was at 475 Norton street.

Besides his parents, he is survived by his wife, and three sisters, Mrs. Carl G. Johnson of this city, Mrs. Howard M. Wight of Baltic and Mrs. A. R. Johnson of Kalamazoo, Mich.

From 1911 to 1919 Mr. Wuttkey was in the United States revenue service and in November of 1919, when the Bixbee company was organized, he became its treasurer.

DECLARES DEBT TO WORLD WAR SOLDIERS NOT FULLY PAID YET

"We haven't paid yet the debt we owe to our men who were killed in the World war and to our men who came home wounded," said Rev. John M. Moore, D. D., general secretary of the Federated Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in an Armistice Sunday address at the evening service at the Central Baptist church. The special service, arranged by the pastor of the church, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., was attended by a large delegation of the members of R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion. The service opened at 7:30 o'clock with Rev. Dr. Pitt leading. Prominently displayed above the pulpit and flanked by two large American flags, was the Central Baptist church service flag with its two score stars. An augmented choir sang the beautiful anthemn, Souls of the Righteous (Noble), the Recessional by Kipling, and the hymn, O, Valient Hearts. The latter hymn has been sung in Westminister Abbey for the the services at the grave of the unknown soldier. Miss H. Louise Fuller presided at the Gale Memorial organ and the church quartet of Miss Jessie Guthrie, soprano; Mrs. Olive P. Adams, alto; Frederick J. Maples, tenor, and Frank Steinke, baritone, was augmented by Miss Mary Gray, soprano; Miss Lucille Howard, contralto; Robert Gray, tenor; William Lund, bass.

REV. R. H. PARKES

Following the opening devotional period, Rev. Dr. Pitt introduced Rev. R. H. Parkes, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, who spoke for the American Legion. Rev. Mr. Parkes said he had been asked to speak on the Reaction of Armistice Day, as he saw it. Rev. Mr. Parkes, who served four years and five months with the English army, said that at the time the armistice was signed he was with the Second Canadian division in the Mons district. He read from his war diary personal expriences which occurred during the week of November 7th to November 14th, 1918. The Germans were retreating from the war torn district and the Canadians were advancing and taking possession of the evacuated towns. November 11, 1918, he said, was a lovely morning. His division was on the march. At 11 o'clock a divisional dispatch rider appeared and stopped their colonel. He gave the colonel a telegram which announced the end of the war and the telegram was read to the troops. The recruits went wild over the news but some of the older soldiers, who had been through the war from its beginning, questioned the truth of the message. After telling of the stirring events immediately following the armistice, Rev. Mr. Parkes closed his remarks with prayer.

The offering was taken after which the hymn, 'O, Beautiful For Spacious Skies, was sung by the choir and congregation. Rev. Dr. Pitt then introduced Rev. Dr. Moore as the speaker of the evening.

Rev. Dr. Moore said he was highly honored to be able to deliver a message on this occasion. He went on to explain, briefly, just what the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is. He explained that the council is a federation of 27 denominations in the United States. It is 22 years old, and was created by and is controlled by representatives of these 27 denominations. It is interested in service, Rev. Dr. Moore said. "It is interested in religious education," he continued. "It has been deeply concerned in the maintenance of international relations that will guarantee peace.

"We do well to take heed how we remember and what we do about it on Armistice day," he said. "We can't forget the high ideals of the war times. We were carried out of ourselves.

"We forget many of the things that divided us then and which divide us now. How splendid our men were! With what eagerness did they accept the responsibilities placed on them. We do well to remember the high hopes of those days. It was a war to end war."

Speaking of Armistice day in New York, where he was at the time, Rev. Dr. Moore said that there were nights during the war period, when he felt that he had no right to sleep in a warm room, while our men were freezing in the filthy trenches. "But now the guns have ceased to boom, the trenches are empty, and I can lie down to sleep in peace," he said.

"We can't forget that preparations are going on for another war," and that war-clouds are hanging over Europe yet," he continued. "The moral pledges are yet unpaid. We haven't paid yet the debt we owe to our men who were killed and to our men who came home wounded.

"It is our business to co-operate to the utmost with the nations of the world to secure that disarmament promised Germany when she signed the treaty. We, along with other nations of the world, have a solemn pledge for disarmament which we are not keeping very well.

"We are not yet, after 12 years, in the world court. We have so far stood aloof. We ought to remember, tonight, the pledges made to God and man and to nations, that have not been kept," he said.

RUSSIAN EMIGRE DANCER HAS COLORFUL CAREER

Vera Mirova, who is on the program for a Norwich dance recital, in an interview with a member of the Norwich Art association, has thus described some picturesque events in her early career, which was dramatic from the start. Her parents were not in sympathy with her eagerness to make dancing her life work, so she ran away to Moscow where she lived with her childhood nurse and studied. Leaving her native land during a period of revolution, she toured Siberia and the Far East. While making intensive studies of Oriental dances she had unique experiences. In Java where the art of dancing is restricted to those of high birth she was taught native dances by two princes, brothers of the sultan. In the colorful court of Siam she made an appearance before the royal family.

Madame Mirova concluded by saying that her recent tour of the United States has added many enjoyable moments to the varied experiences she has had during her tours of Europe and her trip around the world.

AMERICAN AIR CADETS ORGANIZED AT BALTIC

Under the direction of L. G. Cullen of New London, state organizer for the American Air Cadets, a chapter of the organization has been formed at Baltic with a membership of 135. The sponsors are Rev. A. A. Jalbert, Floyd Tiffany, the school principal, and William G. Park of Hanover and Rev. J. Massey Shaw.

The organization is of an informal nature and is not run for a profit. Its purpose is to increase the interest of young people in aviation. It furnishes an opportunity for boys to build model aircraft and enter them in competition. Boys and girls from 9 years old to 20 years of age are eligible.

Upon registration each registrant receives a registration card and an official A. A. C. mechanic's pin and kit with which to build the first flying model plane.

Having registered and received his membership card, badge and equipment, the boy builds his first airplane model. As soon as he has successfully constructed a plane that will fly ten seconds he is promoted to the rank of pilot and is given a pilot's badge. As soon as he has constructed a model that will keep the air for a minute and a half he is given his American Air Cadets ace insignia, the highest rank in the organization.

The cadets are eligible to compete in local, state and national model airplane tournaments.

The American Air Cadets have at present over a million and a quarter members, with chapters from coast to coast. Chapters in Connecticut already organized are: Norwich, New London, Hartford, Willimantic, Jewett City, Moosup, Plainfield, Danielson, Putnam, Essex, Deep River, Colchester, Groton, Stonington, Mystic and Pawcatuck. The headquarters for the boys at Baltic will be E. J. Caron's store, and registration cards, application blanks, etc., will be available there.

SUNDAY Y. M. C. A. MEETING HELD IN GYMNASIUM

The largest audience of the season attended the interesting service at the Y M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. All the bleachers and chairs were occupied. The meeting was held in the big gymnasium. Following the scripture reading and prayer two hymns were sung by the audience from hymn slides on the screen.

The expected moving picture, "Square Shoulders" was substituted by a very fine feature picture titled "The Flying Marine." This was a story of brotherly love unfolded against the background of daring air exploits. Grim tragedy stalked into the lives of three young people, and accomplished a solution to a problem which had kept them all from happiness. During the service, Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk and spoke in part as follows: "This picture is a story of brotherly love. When we speak of brotherly love we do not mean love between members of the same household, though the home is a place where love should abound, but we mean brotherly love on a broader scale that takes in the whole world. If you ask me why we had the terrible World war, I answer, because of the absence of brotherly love among the nations, for instead of this spirit it was hate that lived in the lives of those who caused an awful war. Why this terrible slaughter of thousands in China in recent months? No other answer will suffice except that there was an absence of brotherly love Why has the great city of Chicago made such dark pages in her history of late in the line of murders? The same answer tells the story.

Why in the recent election such anger in some places, and in one city at least men shot each other to death in the excitement; the spirit of 'get even' dominated instead of that of brotherly love. The discord in every realm of life emanates from the same cause.

"We all know where to find the perfect example of brotherly love; we read that God is love," and in John 3:16 we have the statement of the greatest love ever demonstrated: God giving his son to die for a lost humanity. Some of you may act indifferently to these words I am speaking, but there will come a time when you will know the truth of them. Why not begin today to cultivate the companionship of Him who taught and lived and died in the spirit of brotherly love."

Dwight Richardson officiated at the piano.

NOTRE DAME AND GOLDEN BEARS LOOM AS NATION'S GREATEST TEAMS

By TED VOSBURGH

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Notre Dame and Southern California were hailed today as two of the greatest scoring machines in the history of football as a result of a pair of remarkable touchdown explosions yesterday at Philadelphia and Los Angeles.

Pennsylvania and California, both rated among the strong teams of the country, were all but blown out of the park at the hands of this mighty pair. Notre Dame used its regulars less than half of the game and yet dynamited the Quakers 60 to 20 and Southern California obliterated its northern rival, 74 to 0.

After losing to Washington State's veteran team by a single point, Coach Howard Jones' Southern Californians now have crushed both Stanford and the Golden Bears and are looking ahead to a battle royal with Knute Rockne's mighty men at Los Angeles on Dec. 6.

Headed by Notre Dame, the eight major teams, which had not been so much as tied, came through, most of them, in a fashion worthy of champions.

In this all-conquering group besides the Irish, are Northwestern and Marquette of the middle west, Washington State, Oregon and Utah in the far west, Fordham in the east and Alabama in the south.

Only a step behind, with nothing worse than a draw to mar their records, came Georgia, Army, Dartmouth and Michigan. The small college group boasts such sturdy teams as Western Maryland's unbeaten and untied array.

Those who feel that Northwestern's powerful team has a chance to stop the Rockne machine at Evanston Nov. 22 were encouraged by the Purple's 25-0 conquest of Indiana, which lost to Notre Dame by almost the same score.

Marquette eked out a 7 to 0 victory over Iowa and Fordham had to come from behind in the last quarter to down Detroit, 13 to 7, but Alabama gave Florida, the team that held Georgia to a tie, a 20 to 0 walloping. Utah mowed down Colorado college, 41-6, in its march toward another Rocky Mountain conference crown, Washington State outclassed Idaho, and Oregon turned back University of California at Los Angeles by the surprisingly low score of 7-0.

Georgia, playing Notre Dame football at its best, fairly earned its 7-6 decision over New York university and the east lost another intersectional argument when Harvard bowed to Michigan, 6 to 3, in the final period. Ohio State sunk the Navy, 27 to 0, but the east countered with Fordham's win over Detroit, the Army's 13-0 success against luckless Illinois and West Virginia's conquest of the Kansas Aggies. Dartmouth had a "breather," winning without great difficulty from little Allegheny.

Princeton's record for the season now stands at one victory, four defeats and a tie, the Tigers having plumbed the depths by losing to Lehigh yesterday for the first time in 32 years of football relations.

Among the features were the victories of Texas Christian, Texas and Southern Methodist in the southwest; the overturning of Kentucky by Duke's impressive team in the south; Stanford's decisive win over Washington on the Pacific coast, and the defeat of Kansas by Nebraska in the Missouri Valley "Big Six."

In the east, Colgate swamped Columbia, 54 to 0; Pitt nosed out Carnegie Tech, and Syracuse was held to a scoreless tie by Penn State's supposedly sub-normal eleven. Tie scores were surprisingly rare by contrast with last Saturday when 20 were counted throughout the country.

OFFSIDE PENALTY COSTS WINDHAM A TIE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 9—Windham's offside offense on a goal kick cost the Crimson and Blue eleven the loss of a hard-fought game with Bristol high school at Bristol, by a score of 7 to 6, Saturday afternoon. In the second quarter Albie Gurske, Bristol right halfback, winged around right end for a 40 yard dash to the goal line. Andy Palau failed to place kick the extra point but Windham's violation of the offside rules caused the point to be awarded to Bristol. The locals with Captain Luciani carrying the ball, scored a touchdown in the final quarter but were unable to gain the extra point necessary to even the score.

WALKER HURLS DEFIES AT SHARKEY AND STRIBLING

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP)—Mickey Walker, fresh from his successful invasion of the heavyweight ranks by his decisive victory over Johnny Risko, tossed defies at Jack Sharkey and W. L. "Young" Stribling tonight.

The world middleweight champion, through his manager, Jack Kearns, offered to fight Sharkey for the milk fund in New York next month.

"Mickey will box the Boston gob and will not take a cent more than Sharkey does for training expenses," Kearns said.

"Stribling has been signed by the Chicago stadium for a fight December 12, and Mickey is ready to step into that match, too, if Stribling wants to meet him."

SINGER-CANZONERI BOUT IS HIGH LIGHT THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—A battle for the lightweight championship of the world with Al Singer defending his crown against Tony Canzoneri, former featherweight title holder, comes to the rescue of the national boxing program this week and saves it from almost complete obscurity.

The battle, which is to take place in Madison Square Garden Friday night, is something of a novelty for New York. It is the first time in nine years a lightweight title bout has been staged indoors here. Singer won the championship from Sammy Mandell in an outdoor fight last summer.

Canzoneri is considered the leading contender for the lightweight crown as a former title holder and a veteran scrapper who once gave Mandell a great fight for the title. It is the first time the title has been at stake since Singer won it.

Other battles on the national program offer few high spots. The program includes:

Monday—At Oaklahoma City—Emmett Rocco, Elwood City, Pa., vs. Angus Snyder, Dodge City, Kans., heavyweights, Ten.

Tuesday—At Los Angeles—Bud Taylor, Terrehaute, Ind., vs. Maurice Holtzer, France, Lightweights, Ten.

Wednesday—At Seattle—Dade Bercot, Monroe, Wash., vs. Patsy Mullins, Calgary, Canada, Middleweights, six.

Thursday—At Cincinnati—Johnny Farr, Cleveland, vs. Freddie Miller, Cincinnati, Featherweights, Ten.

ONLY FOUR TEAMS UNBEATEN IN THE EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Fordham and Western Maryland remain at the peak of eastern football today as the only undefeated and untied teams in the sector after last Saturday's games. Two more, Dartmouth and Army, have not yet suffered defeat but each has been tied once.

The battering Rams of Fordham have a fair claim to the highest honors so far. They have won seven straight games. Only Geneva in the east has scored as many victories and the little Pennsylvania college has been beaten once. The other three unbeaten teams have six victories apiece to their credit.

Colgate, although defeated once, is far ahead in the scoring race among the eastern teams, with a total of 313 points to 14 for its opponents. Dartmouth is second in scoring with 275 points. Defensively, the two leaders again shine. Only seven points have been scored against Western Maryland and nine against Fordham.

Records of the leading teams to date, as compiled by the Associated Press, follow:

FIFTEEN TEAMS GET AWAY IN SIX-DAY BIKE RACE

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP)—With Judge John H. Lyle, enemy of gunmen, firing the starting pistol, fifteen teams flashed away at 9 o'clock tonight in Chicago's twenty-fourth international six-day bicycle race in the Chicago stadium.

Franco Georgetti and Paul Brocardo, the Italian-French combination, were the advance favorites to win the grind which ends Saturday night. The field was made up of riders from America, Europe and Australia, with eight countries represented.

The Yankee team of Freddie Spencer and Norman Hill, also ranked high. Reggie Mac Namara, the iron man of the sport, who has won 14 six-day races—more than any other man in America,— rode with Tony Beckman, who, with Gerard DeBates as his partner, won the last Chicago race.

Ernest Kockler, the milk-peddling cyclist, and Mickey Rodak represented Chicago.

ACADEMY MEETS BULKELEY IN CROSS-COUNTRY WED.

The year's first major Academy-Bulkeley engagement is scheduled for Wednesday of this week at New London in the annual varsity cross-country run. The schools have met twice in second team affairs, with each getting a decision.

The Academy will probably enter the run a slight favorite over its ancient rival because of a better season's record although the Whalers can be expected it make it hot for the Wildcats right to the tape. The Academy is unbeaten up to the present, having taken Conn. Aggie freshmen, Stonington, Chapman Tech and Bacon academy in order while Bulkeley has a one-point defeat at the hands of Bacon to mar its work.

CARDINALS BREAK UP FRIEDMAN'S PASSING BUT LOSE

CHICAGO, Nov. 9—(AP)—The Chicago Cardinals broke up Bennie Friedman's passing attack, but could not stop the plunging of Moran and took a 13 to 7 beating from the New York Giants at Comiskey park today.

The Cards scored in the second period on a pass from Ernie Nevers to Boyd, but the Giants came back for two touchdowns in the following session, to clinch the decision. Hagerty dashed 60 yards after taking a lateral from Moran, and the latter led a 70-yard parade over the Card goal in a few minutes later.

Third Straight For L. H. A. C.

The House of David football team from the West Side was the third victim of L. H. A. C. in their march for a perfect season. The score was 13 to 12. The Athletics were unable to get started in the first half.

The game was won in the last five minutes on a touchdown by Bill Brush and the extra point after goal by Al. Kosiol.

This game was played on Waterloo field on Laurel Hill. Next Sunday, the Athletics clash with the Trojans on the same field. Any teams in this section averaging less than 150 lbs. regardless of experience or age, can arrange games for the future by writing Bradley Fowler, Garfield avenue, Norwich.

MACALUSO PASSES 100 MARK IN SCORING

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Smashing over four touchdowns and adding as many extra points in a great scoring display against Columbia, Leonard Macaluso of Colgate passed the 100-point mark to hold his big lead in the struggle for eastern individual football scoring honors.

Macaluso has a total of 106 points. His nearest rival, Goff of Rhode Island, who jumped into second place by tallying 30 points Saturday, has 96 to his credit. Bart Viviano of Cornell and Jack Grossman of Rutgers are tied for third at 84.

Goff leads in scoring touchdowns with 16. All his points have come by that route. Macaluso, Viviano and Grossman had 14 apiece. Macaluso has added 22 points after touchdowns to lead the high scorers in that respect by a wide margin. Ralph Hewitt is the only leader who has kicked two field goals.

WILLIAMS RUNS WILD AGAINST WESLEYAN TEAM

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The Williams football team made a great start in its "little three" campaign yesterday when it ran wild against Wesleyan to pile up a 40-0 victory, a performance that made the Purple an outstanding favorite for the championship honors that will be awarded after next Saturday's game with Amherst. The Lord Jeffs were held to a 7-7 tie by Trinity.

In one of the most spectacular battles on the New England gridiron front, Georgetown gained another victory over its ancient Jesuit rival, Boston college, by the score of 20 to 19. Up at Worcester, the Holy Cross second stringers had an easy afternoon, whipping the little New River eleven, 13 to 0.

It was a great day for New Hampshire football. Dartmouth swamped Allegheny by a top heavy score and the Wildcats overwhelmed the Connecticut Aggies, 33 to 0, at Durham.

None of the three Vermont elevens was able to score a point. Norwich and Vermont, battling for the state title, fought a scoreless draw and Middlebury, playing at Troy, N. Y., bowed to Rensselaer, 6-0.

Tufts went out of its class and was given a 32-7 trouncing by "Tuss" McLaughry's powerful Brown outfit. Rhode Island State had an easy time swamping Worcester Tech by a 45 to 0 score at Kingston. White and Owl, the Springfield gymnasts' speedy backs, had a field day against the Massachusetts Aggies, who were snowed under a 57 to 0 storm of touchdowns.

The DePauw team from Greencastle, Ind., came to Boston for its intersectional clash with Boston university and gained a 22-7 victory over the Terriers by pushing over 16 points in the final period. Don Wheaton, shifty Indiana back, was the outstanding player of the game. Lowell Textile was unable to provide much opposition for the Coast Guard eleven and the service team ran wild to pile up a 33 to 6 score.

KILLINGLY CANCELS ALL GOOD GAMES EXCEPT PUTNAM

DANIELSON, Nov. 8—Because of five major injuries sustained by members of the football team, Killingly high school has concelled all games except the one with Putnam. This game is to be played Thanksgiving day on the Quinebaug field in Danielson. The members of the team stated that they wanted to play with Putnam high school anyway, despite the injuries which have occurred.

Andreas J. Haveles sustained a badly sprained neck in Killingly's first home game with Plainfield. In the game with Southbridge, Vincent Dvarcas received a broken collar bone right after the first kick-off. It was the first day in which he had been out for the team. Gordon Gallup broke his thumb. Teddy Anderson, Killingly's quarterback, sustained a broken wrist in the game with East Douglas. In the game with Webster, who trounced Killingly 66-0, James Haveles was carried off the field with several crushed ribs. These same ribs were again injured in the game with Southbridge. Because of these injuries, the manager and faculty deemed it advisable to cancel all games except the one with Putnam, which is Killingly's traditional rival. Neither Putnam nor Killingly have won many games this season and it looks as if the game would be a fast one.

PACKERS NOSE OUT BEARS BY A POINT

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Professional football league, preserved their unmarred record for the season today, by the margin of a point after touchdown which gave them a 13 to 12 victory over the Chicago Bears.

The battle was the toughest of the season for the Packers and Johnny Blood's place kick after their second touchdown gave them victory.

Basketball Managers Attention

After several weeks of strenuous practice, the all star basketball team headed by George "Mule" Haas, star centerfielder of the World's Champion Philadelphia Athletics of 1929-1930 is ready for an active campaign on the ribbed courts. The "Mule", as he is affectionately termed, is fully as crack a basketball star as he is in baseball. This will be his second season with the same line-up of former college and American league basketball luminaries. Wherever Haas appears he always plays to capacity houses. It is due to this fact that the "Mule" and his followers are so popular. His appearance is in such demand that he is arranging an early schedule, showing in all the numerous places he appeared last season. He still has a number of open dates and managers anxious to book this super attraction are asked to get in touch with his booking manager immediately. Artie Powers and Butch Scinski, two former members of the Paterson club of the American league, Phil Federici and Carl Hattersley, both ex-St. Benedict college stars and a number of other stars make up his roster. Bookings with this club are handled exclusively by Henry A. Riggenbach, 24 Jersey street, Bloomfield, New Jersey.

EASTERN TEAMS FARE POORLY IN BATTLES WITH INTERSECTIONAL FOES

By EDWARD J. NEIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The wreckage of some of the proudest pigskin arrays in the east lay scattered about the countryside today, battered and torn by football cyclones from the mid-west and south that ripped down the Atlantic seaboard yesterday.

In Philadelphia lay the debris of a rugged Pennsylvania team, hammered out of shape by perhaps the greatest eleven Knute Rockne ever brought east from Notre Dame, swamped under a crushing 60 to 20 defeat. Down in Annapolis the Navy nursed the scars of a 27 to 0 walloping administered by Ohio State, while at Cambridge, Harvard salvaged some honor from a 6 to 3 licking at the hands of Michigan. And to top it all off there were the Violets of New York university nosed out 7-6 by the Bulldogs of the South, Georgia.

In the triple invasion from the Big Ten, Illinois alone was unable to complete the rout against Army, but even there the down-trodden Illini startled 70,000 customers in the Yankee stadium by holding the Cadets even for the first half before fading under a final 13 to 0 count. Fordham's unbeaten array alone bolstered Army in the intersectional duels, the sturdy Rams of the "Iron Major" Cavanaugh invading the mid-west to whip Detroit 13 to 7.

A crowd of 80,000 sat in the deepest humiliation Pennsylvania has suffered in almost ten years as the green-clad warriors of Notre Dame smashed the Red and Blue defense to bits. Marty Brill, a home town boy making good on the field where he wasn't good enough to play when he was a Pennsylvania student, and the rest of the Rockne rough riders—Carideo, Schwartz, Savoldi, O'Connor, Mullins and Koken—raced at will behind perfectly timed interference and the attack of a superb line. Brill alone scored three touchdowns on runs of 67, 37 and 23 yards.

A perfect forward pass from the hand of Harry Newman, the new Benny Friedman of the Big Ten, gave Michigan its victory over Harvard late in the fourth quarter after it seemed that Barry Wood had clinched the engagement for the Crimson with a field goal and a three-point lead. Newman flicked the leather 27 yards to Roy Hudson and the fullback ran 13 yards to score the touchdown.

Navy never had a chance against Ohio State's rush at Baltimore as the mid-westerners punched over a touchdown in every quarter, but there was some consolation for New York university. When "Catfish" Smith kicked the point that gave Georgia a 7-6 lead, the Violets came back with a 60-yard surge that ended with less than a minute to play on the Bulldogs' 15-yard line, where a pass was intercepted.

Ray Stecker, a burly youth from Hazleton, Pa., finally brought victory to Army after Illinois had battled gamely through a scoreless first half. Stecker led a touchdown march in the third quarter and intercepted a pass to run 45 yards for the second score in the final period. Fordham also pulled out the Detroit victory in the late stages, overcoming a seven-point handicap with two touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

While the spotlight centered on the intersectional clashes, there were close and bitter battles among the strictly eastern forces and surprises as well. Syracuse staged a scoreless duel with Penn State. Georgetown nosed out Boston college 20 to 19 in a thrilling set-to and Pittsburgh just managed to beat Carnegie Tech by the margin of an extra point, 7 to 6. Lehigh provided an upset by licking Princeton 13 to 9. The swamping of Columbia, 54 to 0, by Colgate after the Lions had beaten Cornell furnished a surprise because of the size of the score. Lafayette won out in a give and take struggle with Rutgers, 31 to 26. Bucknell battled out a 20-14 win over Villanova.

Some of the higher powered elevens came through their "breathers" unscathed. Brown beat Tufts 32 to 7, Cornell swamped Hobart 54 to 0, Yale spanked little Alfred 66 to 0, and Dartmouth humbled Allegheny 43 to 14.

Bowdoin upset Maine 13 to 7 and Amherst could get no better than a 7-7 tie with Trinity. Geneva beat Westminster 7 to 0, Gettysburg trounced Dickinson 33 to 0, New Hampshire plastered Connecticut Aggies 33 to 0, and Norwich and Vermont tied 0-0. Rhode Island snowed under Worcester Poly 45 to 0. Temple downed Miami 34 to 0 and Williams walloped Wesleyan 40 to 0.

REPORTS K. OF C. FINANCES IN SOUND CONDITION

Moderate increase in membership and in insurance in force in the insurance division of the Knights of Columbus is indicated in the report of the regular triennial examination of the society, recently completed by the Connecticut insurance department, and released by Commissioner Howard P. Dunham. The report, covering the three-year period ending December 31, 1929, states that the society is in a strong financial condition.

The insurance membership as of September 1, 1930, was 256,401, an increase for the three-year period of 17,794, and the insurance in force was $190,446,235, an increase of $25,997,168. In addition to its insurance membership, the society on September 1 had a social membership of 358,277. The admitted asserts of the society on December 31, 1929, amounted to $31,510,825.92. Mortuary assessments collected during 1929 were $2,922,092.27 and the expenses dues amounted to $1,049,347.27. Death claims paid totaled $2,252,913.22. The amount of insurance in force on December 31, 1929, was $277,347,055, of which $250,718,000 was on the five year step rate plan, $16,393,000 on the fifteen payment life plar. and $7,359,000 on the ordinary life plan.

WILL KEEP INTERSTATE BUSSES TO SAFE SPEED

Reasonable driving speeds through Connecticut for interstate passenger busses, which do not operate under route certificates issued by this state, will be sought by the motor vehicle and state police departments, according to announcement made Sunday. An investigation will also be made to determine whether the equipment of these busses complies with the state's safety laws and regulations.

This action follows numerous complaints to the motor vehicle department of extreme speeds of some interstate busses and reports of accidents where lack of safety equipment may have been a factor. All busses operating under state franchise are regularly inspected by agents of the public utilities commission and are required to operate under a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour. No special regulations, concerned with speeds or equipment, are provided, under the law, for busses which do not operate under a certificate issued by the utilities commission.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel said, in calling the matter to the attention of the police, that "while the question is primarily one of safety for the passengers of busses and other users of the highways, it seems apparent that interstate busses should not be allowed to commit offenses for which our own people are disciplined."

Members of the Eastern Connecticut Superintendents association met last Thursday at Plainfield high school as guests of Supt. Chapman.

The programme committee consisting of Supt. Noyes and High School Principal Brooks of Stonington and Field Supervisor Levi T. Garrison of Willimantic, conducted the discussion on "Educational Guidance." Supt. Noyes led up to the value of intelligence and achievement tests in a school system. Mr. Brooks discussed the value of intelligence and achievement tests and how they should be used in improving the educational opportunities of the school system.

Supervisor Garrison presented in a very interesting way the need for superintendents and teachers to better understand the social and home conditions of the child. He presented several individual cases under his supervision where a child has been made to feel that he has a personality and a responsibility and that these children respond in a natural way when they are provided with a activity suitable to their capacity and interest.

The men were pleasantly entertained at supper by the home economics department of the Plainfield high school. The December meeting will be held in Stonington as guests of Supt. Noyes.

YACHT COOK SUES PLANT FOR $25,000

The collision in Long Island sound last summer between the yachts owned by Philip M. Plant of New York, adopted son of the late Commodore Morton F. Plant of Eastern Point, and O. Chatfield Taylor, New York social celebrity, has resulted in a $25,000 damage suit against Plant. The suit has been brought by Henry Smallwood, cook aboard Taylor's yacht, the Chang-Wau, who alleges that he was severely injured in the crash and sets forth that the collision was caused through the "reckless and unseamanlike" manner in which Plant's yacht Lolita was being operated. The cook declares the shock of the collision threw him against the galley stove and then to the deck.

In his affidavit Smallwood claims that the Lolita, a fast cruiser, was traveling at an excessive rate of speed and cut directly across the bows of the other vessel.

Plant's yacht sank after the collision, and Claire Windsor, famous motion picture actress, a guest aboard it, and the members of the crew were thrown into the water. They were rescued by members of Mr. Taylor's crew. Ernest Spangler, a sailor aboard the Lolita, was drowned.

Connecticut Turkeys in Demand

More than fifty enthusiastic Connecticut turkey growers meeting at the farm of Howard Thrall in Windsor, revealed that the pre-Thanksgiving demand for Connecticut graded turkeys this year is surpassing all recent records. Turkey growers in explaining this unusual demand believe that it is largely accounted for by the adoption of the Connecticut fancy grade for turkeys and its enforcement by the state department of agriculture. Consumers, they said, are begining to realize that they can be assured that every turkey bearing the yellow tag with the New England label is a genuine Connecticut product. It was believed by growers that although Connecticut is showing an increase in the number of turkeys there will be less for the Thanksgiving and Christmas markets than last year. If the present demand continues. It was disclosed that the majority of growers are now disposing of their turkeys for 50 cents wholesale and 60 cents a pound retail. This is 10 cents a pound below the price on the Thanksgiving market last year.

INDIAN SACRED DANCES AND CUSTOMS EXPLAINED

The regular meeting of the Wolf Cub Pack connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church was held Saturday morning in charge of the Cubmaster Rev. George Warren Potter, assisted by Edward Jordan and Leon Ladd.

The business session and singing period was quickly over as the Cubs were looking forward to the speaker of the morning. For a period of over and hour and a half, Reginald Laubin, in Indian costume including war bonnet, held the group of over 30 boys spellbound as he explained the sacred dances, songs, ceremonies and customs of the American Indian. Not only did Mr. Laubin explain things of great interest to the boys, but he demonstrated by action and dances his most thrilling talk. The boys lived over again the life of the American as the speaker by the broad sweep of his word pictures showed there was much to the life of the red men of [illegible]. Mr. Laubin began by telling the Cubs that there were something like 73 different languages used by the American Indian, there was one language they all understood and that is the sign language which is taught to-day in the Boy Scouts. The speaker explained the faith the Indian had in the leadership and help of the Great Spirit and the various sacred dances through which the Indian acknowledged these things. Following his most interesting and instructive talk Mr. Laubin showed many articles and utensils made by the Indians and explained their various uses. The Cubs, led by John Gibbs gave Mr. Laubin a hearty Wolf Cub cheer.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Continued inactivity prevailed on the market in fruits and vegetables. Native stock consists principally of apples, potatoes and cabbage, with light offerings of bushel beets and carrots, celery, cauliflower, turnips and spinach. Shipped in produce very moderate.

The general potato market was reported as slightly weaker in both native and Maine stock. Apples continue draggy, with liberal supplies and in a wide range in quality and price to choose from. Macs are still the leading variety but demand very moderate. Florida oranges are now the bulk of supply of that product but as yet are the early varieties and lacking in quality.

Native eggs of full size are in light supply and firm. Cold storage stock is plentiful and low but fresh westerns are in light supply and holding firm.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Paper Dolls

I think that I cut paper dolls until it was after nine.
And the little girl who sat on my knee and gathered them up was mine.
And then she watched while I pencilled ears and nose and mouth and eyes
On each paper doll, and she questioned me and harked to my low replies
While I named them all as she held them up, and sat wide-eyed and still,
As I called off Ellen, and Zulia, too, and Lulu, and little Bill;
And then she made me count them all—one, two, and three, and four;
Ellen and Zulia and Lulu and Bill, the children who live next door.

And Nellie and Fannie and Cleve and Belle and William—"and this is you!"
And then she snuggled and kissed my chin and whispered: "My eyes am brue!"
And said: "Dint papa notice 'at?" and reproach and sad surprise
At my forgetfulness looked out on me from her blue eyes.
And I said: "Why, yes, of course I did; but we're just pretending this."
So she snuggled her arms about my neck and held up her lips to kiss,
And I kissed her neck and her forehead then and her hair and a wee, pink ear,
And she twisted and asked: "Tan papa see? My mouf is 'way over here!"

So I kissed her red, red, smiling lips, and cuddled her down to me;
And I smiled to think of her wild surprise and her query: "Tan't papa see?"
Then I undressed her and wrapped her well in her nightie all pink and warm,
And told her the story of Little Boy Blue, and snuggled her sleepy form;
But she awoke when I laid her down and stopped my crooning low,
And said: "I'm ain't dot no dolls at all!" and queried: "Dint papa know?"
And so I tiptoed down the hall and gathered for her once more
The paper dolls that bore the names of the children who live next door.

A Boy's Soliloquy

I'd like to go right off today
To some wild country far away
Where I can fish and swim and run
And have my own "slick" kind of fun.

There's nothing ever happens here.
That's why I think the place is queer;
It's far too tame and dull for me,
I want to live where I am free.

Some folks may get along all right
And say it suits their appetite
But they don't know how much I'd roam
If I could have a different home.

I'd go far off where skies are blue
And only stop when I want to;
I'd live among the lakes and brooks
And keep away from streets and books.

Just s'posin'—, if I had my way
The different kinds of things I'd play;
I'd make a hut beside some stream
And for my rest I'd lie and dream.

I'd hunt and camp and sail and fish
'Till I had nothing more to wish,
Then when my days were filled just so,
I wouldn't ask where I could go.

These things are all I'd want, I guess;
There ma be something more—oh, yes—
Besides each wish I'd have one other.
I'd also like to take my brother.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

November is one of the months of the year during which the heavens blaze with "shooting stars" or meteors. These showers of shooting stars are very interesting to watch and when they occur scientists all over the world make close studies of them.

Those who have made a study of the heavens and of what is happening in space, have learned, that without a doubt comets burst into pieces, some immense, some very small. These pieces of broken comet, continue to travel at terrific speed in the same path that the comet was traveling in before it exploded.

However the pieces or fragments of the comet spread out in a long, long line, following a trial of shooting stars. These trails are hundreds of thousands of miles long. The earth's orbit, the path around which the earth travels, often passes through the orbit, or line of travel of these fragments. Every August and every November the earth passes through a belt of these meteors. Many of them come within range of our atmosphere, when they explode and shower the earth with tiny, blazing fragments.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-WAKES.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am very much pleased to say "Thank you" for that beautiful book I received, so I am writing another story with hopes of getting another

What Becomes of Wanderers is the title of my story.

I was a large piece of white paper fluttering around in Tokyo, Japan. There were many electric cars, modern stores and the beautiful imperial palace which is the home of the emperor of Japan.

Then almost too suddenly I was caught and held fast by an eccentric man. "Oh!" he exclaimed, "just the thing I need," and with this I was carried off.

We soon reached his home. It was built by weaving lattuce work of grass ropes between the wooden posts and beams and built against it a wall of stones which were held together by mud plaster.

His two little girls, Maqua and Yon-Hoon exclaimed in delight, "Daddy have you got the paper? Now we can make the fan."

Too-Lee, their father, knitted his brows and said, "Now, my dear ones, this is going to take time. Maqua you may cut the paper into its shape and Yon-Hoon you may paint the fan after it's cut."

At these words I did not know whether to jump for joy or to be sorry.

So one bright sunshiny afternoon Maqua and Yon-Hoon went to their working shop and with delicate fingers they started to work on me.

The scissors whispered to me sarcastically, "Now is my chance to cut you up." I twirled under them and cried, "Oh, how can you be so cruel; please do not cut me into bits. Oh, you are hurting my back. I can't bear it another minute." But the scissors paid no attention to me and he cut on and on until I thought there would be nothing left of me. How I wished I could be back to my fluttering position, jumping around in the streets.

The scissors looked at me and said, "I'd like to see you when you are finished; then I can have my laugh."

I was made into the most gorgeous fan ever exhibited in Japan, thus giving to the two Japanese fame and fortune

Then came exhibition day bright and in its fullest glory and I found myself near many other beautiful fans. How proudly I spread my arms out to the world and revealed my handsome paintings.

From a distance I could see the scissors look at me with envious eyes which seemed to say, "You think your smart, don't you?" I gave him a look which meant, "Why shouldn't I?"

We ended our eye conversaiton almost abruptly because the princess took me into her charming hands and paid the required sum.

As I passed the scissors I made the worst face that ever he witnessed. The princess carried me to her home and I was greeted by the most harmonious music.

She took her place beside her lover, a charming prince, carrying me with her. I expanded my graceful wings, this giving the prince an excellent place to tell the princess many loving secrets which I also shared.

After the prince took his departure my mistress affectionately caressed me to her heart and whispered, "My dear fan some day you shall come to the altar with the prince and me."

With these words she carefully laid me in my bed of silk cushions. Could this be home?

Halloween.

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope all my Wide-Awake friends enjoyed Halloween as much as I did.

We had a party at school, our teacher joined in all the fun with us. Then at night my friend came and got me to go out with her. She was dressed like a tramp. She wore a mask with a big red nose on it. How I laughed when I saw her. I didn't know what to wear, so my friend and I went upstairs and dug up some old clothes my grandma wore when she lived with us. I had on a long black skirt, a tight yellow blouse, then I borrowed my sister's red earrings and I tied a red silk tie around my head. Of course I had a mask as I didn't want to be recognized. I then took an old cane and a deck of cards and started out.

Oh it was lots and lots of fun. We stopped in different houses and we would ask if they wanted their fortunes told. No one refused us to come in.

Seeing it was all people I knew I told them the truth. My friend was laughing so much tears were coming in her eyes.

One lady gave us some fudge she had just made. She said it was for telling her fortune so well. We just met a few of our friends who did not recognize us.

It was with regret we heard 10 o'clock ring. But we knew it was late enough for we didn't want our folks to be worried about us. My friend said next year we'll have to dress the same wya again seeing no one knew us that way and I really think we will.

My Doll

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my doll Elizabeth. She was very shabby, and I never played with her. I had other dolls that were very pretty that I liked better. One day I was looking at her and wondered if dolls had feelings, so I took off her old clothes and washed her face and fixed her hair, put a new dress on her. She is just as pretty as my other dolls. I will never neglect her again.

Nutting

Dear Uncle Jed: Off into the woods we go laughing and talking cheerfully. Because this is the day we shall uncover the hidden nuts in the woods. As soon as they fall, in some mysterious way, they are hidden from human sight. In some places, and only a few, they are visible to us and then we have a glorious time picking them up. But of the two ways, I prefer the one where you need a stick to shove aside the leaves to find the hidden nuts of nature. And on this particular day my friends and I had a glorious time doing that very thing. When the nuts are still in the outer shell it is much more difficult to find them. This is because the earth is the same color as the outer shell is.

When the sun was setting and my friends and my own bags were full we started for home. We were tired and the excitement of the afternoon had left us happy and contented. This was the first day we had been nutting and by no means the last.

An Awful Fright

Dear Uncle Jed: One morning in fall I was going to school and it was very foggy. As I was going I could not see two feet ahead. All at once I saw a car coming. I started to look at it. As I looked at it coming toward me it frightened me very much. I did not know what to do. As I came closer to it, it slowed down and stopped right near me. I heard a voice call Hello Gertrude. I then raised my head and saw it was only my aunt and uncle. And then they drove me to school.

Our Horse Patty

My Dear Uncle Jed: A few weeks ago my father sold a horse which I liked very much. It is "Patty's" sweet memory that tempts me to write this story.

Patty was a beautiful bay horse with great white blotches all over his body. He was of a very gentle nature and let we children play with him all we liked to. Often we would ask my father to put on his bridle and then we took turns riding up and down the road on his back. Patty was a patient, dear old horse, and always ready for fun. He seemed to understand when he was the object of conversation. If I spoke kindly to him he would put up his ears and make his eyes laugh. As far as his nature and disposition were concerned, he was the most darling horse you ever saw.

Oh! how Patty liked apples (as most horses usually do). We fed them to him very often.

The Night Watchman

Dear Uncle Jed: Mr. Moon had been sleeping all day and now he was on his night watch. He was busily watching the animals below hunt for their night lunch. But now and then an ugly cloud would pass across his face and darken the earth. This made Mr. Moon mad because he lost track of the busy hunters. As the clock struck midnight his eyes were attracted toward a small store down by Mr. Brooks' (a very wealthy man). There on the lawn was a tramp trying to open a small box which seemed to contain something precious. Fearing that someone would spy him, he kept a lookout up and down. He fiddled about the box for some time and at last the box opened. To the burglar's surprise he found nothing.

Mr. Moon seemed to smile and cast his eyes to another scene.

Halloween

Dear Uncle Jed: Many children were rather busy Friday night looking for their frocks for Halloween, but most of all was a small girl at the other end of the village. She was busily getting ready for a Halloween masquerade which took place later in the evening. She took part as an old witch and she sure looked like the one in the fairy stories, because her dress was rather long and swept the dirt from under her feet, her hat touched the boughs on the trees, her face would surely stop the clock if she looked at it and her hair hung down her back, as the witch's hair does.

I hope you and the Wide Awakes enjoyed Halloween as much as this girl.

AN EXCITING GAME OF CROQUET

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I am writing to the Wide-Awakes and I hope you will enjoy reading my story.

Last summer I won the most exciting game of croquet I ever played. Katherine Kametz and I were well make the last two wickets. My ball matched, and were both trying to was in a perfect position. Bang! came Katherine's ball and sent mine flying. She then made both wickets but missed the stake. My heart was in my mouth when I tried to hit her ball from the other end of the court. But I did it! I then made both wickets any my ball just grazed the stake. I had won the game!

OUR CAT AND DOG

Dear Uncle Jed: I have the cutest little dog you ever saw. We call it "Beauty," and it certainly is a beauty. It is only 10 weeks old and it can do many cute things. He pulls on all the fellows' pants and rips all the girls silk stockings.

Sometimes it is an awful pest, but it is so sweet you have to forgive it.

We also have a catwhich is getting old and grouchy. The cat and dog do not get along at all. The dog is so playful and it always wants to play with the cat, which starts many fights

I wish you could see them.

A RAINY DAY

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I am writing to the Wide-Awake circle and I hope you enjoy reading my story.

I have always liked to walk in the rain. Last summer while I was visiting in New York, we had a heavy rainstorm. About quarter of five I put on my raincoat and started for a walk. This took me along the river bank. As I looked over the water I thought every person must like rainy days best.

A heavy mist hung over everything, and the lights of passing steamers shone dimly through the heavy curtain. Now and then I heard the sound of the bells which rang to summon the crews to supper. They sounded like the tinkling of cowbells.

Suddenly a shrill whistle broke the stillness. Then knowing this must be the six o'clock whistle, I realized I must return home for supper.

Jack Frost

Dear Uncle Jed: This morning Jack Frost got after us pretty well. Jack Frost is very merry these days. He sometimes nips my nose. He sometimes nips my toes. Everybody is merry when Jack Frost comes around. Don't you think that merry young man is an artist? I do. Beautiful pictures are painted by him on the windows. Jack paints castles and trees and rivers and brooks just as it goes in the story books.

My Pet Kitten

Dear Uncle Jed: As this is the first letter I have ever written to the Wide Awake circle, I hope they will be interested in reading it as I am in reading theirs. I am going to tell them about my pet kitten.

My kitten is gray and white and it has yellow eyes. I made my kitten a bed in back of the stove made out of a box with straw. One night my kitten did not come home. I looked all over for her. I called and called but no kitten came, soon it began to get dark, but no kitty. I went to bed but poor kitty was on my mind. I could not sleep thinking of kitty got hurt or was lost or what was the matter. Soon mother and sister and all were in bed. The rain was falling fast and where could my poor kitty be? Soon morning came and before I went to school I went looking for kitty, and I bet you never could tell where I found my poor kitty. In the hen house, shut in with the hens. But I guess kitty never found that a very pleasant place. I don't think kitty will ever care about keeping the hens company again.

An Old Spanish Galleon

Dear Uncle Jed: The galleon is an old Spanish trading ship. It is high in the front and rear. Aft is the captain's, and mates' quarters. The crew sleeps in the forecastle. Below is the hold where supplies are stored. It has no motor or engine. It has sails. They cannot go fast.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The End of the Hunt

Hope and courage strength will lend
To bring you safely to the end.
—Bobby Coon.

Bobby ought to know. He has had occasion to prove the truth of this little saying more than once. If he had not clung to hope and had the courage to keep on doing his best he would have lost his life long ago. Quitting is a word Bobby doesn't know the meaning of.

So it was that Bobby didn't once think of giving up that night when the hunters were after him, with a dog barking on his trail, a dog he could not fool by any trick, and no place of safety near enough for him to reach. That is, there was no place that he could think of. Still he clung to hope and had the courage to keep on running even when he was so tired and so out of breath that it seemed to him that he must stop. And then all in a flash it came to him that there was a place of safety, just one place where he could be where the dog and the hunters could not get him. He hadn't thought of it before because he never had had occasion to make use of it before.

When he did think of it he was near the edge of the Green Forest beyond which was the Old Orchard. New strength came to him and his tired legs began to move faster than before.

"I'll fool them. I'll fool them," he kept saying over and over to himself. "Yes, sir, I'll fool them. Oh dear, why didn't I think of this before! But I'll get there. I must get there and I will."

Straight through the Old Orchard ran Bobby Coon. He was panting for breath and there was a pain in his side. That dog was gaining. Yes, sir, he certainly was gaining. Bobby could tell that by the sound of the dog's voice. You see, that dog wasn't fat and heavy as Bobby Coon was. He was in splendid condition for running. He was neither tired nor out of breath. He knew that he was gaining and there was increasing excitement and eagerness in his barking. He felt sure that in a few minutes he would catch Bobby.

Straight through the Old Orchard ran Bobby. Over the old stone wall into Farmer Brown's dooryard he scrambled. Where do you think he headed for then? Straight for Farmer Brown's woodshed at the back of the house! He was making for that cat hole in the shed through which he and Jimmy Skunk had entered so often to get their dinner. It seemed to Bobby that he just couldn't run another step, but he gritted his teeth and kept on. He was almost to that hole now and that dog was almost at his heels. He wasn't barking now. He was running with all his might for he was sure of catching Bobby in a minute or so.

And then Bobby disappeared. He had squeezed through that cat hole and was safe inside Farmer Brown's shed. That hole was too small for the dog to get through. Bobby scrambled up on a pile of wood in the farthest corner and there he gasped for breath and trembled with weakness, so tired that it seemed to him that he couldn't ever lift a paw again. His heart was thumping as if it were trying to thump its way out through his side. Despite this Bobby grinned. Outside that dog was barking as if he would bark his head off. Every now and then he would thrust his head in at that hole, but that was all he could do.

Suddenly there was the sound of another voice, a deep voice that Bobby recognized. It was the voice of Bowser the Hound, and there was anger in that voice. Then there was such a snarling and growling and yelping as only two dogs in a fight can make. Bowser, who had come out from his little house over by the barn to see what was going on, had jumped on that other dog for daring to come into that yard uninvited.

In a few minutes Bobby heard the hunters trying to rescue their dog and he grinned again. Presently he heard them hurry away, taking their dog with them. They were grumbling, for they were sorely disappointed. Their hunt was ended and Bobby was safe. They had no intention of being caught there by the return of Farmer Brown or Farmer Brown's boy. Bobby drew a long breath and then settled down to rest.

THIEVES RANSACK CAMP HOUSE OF C. McCONNELL NEAR WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 9.—The camp house of Chrystie McConnell, of Meadow Lane cottage, Watch Hill, and located on the north slope of the high land at the juncture of the Nooseneck Hill state highway with the road leading from the Meeting House bridge over the Pawcatuck river to the old Potter Hill road, has been broken into and entered by parties unknown to police authorities. Entrance was effected by the ripping off of heavy wooden protecting shutters of two rear and a side windows. With the ripping off of the wooden planks glass was broken near the window sash lock and when released the window was raised. Another rear window also had several panes of glass broken out. Entrance to the well-built house is by a pathway through the pines but the front of the house was left entirely undisturbed and the wooden shutters, through which light might betray the presence of intruders if removed were left undisturbed. In the large living room with fireplace the articles of furnishing were left strewn about.

The property, which has been offered for sale, has been leased by Dr. Edwin R. Lewis, of Westerly, who also has a summer place on the Pawcatuck river directly across the roadway on which the McConnell property with heavy woodland is located. When the department of Rhode Island state police was first organized it was planned to give protection to such camps by frequent visits of the state troopers. The property is located within calling distance of the state highway, which is plainly in sight from the highland at the rear of the camp

MONSTER BATTERY TO AID STUDIES OF BALLOONIST

BRUSSELS —(AP)— Here's a dry cell for your flashlight:

It measures six feet and seven inches by three feet and four inches and is reputed the world's largest dry cell battery.

It is part of equipment assembled by Prof. Auguste Piccard to reach new altitudes with a balloon to study the cosmic rays of the upper atmosphere.

The scientist expects to reach altitudes beyond 52,000 feet with the balloon. The battery, delivering 2,000 volts, will activate measuring devices.

POETRY

Faith

To crown the autumn of the year,
Wise Nature dons her radiant hues;
The maples, crimson garments choose;
The beeches, golden drop'ries use.

Nor bird, nor beast, nor flow'r, nor tree
Shows aught of question; aught of dread;
But trusts established law instead—
Fall, winter, spring and life ahead.

O heart of mine, art thou less wise,
Less trustful of thy Maker's care;
That thou to crown life's close shoulds spare,
High hymn of praise and garland rare;

Assured that on the other shore,
God hath prepared eternal spring;
That earth's desires to flower shall bring,
And yield rich fruitage for our King.

—By Gertrude Adams Graves.

Who Is The Painter?

What puts the crimson color
In the leaves once green?
No touch from mortal brush
Could transform the sheen
In the scene
Of summer.

But the change has come.
The color lingers where
No hand could touch the leaves
Since they unfolded there—
In the air
And sunshine.

Perhaps a fairy artist,
As a fairy sprite,
Stroked enchanted color
In the dark of night,—
By starlight
In stillness.

No, the Master Artist,
By ways unknown to man
Dipped deep in nature's palette
And autumn's color ran.—
All his plan
So divine.

—William Macy Stanton, in the Philadelphia Inquirer

RETAIL BUYING WAS FAIR LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—The somewhat lower seasonal trends which appear at this time of year were reflected in contractions of most indices of business activity during the past week.

Mercantile reviews pointed out that the peak season of wholesale buying has now passed, and that the autumn trade has in the main failed of the expansion which normal seasonal influences alone had indicated. Retail buying, however, held up fairly well, and should be stimulated by the approach of the holidays in the next few weeks.

Business sentiment remained so gloomy in many quarters that economists who have not heretofore been inclined to stress the psychological factor in the present depression asserted that pessimism was being overdone. Bankers again found it necessary to point out that after all, conditions are still much more favorable than they were in 1921.

Dr. Benjamin Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National bank, said, "Some of us are seeing ghosts today, and the situation is not as bad as rumors have made it or hysteria in certain places has made it." Dr. Anderson expressed the belief that business is worse than it needs to be, even recognizing all of the fundamental difficulties with which it must contend. He felt that improvement could come at any time, and be very substantial improvement, but said he did not know when it would come.

Even at its worst, statistical evidence shows that 1930 has not fallen to the low levels of 1921, and Dr. Anderson pointed out that today, business is not held back by lack of credit while in 1921, "financial embarrassments were so acute that many businesses could not even do the business that was in sight."

R. C. Stephenson, president of the American Bankers' association, points out in the issue of the association's Journal published this week that production has fallen below the levels of minimum consumption. "Production fell sharply below the volume required even for minimum consumption, and now that surplus stores are nearing depletion, and shortages developing, the forces of replenishment must come into play again."

The weekly freight car loadings report was better than expected, showing a substantial gain from the preceding week, but the fact that this increase was largely accounted for by seasonal movement of coal, while less than car load lots of merchandise declined, took the edge off this report.

Steel mill operations continued to slacken, Iron Age estimated ingot output at 48 per cent of capacity, against 50 per cent the previous week. Scrap steel prices were again under pressure, but finished steel and pig iron held steady. The placing of the unusually large order for 50,000 tons of pig iron by American Radiator was interpreted in some quarters as indicating the belief that prices had touched bottom. Early pickup in automotive manufacturing is expected.

The petroleum industry was still unsettled. Refiners' gasoline stocks continued to pile up, and the committee on petroleum economics reported that a reduction in output of at least seven per cent must be made if supply is not to continue to exceed demand. In the copper industry, it was understood that unofficial conferences looking to world curtailment were in progress, and that large producers were declining to sell at the price of 9 1-2 cents a pound.

Fresh instability of commodity prices was again a troublesome factor. During the forepart of the week, wheat tumbled to the lowest prices in 24 years and cotton reacted, after a fortnight of gains. Late in the week, however, cotton again advanced. also had sinking spells but zinc was firmer. A study of past depressions shows that business usually picks up some months before commodity prices, but recovery seems to require a flattening out of the commodity price movement.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

"Amos 'N' Andy the production which was written for the two Negro impersonators who are familiar to every radio listener will be shown at the Palace theatre for the last times today and tomorrow. There is a laugh a minute in this picture and the management cannot be responsible for any cracked ribs, dislocated jaws or split sides as a result of the show.

America's two most popular men, Cosden and Correll and their affairs of the heart with Madam Queen, Ruby Taylor and other personages who do not amount to so much in their lives, go through their stuff as well on the screen as they do on the air each night. Whole families are absorbed and intrigued in the fortunes of the "Fresh Air Taxi-Cab Company" and are smitten with rage at the nefarious actions of that old scoundrel, "The King Fish," who has tried to beat the boys on so many occasions.

Every one enjoys a film which makes him laugh and the old and young are thrilled to see at last befour their very eyes that pair which draw crowds in every place to hear their daily anecdotes.

On Wednesday the Palace will present another of its double-feature programs. This one will include "Danger Lights," with Louis Wolheim, Jean Arthur and Robert Armstrong in the first thrilling railroad drama yet presented in talking films. On the same program there will be a comedy, "A Soldier's Plaything," with a fine cast including Harry Langdon, Noah Beery, Ben Lyon and many others.

Broadway Theatre.

A humble waiter by day, a millionaire lothario by night, Maurice Chevalier's gay, laughing love-making occupies him 24 hours out of every 24 in his newest starring picture, "Playboy of Paris," now playing at Warner's Broadway theatre, today and Tuesday.

Chevalier's sly and roguish love making it seem at its best in this facial French comedy with a plot as full of fresh and funny situations as was "The Big Pond." Pursued by the daughter of the proprietor of the cafe in which he serves the elite of Paris, Chevalier's life is a series of ups and downs, but his blythe, hayyp-go-lucky spirit is unspoiled, even by the menacing attitude of the rejected suitor for the proprietor's daughter. Maurice is enamoured of the grand life and the rich ladies, and has dreams of leaving his humble station and making a profitable marriage.

The story is a joyous, fun-loving farce, with pretty Frances Dee, the fortunate "extra" girl, playing opposite the star. Chevalier sings several songs, including "My Ideal," "It's a Great Life," "In the Heart of Old Paree," each of which he puts across the same effective lilt with which he sang "Louise," "Sweeping the Clouds Away," "My Love Parade," and "You Brought a New Kind of Life to Me." "My Ideal" has so far proved the most popular of the Chevalier trio.

SMALL FIRE IN SHED CALLS OUT WESTERLY DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 9—Flames in a shed used as a garage at 26 Dayton street, owned by Guiseppina A. Gentile at the rear of the home of Joseph H. Whitford were unnoticed until they burst through the shingle roof shortly before 9 p. m. Sunday. An alarm was turned in from Box No. 75, Dayton and Pierce streets, which brought out Fire Chief Robert Bonner, assistant engineers, two pieces of fire apparatus and large forces of firemen.

When the firemen arrived the blazing roof was sending showers of sparks across Dayton street, threatening adjoining property and a nearby shed to the rear of the garage. A hydrant hose line was laid by the Ahrens-Fox pumper from Pierce street and the Seagraves pumper brought a fire hydrant line down Dayton street. The two powerful streams soon had the flames out.

The loss will amount to several hundred dollars. A large number of spectators, who were attracted by the blaze received a wetting when the fire stream shot over the building. Recall was sounded at 9:40 p. m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Vera Mirova.

Of all the worthy events happening in Norwich, some are deserving of special attention. The coming of Vera Mirova is such an event.

Vera Mirova was born of artistic parentage, and from earliest years was inclined to interpretive dancing, and was given opportunity to appear in her father's dramatic productions. In 1917 she began a tour of appearances in the Far East—Japan, China, Java, Burma, India, Ceylon, Philippine Islands, Siam—including an appearance before the royal family of Siam. In all the Oriental countries which she has visited over a period of five years, she made intensive studies of native dances. In Java, where the art of dancing is restricted to those of high birth, she received instruction in Japanese dances in Djocjakarta from two princes, brothers of the sultan.

After completing her tour of the Orient, Mme. Mirova toured France, Belgium, Switzerland and Spain. She came to the United States in the fall of 1926, and was immediately engaged by Adolph Bolm as a guest-artist for his series of dance productions in Chicago. Her success was so pronounced that she was re-engaged for a second series. Mme Mirova had the honor of dancing for her majesty, the Queen of Roumania on the occasion of her visit to Chicago.

She is the artist which the Norwich Art association is bringing here, primarily to give Norwich a form of entertainment it has not seen in many years, although the proceeds of the recital are to be used to enable worthy art students to pursue their studies. Avail yourself of this opportunity which may not come again. Come and see her at the Masonic temple, tonight, Monday, Nov. 10th.—See adv.

Sarabande — Rameau Godowsky

The Sarabande, which dates from the 12th century, came into France from Spain. It is a solo dance making noble use of the arms, and is executed with a plastic relaxation of the body. (Dance by "The Kinneys")

Viennese Valtz — Strauss

L'homme Merchanique (Machine Age) — Prokofieff

Princess Dance (Java) — arr. by Seelig

Vera Mirova studied this dance at the court of the sultan of Java. As these dances are performed in Java only by the daughters of the sultan and princesses, they have the slow dignified movements of a court dance.

Play-at-War (Java) — arr. by Seelig

Hindu Dance, Folk Dance— arr. by Seelig

Vera Mirova studied this dance in Calcutta. Elements of a popular character are traceable in it, as only women of the lowest caste, "Nautch-Girls," are dancers in India.

Egyptian Dance — Franchetti

Two Snakes

Burmese Dance — arr. by Seelig

Studied in Rangoon, Burma, with the great Po-Sein.

The first three dances are Occidental dances and the rest are authentic dances of the Far East or impressions of the Orient. Costumes authentic.

MONEY AND WATCH STOLEN DURING NEW LONDON PARTY AT AUSTIN HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9—A sneak thief operated in the home of John G. Austin, 53 Beckwith street Saturday night. At 1 o'clock this morning, Austin informed the police that a robbery had occurred there. Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin investigated finding that the thief had stolen $50 and a gold watch and chain with a Masonic emblem. No clue was obtained that might lead to the identity of the thief. The strangest part of the theft is that a social affair was in progress in the house throughout the evening. The thief in order to perpetrate the robbery was compelled to go to the upper floor for the cash and the watch were taken from one of the sleeping rooms. None of the windows showed evidence of having been forced and so far as the investigation showed, the thief could only have entered the house through the rear door., which was unlocked. How the thief could have operated undetected with the party in progress is baffling the investigators.

Seek Frank Carlin

James Van Woeast, Bayonne, N. J., communicated with the New London police early today requesting that Frank Carlin be informed that his father had died during the night. Van Woeast said that Carlin was his brother-in-law and resided in Church street. An officer was detailed to carry out the request, but the latter was not known on Church street, neither is he a member of the United States coast guard or the navy.

Patrolman Walter O'Neil today reported at police headquarters that he had discovered the entrance to the cottage at 57 Boardwalk, Ocean Beach, open and that he had been unsuccessful in securing the entrance. Whether the cottage was entered by a thief or was left open by the owner is not known.

Melvin Nelson, U. S. coast guard, was arrested Saturday night at a State street dance hall where he created a disturbance. He was charged with breach of the peace, Nelson was given into the custody of a shore patrol and taken back to the state pier.

NORWICH-UNCASVILLE CARS ARE LOOTED

After a lapse of several weeks the type of thieves who steal from parked automobiles resumed activity Saturday night. Two cars were ransacked. C. D. Rhodes, 1 Ann street, Norwich, parked his auto on Huntington street and while he was absent, a theif stole a set of tools and several packages that had been left in the rear seat. Rhodes reported the theft at police headquarters.

Dr. Morton R. Fox, Uncasville, parked on the same street and when he returned to drive to his home the physician did not discover that his surgical case and medicine bag had been stolen. The discovery, however, was made this forenoon and then Dr. Fox reported his loss at headquarters.

Patrolman Anthony Turello discovered a window in the salesroom of the Thompson Chevrolet company, Huntington street, unlocked last night. The officer secured the window.

Patrolman George Bruhns found a side door at the C. F. Beach garage, 127 Howard street, unlocked Saturday night, also discovered a side window open at the second hand furniture store of Siff Brothers, 356 Bank street. Both business houses were secured.

Patrolman William Riordan found the entrance to the store of Gates & Beckwith, 51 Church street, unlocked and with the key in the door. The officer secured the entrance and left the key at police headquarters.

N. E. Nahass, 280 Main street, informed the police at 1 o'clock this morning that an unidentified person had hurled a stone through the window of his business establishment. An officer who was assigned to make an investigation was not successful in learning the identity of the stone-thrower.

FISHERS ISLAND BOATMAN BELIEVED TO HAVE DROWNED

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9—Anthony Jacobson, about 48, married and residing on Fishers Island, is believed to have been drowned Saturday off the island. The hatches of his fishing boat have been found, but no trace of the boat, which was observed in distress, neither has Jacobson returned to his home. With everything indicating that Jacobson has been lost, searching parties were engaged much of Saturday and all day today grappling for the body.

Jacobson is known to have gone to North Hills, in the vicinity of the island Saturday morning, presumably to pull lobster pots. His boat was observed by other fishermen at the fishing grounds and later the boat was seen to be in distress for the bow was partially submerged and the stern was high in the water.

A fisherman who saw the craft went to the island and obtained assistance, but when the intended rescue party returned to the location from which Jacobson's boat had been observed, there was no trace of it. The boat is believed to have sunk with the fisherman in it. The hatches were found floating, which bore out the theory that the boat and its owner had gone to the bottom. Immediately a number of fishermen started grappling in an endeavor to locate either the boat or Jacobson's body, but they were not rewarded with success. Today the work was resumed. Jacobson is among the most widely known fishermen on the island and was planning to go to Florida this month, a custom he has followed annually for several years.

WIFE CAUGHT ON FRIEND'S LAP SQUEALS ON HUSBAND

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 9.—Alfred Morin, ex-service man, residing at 19 Winthrop street, was arrested this evening charged with violation of the liquor law when his residence was raided following a fight between the liquor dispenser, his wife and her alleged sweetheart. Morin, familiarly known as "Frenchy," accompanied his children to a motion picture theatre during the afternoon and when he returned home he claims to have found his wife sitting on the knees of her affinity. Morin remonstrated with his wife and this led to a fistic battle between the husband and his wife's companion, with the result that Morin was severely beaten. Morin communicated with the police and Automobile Patrol Officers William Corcoran and Anthony Turello went to the house, where the husband and wife and the latter's friend were still occupants of the house. Mrs. Morin became enraged at the appearance of the police and openly accused her husband of being a liquor dispenser. She even led the officers to the attic and showed them an improvised beer garden and then revealed the hiding place of the liquor. Morin was arrested on two charges of violation of the law, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession. The whiskey, comprising about ten quarts, also a large quantity of beer, was seized and taken to police headquarters. Morin was released upon providing a surety on his bond of $1,000 and will be in the police court tomorrow.

Driver Locked Up

Francis W. Stevens, 33 Howard street, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolmen George Laboue and Henry Sylvia, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. He will be in court tomorrow morning. Stevens is locked up at police headquarters, for he was unable to obtain a surety on his bond of $150. Stevens was driving on Bank street, near Truman street, when the commercial truck of his employer crashed against a Chevrolet auto driven by Bernard J. Narcott, of Benham road, Groton. The latter auto was completely wrecked. Patrolmen Laboue and Sylvia were near and, following their investigation, arrested Stevens.

SAILORS ARRESTED FOR RIDING "BLIND BAGGAGE"

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 9—L. A. Humphrey and J. P. Zypowski, youthful sailors attached to the U. S. S. Florida, now at the Philadelphia Navy yard, were locked up Sunday night at the Westerly police station as the result of their attempt to steal a ride on the New Haven railroad. Their arrest at the junction of Canal and Pleasant streets, followed their bolt for freedom when pursued by Westerly Police Patrolman Paul McCarthy. Lieut. David Marks of the New Haven railroad police sent word to Westerly police authorities that the sailors were occupying the blind end of a baggage car attached to the coal tender on the eastbound Colonial express, at the New London station Officer McCarthy was detailed to the Westerly station as a "reception committee" for the sailors when the express train made the Westerly station stop of 4:57 p. m.

The young sailors, who had joined the navy with the ostensible purpose of seeing the world, saw the officer on the station platform and immediately hopped off the train and started for the Pierce street section of the town. Officer McCarthy commandered an automobile and started after the pair who were making tracks down Canal street. When overtaken they were placed in a mail truck and taken to the police station.

At the Westerly police station the sailors declared that they had a seven-day furlough and were bound to their homes, the address of one being given as 160 Goffstown road, Manchester, N. H. Naval authorities were communicated with by Police Lieutenant George H. Champlin who verified the fact that the men were on furlough and not A. W. O. L. They are being held in Westerly to await action by the New Haven railroad police or word from the naval authorities.

NATIONAL BUILDING SHOWS MARKED INCREASE

Prospective building conditions throughout the entire United States showed improvement in September over the preceding month, according to official reports of building permits issued in 577 leading cities and towns, as made to S. W. Straus & Co.

The volume of permits for September was $168,254,846 compared with $161,609,331 in August—a gain of 4 per cent. This gain is all the more significant in view of the fact that normal seasonal factors call for a decline of more than 9 1-2 per cent. between the two months.

The September figures were 23 per cent. below those of September last year, when the volume was $218,009,891. However, this is a substantial improvement over the 37 per cent. loss in August and indicates that building is continuing the steady upward climb toward normal, which, with but few interruptions, has been going on since early this spring.

Records of past years show that building permits precede actual construction operations by between three and five months. If this precedent continues in the present situation, a distinct increase in actual building activities should possibly be experienced throughout the country sometime between December and March. Such a revival in construction might well be the basis of an improvement in business conditions generally.

Encouraging Factor

An encouraging factor in the situation last month was that whatever declines in building permits have been registered appear to be spread over the smaller communities, while the bigger cities are more than holding their own. For example, New York city fell only $2,000,000 behind September last year, while Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Jersey City, Albany, Portland, Ore., Dallas, Houston and other leading cities showed a pronounced gain over the same month last year.

The Straus index of building permits registered a 4 per cent. increase in September over August, in spite of the fact that the seasonal factor based on the period from 1923 to 1929 called for a decline of 9.7 per cent. between those months. September, 1930, furthermore, is the first month since July, 1929, that the Straus index has exceeded the calculated line of trend. It should be remembered in this connection, however, that this line of trend is based on the trend of building permits since 1923. This trend has been downward since the middle of 1926, and for September, 1930, was 25 per cent. under July, 1929. The return toward the line of trend which began in April of this year has been twice interrupted by declines in June and August.

The twenty-five cities throughout the country which reported the largest volume of building permits for the month as a group registered a 29 per cent. gain over August, 1930, and a 7 per cent. loss from September, 1929. The volume of permits in the twenty-five cities in September was $101,132,905 compared with $78,628,443 in August, 1930, and $109,181,062 in September 1929.

Unemployment in the building trades as reported by the American Federation of Labor was 38 per cent. for the month of September. This is an improvement of 1 per cent. over August. Figures for unemployment from the same source for union members of all trades likewise improved 1 per cent. Unemployment in the building trades is still 17 per cent. greater than the composite for all trades.

Demand for building materials continued light in September. Changes in material prices were local. Atlanta dealers raised the prices of Portland cement, sand, gravel, crushed stone, hollow tile and common brick.

Construction in New England

Construction contracts awarded in New England during September showed gains over both the preceding month and September, 1929, according to F. W. Dodge corporation. Awards during the past month totaled $35,309,800 as compared with $28,167,500 in August and $34,397,700 in September, 1929. For the year to date new construction undertaken in this territory was valued at $278,214,900 as against $312,247,900 in the corresponding nine months of 1929. The September, 1930, contract record showed $17,146,100 for non-residential building, $11,348,600 for residential building, and $6,915,100 for public works and utilities. Of the non-residential total, $6,627,400 was for new educational buildings, $2,428,000 for industrial plants and $2,276,600 for commercial structures. All other non-residential building contracts totaled $5,814,100 in September.

Connecticut

September contracts for new construction in Connecticut totaled $5,359,900 as compared with $5,461,800 in August and $6,048,000 in September, 1929. Contracts let during the first nine months of 1930 totaled $71,448,800 as compared with $89,200,900 in the corresponding period of 1929. The past month's contract record showed residential building at $3,183,500; non-residential building, principally commercial, at $1,180,000, and public works and utilities with $996,400.

SHOULD INCLUDE CEILING IN DECORATIVE PLAN

The successful room is one that has complete balance. It is hard, therefore, to understand the utter indifference that has been shown in maintaining the ceiling as part of the general decoration of a room—difficult to explain how the custom of staring white calcimined ceilings ever came into being.

It is true that a white ceiling reflects light, but so do all light colors. And they do more. For instance, an apple blossom pink ceiling will give off light, but at the same time will diffuse a warm glow throughout the room. What a pity, then, that we should deprive ourselves unnecessarily of the cheerful atmosphere of the right color.

Of course the color should be regulated by the quality of light that comes into the room, either artificially or through the sun's rays. A room that lacks the sun will need the high reflective qualities of cream, yellow, buff or a delicate pink, but the room that is naturally bright may be a pale green, light blue, or even a delicate gray overhead.

Ordinarily the ceiling color should blend in with the walls. One of the best arrangements is to use a much lighter shade of the wall color. For example, if your walls are painted green, light green is excellent for the ceiling, or if the walls and woodwork are of warm gray, a pale gray will blend in very nicely from the ceiling. Sometimes it is possible to use contrasting colors harmoniously, such as a pale maize ceiling above sky blue walls.

There are exceptions, however, to the rule that the ceiling should be lighter in color than the walls. In the case of an extremely high ceiling, a warm "advancing" color, several tones darker than the wall, will appear to reduce the height of the room.

Where the ceiling is too low for the spirit of the room, ivory is a good color to use, but in modern houses a feeling of warmth is desirable. Therefore, the formal atmosphere should be avoided. In a large room, a plain one-tone ceiling is likely to suggest bareness and frigidity, and it is better to break up the space by some such method as paneling with a narrow and simple stencil border, about a foot in from the wall. Of if the ceiling area is excessively large, it may be broken up into stenciled panels. Sponge-mottled and blended treatments offer further suggestions for ceiling decoration. If the colors prominent in the general decorative scheme are repeated in the ceiling, this will tie it up with the rest of the room.

The beamed ceiling may be painted or stained to match the woodwork. If embellishment is desired, an interesting pattern may be stenciled on the beams in colors appropriate to the motif of the design.

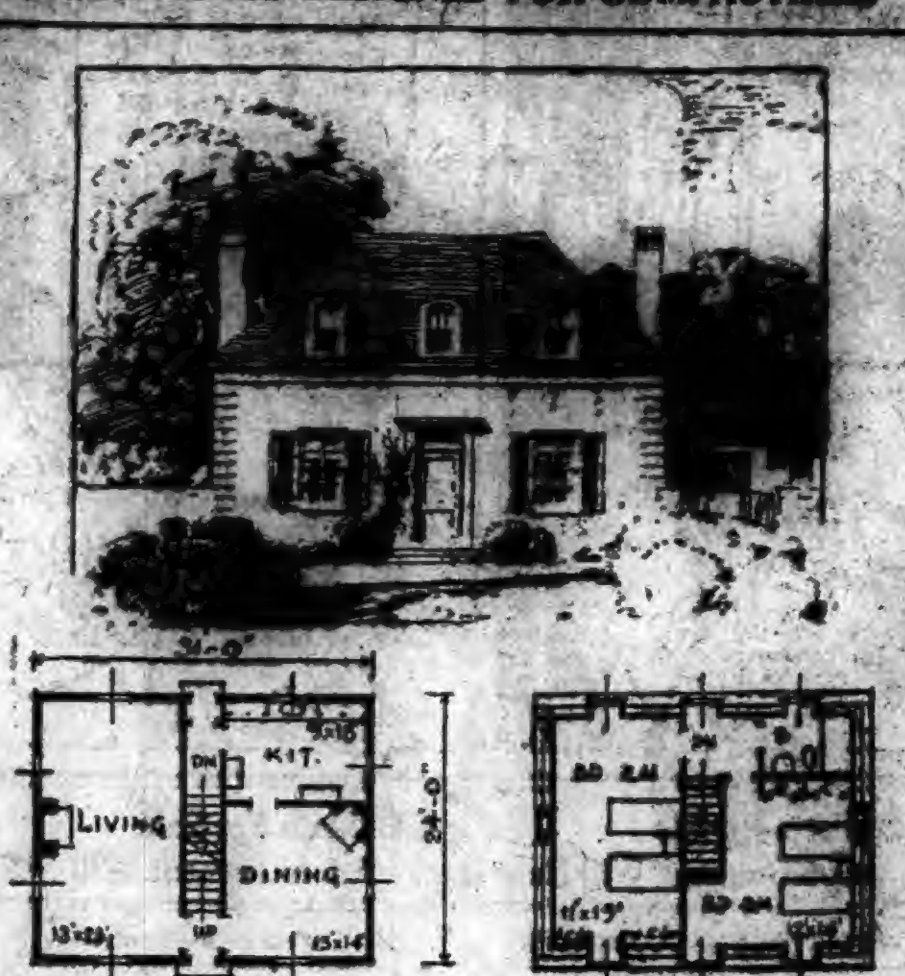
Directions for painting ceilings, including surface preparation and finishes, are the same as for walls. Gloss paints, however, are not satisfactory for ceiling work, for they have the property of giving reflections of the light sources and are consequently hard on the eyes.

If you have felt at all dissatisfied with any of the rooms in your house and can find no outstanding reason for the fault, look to the ceiling. Consider it as one of the important parts of the room and study its decoration very carefully. If it is out of key with the decorative scheme, its inappropriateness will be felt, even though the trouble may not be recognized at first glance.

A USEFUL BOOK

The book, "Appraising The Home," recently published by Dr. Horace F. Clark, Ph.D., for the American Savings Building and Loan Institute, is the first complete publication on home valuation, according to a review of the work by Philip Lieber of Shreveport, La., which was published in the September issue of the American Building association "News." Mr. Lieber says that this volume, which will be used as a text book in the institute, should be of interest to all home buyers. Laymen can use Dr. Clarke's book to evaluate their own homes.

BRICK HOUSE DESIGNED FOR COMPACTNESS



Designed for a small family that desires a home of quiet, simple dignity, this plan is suitable for a small lot and may be built at comparatively low cost.

It is a study in compactness. A lot 50 by 100 feet would be ample, although a larger lot should be chosen if it is desired to add wings later—and the plan is arranged so this may be done.

Preferably the house should face east, and for its exterior white-washed brick is recommended, with limestone quoins at the corners and chimneys of limestone veneer, with white exterior wood trim and door.

Green shutters lend the desired color note, and although the windows are [illegible] along the center strip gives them the feeling of casement types. The roof should be of tile or slate and blue-gray.

There is a large living room of 12 by 23 feet downstairs, in addition to the dining room and kitchen. Upstairs there are two bedrooms and a bath. With slight rearrangement on the second floor three rooms might be provided.

Developed from the 19th century French country house, the design is such as to be suited to almost any locality in the country.

In most communities this house might be built at some figure between $8,000 and $10,000, the exact cost of course varying with materials chosen and labor expense.

WOULD YOU PAINT YOUR FIREPLACE?

Somebody recently suggested that an attractive way of brightening up the smudgy interior of a fireplace is to cover the surface of the brick with light paint.

True enough, such treatment obviously would brighten up its appearance; but, so far as that's concerned, who wants to brighten up the interior of a fireplace? And, once brightened up, how long would it remain that way if the family continued to make practical use of it?

This business of having bright and shiny fireplaces isn't anything to exert universal appeal. The average man and woman with a fireplace in the house naturally want to light an occasional fire in it. They may not play the feature to death—possibly it may be used merely to take the chill off the room in early fall and late spring—but they want it for combustion purposes when occasion requires.

Accordingly, there seems to be no special need for keeping the interior brickwork spick and span. In fact, many a man and woman are hard put to it for ways and means of giving the firepice brick that thoroughly burned look one finds in the veteran fireplaces of old houses. There is no particular need for tolerating an untidy fireplace, but there also seems to be no valid reason why it should be kept as spotless as the traditional Dutch kitchen.

FOUNDATION WALL NEEDS BE STURDY

The primary function of a foundation wall is to support the superstructure, while holding back the earth from the cellar. Sturdiness is of major importance, the wall being concealed by the earth below the grade line.

A part of the foundation will extend above grade, however, and the treatment of the exterior face of this portion should be considered. A masonry house looks best if the material with which the first floor is finished extends down to the grade line. This is true particularly of stone, brick, etc., which are of a structural nature.

The frame house presents a different problem. It is not practical to build too near the ground with wood because of the danger of rot. The foundation wall of a frame house may be from one foot to three or four feet high. The material most commonly used for foundation walls under a frame house is concrete black. Some of these have a rock surface, but in the majority of instances the exterior is covered with a Portland cement plaster. This finish may be gray or colored. Another material which is effectual with a material which is effectual with a frame house is the foundation of brick.

A stucco house often needs the plaster finish carried down to grade to carry out the monolithic impression intended. Where the upper part of the house is frame with the stucco on metal lath the joint between the frame and the masonry wall must be strongly reinforced to prevent cracks with the settling and shrinkage of the lumber. Plaster on foundation walls should consist of Portland cement and sand. Manufactured stuccoes cannot usually be depended upon to successfully resist action of ground moisture.

The foundation wall should satisfy the eye as to its ability to support the superstructure.

EASE AND COMFORT NEEDED

The living room should be a pleasing combination of formality and livableness. As this is the center of the household's life and the place where hospitality is first extended, the decorations should be dignified and afford the maximum of comfort and ease. A restful color scheme is advisable and furnishings sufficiently practical to withstand the wear and tear of constant usage by a number of people.

REINFORCED BRICKWORK

Manifestly all the possibilities of masonry construction have not been exhausted. Reinforced brickwork, while it isn't by any means a new departure, has never been utilized in America to any considerable extent. Yet it seems to be suited to a wide variety of important uses.

In several cities it is being tried out in a practical way. In every instance it promises to live up to all that has been claimed for it. And builders, architects and engineers are all evincing more than a passing interest in its development.

Mrs. Rosebud Ettlinger is a student in the class of her husband, Dr. H. T. Ettlinger, University of Texas mathematics instructor.

INTERIOR CAN BE FIXED IN WINTER

During the winter months home owners can begin or carry on their modernizing operations by bringing the interior of their homes up-to-date. An organized program to attain this goal might well be started by scheduling the work with due regard for the household budget and the amount of time afforded to it.

If each home owning family could arrange to advance one step toward the perfection of their home each month, definite progress would be seen at the end of the winter when exterior improvements could be started.

There are numerous small items within the home which can be replaced or remodelled to add an air of newness and beauty. Among these are window shades—necessary and so noticeable to the stranger entering the dwelling. Washable shades in various colors and designs are now being widely used in homes. These are particularly attractive in bedroom, bath, kitchen and nursery.

PLACE FLOOR LAMPS FOR BEAUTY AND LIGHT

If lamps are to be fully enjoyed as auxiliaries to the stationary ceiling fixtures and wall brackets in a home, considerable forethought must be given to their arrangement. Poorly placed lamps provide inefficient illumination and spoil artistic efects. It is quite a simple matter to combine the two features—beauty and economy—in a well-lighted room.

A standing lamp placed between a desk and an easy chair can be utilized by two persons. A table lamp on top of the radio can be used also for reading as well as for lighting radio dials.

Lighting the low-ceilinged room is no longer a problem. Prismatic reflectors hidden beneath the lamp shade will diffuse the rays of light, giving general illumination throughout the room.

REFORESTATION HURT BY TIMBER PRICE DROP

Private reforestation is receiving a serious setback throughout New England, because of the catastrophic decline in the value of timber and out-of-date tax assessments.

In a recent conference of timberland owners, foresters, lumbermen and state officials at Keene, New Hampshire, it was revealed that white pine timber which was commonly worth $10 a thousand feet on the stump, and sometimes sold for as high as $25 in 1920, is worth less than $3 now. But the tax assessors are continuing to assess the forest lands on the basis of 1920 timber prices. The consequence of oppressive taxation is forcing all white pine timber owners in the state to sacrifice their holdings. It is said that practically every tract of pine in the state is for sale at ruinous prices. Unless the town assessors promptly respond to the efforts of the state tax commission to bring about a reassessment of stumpage, reforestation, which has made much progress in New Hampshire, is doomed.

In view of this practical situation, scattering remarks by academic foresters about the necessity of compelling reforestation and discouraging forest exploitation fall on deaf ears.

DETAILS IMPORTANT IN BATHROOM DESIGN

Bathrooms are generally much alike, yet the details play their part.

A mirror above the basin, and not on the adjacent wall, is a step saver in shaving; one light on the ceiling is not enough — in addition there should be one light over the mirror or two at the sides. A double outlet for the electric heater and toilet accessories is always worth pointing out.

The handy man who puts his own washers on the leaky faucets looks for a cut-off valve on each water line in the bathroom. Of course there is a shower either in a stall or in the tub, and if the latter it should have a flexible head and be placed at the end of the tub.

At the end of a bedroom closet with a window he put a hand bowl with a mirror and light. This allowed the man of the house to shave in peace, meanwhile allowing the remainder of the family to use the bathroom.

CHEAP WINDOW SHADE IS JUST CHEAP ARTICLE

It must be generally admitted by this time that cheap window shades prove to be the most expensive in the end. In the stores they look fully as inviting as the more expensive and substantial types, but after they have been run up and down a few dozen times they show clearly why they can be purchased at so low a cost.

Some of these cheap varieties crack and tear as if made of paper and the suspicion persists that they must be made of this material. An extra tug and one finds the wood stick reinforcement at the bottom has torn clear of the shade itself, while up and down through the body of the shade cracks begin to appear which in a short time become open tears. Accordingly, within a few months at most they have outlived their usefulness—if they ever had any—and are in a condition where common decency demands that they be replaced.

On the other hand, shades which cost perhaps 50 per cent more will last for years. They are equipped with fixtures which operate easily and consistently and the material used is firm enough to stand a constant succession of ups and downs for years without showing much wear. In time, of course, even these become soiled or else deteriorate as even the best of materials must do eventually, but by that time they will have paid for themselves many times over.

Incidentally, it might be added that several of these high-grade types of window shades now are made of washable materials. That disconcerting dust line which forms about midway of its length and marks the conventional height to which it is lifted, can be scrubbed off every now and then without having the curtain suffer in consequence. Tests have shown that this washable material wears fully as long as the old tried-and-found-true variety of grandmother's day. In addition, having been made washable, this very fact makes them much more fade-proof than the old variety, which is merely another point in the favor.

WHITE SHADES BEST FOR KITCHEN LIGHTS

The center of the kitchen should be well lighted with a 100-watt lamp, either frosted or covered with a dense milk-white shade to prevent glare. Not less than a 100-watt lamp should be used in a kitchen enclosing unit. The milky white shade may have flowery decorations. All this makes the kitchen a delightful place, as it should be. The average woman who ministers to the wants of her family spends a lot of time in it. She can raise her efficiency and add to her joy of living, by surrounding herself with equipment which is not only the acme of efficiency but which delights her sense of the artistic.

Wall brackets, too, are being used to advantage in the domestic workshop of the home. They concentrate light on equipment which is in constant use, such as the range, the sink and kitchen cabinets.

COLORS SHOULD BE LIGHT AND DELICATE

A rule for bedrooms is to keep the colors light and delicate. Dark rich colors in a bedroom even for a man are out of place. For a man's room they may be simple and the lines of the furniture and draperies even severe, but do not think it necessary to paper his walls in brown and use velour and damask for his curtains.

The bedroom is an informal homelike room. It should have light pleasing colors, rather delicate designs, though crisp and clear in color, draperies and upholstery of silk, dotted swiss, cretonne, linen or glazed chintz, softly shaded lights, and either plain carpets, woven wool or old fashioned rag rugs. Oriental rugs unless unusually light and clear in color are out of place in the ordinary small home bedroom.

SHOULD BE SATISFIED WITH GOOD REPRODUCTIONS

A family recently erected a new home of the New England colonial type and furnished it throughout with furnishings fully in keeping. Friends were frank in their admiration, both of the house and its furnishings, and were equally frank in their expressions of amazement that the owners could have found these beautiful antiques in such perfect state of preservation.

The couple laughed and stated, frankly and without apology, that the house did not contain a single stick of antique furniture.

"All of these pieces you see are reproductions," the woman of the house explained. "They are faithful reproductions, to be sure, but it is probable that everything we have has been manufactured during the past year or two. We couldn't afford genuine antiques and in addition to that we wanted something which we and the children could use without being in constant fear of having them collapse. After all, does it matter much whether your colonial pieces are originals or faithful reproductions?"

The answer seems to be that it doesn't matter in the least. They have their colonial home, and it is colonial in every particular. The woodwork, recently milled, looks as if it had been in place for generations. The wallpapers are splendid reproductions of venerable old French and Swiss patterns which may be found in scores of old New England houses of the late 18th century, while even the rugs and drapes are suggestive of that rich period in American home-making when beauty of line and material blended perfectly to give a wholesome home atmosphere.

What has been done along these lines by a few can be done by anyone who desires this sort of thing. Builders, modern cabinet makers, furniture manufacturers, and present-day drapers and house decorators have simplified scores of home building problems which but a few years ago were all but insurmountable. Along with these efforts have come material reductions in relative costs, until it is possible to reproduce a home of virtually any type or period and furnish it throughout at a cost consistent with moderate circumstances.

A thorough and careful survey of the whole field is possible if one will spare sufficient time. One may secure unlimited literature on these various subjects and make a thorough, leisurely study of one's tastes and needs, before an architect is consulted or an interior decorator or home furnisher is approached. This is what these friends did, their first home plans dating back to a time when circumstances would not permit them even to hope that they would ever be able to build, decorate and furnish such a home. Yet, when their circumstances improved and the day came when the means were available, they knew exactly what they wanted and they proceeded to go out and get it. Consequently, they are quite satisfied with the results, as anyone might be in similar circumstances.

THATCHED ROOF GOOD

The real thatched roof is cool in summer and warm in winter, being a non-conductor of heat and cold and having air spaces between thatching layers. It is very light in weight, requiring few battens and no sheathing.

TEXTILE STRIKE TO BE SUBJECT OF CONFERENCE

DANVILLE, Va., Nov. 9.—(AP)—Danville's textile labor strike, entering its seventh week, will be the subject of a conference at Washington tomorrow between William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, union officials here announced.

While Gorman, who has been active here in strengthening the organization of the approximately 4,000 strikers, is conferring with the national labor leader, alleged law violations in connection with the strike will be heard in court here.

Several cases involving "unlawful assembly" and alleged intimidation of non-union workers are docketed for the corporation court. In each instance where a striker was convicted in police court on either charge, the case was appealed.

During the last week union officials have reiterated their willingness to meet H. R. Fitzgerald, president of the mills, in a conference concerning the strike. Fitzgerald had declined to negotiate with the national union.

An emergency committee on strike relief is engaged in raising money from outside sources to aid the strikers and their families during the winter.

The regular work of the mills has been suspended since the strike began September 29.

LINER ALBERT BALLIN DELAYED BY HURRICANES

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Tossed by hurricanes in the mid-Atlantic, the Albert Ballin of the Hamburg-American line arrived at her New York berth today, one day late. She brought 456 passengers.

Among them were Dr. Edmund Rumpler, German airplane designer, and Mrs. Alexandria Victoria Rueman, portrait painter, who was born Princess of Schleswig-Holstein and who was the wife of Prince Frederick August of Germany, son of the former Kaiser.

Dr. Rumpler brought a model of a flying-boat which he hopes will be able to cross the Atlantic in 24 hours carrying 170 passengers, a craft with a greater speed capacity than the DO-X, which is being prepared for a transatlantic flight.

The plane, which Dr. Rumpler hopes will be completed in about a year and a half, will have a wing spread of 260 feet. Engines of 10,000 horsepower would be placed in the wings.

MAKE-UP OF CONGRESS FOR THE SHORT TERM SESSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—A shift favorable to the democrats in both branches of the present congress resulted from Tuesday's elections which filled existing unexpired terms.

Six new senators and 14 new representatives were elected to take their respective places in the senate and house when they convene for the short term December 1.

Of the incoming senators, three represent a net gain for the democrats. In the house, however, the republicans lost only two of their nine vacant seats to the democrats. The democrats filled five of their own.

The new senate line-up will consist of 52 republicans, 42 democrats and one farmer labor, as compared to the present of 56 republicans, 39 democrats and one farmer labor.

In the house the republicans will have 267 seats, the democrats 167, and farmer labor 1, as compared with the present of 260 republicans, 160 democrats and 1 farmer labor, and 14 vacancies.

A ferry service in operation for 100 years has been replaced by a $240,000 bridge over the Trinity river near Madisonville, Tex.

MAGNETIC STORMS WORST IN NORTHERN LATITUDES

PASADENA, Cal. —(AP)— Magnetic storms expend most of their fury in northern latitudes.

These storms are magnetic disturbances believed to emanate from the sun, which bring on northern lights, interrupted telegraph circuits and disturbances of compasses.

In south temperate and tropical latitudes, says a Carnegie institution report, there is a sharp drop in magnetic activity of the storms.

Stars' Surface Temperatures.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The surface temperatures of stars range from 41,000 degrees Fahrenheit to 2,900 degrees. These are actual measurements made with a super-sensitive thermocouple perfected by Dr. Edison Pettit and Dr. Seth B. Nicholson of Carnegie institution.

RICHEST DEBS WAIT THEIR FIRST 'SEASON'

Barbara Hutton and Doris Duke (inset), America's richest debutantes, will make their bows to society in New York this winter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—Two of America's richest heiresses are making their bows to New York society this winter in the splendor which wealth bestows.

Doris Duke, golden-haired and blue-eyed, who inherits from her father, James B. Duke, tobacco magnate, a fortune variously estimated from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000, has already stepped into the limelight with a presentation at Buckingham palace and an initial debut at her family estate in Newport this summer.

Barbara Hutton, dark-haired granddaughter of Frank W. Woolworth, and heiress to the estimated $60,000,000 which he gleamed from a chain of nickel and dime emporiums, will make her first bow December 22, at a ball in the new Hotel Pierre in New York.

Both have been quietly, though luxuriously, reared; both are 18; both possess simplicity and charm of manner and both will move in a brilliant spotlight on which the eyes of the world are focused.

The spotlight flashed on Doris Duke five years ago with her father's death when, as a slim girl of thirteen, she became known as the heiress to the vast wealth which he founded on tobacco and increased in the aluminum industry.

A Fifth avenue home, appraised with its contents at $1,600,000, a 2,000 acre estate at Somerville, N. J., the family home " Rough Point" at Newport, R. I., a private Pullman car with "Doris" gilded on the panelling, motor cars and horses were among the things included in that wealth.

Yet, a few months later, when she and her mother sailed for Europe, they selected a first cabin, entirely lacking the ostentation of a suite. Camera men, who hadn't the ghost of an idea who she was, were attracted by the girl's smile as she watched celebrities being photographed before departure and asked to take her picture. They discovered her identity only when that ceremony was over.

Doris Duke's love is sports. She swims, plays tennis, and as a child dashed up and down the New Jersey country roads on a Shetland pony, which is now replaced by a gaited saddle horse. Recently she joined a dancing class with other sub debs and could be found several mornings a week clogging away for dear life.

Last spring she donned white satin gown and ostrich feathers and made her bow before King George and Queen Mary.

Then came her debut at her home in Newport. A large marquee, lined with smilax and hung with baskets of golden gladioli, received the 600 guests, while trees and gardens were flooded with colored lights and searchlights played over the waves that broke against the shore near her home.

This winter she will join a throng of almost 300 debutantes and will be the guest of honor at a number of the festivities which go to make the New York debutante season the gayest in America.

Barbara Hutton stepped into the limelight four years ago when her trustees, acting for her, sold 50,000 shares ($10,000,000 worth) of common stock in the Woolworth company, which she had inherited from the grandfather who started his first five-and-ten-cent store on a borrowed $350. It constituted one of the largest private stock transactions which Wall street had ever seen and interest focused on the young girl in whose name the sale was made.

During her sub-deb days she has lived quietly, but this fall her father and stepmother—her mother died a few years ago—are deep in plans for her debutante festivities, which start with a whirl three days before Christmas.

PARLIAMENT WILL MAKE DESERT MARRIAGE LEGAL

CANBERRA, Nov. 9—(AP)—Aid of the Australian federal parliament has been invoked to ratify the marriage of a couple living on the fringe of the Great Australian desert in the center of the continent.

Six months ago a clergyman from the state of Queensland visited the lonely outpost and was eagerly sought by a young boundary rider who was in love with a settler's daughter. The marriage was celebrated and then followed a gay wedding feast of wild turkey, kangaroo tail soup and a ham which had been carried hundreds of miles by camel teams.

Since then the clergyman has discovered that his power to marry did not extend beyond the borders of Queensland and parliament will have to make the marriage "regular."

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A little chopped parsley added to baked cold meat improves the flavor.

Never leave medicine or any kind of drink uncovered in a sick room.

To keep cheese fresh, dampen a cloth in vinegar, wring dry, and wrap it around the cheese. Keep in a cool place.

Dip the bristles of a hair brush into milk after brush has been washed in soap and water. Bristles will then be stiff.

You will have very light and flaky mashed potatoes if you add a teaspoon of baking powder with the milk in mashing them.

Before putting the stew pan on the fire, rub some laundry soap over the bottom several times, and when washed, the black will come off easily.

To prevent the scattering of crumbs when running bread through the food chopper, fasten a paper bag over the opening of the chopper with a rubber band.

Save all fruit parings. Put on to boil with water to cover for 10 or 15 minutes, and then strain. These juices make a foundation for delicious fruit drinks.

A dustless duster can be made by saturating a piece of cheesecloth in a solution of two tablespoonfuls of kerosene in a quart of hot water. When cold hang out to dry.

If not convinced that new shoes will fit or prove satisfactory, slip an old pair of stockings over them and wear around the house. If it is then desired to return the shoes the soles will not be soiled.

When making fresh apple pie add one level tablespoon of the quick kind of tapioca to the sugar and the juice will be taken up with it. The same stands good with blueberry pie.

If, when making coffee, you run short of milk a good substitute is to beat up an egg and put a little in each cup with a little milk. You will find this greatly improves the coffee.

Soiled oil mops are very untidy to handle or to leave standing around. Secure a tin bucket with lid, large enough to hold the mop. Cut a hole in the center of the lid, put mop in the bucket and slip lid down over the handle.

When adding dates to mixtures to be cooked soak dates in enough water to cover them, remove the stones and the dates will be soft and blend well with the other ingredients.

FOR HOUSE PLANTS

Don't water the tops of your ferns. Pour the water around the pot in a deep dish and let the earth soak it up through the bottom of the pot.

FIRST AID FOR SANDWICHES

A very clever sandwich board resembles the regular bread-board upon one side, but turn it over, and a depression is disclosed. This is meant for the filling, for which a small chopper is provided. It is easy to slip the filling from the hole onto the slices of bread.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Never use hard water for damping hair that is to be water-waved.

After washing dishes or doing work about the house which has a tendency to dry the skin rub the hands with your favorite hand lotion or a good cold cream.

Drinking milk with your meals and between meals, taking an extra pat of butter, using cream generously on your cereals and desserts and selecting creamed soups will help you to increase your weight.

Sixty grains of sulphur mixed with one ounce of vaseline and applied every other night to the scalp with massage is an excellent dandruff remedy. If the dandruff is excessive, wash the hair twice a week.

WHEN STRINGING BEADS

When stringing beads it will strengthen the thread if it is lightly waxed before using, and also enable it to slip more easily through the beads. In many sewing kits may be found a bit of wax in fancy mold that will serve this purpose.

SOMETHING NEW

Very new indeed is a nightgown of crepe de chine with a very full skirt composed of one flounce set upon another and reaching to the ankles. The deep "V" neck is outlined with Alencon lace as are the roomy armholes. A sash ties snugly about a somewhat high waistline.

LADYLIKE COLORS

It isn't sufficient that the slips and chemises, the nightgowns and bloomers, should be of some such material as crepe satin garnished with yards of lace. The colors should be ladylike tints, such as petal pink, dawn and tea rose.

CRYSTAL JEWELRY REMAINS IN VOGUE

The question of whether or not crystal jewelry would retain its popularity with the fall season is answered in part at least by the appearance of a crystal bouquet in autumn colorings. The crystal flowers in several colors are hung from a strand of small dull crystal beads. The light accents made possible by crystal jewelry will be clever additions to the dark fall frock.

BLACK SATIN

A very engaging dinner frock for early autumn is of black satin, with two pointed trains lined with pink. The neckline is very cleverly cut, with points that meet at the back of the neck, while the front is loose enough to show the pink lining.

DICTATES OF FASHION

New off-the-face hats include tricornes and bicornes.

Bronze footwear has been revived with reasonable chances of success.

Pleats are being featured in sports, street, afternoon and evening dresses.

Afternoon gowns embroidered at the neckline and on the sleeves are shown at smart shops.

Quills, but more especially soft feather fancies, are being introduced on the long side of a hat.

There is no smarter fall costume than the new fur jacket worn with its matching dress or skirt and blouse.

New very large chiffon handkerchiefs have exquisite blurry patterns that reproduce old Indian and Persian designs.

FLAT FURS

This is to be a winter when flat furs of all type take precedence over the fluffy pelts that have ruled for several seasons past. They are handled like fabric and in addition to being used for coats appear as collar cuffs and bands appear as colcpTHTH AR AA bands on cloth coats. Persian lamb, flat caracul, krimmer are among the favorites.

HOSIERY SHADES

Whether you are a turf fan or not you will be interested to hear that a new hosiery color for fall is named Gallant Fox. It is a taupe with a very slight light mauve cast. Darker shades are endorsed for fall hosiery than have been worn for several seasons. Gunmetal returns to the scene and there are many dark neutral shades.

GIRDLES SHOULD HOLD TO WAISTLINE

Whether it's a daytime or an evening gown, the waistline should be marked by a belt. Heavy beaded belts adorn the evening frock. Twisted girdles are reminiscent of the Greek and are worn with this type of gown. Jeweled buckles and linked belts accent many frocks. For daytime wear there are clever leather belts and an increasing number of metal girdles.

WHITE FOR EVENING

The recent openings in Paris prove that white remains the most important shade for evening wear. Black is also much in evidence and turquoise blue has many sponsors.

BROWN WOOL CREPE

A very smart gown for early fall wear is of wool crepe in a becoming shade of brown. The dress is made on the lines of a coat frock, with the surplice collar and cuffs outlined by a tiny band of white pique. The skirt has two flounces of wide pleats.

LAUNDRY HINTS

To make a starch that will not stick, stir a pinch of borax into boiling water and add it to the starch with a few drops of bluing.

Tar stains may be removed from cotton fabrics by covering the spot with butter and allowing it to remain for a few hours before washing.

To wash a flannel skirt soak it in cold water overnight, so it will not shrink. Then wash it in warm water and put in a very little borax. Rinse in cold water and dry in a good wind. When almost dry iron on the wrong side.

Wash chamois in tepid soapsuds. Use one or two changes of suds until the chamois is perfectly clean. Rinse in tepid water. Squeeze (do not wring) and hang in the sun. Snap it and pull it until it is perfectly dry.

WASHING RUGS

The best way to wash fabric rugs is to immerse them in lukewarm soapsuds, plunging them up and down until the colors appear fresh and undimmed. Two or more soap baths and several rinsings may be necessary to loosen the dirt and carry it away. The rugs should be squeezed without wringing or run through a clothes wringer and then hung over the line to dry.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Nova Scotia now grants allowances to mothers with dependent children.

Dairymaids in Norway live all summer alone while watching cows on highland grass slopes.

Miss Emma Lee, aged 18, of Tekamah, Neb., recently listened to a radio set for 84 hours without sleeping.

Mme. Krestinski, wife of the soviet ambassador to Germany, is a physician in a charity hospital in Berlin.

An exhibition of fencing with the ancient halberd was given in Tokio, Japan, recently by two women, Marchioness Teiko Yamanouchi and Mrs. Hideo Sonobe.

Because the art of home-making has declined so much in recent years, according to Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, wife of the inventor, she is urging women to return to homemaking and to pay less heed to the allurements of professional and business careers.

TO IRON NAPKINS

No matter what size a napkin may be, the first fold should be through the center with selvage edges together. This is the way the manufacturer folds them as they leave his looms. The corners of all napkins should be absolutely true. Iron damask linen napkins on the wrong side first. Then turn and iron on the right side until perfectly dry. Fold selvages together and iron across from hem to hem. Bring directly above the full length of the selvages and iron on both sides. Now bring hemmed edges together, ironing flat. Fold over again to form a square. If there is a monogram it should be on top.

Small napkins with lace or embroidered edges are folded with the selvages together—you can determine the selvage edge of the material by the way the threads run. They are usually folded then to form a square and if another fold is needed and the corner is heavily embroidered a diagonal fold from corner to corner, making the final shape a triangle is good.

CHINA PIECES ARE MUCH IN MODE

You may have wondered whether porcelain Fidos and china Rovers have had their day. But no, decorative animals are still very much in the mode. Of course, dogs are not the only creatures to hold a place of honor on the mantlepiece or the whatnot. There are playful pussies, birds of all kinds, sportive little horses, plain and polka-dotted, and even goats and lambs. And elephants are never forgotten as decorative pieces.

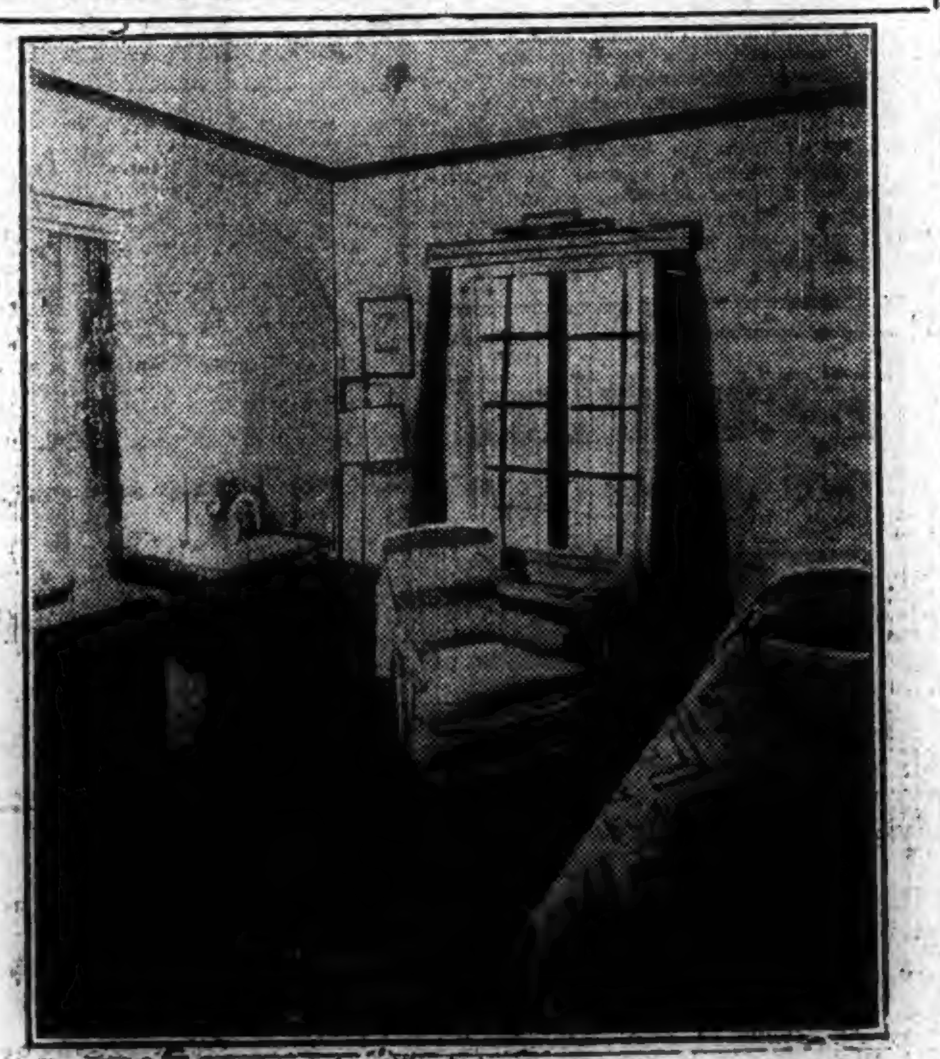
AN OCCASIONAL CHAIR

For an occasional chair which one always needs why not get a lyre back chair of walnut or mahogany—copied from a beautiful old museum piece—and of course at a fraction of the cost of the original.

WASHING PAINTED METAL

With the increased interest in simple modernistic furniture, painted metal pieces are enjoying a vogue. Beds, wardrobes, tables, chairs and chests of drawers reflect the newest form of interior decoration. One of the greatest advantages of these metal objects is the fact that they can be knobs. A soft brush or cloth and washed as easily as the brass door soapy lukewarm water are all that is needed to keep the soil from the surface. After rinsing and careful drying, they may be polished with a slightly waxed cloth.

SEWING ROOM SERVES AS GUEST CHAMBER



Every inch of space is cleverly utilized here.

By Hope Hammond

A completely equipped sewing room is an essential convenience in the modern house, particularly if it is located adjacent to bath, bedrooms and linen closet.

In one sucessful modern home, the floor space available for a sewing room was only nine feet by ten, but full comfort was assured by using furniture proportioned to size. And this small room, although planned primarily for sewing and pressing, was systematized so cleverly that it could be quickly converted into a convenient extra guest chamber.

The sewing machine, for instance, disappeared inside a walnut case and became a useful table near an arm chair and reading lamp. The pressing table folded inside the closet door.

This room had a pleasingly modern decorative scheme, starting with a rust-colored linoleum on the floor, an ideal tonal base for the color plan of the room. Linoleum is particularly suitable for a sewing room, because it provides a surface from which threads and clippings may easily be cleaned.

Walls were patterned in light blue, beige and clear yellow on a cream background. The woodwork was clear yellow, the doors light blue.

At the windows, under triple valence boards of yellow, decorated with a band of wall paper, triple curtains of the three dominating colors hung in steps—first, sill-length glass curtains, of fine yellow net; over these, medium mesh blue curtains, ending at the radiator shelf at one window and midway between sill and floor at the other; and lastly, floor-length mesh rust-colored curtains gathered far back at the extreme sides.

Shaded orange striped glazed chintz covered an easy chair whose arms were so low that they would not interfere with sewing motions.

Modern geometric designs characterized the golden rayon bedspread and the hooked rug of henna and beige. The studio couch was a luxurious full length coil mattress on a box spring, supported by six legs.

Uses Yeast 50 Years

PRATT, Kas., Nov. 9—(AP)— When Mrs. W. B. Grier came to Kansas from Illinois 50 years ago with her husband, she brought with her some homemade yeast, a gift from her mother-in-law. Today Mrs. Grier is still making bread using yeast which she has made from the original bit given her a half century ago.

MOTHER OF ELEVEN SUMMONED TO AID JOB RELIEF PROGRAMME

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 — (AP) — When Dr. Lillian Gilbreth was summoned from her home in Montclair, N. J., to assist Col. Arthur Woods in the nation's unemployment relief program she sent four telegrams and called a family council of her 11 children.

One telegram went to Col. Woods, relief director, assuring him she would be on the job within 24 hours. The other three went to women heads of government bureaus: Miss Grace Abbott, Dr. Louise Stanley, and Miss Mary Anderson asking their co-operation.

The family council was just part of the engineering efficiency which Dr. Gilbreth, a consulting engineer by profession, always applies to her home.

As a result every one of the 11 children aided by Tom, the family helper who has been with the Gilbreths 18 years, will swing into action to keep the home fires burning while "Mother" is in Washington.

Martha, just out of college, will supervise things. Eight-year-old Janie has certain chores to do. A secretary and Tom, who can plan a meal or bind up a cut finger with equal ease, will round out the staff of assistants.

There is no lost motion, no wasted words with this calm, light-haired woman in the sage green silk blouse and practical black skirt and shoes.

"I expect the women of the country to rise to this unemployment emergency as they did during the war," she says. "Just as they conserved food then so now they will buy wisely. As they released men for war then, now they will employ men.

"And I expect them to be on the job immediately by discussing in family evening circles just what can be done in their immediate households and neighborhoods to provide work for needy men and women. Father and the children will join in these councils. They will then take their suggestions to Boy Scout meetings, rotary and parent teacher meetings."

Mrs. Gilbreth refers to herself as "a very fortunate woman whose husband was ambitious for her." She met him while she was a student of psychology at Brown college. He was a mining engineer and she soon began that study also. Since his death she has carried on the work alone and is now one of the two women members of the American society of mechanical engineers.

DIVORCE COURT BUSY IN MODERN TURKEY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Nov. 9—(AP)—The busiest court room in Istanbul handles cases of divorce.

Now that the new Turkish code allows women the same right to sue for divorce as men, there is a steady increase in the number of divorces and seperations. As against 763 cases last year, there have been 1,100 this year and 1,205 fewer marriages.

An unknown phenomenon in the old days of harems, the first generation of Turkish bachelor girls, is now coming into existence. Forced marriages still exist in the interior, but are rare in the big Turkish centers.

BERLIN DEBS TO WEAR METAL DANCE SLIPPERS

BERLIN, Nov. 9 —(AP)— Ladies' dancing slippers made of aluminum will be the rage in Berlin's winter ball season.

In an exhibition arranged by manufacturers of aluminum goods, one of the most interesting exhibits were aluminum dancing slippers.

One of the manufacturers expressed his hope that this would not be regarded as a freak but as an earnest effort to replace the traditional brocade or silk dancing slipper.

He also stated that their new product would stand considerably greater wear and tear and only needs very little time to keep in condition. All that's needed is an occasional wipe with a piece of cloth.

Plaid Hankys

PARIS, Nov. 9—(AP)—For sportswomen there are Scotch plaid handkerchiefs made of handspun linen.

Makers of fine lingerie are specializing in the promotion of sheerest linen handkerchiefs advertised as hand spun.

Blue Velvet Wedding Gown

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 —(AP)—A wedding gown of royal blue velvet was worn by Miss Mary Meadow Echols when she became the bride of William Melvin Tallant. Her hat and slippers matched the dress.

Her only attendant wore a gown of golden brown velvet and carried talmadge roses.

Mrs. Borah's Suit

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of Senator Borah, looks smart these fall days in a black silk suit which achieves its distinction from a grey vest striped in red and navy blue. The belt is also red. The accompanying hat and shoes are black and the stockings grey.

Hats and Dresses Of Same

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9—(AP)—Hats and dresses of the same material are popular, especially for sports.

Mrs. Franklin Yates is wearing a brown wool sports dress with a wide brown belt. The accompanying hat is also made of brown wool.

WORLD'S SLAVES NEAR SIX MILLION, SAYS LADY SIMON

LONDON, Nov. 9—(AP)—The horrors of slave raiding and trading are being described by Lady Simon in talks here which reveal facts assembled by her during many months research.

Lady Simon says that there are from five to six million slaves in the world; the slave population of Abyssinia exceeding two millions.

Vividly, Lady Simon depicts the sudden descent of the slave raiders on the sleeping population of the villages; the incredible brutality and massacre of those unfitted for the raider's purpose and the march to the slave markets.

"Abyssinia is the only Christian country that has slavery to this day," she said.

Cheviot Favorite

PARIS, Nov. 9—(AP)—Cheviot, favorite material of the mauve decade is making headway with fashionable moderns.

Princess Pierre of Montenegro is among the ranks of cheviot-wearers. Her costume is soft green trimmed with brown beaver. It is a suit with which she wears an orange silk short sleeved tunic blouse.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

The Reading Craze

Between the ages of 12 and 14 the average boy and girl go through a period of intensive reading.

Boys at this age seem to be especially hungry for books on science and invention, for realistic tales of adventure, for popularized history and biography.

Girls on the other hand, show a leaning toward poetry and romance.

Many parents worry for fear that their children will become book worms. They do not realize that this period of intensive reading seldom lasts more than a year, and that it is natural.

The wisest attitude is to exploit this "craze" to its greatest advantage. This is the time to see that your child has plenty of good books to read, for it is virtually your last chance to exercise an influence on his tastes.

The only wise restrictions are those which are designed to protect his health. We may rightly demand a certain amount of outdoor play before we permit him to settle down to his books.

The actual substance of his reading can be limited only by indirect means. We may remove from our own library shelves objectionable books and give him plenty of good books among which there will be a sufficient number of the sort that satisfy the urge of his wish-thinking.

Remember that it is usually futile to prohibit any specific book, since the very fact that it is forbidden stimulates curiosity about it.

GREENEVILLE

WHITE EAGLES HOLDS ITS FIRST MEETING

The White Eagles, a new Polish organization recently formed in this city, held its first meeting Sunday afternoon at Pulaski hall on North Main street. The organization is composed of young boys and girls of this section, of which Miss Helen Woitkowski is president. At the opening of the meeting, America was sung by the membership and their guests. Miss Macht recited a poem. Miss Sophia Osik rendered a piano solo.

Mr. Twarowski of New Britain gave a very interesting address concerning the work that the society has accomplished in other sections of the state and also stated that he was positive that the organization would be very successful. Miss Jaslenowski of Hartford rendered several pleasing numbers on the piano. Mr. Jaslenowski gave a short address to the members and wished their society every success. Miss Edith Zaremba, the vice-president of the club, recited a poem. Violin and piano solos were rendered by the Misses Glowacki of Jewett City. Miss Stella Frekow recited a poem. Mr. Grzybowski of Hartford, who has charge of organizing throughout the state, outlined the purpose of the society.

Following a recess, the members and their friends were invited to the lower hall where a delicious luncheon was served which consisted of chicken a la carte. The dining hall was very prettily decorated with streamers and American and Polish flags. In the evening following the banquet, the meeting was reopened with a few words by Joseph Pysyk, president of the Polish corporation. Rev. S. A. Iciek, pastor of St. Joseph's church, gave a short talk concerning the need of keeping up the Polish organizations and said it was something in which the people should be much interested. Mr. Twarowski of New Britain spoke briefly and wished the society success. Miss Helen Laskowski recited a poem. Mrs. Strans, president of the National Alliance of Polish Women, spoke a few words relating to the success of the new society. The Jolly Boys' orchestra rendered several numbers. Miss Stella Frekow sang a solo. Rev. William Roper, curate at St. Joseph's church, wished the group members success. Mrs. Laskowski gave a very interesting talk to the young folks. Dr. John J. Supiicki also made a few remarks. Mrs. Bania was chairman of the banquet committee.

AIRPLANE FACTORY TO BE ON NORTH MAIN STREET

Premises at 195 North Main street, where there is a one-story building, the rear of which abuts on the New Haven railroad tracks directly across from the service building of the Norwich gas and electric department, are to be occupied early this week by the Knoll-Brayton Aeronautical Corp., the newly organized Norwich airplane company, which is to manufacture amphibian planes.

The first two monoplanes to be built are to be demonstrators, one for practical demonstration and the other a show plane, and it is estimated they will be completed some time in February. Felix Knoll of Germany, who is to make his home in this city, will have direction of manufacturing, a field in which he has been chief engineer for several large airplane factories in Germany.

According to the plans of the company, of which Flint Brayton is president and Harry E. Austin business manager, it is expected to employ about 50 men while these two planes are under construction. The manufacture is expected to grow from 50 to 100 planes in the first year with the employment of about 200 hands.

Harold Kinne, of Fourth street, has returned to his home after spending a few days in West Fort Lee, N. J. While there he attended the funeral of his sister, who died in a New York hospital following a serious operation.

Mrs. Ludwig Sleck, of Groton, was a visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Sebastian of Sixth street on Wednesday.

The many friends of the congenial druggist, David Y. Campbell, are pleased to know that he is at his home on Central avenue, after having spent the past two weeks in the Backus hospital where he underwent a serious operation.

The World Wide guild met at the home of Doris M. Lund on Twelfth street Wednesday evening with eight members and one visitor present. Mrs. Henry Sebastian, the leader, had charge of the meeting and after the devotional exercises which opened the meeting a work time was held. The girls worked on bandages and cut out work which they do as White Cross work for mission schools and hospitals, both overland and overseas. The girls are also making fancy articles for the table which they furnish at the Ladies' Aid Christmas sale. The money raised is used towards their quota which is given for W. W. G. mission work.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Third Baptist church held their monthly meeting recently at the home of Mrs. Herbert I. Peckham, of East Great Plain, with 15 members present. Mrs. William A. Lund had charge of the meeting and after the opening devotional exercises a short business session was held. Mrs. Fred Laycock was elected vice president, and Mrs. George Howard was elected secretary and treasurer. Plans were made and discussed for a food sale and a meat pie supper and Christmas sale to be held early in December. A social time was then enjoyed by the ladies and dainty refreshments, consisting of chicken sandwiches, nut bread, apple snow cake and coffee, were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Fred Laycock.

Under the capable direction of Mrs. Frank Lathrop, the young people comprising the Dramatic club of St. Andrew's Episcopal church are preparing to give a play in the near future.

The women of the home department and mission circle of the Third Baptist church met for an all-day meeting in the chapel on Wednesday and tied and finished five bed quilts. The women of the mission circle are also dressing dolls to be sent to a mission school for Christmas.

The Greeneville Community Workers held their monthly meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. C. F. Sears, on Prospect street, on Thursday afternoon. A very gratifying report was read and plans discussed for the annual sale to be held at a later date. All the finished work was turned in and by the large display the ladies must have been very busy during the last month. The hostess served a delicious luncheon at the close of the business meeting. One new member was taken into the organization.

THREE IN AIRPLANE UNHURT IN FORCED LANDING IN PUTMAN LOT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 9.—The coolness and skill of Pilot Russell Green, of Bethany, Conn., this afternoon saved the lives of three people when a four-passenger biplane, which Green was piloting, became disabled over the Putnam town farm, necessitating a forced landing.

Green brought the plane down in a graceful landing, but after the ship rolled a few yards on the rough field, its landing gear struck a hole and was ripped off, causing the plane to nose into the earth. The wings were ripped off and the fuselage of the framework considerably damaged.

Neither the pilot nor the two passengers were injured. Green is in the service of the Skyways Transportation Co., which was conducting an air meet on Mantup field over the week end. About 3.30 o'clock this afternoon he was engaged by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, of Danielson, to take them for a ride over the field. The plane made a perfect take-off and was apparently functioning satisfactorily when it disappeared in the general direction of Danielson. After two miles of flight, however, the engine sputtered and went dead. Sensing the immediate danger, Green opened the auxiliary gas tank, which was located in the upper wing. This was of no avail, since it is believed a clog in the gas line prevented the flow of the fuel through the engine.

The pilots' only alternative was a forced landing under circumstances which were most unfavorable. He had not gained altitude sufficient enough to allow his craft to glide to earth in an upright position and was forced to employ great skill to keep the plane from flipping into a tailspin. When over the town farm on the river road, Green sighted a small open field which appeared to have a smooth surface. The landing was made successfully but the rough and swampy condition of the field sent the plane on its prop when the landing gear sank into a bog in a marshy section of the lot.

After extricating themselves Green and his passengers walked to the river road where they were picked up by a passing automobilist and driven back to Mantup field, where they calmly reported their misfortune and, incidentally, their narrow escape from serious injury and possible death.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson were not perturbed in the least for upon their arrival at the field they walked to another airplane and took off again on a second flight.

The wrecked plane will be salvaged some time Monday by its owners.

THE SIN OF PROFANITY SCORED BY REV. FR. DARGAN

Preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday to a congregation filling auditory and galleries, the senior assistant pastor, Rev. James E. Dargan continued his series of sermons on the ten commandments, taking up the second, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain." The world is impressed by nobility of character, by great deeds, will admire and extol in hero-worship those who stand out in church or state; loves to honor or extol their virtues, will acclaim soldiers or statesmen, saints and martyrs. Memorial day, Armistice day, deeds of nobility are recounted.

It is not the name alone of heroes which men honor, but what each name represents. Among all the names lauded by humanity the greatest name is that of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, our Saviour and Redeemer. There is no other name under heaven whereby men may be saved. The power of this name was proven in the miracle when Peter and John were at the door of the temple, it is the name employed in all the sacraments of the church, in the final rites, the name which is the consolation and the inspiration of the dying—the name of all names. That it should be taken in vain then, used profanely, lightly, irreverently, was the inconsistent act of Catholics which Father Dargan codemned. In the Old Testament God protected the name of Jehovah; under the new dispensation there is equal obligation to revere the sacredness of the name of Christ. The bad example of profane language as affecting the young was especially stressed, as well as the duty of Catholics not alone to honor the name of Jesus but to protest its irreverent use among companions and associates.

The day was the 22nd Sunday after Pentecost, the Gospel read being Matt. 22. 15-31. Rev. Father Dargan remained to assist Rev. John J. Reilly in giving holy communion, the number of confessions heard Saturday afternoon and evening by the three priests of the parish being enormous, that their people might receive the eucharist at one of the four masses Sunday. Under the leadership of the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, the junior choir sang "Jesus, My Lord," at the consecration and gave their other hymns with harmony and great reverence. The members of the Altar society had adorned the three marble altars with golden and white chrysanthemums, with the customary pink roses at the shrine of Saint Therese, "the Little Flower of Jesus." Chrysanthemums on the main altar were in memory of George W. Tryon.

Brush Fire Near River

A lively brush fire was burning late Sunday afternoon and through the night on land close to the banks of the Thames river and in the neighborhood of Lucas park.

SCOUTS CLEAR TRAILS AT NEW CAMP SITE

A score of scouts under the leadership of Scout Leaders A. L. Peale, Walter Weidman, Arthur Collins, John Boldrighini, Robert Burke and Scout Executive Sellman worked on the river trail at the Boy Scout new camping site Saturday afternoon clearing about 1,500 feet along the river trail. The scouts cut out dead limbs, brush, and small trees. At the lower end of the camp some beautiful hemlocks were found and a thickly wooded gorge. One of the scouts while washing in the brook was startled by a wild deer and another found a rabbit which some hunter had recently shot.

Following an afternoon of exploring and work the scouts cooked their suppers and returned to the city. According to the local scout headquarters, 100 scouts could be easily used to help cut the brush from the road going into the camp. Volunteers can come in after school and scout troops are urged to plan all hikes to the new site. The land has been surveyed and if slab boards can be secured a winter shelter can be erected this fall.

Street letter boxes will be collected on the regular afternoon schedule.

Fifty Miles Of Forest Trails.

Over 50 miles of the state system of tramping trails are now completed and open to the public, according to Edgar L. Heermance, chairman of the trails committee of the Connecticut Park association of New Haven. Mr. Heermance states that recent rains have reduced the fire hazard and each week sees many trampers enjoying the crisp air and autumn coloring. These forest trails are being built by volunteers, according to a carefully developed plan by the association. The permission of land owners to obtained before the cutting of trails.

There will be no meeting this week of the Intermediate and Junior Christian Endeavor societies of the First Congregational church because of the date falling on Armistice day.

At the Congregational church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Wilfrid M. Wilton, preached on "Personal Accountability." The 12th verse of this chapter was the text, "So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God."

In recognition of Armistice day, the theme of the young people's C. E. service in the Congregational chapel was "What Does Brotherhood Mean?" Scripture references were found in Matthew and John.

COUNTY BANKS HAVE $546,500 TO DISTRIBUTE IN CHRISTMAS CLUBS

Banks of New London county have over half a million dollars to distribute from Christmas clubs, according to figures gathered for the state by the Connecticut chamber of commerce from savings banks, trust companies and national banks.

The total accumulations in these clubs in Connecticut banks this year is $7,384,000, which is a decline of only 5.3 per cent when compared with the total of $7,802,000 last year. This vast sum to be paid in cash directly into the hands of Connecticut people represents an average of $4.60 for every man, woman and child in the state, or on a family basis, the equivalent of $80.27 for every family in Connecticut. It is believed that by far the larger portion of this money will flow immediately into the channels of retail trade, thereby directly stimulating trade activity all over Connecticut. Some portion of this money as in the past undoubtedly will be redeposited with savings institutions as permanent savings and an unknown portion used in payment of accumulated indebtednesses, with a resulting beneficial influence almost as great as that of new purchases.

The banking institutions reporting to the Connecticut chamber of commerce represent 95 per cent of all the banks of every sort in Connecticut, some 34 per cent of which conduct a Christmas savings club. Totaled by counties these Christmas savings clubs aggregate as follows: Fairfield, $2,507,501; Hartford, $1,808,863; Litchfield, $242,500; New London, $546,500; Middlesex, $161,242; New Haven, $1,948,328; Tolland, $62,000 and Windham, $307,000.

This money will flow steadily into the hands of depositors from November 17, the earliest disbursement date named by any of the institutions, to December 20, the latest date named. A great majority of the banks, however, will mail their checks on December 1, giving ample opportunity for the leisurely and discriminating expenditure of this money.

GIRLS' CLUB IS TO HOLD INITIATION CEREMONIES

There was a very large attendance of girls at the weekly meeting of the Girls' City club under the auspices of the Woman's City club on Friday evening. A short business session was presided over by the president, Miss Irene Combies. Miss Kovolenko reported that she had delivered the two picture books prepared by the girls to the Backus hospital for use in the children's ward. The club director, Mrs. W. C. McKean, spoke to the girls along lines of interest and health to them. Two girls applied for membership. On the second Friday night in December those who have applied for membership during the fall will be initiated into the club with the pretty ceremonial adopted last year. It was announced that at the meeting next Friday night Miss Mary Bundy, secretary of the chamber of commerce, will address the girls. Folk dancing and games with refreshments followed the business meeting. The Tuesday Night sewing club continues in interest and increased attendance.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CALL TO ARMISTICE PARADE

From the pulpit of St. Patrick's church at the four masses Sunday, all members of White Cross council, K. of C., were given the call to participate in the parade of Armistice day. Next to the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, it was pointed out by Rev. James E. Dargan, in the day's announcements, the members of the K. of C. have won the right to align themselves as among the nation's defenders. In fact, when the value of their service in the World war is weighed, they might well claim second place, next to the soldiers themselves. Hence theirs is the obligation as well as the right to appear in any demonstration such as that planned for the coming Tuesday.

MOTORIST REPORTED FIRE ON ROOF OF HOUSE

The contents of a 40 gallon tank of chemical and of several small chemical tanks prevented a bad fire at the residence of Samuel Carter, West Main street, just beyond the city line, about 4.30 o'clock, Sunday afternoon. A motorist, driving by the house, noticed the roof on fire and a telephone call was sent to the local fire department. A section of the roof, about five feet square, was burned. There was no one at home at the time the fire was discovered but the occupants arrived shortly after most of the apparatus was on the way back to the stations. The cause of the fire is uncertain. The chimneys were found to be O. K. and it is thought that sparks from a nearby rubbish fire may have ignited the roof. The building is a story and a half dwelling.

AUTOMOBILE HIT BOY WITH MINOR INJURIES

Robert A. Patrick, about 7, of No. 115 West Thames street, was struck and slightly injured near his home Sunday afternoon about 3.50 o'clock, by an automobile operated by Ella H. Chappell of North Windham. The child was treated for a bruised head and knee by Dr Harry E. Higgins. A headlight on the machine, a Chevrolet, was damaged.

The body of Miss Alice O'Connor, who died Saturday at Preston, was prepared for burial by Hourigan Bros., and Sunday morning was sent on the 11.03 o'clock train from New London to her home in New Haven. Burial will take place in that city.

HOW ARMISTICE DAY WILL BE OBSERVED IN WASHINGTON

President and Citizen, Churchman and Layman Will Join in Ceremonies—The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier Will Be the Shrine at Which Many Will Gather—President Hoover is to Be One of the Early Visitors to Arlington Cemetery—Later the Chief Executive Will Address the Goodwill Congress of the World Alliance For Intersectional Friendship

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—(AP)—In a brief revival of war-time memories, the nation's capital tomorrow will observe Armistice day.

Twelve years after the agreement that silenced the guns in France, president and citizen, churchman and layman will join in ceremonies that, while the eye is fixed on maintaining the peace of the world, will send the mind back to thoughts of the days when the nations were at conflict.

The tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington will be the shrine at which many will gather. Others will make their annual pilgrimage to the chapel in Washington cathedral which is the last resting place of Woodrow Wilson.

President Hoover will be one of the early visitors to Arlington. Accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, Secretaries Hurley and Adams, Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, and General Summerall, chief of staff of the army, he will place a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at 10 o'clock.

An hour later he will address the goodwill congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship.

After the president's visit, the chaplains who participated in the religious exercises at the interment of the Unknown Soldier will pay their annual tribute at the tomb.

Colonel John T. Axton, retired, former chief of chaplains, and Dr. Morris S. Lazaron, chaplain of the Officers' Reserve corps, will repeat parts of the original burial service and place a wreath on the tomb.

In Bethlehem chapel at Washington cathedral, Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will conduct a brief service tomorrow afternoon. Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, which President Wilson attended while he was in the white house, will offer the prayer.

MESSAGES OF ARMISTICE DAY TO BE BROADCAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)— Messages of Armistice day will come to American radio listeners tomorrow from President Hoover and General Pershing.

The observance of the day on the radio will begin at 10:45 a. m., when WEAF and chain broadcast church chimes for 15 minutes.

At 11 there will be two minutes of silence on both the National and Columbia chains, followed by a twenty-eight minute program from Washington in which President Hoover will be heard; speaking before the world alliance for international friendship from the Washington auditorium. For this broadcast NBC will use the WEAF chain.

A peace message to children, written by Zona Gale, will be read on CBS at 2:25 p. m.

The Armistice day service at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson in Washington cathedral, will be broadcast by both chains from 3:30 to 4 p. m.

In the evening, at 10:30, WJZ and stations will present General Pershing, Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of War Hurley, speaking in a 30-minute program arranged in co-operation with the military order of the World War and the Reserve Officers' association.

Besides these features, practically every program on the chains is to have patriotic music and other special features.

STATUE OF LION FRIGHTENED ELEPHANTS INTO STAMPEDE

LONDON, Nov. 10.— (AP) —Three frightened elephants stole the "lord mayor's show" today as they caught sight of a make-believe lion in the parade ahead of them and charged into the crowd which thronged the Thames embankment. Fifty spectators were pretty badly jostled as those at the curb sought safety.

It was the most gorgeous parade in years and not the least colorful spectacle in the parade was Sir Phene Neal himself, the new lord mayor of London, in the ornate carriage which has carried his predecessors to their inaugurations for generations.

The elephants, in a tableau representing India, plodded along behind a group of Kings college students who carried a model lion as their mascot. Suddenly their leader saw the traditional jungle enemy and rushed toward it, trumpeting.

The great beast seized the lion in his trunk as the students scattered, and dashed it to the pavement. Then he and the two others headed for the crowd. Mounted police soon herded them back into line, however, and the pageant proceeded.

Up to that point the most exciting feature of the parade had been a real covered wagon, used by British pioneers who participated in the opening of the American west. It was convoyed by a band of American Indians in full regalia.

EARLY DEMONSTRATION IN LONDON OF ARMISTICE DAY

LONDON, Nov 10.— (AP) —The crowds which stood this afternoon to watch the parade of the "lord mayor's show" paused on the way home tonight to pay their own Armistice day tribute at the cenotaph in Whitehall and late this evening there was still a long line winding towards the shrine of the nation's war dead.

Not in recent years has there been such an early demonstration to the memory of the men who fell in the war. Many in the crowd wore the red poppies, forty million of which have been made by blind and maimed veterans for sale tomorrow.

The Prince of Wales tonight broadcast a special appeal in aid of this veterans' fund.

King George, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York will participate tomorrow in short religious ceremonies at the cenotaph and there will observe the two minutes of silence beginning at 11 o'clock.

RESULTS OF AUSTRIAN PARLIAMENTARY ELECTION

VIENNA, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Austrian parliamentary elections have resulted in the two oldest and strongest parties virtually changing positions, and with the Fascist Heimwehr, viewed as a threat after the recent successes of the brown-shirts in Germany, gaining only eight seats out of the 165 in the nationalrat.

For ten years the Christian socials ruled the country, but in the balloting yesterday they slipped from 73 seats in the old house to 66 in the new.

The social democratic party, which is strongest in the city of Vienna and against which the thirteen other competing parties leveled their guns, held its status and even gained one mandate, climbing from 71 seats in the former nationalrat to 72 in the new and thereby becoming the strongest single party.

TWO ROYAL CANADIAN PLANES WERE FOG-BOUND

ALERT BAY, B. C., Nov. 10.—(AP)— Two royal Canadian air force seaplanes unreported since Saturday on a flight north to take part in the search for six airmen lost in northern British Columbia, arrived here late today. The planes were fog-bound over the week end at Comox

11 MEN AND FOUR AIRPLANES MISSING IN NORTHERN B. C.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 10.—(AP) — Eleven men and four airplanes were missing in northern British Columbia today as an aroused northwest planned a concerted air search of the wilderness district.

The story of the ill-fated fliers is largely a tale of disaster which overtook first one party and then another after they engaged in a hunt for previously lost expeditions.

October 11 Pilot E. J. A. Burke, accompanied by Emil Kading, mechanic and Bob Martin, a prospector, disappeared during a northern flight.

Seventeen days later, Pilot Robin Renahan and two companions took off from Vancouver, B. C., for Atlin to look for the Burke party. Renahan, with Sam Clerf, a mining man and Frank Hatcher, a mechanic, both of Seattle, have not been seen since.

Saturday, two royal Canadian air force seaplanes carrying five men disappeared between Comox, Vancouver Island, and Prince Rupert, B. C. The planes were piloted by Flight Lieutenant L. R. HOOVER ADDRESSED ASS'N. OF NATIONAL ADVERTISERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.— (AP) — President Hoover told the Association of National Advertisers tonight that if the goodwill of the public toward them is to be maintained the desire created through advertising must be satisfied by the article sold.

"The goodwill of the public toward the producer, the goods or the service, is the essential of sound advertising, for no business succeeds upon the sale of an article once, he said in a speech before the 21st annual meeting of the group.

"And to maintain this confidence of the public you and the medium which you patronize have an interest that others do not violate confidence and thereby discredit the whole of advertising. . . . The very importance of the position which advertising has risen to occupy in the economic system is in direct proportion to the ability of the people to depend upon the probity of the statements you present."

"BAD MAN" SHOT DEAD AS HE REACHED FOR HIS GUN

BELLE FOURCHE, S. D., Nov. 10 —(AP)—True to traditions of western "bad men" of another era, Wayne Kelley, ex-convict and alleged modern cattle rustler, died with his boots on.

Facing the bristling rifles of a sheriff's posse, Kelley, who had spread the word through the sparsely inhabited northwest range country that he would never be taken alive, reached for his gun and a few seconds later lay dead, the victim of a deputy sheriff's accurate aim.

The story of the "fade-out" of a real-life movie thriller was brought to Belle Fourche today by the officers, who had finally cornered Kelley Saturday morning at a Butte county ranch, climaxing a search of several months through the range lands of South Dakota and Montana. A companion named Horton was arrested.

Officials who are trying to cope with the problem created by the transition of cattle rustling methods from the horseback "round-ups" of cowboy days to the use of trucks believe Kelley's death may break up a gang of outlaws.

SUMMATIONS CONCLUDED IN TUNNEY $500,000 SUIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)— One judge and a dozen referees, a strange array indeed for a retired heavyweight champion to face, took over tonight the question of what part of $526,812.42 — if any— Gene Tunney owes Tim Mara.

Attorneys Emory R. Buckner, for the defense, and Martin W. Littleton for Mara, a Broadway bookmaker who seeks more than one quarter of Tunney's ring fortune of $2,000,000 for alleged breach of contract, summed up their cases today before Justice Peter A. Hatting in supreme court. Once more, picking over the testimony, they carried the scene along different lines back to the halcyon days of the prize ring—when the late Tex Rickard ruled the fighters' roost, Jack Dempsey was considered the invincible heavyweight, and Gentleman Gene was just another challenger for fisticuffs' richest prize.

Four Deaths Due To Denature[illegible]lcohol

Result of a[illegible]ight Drinking Pa[illegible] Stamford—Fifth [illegible]

STAM[illegible] Nov. 10.—(AP)— Four men di[illegible] today following an all night drin[illegible]g party, during which, police said, denatured alcohol had been used. A fifth member of the party was in a critical condition in a local hospital.

The victims were:

Arthur Wood, 40, no address.

Frederick Sweet, 50, of 511 Park street, Hartford.

Joseph McGrath, 55 of this city.

Leslie Russell, son of Dr. R. J. Russell, Ansonia dentist, was found critically ill in an automobile and taken to the Stamford hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

Police quoted Russell as saying that the men had obtained the alcohol last night at a garage and drunk it after boiling it over an open fire in an attempt to reclaim it. The party, which lasted until early today was held in what is locally known as the "Jungle," a part of the city dump and a favorite rendezvous for transients.

Wood's body was found in a back yard this morning, while Sweet's body was found at the "Jungle." McGrath and Carroll died at the Stamford hospital after they had been found near the scene of the drinking.

A can bearing the label of an anti-freeze solution used in automobiles at first led police to believe that the men had died from the effects of the solution. Dr Ralph W. Crane, medical examiner, later said, however, that the can had contained denatured alcohol and that its contents was responsible for the deaths.

Police tonight had been unable to trace the source of the alcohol.

MALDEN, MASS. HUNTER LOST IN WOODS IN MAINE

SKOWHEGAN, Me., Nov. 10.—(AP)— Search for Mitchell B. Kaufman, president of the Converse Rubber company, of Malden, Mass., lost Wednesday while hunting in big woods of Jackman, went into its sixth night tonight with unabated vigor.

The search was started when Kaufman, hunting with a party of Connecticut and Massachusetts business friends, failed to appear at a rendezvous with his guide.

The first indication that Kaufman "still was on his feet" heartened the searchers today. Footprints which guides were certain were those of Kaufman were located in the light snow. They were not fresh tracks, however, but guides felt that Kaufman, a veteran hunter supplied with matches, emergency rations, gun and compass, was conserving his strength somewhere in the extensive forest, either attempting to travel slowly toward civilization or waiting searchers to come upon him.

In the hunting party with Kaufman were Francis E. Stern, president of Stern and Company, Inc., Hartford, Conn.; Leonard S. Troub, Hartford accountant; Benjamin S. Munch, president of the Tubular Products company, of Southington, Conn., and Meyer Orlov, Boston attorney.

EAST HAMPTON MAN HELD IN $12,000 ON CHARGE OF ARSON

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., Nov. 10. —(AP)—George Mitchell, part owner of the North Store block, which was recently damaged by a fire and explosion, was arrested today by State Policeman Roy B. Pettingill on a charge of arson.

Just prior to his arrest, Mitchell and several witnesses had testified before State Police Commissioner Robert T. Hurley at a fire marshal's hearing which opened here today. The hearing, which was held behind closed doors, is expected to require two more days and may result, police said, in more arrests.

The fire, which police believed from the outset was of incendiary origin, started in the rear room of a restaurant which had been vacant a month. Police today revealed that the block is valued at $12,000 on the tax list and insured for $29,000.

Mitchell was released in $10,000 bonds after a hearing tonight before Justice of Peace George H. Hart. The case was continued until November 20.

Mrs. Raymond Wilmington and Mrs. Fred Gatee, who are said to have seen three men leave the restaurant just before the explosion, were among today's witnesses.

TO UNITE FOR SALVATION OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

Senator Fess Sounds Call For Educational Drive—Indicates That It Must Be Conducted By a Reorganized Prohibition Staff—Work Will Not Be Left to the Anti Saloon League—Concedes That the Increased Penalties Have Failed to Be of Benefit—Concludes That Filling the Jails is Not the Necessary Deterrent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. — (AP) — Drys are mobilizing on Capitol hill for the prospective prohibition battle in congress and the first step in their contemplated program is a national educational campaign.

Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, a staunch prohibitionist, sounded the call today for the educational drive, he emphasizing that it must be conducted by a re-organized prohibition staff.

Senator Fess indicated that the drys are going to build over their organization. There is an indication also that the work will not be left to the Anti-Saloon league, which has shouldered the political activity of the dry cause for so many years.

Salvation of the eighteenth amendment is the one banner under which all the prohibitionists are united. They easily have the votes in congress now to sustain that.

"The people will never stand for the return of the saloon," said Senator Fess, "nor will they give up the eighteenth amendment. We need a national campaign for education."

The stand by Fess was interpreted by some as a warning that any move by the republican party against the eighteenth amendment in the 1932 presidential campaign would bring a split in the party. Fess is chairman of the republican national committee.

Senator Fess, however, conceded that the increased penalties recently imposed for liquor violators had failed to be of the benefit he had hoped.

"The bootlegger is without character and doesn't mind going to jail to be supported by the public," commented the Ohioan. "We are filling the jails but I am afraid that is not the necessary deterrent."

Like congress, itself, however, the prohibition question and what those on Capitol hill will do about it are enigmas that only the future can solve. Most of those members now in Washington are withholding the formulation of plans until the president's law enforcement commission completes its report, which may come about the first of the year.

Capt. Ammel was welcomed by Lieut. Colonel James A. Mars, commandant, and other members of the isthmian air force of the United States army stationed at this field.

The flier thus completed the first non-stop flight from New York to Panama. He left New York at 2.10 p. m. yesterday in a low-wing monoplane with a 500 horsepower motor and a cruising speed of 135 miles an hour. He carried 703 gallons of gasoline and 24 gallons of oil, which was sufficient for a 4,000-mile trip, but had no radio.

DO-X COMPLETES SECOND STRETCH OF OCEAN FLIGHT

CALSHOT, Eng., Nov. 10—(AP)—The "Flying hotel Do-X" hoisted itself by its own bootstraps off the Zuider Zee today for a running jump across nearly 400 miles of North Sea and English channel and set itself down here smoothly at the end of the second stretch of its trans-Atlantic flight to New York.

Fifteen men in her crew, 21 passengers, a black cat and Hans the canary shared the first sea-going trip this 50-ton giant has made since she flew to Amsterdam from Altenrhein, Switzerland, where she was hatched.

It was an epochal trip, from the time when the big ship flirted the last of Holland's sea from its tail only to drop back on the water for a minute, while some minor engine repairs were made. Repairs made, the ship took off again for Calshot.

Heading across the open water, the scenery got monotonous. There were miles of English channel to starboard and only a hazy outline of continental coast to port. The passengers took to pacing the decks as though on an ordinary steamer.

Along about the halfway mark there arose an interesting question of ethics. Newspaper correspondents aboard were getting sleepy but the prospect of taking a nap created a nice distinction: would they be sleeping on the job, or would it be just taking an hour off for lunch? They compromised and took a nap.

The coast of England rose out of the haze ahead and the ship circled over Southampton. The passengers could see the crowds waiting for their first glimpse of the biggest seaplane in the world and soon the DO-X bounced down to a perfect landing in the harbor at Calshot.

Already they were looking forward to the next hop to Havre, whence the DO-X heads for Lisbon, then out across the ocean for the Azores and the United States.

GREAT METEOR DISPLAY DUE BETWEEN NOV. 11-17

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10—(AP)—The scattered outriders of the world's greatest meteor display are due between November 11 and 17.

Few in numbers, they are the advance guards of the vast main swarm of Leonid meteors which appear in great numbers three times a century, and which are due either to hit or just miss the earth in 1933. No one knows which.

If they hit, astronomers expect a repetition of the fiery rains which they have produced occasionally on past visits during the last thousand years.

Most of the advance guard this year is expected in the early morning hours of Saturday, November 15. All over North America and Europe astronomers and their friends will be out counting these 1930 Leonids, hoping thereby to find indications of the position of the oncoming main stream.

The meteors should be looked for in the eastern part of the sky. A quarter moon will interfere with seeing the fainter ones.

TALK ON STATE PARKS AT C. OF C. MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 10.— Walter O. Filley, treasurer of the state park and forest commission, was heard in a most interesting and enlightening illustrated talk on Connecticut's parks and forests at a well attended supper meeting of the chamber of commerce, held in the Nathan Hale hotel tonight. Mr. Filley, who is also forester for the Connecticut Agricultural college experiment station at New Haven was introduced by President Louis H. Arnold. Attending were State Senator-elect Andrew T. J. Clarke, of Canterbury, and Representative-elect Charles B. Pomeroy of this city. Mr. Filley told of the formation of the state forest association in 1896 to its present growth of 1,500 members. He said that the reforestation was for the dual purposes of furnishing timber for future generations, the protection of water sheds and giving the public parks in nature's environment. He commended the work of Senator Walcott, who as a state senator, interested the sportsmen in this reforestation work. The Natchaug state forest in the towns of Eastford and Chaplin now comprise about [illegible] acres, providing excellent camping facilities. What will become one of the finest state parks and forests in the state will be the combination of the Mashamoquet brook, Saptree and Wolf Den parks in the towns of Phoenixville, Eastford and Pomfret. There are now over 10,000 acres of state parks and 60,000 acres of state forests. Immediate possibilities of developments are at Rocky Neck beach in East Lyme, where through the efforts of ten public spirited men one mile of white sand shore line and 500 acres of land are being held for the state for a public beach that will be rivaled only by Hammonassett. Mr. Filley was assisted in presenting beautiful stereopticon slides by Arthur Arnold of this city. He was given a rising vote of thanks.

WESTMINSTER

HUNTERS GET COONS UNDER ODD CONDITIONS

The climax to a day's hunting trip for Thomas and Andrew Colburn occurred when only a short distance from their house, late Friday afternoon. Andrew Colburn spotted a coon's head protruding from a squirrel's nest in a tall tree. He made a good shot and got his coon. Mr. Colburn, Sr., a short distance away, heard the shot but failed to see the coon fall; but he did see a coon leave the nest and climb higher in the tree. He figured that Andrew had missed, so a well-directed shot brought down the coon. Their surprise was mutual when each claimed a coon, as neither had seen but one coon. The pair, which Mr. Colburn said were young ones, weighed 25 pounds.

Andrew T. J. Clarke, republican, has the honor of being the first Canterbury man in 25 years to be elected senator from the 29th senatorial district. Canterbury also elected two republican representatives, Clinton E. Frink, a fourth term man, and Howard Ritz.

Dependable Pond and Well

Streams are showing an appreciable increase in water, but wells which were dry have remained so. At Elm Arch farm, a living spring has supplied a steady stream of water through the farm and maintained a pond from which neighbors get a supply of good spring water. A well which has never shown less than 6 feet at its lowest has supplied two farmsteads through the worst drought in years.

It is interesting to note that in your process of manufacture, utilizing the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of LUCKY STRIKE tobacco, you are actuated by a similar impelling spirit of progress. Like the Waldorf, you are not content with your record of success but go on to significant new accomplishments."

DANIELSON

J. H. MILLIGAN DIES OF HEART ATTACK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 10.—J. Henry Milligan, well known real estate operator, died suddenly early this afternoon at his home on North Main street. He had spent much of the forenoon putting double windows on his home for the winter season and apparently was in his usual robust health. Shortly after lunch he suffered an attack of illness, and Dr. Robert Souther was called to attend him. The physician found him suffering from over-exertion, gave him a heart stimulant and advised him to take things easily for a time. Mr. Milligan laughed and joked and said he would be all right, and told of his plans to come down town this afternoon on some business errand.

A short time thereafter Mr. Milligan got up to make ready to come down town and fell to the floor, dying almost instantly.

He was born in Boston, March 6, 1865, a son of Thomas and Elizabeth Thompson Milligan. In 1868 the family removed to Woodstock, in this county, the father having purchased a farm there. As a young man the elder Mr. Milligan had learned the carpenter's trade and was an expert in his line. Some years after locating in Woodstock the senior Mr. Milligan purchased the carriage business of L. M. Dean.

J. Henry Milligan worked on his father's farm until he was 18 years of age, and then went into his father's carriage shop and learned the business which he was destined to follow for 30 years. In 1894 he came to Canterbury and opened a shop of his own. He continued to do business there until 1900. In May of that year he located in Brooklyn and purchased the carriage business of Charles Osgood and continued it until 1910, selling out at that time to Martin Krause of New York. From Brooklyn Mr. Milligan went to Milford, Mass., where he purchased a carriage shop and garage business. He sold this business out in 1915, and came to Danielson, where he was appointed representative of the E. A. Strout farm agency of New York and had since continued in that capacity. He was one of the best known real estate men in eastern Connecticut.

April 19, 1886, in Canterbury, Mr. Milligan was married to Miss Fannie Ames, a native of Plainfield. She died here Feb. 1, 1919. By this marriage there was a son, Arthur Ames Milligan, now owner of the Wauregan garage. About ten years ago Mr. Milligan was married to Mrs. Jennie Davis Warren, who also survives him.

In politics Mr. Milligan was a republican. His religious affiliation was with the Congregational church.

WEDDING

Gerrodin—Jaegar

A pretty wedding at St. Joseph's church in Dayville at 8 o'clock this morning was that of Miss Claire A. Jaegar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Jaegar, and Willie Gerrodin, also of this town. Numbers of relatives and friends were present for the ceremony. Rev. Ignatius Kosy performed the marriage ceremony and was celebrant of the nuptial mass. The marriage music was played by Mrs. Rachel Phaneuf, organist, of Danielson.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Gertrude Jaegar, and Hermald Jolley of Danielson was best man.

The bride's gown was of white bridal satin, in princess effect, and her veil and bonnet were trimmed with pearls. Bridal roses and carnations in shower effect constituted her bouquet. Her going-away gown was of tomato red crepe, her coat of black material trimmed with fur, and hat to match. The bridesmaid wore pink silk crepe with hat to match. Her bouquet was of pink carnations.

Following the church service a wedding breakfast for members of the immediate families was served at the home of the bride's parents. The bridal couple left during the day for a tour through Vermont and New Hampshire.

Guests came for the wedding from Wellesley and Rochdale, Mass., Providence, Warwick, R. I., Norwich, Danielson and Goodyear. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, including checks for generous sums.

Thomas Beckett, a past commander, yesterday installed the recently elected officers of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, at a meeting in the town hall. The officers are: Commander, Arthur DeForest; vice-commanders, Hector Bernier and Gordon J. Dale; adjutant, Joseph Burton; treasurer, Alfred L. Reed; chaplain, W. E. Harrington; sergeant-at-arms, Arthur Benoit; historian, Attorney Louis A. Woisard.

State Officer George Martin, especially, and other officers of the Danielson barracks were engaged this afternoon in trying to establish the identity of the driver of a truck that ran up an embankment and tipped over after losing a rear wheel near Tadpole pond, north of Jewett City, early this afternoon. The truck is owned by the Hoffman Wall Paper Co. of 222 Asylum street, Hartford. It was believed here, more than an hour after the accident, that some passing motorist had picked up the driver, but telephone calls to hospitals in Norwich and Putnam revealed that he had not been entered as a patient.

Married in Court Office

Wilfred Ledger, 24, Ballouville, had much of an unusual nature to occupy his attention this morning. First he was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court to answer to a charge of having had carnal knowledge of a minor female child, and almost before you could say Jack Robinson the judge had married him. That needs a bit of explanation.

The charge mentioned was filed against Ledger about two years ago, and a warrant for his arrest has been outstanding ever since. State officers could not succeed in locating him, as he had left this territory. A circumstance arising out of a recent accident furnished a clue to Ledger's whereabouts, and he was placed under arrest at the week-end.

When he came to court this morning it was in company of Ruth Ellen Bowen, 18, of Killingly. She, however, is not the girl mentioned in the complaint against Ledger. The girl that Ledger was charged with having carnal knowledge of was less than 16 years old at the time the offence is alleged to have been committed.

Considering the Ledger case from various angles and after talking things over a bit, it was decided to drop the two-year-old charges and to have a wedding. So Ledger and Miss Bowen and the judge adjourned from the court room to the judge's office, where, in the presence of witnesses, Miss Bowen became Mrs. Ledger, Judge Woodward marrying them in his capacity of justice of the peace. The bride radiantly announced that she believed she would be very happy.

Pays Dear for Whoopee Party

Assessments, including fines on various counts and costs that were charged against Alex LaBelle of Ballouville when he appeared in the town court this morning amounted to $68.50. LaBelle went on a rampage up at Ballouville last night and started making whoopee with a shotgun and a very business-like, long-barreled .38-calibre Colt. He shot out several windows in the mill of Powdrell & Alexander and after getting back to his home fired another shot that went through the wooden bed in his room and then penetrated the wall and into the room of another tenement in the house.

In answer to a telephone call for someone to calm him, State Officer R. Theodore Strand raced up to Ballouville from the barracks here and placed LaBelle under arrest shortly before 10 p. m.

This morning LaBelle was charged with having been intoxicated, breach of the peace, damaging private property, etc. His nice revolver was confiscated.

Additional mills, not previously having made announcements relative to the matter, had today arranged to close at noon on Tuesday in observance of Armistice day.

Arthur Benoit has been named by Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, to make arrangements for the Christmas tree party that the post has arranged for the eve of the holiday, on Davis park, for several years past.

It was a matter of great satisfaction to their many friends here that Manager Henry Johnson of the Orpheum theatre and Mrs. Johnson escaped injury at Putnam yesterday when the plane in which they were riding made a forced landing and cracked up a bit.

Because of Tuesday being Armistice day, the regularly scheduled meeting of the W. C. T. U. has been postponed to Tuesday of next week.

Barn Burns

This afternoon at 4:35 an alarm from Box 32 called the firemen to Reynolds street where a small barn on the Lafayette Blanchard estate was ablaze and which was destroyed before the fire was under control. An adjoining shed was damaged. The barn itself was not a particularly valuable structure, but is said to have contained a considerable quantity of antiques of real value in money. The loss may be in excess of $1,000, but could not be determined tonight, as Blanchard is a patient at The Haven, in Abington.

CLOGGED FUEL PIPE BLAMED FOR PLANE CRASH AT PUTMAN SUNDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 10.— An investigation of circumstances leading up to the crash of the four passenger open model Spartan bi-plane, owned by Hill and Somers Aerial service of Bethany, Conn., which met with an accident on a field near the Putnam town farm yesterday afternoon, was made this morning by George Pranaitis, chief inspector of the state department of aeronautics, in an effort to determine the cause for failure of the engine while the plane was in flight.

When Inspector Pranaitis arrived at the field, located near a woodland patch in the southwest section of the town, Pilot Russell Green and two mechanics were busily engaged in freeing the wrecked under-carriage from the body of the ship. Under instructions from the state aviation department's representative, Green removed delicate mechanisms of the engine which were subjected to rigid inspection by the inspector who found them to be all right. Following the removal of the damaged lower wings, the craft's fuel supply tanks were examined. When questioned as to the cause of the engine failure, Green said that he believed a clog in the pipe line from the auxiliary or reserve tank prevented gas from flowing to the motor. A connection in the line was severed and later removed, but the gas flow still remained in check. Pursuing the investigation, Inspector Pranaitis ordered the connection removed, the operation revealing that a wire filter attached to the jet contained rust sediment.

Pilot Green informed the inspector that during the early hours Sunday evening a crowd of curious persons flocking to the scene of the air accident, tampered with the mechanism of the plane with the result that upon his arrival at the field this morning to begin salvage operations, he discovered that the fuel jets had been opened and the gas supply almost depleted.

Before returning to Hartford, Inspector Pranaitis stated that a report of his investigation would be filed with the commissioner of aviation who will determine what action will be taken in the adjustment of the situation.

Pilot Green, a young but experienced flyer, in describing details of his Sunday afternoon air misfortune, said that his only thoughts were for the safety of his passengers, who were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson of Danielson. Aware of the grim fact that there was no possible way of starting the inert motor, Green turned to his passengers, informed them of their plight and urged them not to be alarmed.

His gliding powers were handicapped by low altitude, this making it imperative that he select the nearest field to make a forced landing. He started to glide slowly to earth with the nose tilted slightly downward. After negotiating the cow pasture south of the town farm, which was surrounded by a wire fence, Green headed the disabled ship into the southwest corner of the emergency landing field and a few minutes later "squashed" into the fence, tearing the landing gear away and hurling the ship for nearly a 100 feet on its "belly." After the crack-up the body flipped over but fortunately with momentum sufficient enough to return the craft to upright position. In the last motion, the propellor was bent and the wings crushed as the weight of the body and passengers settled upon the projecting landing wheels.

After the damaged portions of the ship were removed this morning, the plane was prepared for removal to storage quarters at the Hoxie farm in Gary district, where Green said it probably will remain for a few days until the owners claim it.

The crash of the passenger plane is the second minor airplane upset occurring in this section this year. Early in the spring another plane became helpless while in flight and was forced down in the vicinity of the poor farm.

PUTNAM

CHRISTMAS CLUB CHECKS TO AMOUNT TO $78,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 10.— According to figures released today by the Connecticut chamber of commerce, club savings to be disbursed throughout Windham county during the early weeks of December will reach an aggregate sum of $307,000. Of this amount Putnam banks will send out Christmas checks to their club members which will amount to more than $78,000, according to figures gathered this afternoon from treasurers of the city's banking institutions.

The officials in each bank stated that the savings, when compared to those made in 1929, show a slight decline this year. However, the decrease in deposits in the Christmas savings departments has not been sufficient enough to render conditions abnormally low, the treasurers said.

It is the custom to mail the club checks to depositors during the first week in December. At this time a large portion of this amount of cash immediately flows into the channels of retail trade, thereby directly stimulating trade activity and boosting the "rush" season before Christmas. Some, bankers anticipate, as usual will be re-deposited to serve as the basis of permanent savings accounts, while a large amount will undoubtedly be used in the paying off of accumulated indebtedness, with a resulting beneficial effect almost as great as that of new purchases.

Mrs. Marion Watson, of Boston, former club agent for the Windham County Farmers' association, has accepted the invitation of association officials to attend the annual meeting of the farmers' organization which is to be held Wednesday at the Grange hall in Brooklyn. Mrs. Watson is well known in Windham county, where she was actively engaged in the stimulation of the 4-H club work.

The recurrence of last year's flag-pole rope theft which took place at the soldiers' monument, Grove street on Halloween night, is nothing short of sheer vandalism. The fact that the rope on the pole was cut down last week did not come to light until late today when members of the general committee in charge of the celebration of Armistice day (Tuesday) went to the monument plot to investigate conditions. The incident was reported to Mayor Charles A. Richard, who, in turn, called the matter to the attention of the police, instructing them to investigate in an effort to find the boys responsible for the act, which has greatly handicapped those in charge of the program to be held at the monument.

Police are in possession of information concerning those believed to have committed the deed.

After completing an appointment with a town official at the municipal building this afternoon a well known Putnam lawyer and city court official, having a few leisure moments to while away before his next appointment, strolled into the police station. Upon descending the stairs leading to police headquarters, the court official heralded his approach with a customary rap on the door. The gesture brought no response and the court official assumed the liberty of walking in. In the main office of the city's law enforcing establishment was a man lying on the floor. "He's dead, my, oh my," exclaimed the visitor, as he was confronted with a ghastly stare from the apparent lifeless form on the floor. Scurrying to the telephone on the desk in the far corner of the room, the assistant magistrate called the police sub-station on Main street and breathlessly told the details of his "grim" find.

Patrolman Wallen made the trip across the river in record breaking time, and upon his arrival at headquarters was deeply moved by the scene.

A bit wary of taking action he conducted himself accordingly during the quiet moments that followed. Suddenly the victim emitted a muffled grunt. Suspecting what was what, Officer Wallen, with the aid of the attorney, lifted the body from the floor. It suddenly came to life, but there was a strong odor of intoxicants about it. "It was only a body that met a body coming through the rye," said Officer Wallen, as he extricated a quart bottle of some popular brand of bay rum or other after shave lotion from the bootlegger-fashioned trousers of the transient, who had wandered into the station in quest of a night's lodging and a ticket to the rounders haven at the county jail in Brooklyn. It was all over when the subject of excitement had been assigned to a berth in the cell room there to celebrate the anniversary of the signine of the Armistice.

LOSING A REAR WHEEL, NEW BRITAIN CAR WRECKED

William Davis, of New Britain, driving a Chevrolet coupe, and traveling for the Duco Paint Co., of Hartford, received painful cuts and bruises at noon Monday, when his car was smashed at the foot of Farrell hill, in Tadpole. The trouble happened when a rear wheel came off and the car, becoming unmanageable, mounted the bank and crashed into a maple tree in front of Mrs. Adrian Maynard's home. The machine overturned and was wrecked. The injured man was taken to the office of Dr. G. H. Jennings, where after receiving medical attention, he was cared for until his father drove here from New Britain and took him home. State Trooper Martin, from the Danielson barracks, checked up on the wreck. The car was hauled to Bromley's garage.

Afternoon Chimney Fire

A still alarm at 5:55 p. m., Monday, was for a chimney fire in the LeClaire block on Mathewson street. The chemical tank on Engine No. 1 did the trick without damage.

Seal Visits Misquamicut

The shores of Misquamicut were visited on Sunday afternoon by a seal and its presence was vouched for by Ralph G. Bliven, proprietor of the Wigwam hotel and his wife. The seal made its appearance about 3:30 p. m. and first attracted the attention of the Bliven family by its bark. Gazing out upon the waters of the Atlantic ocean Mr. Seal was seen in the waters of the surf line where the breakers began. It is not very frequent that the waters of this section have such visitors and unlike Bering Sea and such waters the coast guardsmen do not have to look out for poachers. Proprietor Bliven declared the seal took its departure downward.

Westerly public schools will be closed all day today (Armistice Day) the formal school observance having been made on Monday when programs appropriate to the occasion were carried out in the various buildings.

At the regular assembly at the High school the principal, Charles E. Mason, gave a talk to the students emphasizing the importance of the day.

At Elm street, Pleasant street, Park avenue, West Broad and Bradford schools observance was made by the singing of patriotic songs, the school salute to the flag and the recitation of the American's creed. An explanation of Armistice day was given by the teachers in the individual rooms.

During the assembly at the High street school similar observance was made.

Members of Harold W. Merrill Post, No. 16, American legion, will observe annual Poppy day today when the buttonhole flower will be sold as on tag day and the proceeds used for the relief of local World war sufferers who are in need of assistance.

Members of the Westerly town council on Monday evening at the call of acting-president, George E. Broughton, in the absence of President Horace E. Burdick in Florida, held private session in the council chambers. As indicated at a previous council session the town fathers desired a conference with Dr. Samuel C. Webster, superintendent of health, on the sewerage problems confronting the health department.

It is understood that the members of the council will receive Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton to discuss a recent vote of the town council recommending that the penalty for non-payment of taxes be waived until February. A charge of 1 per cent per annum is usually imposed against taxpayers who have not paid their tax on the last day of October.

The town council made its recommendation to assist those who found it impossible to pay their tax because of the business depression.

The Armistice day program observance will be featured in Westerly by an early start this year to permit a visit to Stonington where an elaborate program calls for the dedication of a World war memorial. Manufacturing plants, public buildings and retail stores generally will be closed all day. A DUCK-HUNTER'S LUCK EVEN ON A STORMY TRIP

Raymond Burns left last Tuesday afternoon in a boat with some duck decoys, made of wood, that looked like real ducks, all painted up in the water. Burns sure likes duck shooting. Claims it is more fun than eating 15 hot dogs on a bet. The water was rough and kicking up mean waves, but he said: "It is democrats' weather and I can make it all right!" The fishing fleet boats were all tied up with extra lines on account of the wind, but the hunter waved a goodbye with his left hand, meaning good luck. One old salt shook his head and said, "He will never come back!" As the voters were casting a good democratic vote, Sailing Burns was banging at the election birds that came in near the wooden ducks.

The crack shot never killed a duck in the water, always on the wing. That gave them a good chance to get clear again. But a duck is hard to fool and is wise as an owl in Hadley woods. They know when the law is on, also can tell when the curtain is pulled down for the season and you will see them almost walking up East Main street for a drink of orangeade or soda. Several fishermen would hear a shot or two during the afternoon and would say, "That hunter with the good left eye is getting his Thanksgiving birds early! Making sure of his dinner, all right, on that day!"

Before the sun went to bed for the night, a boat was pushing the waves high around by Mason's Island. The boat was hitting on all eight, trying to make the town dock. That fellow had the hair standing up straight on the fishermen's heads all the time he was hunting. They would not leave the docks until he tied up.

Around 5 o'clock Burns landed all right and was safe. That took the worry away from the hearts of the old and young salts. One fellow said, "What luck did you have?"

With a big chew of dark B. L. in his mouth, he said: "Well, 15 ducks is not so bad for a voting day; and two red-head ducks, also a mallard. But I will take enough for a couple of meals, then give what ducks I get to those poor fellows out of work with the roof of their shoes out and with kids to feed. You see, I have a 'kind' heart!

"Let me tell you about what happened with those wooden ducks riding high on the waves. A hunter came crawling down on them, slow as a caterpillar trying to beat a wild cat; when he stood up with the gallon hat on his head, he let go both barrels into the wooden ducks and blew off seven heads and three tails. So I got up from my hiding place, let out a war cry, and said, 'What is the matter, Big Shot? Can't you tell a real duck from a wooden one?' 'Well, I ought to; have been hunting since Smith Bros. made the cough drops. But you got such real paint on them you could fool a good republican running for an office!' It pulled a laugh for several minutes, so I could not help myself laughing at the hunter! He took out of his pocket a roll of green bills that would bring tears to Center Groton eyes to see—those good American dollars. But I told him it was all right, to save his money; that it was all in the duck game, for we all make mistakes! But have you got an Old Gold smoke anywhere? A fellow can get better aim with an Old Gold than a Lucky Strike! 'Sure!' the stranger said. So we talked for an hour, till two birds came flying by us. Not being Scotch, I said, 'Take the outside one and I will take the one near to me!' We let go and he turned Mr. Duck right over in the air and it fell dead, while I had to shoot twice before the Mumford Cove duck dropped in the salt water, never to return to his pals. We shook hands, hoping to meet again on another duck hunting trip."

Burns has to leave for California to open an auto shop for his uncle, Pat. Burns.

"Well, fishermen, you see you always want to pick a northeast storm to shoot ducks. An election day, also. I thank you for standing by to see if anything happened to me and the boat!"

Not A Cheap Help But Safest For Deep Coughs

Creomulsion is not the cheapest help for coughs from colds. It is made to do the utmost, whatever the condition. It combines in one prescription seven of the world's best helps.

It is made in particular for coughs from colds which hang on. There is where one dare not risk a help of lesser value. But is it wise in any cough to trust a less effective help?

Creosote is in it, blended, emulsified and tasty. In an ideal way it presents the supreme help for soothing membranes and combating cold germs.

But there are also white pine tar, wild cherry bark, menthol, ipecac, etc. Each is best for some coughs. Here we combine all major helps to fight coughs to the limit from the start.

Because of this expensive combination, Creomulsion costs a little more than lesser helps. The price is $1.25, but your druggist guarantees it. He returns your money if you ask for it.

A three-day cough is a danger signal. There you must use Creomulsion to be sure. But is it wise to trust any cough to lesser help when the utmost is at your command? You never know where a cough may lead. Treat it with the best men know.

Norwich, Tuesday, Nov. 11, 1930

ARMISTICE DAY

Norwich is one of the few cities which devotes the entire day to the observance of the anniversary of the signing of the armistice. It is an occasion which cannot fail to awaken thoughts of the past, the rejoicing that occurred back in 1918 because peace had been declared and the efforts that have since been put forth to insure peace for the world.

There cannot fail to be recalled today the great sacrifices that were made by those who went into the great struggle and gave up their lives or health. Likewise there were the suffering and torment, the deprivations and horrors that went with that titanic combat. It was a war that pictured anew the meaning of war to the world and quickened the demand that henceforth there should be an adjustment of international disputes through sane and sensible methods.

Armistice day marked the change from war to peace. Immediately thereafter efforts were set in motion for insuring peace to the world in future. It was easy to awaken interest and to enlist support. It was possible to get nations to denounce war and to give greater consideration to the prevention of bloodshed. It set in motion those endeavors which brought an international agreement to limit naval armament. It brought European nations to a better relationship and established agreements for ending secret treaties. It produced the league of nations to act for the prevention of war. It gave the real boost to the establishment of the world court for the settlement of international problems. It was the turn in the tide that made possible the conference of nations which resulted in outlawing war and agreeing to adjust differences in the interest of peace. That was followed by a second agreement for the limitation of naval strength and, thus far, the various treaties and agencies have been successful for the most part in preventing war between nations.

There are evidences that there are still difficulties in the way of desired international understandings and the farther we get away from the date of the close of the war the more frequently do we hear talk about the possibility of further conflicts in Europe.

Thus, though there has been a marked strengthening of the agencies for peace since the close of the war, there still remains opportunity and need for a continuance of the good work. Armistice day reminds us of its importance.

SAVINGS INCREASE

Times have changed again. According to the figures given by the American Bankers' association, deposits in the savings banks and trust companies of the country totaled $28,485,000,000 on June 30. That represented a gain of $267,180,000 over the total of June 30, 1929, a situation that was decidedly favorable when it is remembered that there was a loss sustained in the year ending with June 30, 1929, of $195,393,000.

There has been a different attitude displayed in the past year than in the one previous. Where there was a grand rush to take money out of the banks and invest it in stocks there followed an appreciation of the protection of principal and interest that is furnished by the banks. The report indicates that the experience has convinced large numbers that getting rich quick is not always as easy as promised.

Connecticut was among the states where increased deposits were reported and where there was also an increase in the number of depositors, all of which indicates a return to a recognition of the wisdom of properly safeguarding savings by putting them where there will be a steady and certain return instead of taking chances with high markets which may soon become almost bottomless.

The importance of savings institutions cannot be too highly estimated. There are, in fact, many who are taking greater chances with their savings, by hiding them about the house for robbers to carry off or for fire to destroy, than did many who put them into the stock market. Such people who are contributing to the loss of their own money are, of course, making substantial contributions to the government, since it is not possible for the United States treasury to make good any such losses, whether the money happens to be in bills or government bonds.

The figures indicate the saving capacity of the people of this country, even during a period of unemployment, a time when it might be expected that savings accounts would be subject to a decrease rather than an increase. In their search for safety, however, it displays a healthy regard by the people for the savings banks of the country.

CHILD WELFARE

The study that is being given to the problem of child welfare by the white house conference on child health and protection takes in all angles and there is promise of highly valuable reports to that conference this month from the various committees.

In the matter of health, stress is properly being laid upon adequate health education and close cooperation between the home and the school. It would seem that such efforts have been underway for so long that most homes would be reached through succeeding generations which have received needed influences and training, but it is apparent that they have not. That there must be a continuation of the work is evident when it is claimed that there are 50,000,000 children to be benefited, and, unfortunate as it is, the failure of parents to assume their responsibilities indicates health education must go on indefinitely.

It is set forth that the United States is burdened to the extent of $16,000,000,000 yearly because of crime because of approximately 1,000,000 criminals of various classes. It is probably too much to suppose that such could be wiped out through increased attention to child welfare, for it isn't always the neglected and unhealthy children who develop into criminals. The criminals come from all classes, those who have been surrounded with luxuries and advantages as well as those who have been neglected.

However, if it is necessary to spend $16,000,000,000 because of the criminals, there can be no question of the justification of expending $5,000,000,000 outside of the public schools in the interest of child welfare or of liberally increasing the funds for such purposes. If what is done for the children means an attack upon crime and reduces the number interested therein, so much the better. If, through better health education, there can be the development of better children, better characters, better homes, it is an effort in which there cannot be too much interest and support. Such a movement never fails to arouse enthusiasm and nothing offers greater inspiration than the presentation of reports of marked progress and worthwhile programmes of action.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLEDGE

There is interest at the present time in the offer that has been made by a group of democratic leaders to give all possible cooperation to the administration and that the recent gains made by the democrats will not be taken advantage of to obstruct and handicap.

In making such a statement only two involved are members of congress but the expectations are that they will be influential enough to see that the promise is kept. The pledge has been accepted by the republicans at face value. It is expected that it will be kept and it is, of course, being regarded as good politics.

The country has had enough of the antics which characterized recent sessions. It is difficult to interpret the election as the desire of the voters to correct the situation in the manner proposed but there is need of working with the president for important legislation, for the solution of pressing problems and for the restoration of confidence in congress.

If there is the cooperation that is indicated, and if the trouble that the democrats might make is not undertaken, it will mean an end to the activities of the group of insurgents who have been holding the balance of power. Whether the temper of the group is represented by the appeal of Senator Brookhart to play with the democrats if they would endorse his policies remains to be seen. Evidently the democrats appreciate the disgust which the country has expressed for bloc rule. Possibly the insurgents will experience a change of heart, but that is almost too much to expect of them, regardless of what the needs of the nation may be.

Possibly the democratic pledge is the coalition which Senator Moses referred to as possible, but its sincerity and effectiveness will be proved as time goes along.

GENERAL TASKER H. BLISS

It was a long, honorable and important public service that was rendered by General Tasker H. Bliss. There may have been army leaders who had more spectacular careers, but General Bliss was engaged in directing some highly valuable services for this country and he was always true to his trust and equal to the emergency. Praise for the character of his services came not only from his fellow countrymen but from leaders of other nations.

General Bliss was a diplomat as well as a soldier. He was military attache at the Spanish legation in Madrid when the Spanish-American war opened and his active war service began soon after as chief of staff in Porto Rico. He was sent to Havana in after-war service and the things he did in cleaning up that city, ending corruption, establishing new laws and improving the relations with this country have been of lasting benefit to the island republic.

He was later found developing a plan for the protection of the Mexican border and was sent as a member of the supreme war council in Europe and furnished a plan for the centralized control of the war by the allies which gained Lloyd George's enthusiastic praise. He had previously worked out a plan for the mobilization of our forces in case of need and it so happened that he was chief of staff to put it into effect when war developed.

When important services were required at conferences and in treaty-making in Europe which concerned this country, General Bliss was repeatedly chosen among the representatives of this country. He was heard with good results in such cases and his influence was effective. His record was such as to place him high in the ranks of our soldiers and statesmen.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There's no question but what some of the election bets can be paid without taking any chances.

The refusal of Alabama to send Heflin back to the senate will not displease the upper house of congress.

The man on the corner says: If you can't participate you can show your interest in and give encouragement to the paraders today.

Armistice day. It is impossible to expect quite the same enthusiasm in the celebration as 12 years ago, but you can take off your hat when the flag goes by.

The warden of the Maine state prison has resigned because a national organization has reported he lacked industrial and penological experience to swing the job. Perhaps he had refused to be so lenient as to invite many breaks, escapes or killing of guards.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—The city of Washington flies more American and foreign flags than any other city in the United States. From every one of the federal buildings in the capital the flag flies from sun-up to sun-down; and there are more public buildings in Washington than any where in the country. The flag flies from every schoolhouse and from every hotel, from every semi-official building, stores, office buildings and the like and from many private residences. At the capital a flag flies continuously over the two main entrances to the great building. When congress is in session a flag flies over the senate and another over the house of representatives, lowered only when an adjournment has taken place; if a recess not exceeding three days, the flag remains in position. Over the main entrance to both senate and house office buildings a flag flies during the same hours as other flags. Out at Arlington, reckoned as a part of Washington, is the National cemetery, and not only are there large flags flying from sun-up to sun-down, as the army and navy officially express it, but over the thousands of graves of soldiers, sailors, high federal officials who lie under the sod of that great burial place for heroes, tiny flags flutter all the year round, to be renewed at each Memorial day, by hands of living patriots.

And what about flags of other nations? There are something like 50 or 60 foreign countries diplomatically represented in Washington by ambassadors and ministers. Each nation is regarded as officially on its own soil wherever an embassy or legation stands, in which resides the official representative of the country he represents.

Many of those flags blaze with color and insignia and form a notable contrast to our Stars and Stripes, though in the flag of every civilized nation, one or more of the colors red, white or blue appear, and have appeared since the earliest record of flags, whether national or tribal.

When a person of high foreign official rank visits Washington, the embassy or legation either entertain him, or he takes a suite at some large hotel or maybe a great private residence is turned over to him and his staff during the visit, as a matter of the special courtesy of an American citizen extended a foreign official from a friendly nation. In that case not only the flag of the nation from which he comes, floats over the building, but the American flag flies beside it, but always holding the place of honor. Once in a while, as at some international conference, a hotel will shelter representatives of several nations, then the flag of each is flown over the main entrance, together with the American flag. The same is carried out at the Union station, where there are three tall standards, from one of which the stars and stripes always fly.

The flag over the white house flies only during the presence of the president; if he is out of the city the flag is lowered. This custom has brought about considerable criticism, for there is a president's personal flag, and it has been urged by many that the national colors always fly over the executive mansion, with the president's flag also flying when he is what is termed "in residence" there. Some one once gave as the reason that kept the suggestion from being carried out, was a controversy as to how the two flags should be hung.

So with the brilliant red, white and blue of our own flag, the gay colors of every foreign country with which we have diplomatic relations, flying every hour of daylight every day in the year, Washington may well be dubbed the city of flags, for only a portion of its flag flying is herein enumerated.

And then come the days when flags are at half-mast, that is when the death of some official of high rank has occurred. On the death of a president, vice president, senator or member of the house, all flags at the capitol are at half-mast and on certain memorial occasions the flags of the city and all federal buildings follow. There is no federal rule regulating the flying of flags, except as pertaining to the federal government, army and navy, but their customs are largely followed by the people of the country, although not compulsory. In fact, the only federal law is that the American flag shall not be desecrated or used for advertising purposes; then it is left to the loyalty of the citizen and the country to define just what constitutes desecration.

There are many interesting instances of half-masting the flag, if space were permitted to tell of them. One was when Mrs. Woodrow Wilson died. Rules govern the flag in death of a president, but a member of his family has no federal standing. All the same that fact was winked at and the white house flag lowered when Mrs. Wilson died. Another instance of note was when the flags at the capitol flew at half-mast for the death of Speaker Champ Clark. The moment of the Harding inauguration came, a half-mast flag spelled disaster to the president in the minds of the superstitious and it was hastily raised during the ceremony, but there are those today who believe the Harding death was thus foretold.

Uncle Sam has a sort of sympathy for folks who put their savings in out of the way places instead of in banks or safety deposit vaults, or in sound investments. He doesn't get out of patience if somebody tucks good currency into an old stocking, then hides the stocking; or up the chimney, or in some old piece of broken crockery, then sells, throws away or starts a fire, forgetting their treasure is in danger. If enough scraps are left for identification, the treasury department turns them over to a "scrap specialist" in the person of Mrs. Tarbrough, and she pieces them together much after the fashion of "doing" a picture puzzle. Damaged bonds amounting to many thousand dollars, have been found in out of the way places, sent to the treasury, deciphered and redeemed in new crisp bills. It takes expert knowledge and great skill to tell whether any of the money sent back for redemption is counterfeit, but the treasury department states seldom, if ever, are the experts fooled into making a mistake. It is positively uncanny the way they can decipher those scraps, and still more wonderful that they can detect instantly any attempt to falsify as to the genuineness of the torn, mutilated, or half-burned papers submitted for redemption. They say those government experts find each scrap a story in itself, whether it is a bit of rat-chewed paper, a corner of a partly destroyed bond, or a water-soaked bill of ancient vintage.

Christopher Pluff, of the Detroit police department, at a recent gathering of his fellow policemen, announced that he thought he could eat more wieners than any one present. The other policemen accepted the challenge and in thirty-four minutes Christopher ate sixty-four wieners. At a light dessert he ate two Spanish onions and a can of beans. A few days later he was home on sick leave.

PUSSY WILLOWS

A sigh escaped Sylvia's lips as she paused to gaze in the window of a florist's shop at a bunch of pussy willows. What a host of memories they called up! Nothing in nature was to her so typical of spring and when a child it had always been her delight to gather the first of the season.

Though a sharp March wind was blowing, bringing with it flurries of snow, Sylvia seemed suddenly enveloped by the warm, sunshine of an April day; she was very old (at least 10) and was once again at her home in the country, racing down the lane toward the river to a spot where a row of tall willows bordered its bank. When halfway to this destination a boy of about her own age sprang out from behind a clump of bushes in the corner of the rail fence.

"I beat yah!" he cried triumphantly, waving aloft a handful of catkins.

"Oh, Tommy, I think you're too mean—"

"They're for you!"

"But I wanted to pick 'em myself."

"Come on, then; there's plenty more!"

"All right!" agreed Sylvia. "I'll race you to Big Ben!"

Tommy's legs being longer, he reached Big Ben first; in climbing, however, Sylvia was as expert as her companion. To be sure scrambling up the ancient tree was not a difficult task; its limbs were many and bent conveniently. The one that arched over the river was a favorite, and presently they crawled out near the end and perched there like a couple of birds.

Several years slipped by: Sylvia had put up her hair and lengthened her dresses. Big Ben was still a favorite haunt though now a retreat for dreaming daydreams or reading novels. When Tommy ventured thither he was frequently subjected to haughty indifference. One afternoon, intent upon an absorbing book, Sylvia caught a glimpse of her erstwhile crony approaching, but pretended not to see him.

"Hello!" shaking the limb upon which she was sitting.

"Hello!" the response was decidedly cool.

"What you readin'?"

"'Jane Eyre.'"

"I read that; Sue got it from the library. Like it?"

"Yes, indeed!" enthusiastically.

"But that fella; you don't mean to say you like him?"

"Are you referring to Mr. Rochester?"

"Yep."

"Certainly I admire him! He's so 'er, masterful." She was convinced that if this didn't do the work Tommy's case was hopeless. It had the desired effect. He remarked: "Well, I guess I must be goin'!" hesitating, however, for a word encouraging him to remain. No word was forthcoming, so he inquired, "Get any pussy willows yet?"

"Lots of them!"

Sylvia resumed reading and Tommy departed.

"I believe I'll buy a few to take home!" With hand on the door knob Sylvia was about to enter the shop, when she recollected that there was just change enough left in her purse for a railroad ticket; the old one was used up on the way downtown.

"And only fifteen minutes to catch the train!" she exclaimed consulting her watch.

All the way to the suburb of Glendale Park Sylvia ruminated on the dullness and drabness of existence; by the time she reached home she was in anything but a cheerful mood. Later while preparing dinner some one entered the front hall and, as she did not as usual rush out to greet him, called, "Where are you Honey?"

"In the kitchen."

When the head of the bungalow entered the kitchen Sylvia observed that he was carrying a long, slender box.

"What have you got?" she inquired.

"Open it and see!" he returned, placing the box on the table.

After untying the string, unwrapping the paper and removing the lid, Sylvia cried, "Oh, how lovely!" Then as she took up the bouquet of spring flowers and pussy willows he explained, "I was passing a florist's and saw the pussy willows in the window. Made me think of when we were kids and I couldn't resist the temptation of bringing some to you."

"Oh, Tommy!" exclaimed Sylvia beaming delightedly, "you are a perfect dear!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—With another congressional widow, Mrs. Effie Gene Wingo of Arkansas, assured of a house seat before the formality of counting noses election day was carried through, the practice started when Mrs. Florence Kahn of California took over her dead husband's duties "on the hill" gained added momentum.

That was only five years ago, yet there are three congresswomen in the house of the 71st congress, not counting Mrs. Langley, who inherited her husband's post for other reasons and Mrs. McCormick, widow of a senator, to whom widowhood was a doorway to political life.

Regret, Perhaps

Mrs. Oldfield, first congressional widow from Arkansas, was the only one of the 71st house trio not to seek re-election. And there were intimations soon after Mrs. Oldfield announced her impending retirement from public life that she regretted her decision.

She was indefatigable in attendance on house sessions from the day she took office. A taste for that sort of thing sometimes grows on one.

As she rounds out her term in the winter "lameduck" session of the 71st congress, Mrs. Oldfield probably will know an increasing feeling of loneliness as the moment for her return to private life draws nearer.

It must be difficult to contemplate return to household duties after such an experience.

Friendships

Then there is another aspect to this congressional widow business. They take the place of house veterans. Much of their immediately preceding lives was spent in Washington.

They were part of the general congressional social circle as congressional wives, and of the more intimate social relationship in which members of the congressional delegation of a state live with each other while the house is convened.

Look at the case of Mrs. Wingo, whose return in her husband's place was demanded by republicans of the district on penalty of starting a fight against anybody else the democrats might seek to seat.

She has lived in Washington 17 years. Her husband had grown to a position of influence among his democratic colleagues when he died.

Long service "on the hill" in itself adds to power of a member of house or senate, partially because of seniority, but also, for a man able to make and keep friends even over the party line, because of those friendships. Representative Wingo had that capacity well developed.

Undoubtedly the close friends of the Wingo household would be those made in political life all these years. Their disruption is avoided for the widow by carrying on in her husband's stead.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Crime and Law

Mr. Editor: Had you inquired 40 years ago in Chicago how long a residence was required of a foreigner to become a full-fledged citizen qualified to vote for president, four out of five would have told you six weeks. The longest time anyone ever told me was six months. Now while most of these foreigners were good, honest people, a lot of them were criminal. I once hired a man when farming who told me that his father in the old country had his crops stolen and went one night to watch and did not return. In the morning he found his father tied to a tree and when the father told who tied him he hunted the man and killed him and then gave himself up to the court. He was told that he did just right, but "get yourself to America." There are so many burglaries, highway robberies and murders in Chicago the newspapers have agreed not to report them because people would not care to make a home there if they knew. I have lived there and know.

It would take pages of our Bulletin to print the daily crimes in detail. Now, these criminals and their children are evidently running Chicago and probably the state of Illinois. Massachusetts has a foreign element of citizens, if not quite, almost as bad as Chicago. They have harassed industries with strikes and a never satisfied demand for less work and more pay. They have driven a large part of them out of the state. It is guzzling of beer, wine, whiskey and rum that helps make and keep them that way.

The next move they make will be to advocate the repeal of the law, thou shalt not steal, for that also interferes with their personal liberties, and it is not nearly as well enforced as the liquor laws. Why not modify or license thieving? And while rum "supports the army," thieving could support the navy. Let us have local option and each community make and enforce its own stealing laws. Why not?

The election as a referendum shows that the people have in an office-seeker; one who has no mind of his own on the issues, but offers to serve two directly opposing parties, one wet, the other dry. It is the dry candidate seeking the wet vote that has received the greatest rebuke. And it is only the crime centers that put up the biggest howl against anything that prevents them having free rum.

Sunday Record Advertising

Mr. Editor: All merchants are familiar with the modern slogan, "It pays to advertise." We want to add to it that it pays to advertise in The Norwich Sunday Record. Our first Sunday advertisement in The Norwich Sunday Record was given complimentary, as we are great friends of The Norwich Bulletin and Record. We have, however, found that this complimentary advertisement has brought us real results. In checking up our sales last week, we found that four radio sales were the direct outcome of the ads in The Sunday Record. Two of the sales came from territory adjacent to Norwich, which shows that The Norwich Sunday Record is being read in new territory. It is our belief that this will prove a valuable advertising medium for Norwich merchants.

We are pleased to be among the friends of The Norwich Sunday Record who approve its new progressive step and extend best wishes for future success.

Ambition

Mr. Editor: Ambition has been defined as a desire to excel, to be honored, to attain fortune. And to be looked upon as a leader among men. This is a worthy desire, and yet men are ever looking forward to something that is far and above their place in life. It may be said and with truth they want to change places, to get other than what they have. An ambition to be what they are not.

The city fellow toils away
And all the while
He keeps increasing day by day
His little pile.
He talks about the country's charm
And hopes some day to buy a farm.

The farmer toils the stubborn soil.
Subdues the sod:
And banks in autumn for his toil
A goodly wad.
And when his pile is salted down,
He hopes to go and live in town.

So it can be readily seen that here are two men with an entirely different ambition, but each one aspires to that something that appeals to him as the real thing in life. The leader among men has an ambition to become famous and be honored, but how fleeting this all is for they become only a few days' sensation, pass out of the glare of publicity and some other one comes over the horizon, his place on the front of the takes his place on the front of the stage of life, makes his bow and then passes on as another actor struts his stuff. And so it goes all the time. Many there are who have their names inscribed in the hall of fame, which their admiring countrymen view and venerate. Some there are who attain to that pinnacle of success through hard work and courage only to make one false step and lose all, and I think at this time of that little chapel at West Point where there are inscribed on tablets of stone the names of many illustrious Americans. Among them is one inscribed to the memory of Major General ——. Nothing more for the name has been carefully chiseled out. Yet we recall who it was for he had a brilliant future but his ambition was warped by his desire to do that which must inevitably lead to dishonor and oblivion.

I cannot, right here, refrain from quoting from the one man, who needs no tablets of stone to perpetuate his memory, a man whose loving personality, even today stands in his glory among his countrymen, as one of the Immortals, Abraham Lincoln, who has said: "Every man is said to have his peculiar ambition. Whether it be true or not, I can say, for one, that I have no other so great as that of being truly esteemed by my fellow men, by rendering myself worthy of their esteem. How far I shall succeed in gratifying this ambition is yet to be developed. I am young and unknown to many of you. I was born, and have remained in the humble walks of life. I have no wealthy or popular relatives or friends to recommend. My case is thrown exclusively upon the independent voters of the country and if elected, they will have conferred a favor upon me for which I shall be unremitting in my labors to compensate. But if the good people in their wisdom shall see fit to keep me in the background, I have been too familiar with disappointment to be very much chagrined." The foregoing was taken from a speech to the voters of Sangamon, March 9, 1832. And thus it can be seen his greatest ambition was to serve the people. It is to be regretted that we haven't more men today with that self-same ambition to serve the people, but today with the machine politicians who pull the strings, then lose sight after election of the rank and file and listen to the dictation and voice of their master, their ambition is not that of the intellectual giants of other days whose chief ambition was to do right for they were ashamed to do wrong.

Many of us do not possess any great desire or ambition to move onward or upward although we may make a feeble effort and if we meet with any obstacle which may impede our progress we figuratively throw up our hands and say, What is the use? They stay in a rut, but like the boys in a football game you have got to buck the line hard, if you want to get a touchdown at the goal called ambition. Just remember a man will remain a rag picker as long as he continues to have the vision of a rag picker. You can bet your last nickel that nothing succeeds like success. Our ambition is to do our best, and nothing less for there is a reality back of this. It may take years of hard work, but eventually you will get to the goal of your ambition, your highest place in life. By grim courage and hard work we finally reach the height of our ambition. Then we wonder if it was really the goal we had sought for it may come far short of what we aspired to. We may have had money and this in times of adversity, is of paramount value. If used to help some poor unfortunate it will have been of use but there is a something else, the securing of a good name. We know a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and yet our ambition is to get money. The really great and successful men are the ones who obey the laws of God and man and have attained that ambition that time cannot efface, for they have left imprints in the tablets of memory. What ambition can man desire more than this?

YOUR HEALTH

Elimination Of Pain In Dentistry

By Elmer S. Best, D. D. S., F. I. C. D., Minneapolis.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The value to the individual of a mouth containing teeth and gums in a normal condition of health is something most difficult to evaluate.

From the standpoint of personal appearance it determines, to a large extent, the impression a person makes on others. It is one of the most valuable assets a person may possess. The effect on the health of the individual of a mouth abounding in health is much greater than any of us have any idea. In addition it may easily determine our success in life.

Why then do people allow their teeth and gums to become diseased? It cannot be the cost that keeps them from their dentists for many such have automobiles, radios, attend the movies, travel, do and have other things that cost money. The real reason has been fear of pain. They have thought of dentistry in terms of pain.

This situation is now entirely changed. Little children are now placed in the care of competent dentists who prevent the occurrence of cavities, or if they do develop they are filled while quite small and with practically no pain or discomfort.

The grown-up too has been considered in this modern scheme of painless dentistry. Much, of course, continues to depend on the regularity with which he visits the dentist. However, now adays in adults, all operations from the preparation of the smallest cavities to the most extensive operations are done entirely free from pain, the same as in the field of general surgery.

Local anesthetics are continually used by the dentist. Even the initial puncture of the needle is now made without the patient knowing about it. A wide range of methods are used to relieve the patient of the nervous tension from which so many suffer.

One of the most popular is a little switch which the patient holds in the hand and which, when they feel they are about to be hurt, they press, thereby shutting off the motor which runs the "drill."

Contrary to first impressions the values of this device are numerous; it gives the patient a feeling of security, and at the same time it does not slow up the work of the dentist because most patients, in an effort to demonstrate personal courage, show reluctance to use the instrument.

In addition to eliminating pain in all operations, dentistry of today has made possible the maintaining of the teeth of the people of the nation in a condition of beauty, health, comfort and efficiency through their research work in preventing dental decay and pyorrhea.

CAR CRASH 'DEAD BEATS' COST HOSPITALS $6,000,000

TRENTON, N. J.—(AP)—Motor accident "dead beats" are esitmated to have cost the country's hospitals between $6,000,000 last year.

The estimate is made by Dr. Emil Frankel, director of research of the New Jersey department of institutions and agencies, on the basis of total hospital bills of more than $15,000,00 run up by victims of highway accidents.

In the light of views from 50 New Jersey hospital administrators, it was recommended that there be compulsory automobile insurance with liability insurance to carry with it a liability policy.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Uncas Finishing Corporation, Norwich.

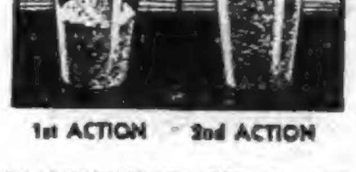
J. C. Worth, the founder of this business, was president and sales manager of the Jewett City Textile and Novelty company from 1919 to 1925.

He then sold his interest and in 1926 started a print department in the plant of Powdrell & Alexander, curtain manufacturers. A year later when he wanted to do business with customers other than Powdrell & Alexander, he moved the plant to the old Shetucket company plant at the foot of Second street, Norwich, incorporating the business for $100,000 under the name of Uncas Finishing corporation. The company dyes, bleaches, prints and finishes cotton and rayon goods to order which are sent to them by converters, together with the designs and colorings. It was one of the pioneers in bleaching cottons and rayons in a kier with the peroxide method holding License No. 2, from Roessler and Hasslacher, originators and owners of this patent process. Since then practically every finisher in the United States has installed this method. With the exception of a few months, this plant has operated on twenty-four hours a day and is doing so at the present time.

The present officers are: William G. Park, president; J. C. Worth, treasurer.

Fluffy cakes . . .
perfect biscuits . . .
all over town

All due to Calumet's DOUBLE-ACTION



All over town women are making handsome hot biscuits—light, perfect cakes. They have heard that Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, brings dependable baking results. Now they are proving it does.

Calumet's first action—in the mixing bowl—starts the rising. Its second action—in the oven—carries that rising through to a triumphant finish even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately. Make a Calumet cake. Or try a pan of muffins or some quick bread. See why Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world to-day.

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action nor in the amount that should be used. And not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Get a can of Calumet from your grocer to-day. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized 16 ounce cans.

© 1930, G. F. CORP.

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that Calumet specially provides to take place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture reaches the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that Calumet holds in reserve to take place in your oven. Make this simple test. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

BIG GREEN PREPARES FOR CORNELL ENCOUNTER

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 10.—(AP)—The Dartmouth drive for another football victory over Cornell, the Green's major rival, started here today when Head Coach Jackson Cannell put his Indians through the first of the intensive drills he has planned for this week

Cannell's tactics indicated he intended to start Wild Bill McCall at halfback against the Ithacans for that erstwhile signal caller ran through formations with Shep Wolff as his running mate. Bill Morton was at quarterback and Wilkin rounded out the combination at fullback.

Dartmouth's end problem is still puzzling Cannell for with Stan Yudicky definitely out of the Cornell clash he is undecided as to whether Branch, Mackey, Whitehair or Stokes deserve the starting berths. MIROVA DANCE PROGRAMME CHARMS NORWICH AUDIENCE

Under the auspices of the Norwich Art association, Vera Mirova, famous Russian dancer, brought a programme of Occidental and Oriental dances before an audience of several hundred at the Masonic temple Monday evening that struck a note of great beauty and novelty to win the enthusiastic applause of the house.

Richness of costume and the use of colored lights, with the grace and skill of the dancer, combined to make the programme one of unusual charm and called for several encores, which Madame Mirova graciously gave with a repetition of the numbers called for.

The programme opened with a group of three Occidental dances, the first of which was the Sarabande, dating from the 12th century in Spain. The costume was a long dress of silver cloth and the dance was interpreted with use of the arms and plastic relaxation of the body. This was followed by the Viennese Valtz for which Mirova wore a modified ballet dress of yellow and danced barefooted in a graceful pose. The last of the group was in contrast to the other two, L'Homme Mechanique (Machine Age), for which the costume was in steely color, with the play of lights, and the dancer's poses in angular, sudden movements, to interpret the motif of the dance. It called for an encore.

The Oriental dances began with the Princess Dance (Java), in which the fingers and arms were used with great skill and there were almost no movements of the body. Another Java dance was Play-At-War, in which the costume included a grotesque mask, with dragon wings and unique headdress, and in which several of the poses produced comical effects

A Hindu folk dance for which the artist wore bells on wrists and ankles was a spirited number which called for an encore. This was followed by an Egyptian dance in which the costume and lighting effects were exquisite and the succeeding number was "Two Snakes" in which the sinuous movements of the dancer's hands and arms simulated the reptiles emerging from and returning to their lair.

The programme closed with one of its finest numbers, Burmese dance, in which Mirova wore a costume of glistening gold which suggested a pagoda effect of marvelous beauty and the audience was not satisfied until it had been repeated to close the thoroughly enjoyable programme.

The music for the dances was by V. Giannini at the piano, who shared in the enthusiastic applause for the dancer.

SHOWS WELFARE WORK OF POWER COMPANY

The speaker at the weekly noon luncheon of the Contact club Monday, at the Wauregan hotel, was Dwight Peck of this city, welfare supervisor of the eastern district for the Connecticut Light and Power Co. President E. O. Rodier presided at the meeting and Fred Geer officiated at the piano. The speaker, introduced by President Rodier, said that his department serves as a legal, medical and financial advisor as well as a welfare department for the employes. In his talk he said:

To those seeking to become employes of the company, Mr. Peck said that they are given an application form of employment, which they must fill out. After this is done they are sent to a doctor for medical examination. This work is done through the welfare department. The company, the speaker said, feels a certain moral obligation to assist the employe, with the result that certain care is taken in the selection of employes. During the past two years better than five per cent seeking employment have been turned down on account of being unable to pass the medical and physical tests.

Employes are permitted to take out group insurance and if they do not desire it are requested to sign a waiver card. Between 96 and 97 per cent of the employes are insured under the group insurance plan, he said.

After working for a year, an employe has the right of sharing in the salary dividend, which is declared by the board of directors. Five per cent is set aside by the directors for its purpose out of the dividend. The welfare fund now totals about $250,000, while a like amount has been paid out in dividends.

The salary dividend is paid according to the length of service of employe. Those working two years get twice as much as the man who worked only one; from two to five, employe gets twice as much; five to ten, employes secures two and one-half times as much while the men working for the company over 15 years gets three and one-half times.

The salary dividends are paid one-half in cash and one-half in the welfare fund. An employe gets five checks a year for cash while the other half goes in the investment fund and when he terminates his employment with the company under favorable conditions he secures this amount.

Through the welfare department, employes may secure loans. The employes also have the right to purchase stock of the company on the installment plan and deductions are made from their pay. Deductions from the pay are also taken by the company for those who desire to maintain a savings account.

A plan of educational courses, through correspondence, is allowed employes who care for it. This is paid for on installment plan, by money being taken out of their pay. If the employe completes the course with a standing of 70 per cent or better, the company stands the expense of one-half. About 200 are taking this course at the present time, the speaker said. Several employes of the company are attending the state trade school, nights at Willimantic. The company furnishes them transportation.

A course of first aid is offered the employes through the welfare department. Several instances where first aid had proven of great benefit was described in an interesting manner by the speaker.

To employes, service pins are given, according to the length of service. These are awarded on a five year basis.

Through the welfare department compensation cases are handled. The company handles its own compensation. By this injured employes are given better medical attention and care. In many instances, according to the speaker, employes receive full pay during disability, while under the law, only half pay is allowed.

Employes using their own cars for the benefit of the company are given their insurance coverage at a reduced rate. When an auto accident occurs the welfare department assists the employe adjusts the matter and takes care of everything for the employe.

Money lent to employes by the welfare department from the welfare fund was described and the speaker mentioned several instances where it has proven of great advantage.

Other cases where the welfare department has helped out were mentioned by the speaker.

Over 200 people from Andover, Colchester, Columbia, Gilead, Bolton, Westchester and Hebron gathered in the First Congregational church Sunday evening to see a six-reel moving picture film of the cities of Mexico, Mazatlan, Tepic, Guadalajara, Mexico City and others. Pile Sufferers

End Your Misery Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood with their guarantee of money back if it does not end all Pile misery.

AVERAGE STOCK PRICES DROPPED NEARLY THREE POINTS YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)— With the largest turnover in a month, stocks extended their declines today. Bonds and commodities accompanied them downward.

Late covering by professional shorts reduced the extreme losses of 1 to 10 points in share prices and a few issues squeezed out of the active trading with small plus signs. However, the market averaged nearly three points lower at the close. Sales totaled 4,426,250 shares, the heaviest volume since the 6,000,000 share day on October 10.

Wheat, breaking 4 cents a bushel to the lowest prices in 24 years, was a feature of the generally gloomy day in financial circles. This wide decline was based partly on bearish crop news and partly on the weakness of the security markets. Corn's losses were smaller, averaging about a cent, but cotton lost $1.45 to $1.70 a bale net.

The bond market dropped to a new low for the year, as measured by the composite price of 30 issues. Only a few of the highest grade issues held up under the selling.

Opinion in conservative banking circles was that pessimism was being overdone and that bearishness was running to extremes comparable to the excesses witnessed during the bullish ballyhoo last year.

The market moved upward during the first hour, but when pressure began to pinch the rails and utilities, selling was resumed throughout the list and the trading became brisk. A climax was reached early in the afternoon after new lows had been recorded and the pace slackened appreciably. Most of the turnover was in the first three hours.

The uncomfortable position of the oil industry was brought out from two or three angles. Receivers were appointed for one small company and to a royalty concern, but a more sombre note was sounded at the meeting of the Royal Dutch shareholders, who were told that the situation had not improved and that predictions for the immediate future could not be made in view of the withdrawal of the American export price schedule, an action generally interpreted as a step toward a large scale price war abroad. Oil stocks were in marked disfavor. Standard of N. J. broke to 49 after a stubborn fight just above the famous support level of 50. Phillips, Royal Dutch and Texas corporation were weak and made scant recovery.

U. S. Steel corporation's unfilled tonnage report for October showed a gain of 57,435 tons, which was better than had been expected. Perhaps of more importance, however, was the announcement by a steel corporation subsidiary, of a minimum price for bars, plates and shapes.

It was another hard day for the high priced rails, most of which sold 5 to 10 points lower before the declines were reduced, nevertheless, a rail—Central of N. J.—had the distinction of being the only active stock to remain in the 200 points group.

Liquidation in the utilities went forward vigorously, and stocks like North American, American Water Works and Public Service of N. J., retained 3 to 4 points of larger extreme losses. American Telephone made a new low at 184 3-4, where it was off more than 3 points, and closed 3 3-4 down.

U. S. Steel, after touching 138, closed at 140, a loss of only half a point. General Electric, General Motors, and Westinghouse were off a point or less at the finish, but National Biscuit, Liggett and Myers and American Tobacco "B" showed losses of 3 to 5. American Can, Eastman Kodak, Kennecott, Vanadium, Stone and Webster and Coca Cola closed moderately higher. Specialties were mostly weak.

Foreign exchanges ruled irregular and dull. The French franc was firm.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)— Another spasm of liquidation, concentrated in the utility and oil shares, sent curb shares still lower in today's market, and piled up total sales of 1,276,800 shares, the largest since the 10th of last month.

The selling appeared to be wearing itself out late in the day, however, and substantial recovery was recorded by some of the more active stocks, a few actually closing with net gains. Liquidation of the oils was probably aggravated by the receivership for Cosden, and the report of the board of Royal Dutch to shareholders saying that only the largest units in the industry could show a margin of profit under present conditions.

It was notable, however, that pressure against Cities Service, a weak feature on Saturday, was lifted. This widely held issue, which has important public utility as well as oil properties, closed at 17 1-8, up 1-8, after again touching Saturday's low of 16. The turnover was only 171,100 shares, against 285,300 on Saturday.

Most of the low priced oil issues sagged to new lows, but even the Standards were under heavy pressure. Indiana declined 2 3-4 to a new low at 35 7-8, and Ohio dropped nearly 5. Humble sagged a point to a new low contrary to the trend, however. Gulf closed up a point at 77. Cosden sold as low as 1 3-4, and closed at 2 1-2, off 1-2 net. Its 1930 high was 7 3-4.

In the utilities, short covering lent support late in the day. Electric Bond and Share dropped 2 3-8 to a new low at 38 5-8, but closed at 40 5-8. Middle West broke more than 3 to 16 5-8, but closed at 18. Niagara Hudson slipped a fraction below 10, closing at 9 7-8. Among the more volatile issues, Northern States A dropped 6 to 120. Associated Gas A was a firm spot, closing with a gain of 7-8.

A long list of industrials in which the market is thin dropped to new lows. Aluminum Company, Ltd., tumbled 13 points to 72. The Ford stocks, however, gave a good account of themselves, closing with gains of minor fractions. Several of the chain store issues also declined. Great Atlantic and Pacific, which usually fluctuates widely, dropped to a new low and closed off 9, net. In the investment company group, United Founders touched 9 1-2 and closed at 9 3-4, off 1-4.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—(AP)—The sensitiveness of bonds to the trend of stocks was sharply delineated today in a very active session in which selling pressure extended to all sections of the market except United States governments.

Bond prices as gauged by the average for 30 bonds rested at a new low for 1930 at the close. The average of 98.0 for 30 domestic bonds represented a 1-2 point drop from Saturday's close and compared with a previous year's low of 98.4, established early in the year and is only 6-10ths higher than the price level prevailing a year ago when security prices were falling sharply.

While high grade issues that remain virtually impervious to the unsettled conditions in security markets and industry were steady to firm, sharp recessions developed in other domestic bonds. Railroad obligations both liens and those with stock privilege features, led the decline as pressure against equity issues influenced further hasty selling of investments.

As on Friday when bond prices were sharply reduced, the liquidation increased the turnover to proportions comparatively large for the fall season.

Losses of 1, 2 and 3 points were sprinkled throughout the list, carrying many bonds, particularly rails and industrials to new 1930 minimums, and very few foreign bonds moved contrary to the general trend.

In the rail list St. Paul adjustment 5s of 2000 sagged 2 1-2 points to a new year's low at 33 1-2, and the 5s of 1955 lost nearly as much. Bonds of the Chicago and Northwestern, Denver, and Rio Grande Western, Missouri Pacific, New York, Chicago and St. Louis, Northern Pacific, St. Louis, San Francisco, Seaboard Air Line and Wabash were among the issues that dipped sharply. In contrast was the steadiness of such gilt edged issues as Union Pacific 4s, and Atchison general 4s.

A handful of utility bonds attracted buying support and moved higher but the gains were more than offset by losses elsewhere. Large losses were registered by Brooklyn Manhattan 6s, Columbus Gas 5s, Federal Light and Traction 6s B, General Public Service 5 1-2s, Interborough Rapid Transit 6s, International Hydro Electric 6s, International Telephone 5s and 4 1-2s, New Orleans Public Service 5s B, and Peoples Gas & Coke of Chicago 5s. Western Pennsylvania Power 5s E, sagged 10 points to 95 7-8 on one sale.

Speculative industrials and convertibles were hard hit by the liquidation and declines were generally measured in points. Foreigns were irregularly lower. German 7s dipped 1 1-2 to 101 1-2. The tone of Latin Americans was the weakest in several weeks. Bolivian, Brazilian, Peruvian and Colombian issues lost ground.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Big selling and sharp breaks in values today tumbled wheat down to the lowest price level since 1902, with rye outdoing any bottom since 1898. Oats, too, reached new depth records.

Much of the selling deluge that swamped the wheat pit and pulled down other cereals came from houses with stock market connections. Corn kept up better than other grain, many corn traders holding off to await the government crop report, which, however, when issued after the day's business was complete, proved to be bearish, showing that 1930 corn production was 54,000,000 bushels larger than the average of recent private estimates.

Wheat closed semi-demoralized at almost the day's minimum prices, 3 1-2a4 1-4c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 7-8a2c off, oats 1 1-4a1 3-4c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 20c.

MILLIONS OF SAFETY SYMBOLS

MORE than 120 million labels of Underwriters' Laboratories are attached each year to various articles, devices and materials used by the American people

Many of your housekeeping utilities—much of the equipment which serves in the homes, stores, factories, offices, schools, hospitals, and other public buildings—bear the well-known Symbol of Safety—the label of Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.—because they have earned that right through severe test and inspection.

Cooperation of Manufacturers

In cooperation with many thousands of manufacturers, Underwriters' Laboratories scientifically safeguard thousands of fire and accident hazards. In 1929 the work involved 60,000 inspections in 114 cities, hundreds of re-examinations, and approximately 5,000 laboratory tests and examinations by more than 400 engineers and trained employes.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

is responsible for the National Board of Fire Underwriters, which in turn is responsible for Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. Established in 1901, it has become one of the largest privately operated laboratories of its kind in the world. By this means the Stock Fire Insurance companies provide one of their most important contributions to the public welfare.

YOUTH THREATENING DROWNING STIRS NEW LONDON HARBOR FOLK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 10—A youth, whose identity is not known, may have drowned himself in the Thames river late this afternoon. He is known to have threatened to end his life and is also known to have gone on the river in a rowboat and continued his threat at self-destruction when occupants of other boats attempting to effect his capture. The youth is known in the vicinity of Pequot avenue and is known to have been acting strangely of late. About 5 o'clock he was observed to row toward the Groton shore and two or three boats with would-be rescurers followed. As the boats approached the craft in which the youth was the solitary occupant, he jumped into the river, but clung to the side of the boat. When the followers of the youth would row away from his boat, the erratic boy would climb back in the boat. This procedure was followed several times and fearing that the boy would cary out his threat if the rescue was continued to be attempted, the occupants of the other boats returned to shore. Adelbert Burr, of Burr Bros., Pequot avenue, communicated with ploice headquarters. The police passed on their information to the coast guard officials, state pier and two patrol boats were sent out to attempt to effect the rescue of the youth, but when they arrived off the plant of the American Fisheries the boat in which the youth had been last seen was not to be found.

No Trace of Jacobson

No trace was found today of the fishing boat of Anthony Jacobson, Fishers Island fisherman, who is believed to have drowned off North Holls, near Fishers Island, Saturday, when his boat is believed to have sunk. Searchers, numbering about a dozen have been grappling and together with U. S. coast guard boats, have searched the sea in the vicinity where the fishing boat was last seen but no trace of boat or occupant was revealed. It is now almost definitely certain that Jacobson went down with his boat, for the hatches of the craft were found floating off the island Saturday afternoon.

GOLDSTEIN STORE FIRE CONSIDERED SUSPICIOUS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 10—Fire Chief Thomas Shipman and Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds have requested that the police conduct an investigation to determine the cause of a fire that damaged the Army & Navy store, I. Goldstein, proprietor, 119 Main street, early Sunday morning. The fire officials view, with suspicion, the origin of the blaze which caused damage of several thousands of dollars. Detective Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith are making the investigation. When the fire was discovered Police Sergeant John Courtney was one of the first to arrive at the burning building, the officer reaching the place ahead of the firemen. The fire was burning rapidly in the rear and was close to a stove. Goldstein declares that there had been no fire in the stove since 10 o'clock and he closed the store at 12:30 o'clock. The fire was discovered at 12:40 o'clock.

Scrappers Pay Fines

Gavino Rubio and Venancio Fadriquillo, Filipinos, attached to the U. S. coast guard, were in the police court this morning, jointly charged with breach of the peace. Each was fined $15 and costs. Rubio and Fadriquilla were at the home of a woman acquaintance, 519 Bank street, when a fight started. During the brawl, Rubio is alleged to have attacked and hit Fadriquilla with a beer bottle That Fadriquilla was assaulted there is no doubt, for when Patrolman Thomas Lyden was summoned to the house he found the Filipino bleeding from lacerations of the scalp.

A man charged with intoxication was sentenced to 30 days in jail. He is an old offender.

Injured in Collision

Mrs. Charles Harold of Waterford and Burton Martin of Danbury, sustained injuries last night when the automobiles in which they were riding collided at Plant Hill, East Lyme Mrs. Harold received lacerations of the neck and Martin received contusions of both eyes, laceration of the left eye and an undertermined injury of the back. Both are patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, but their condition is not considered serious.

No Formal Celebration

Armistice Day will not be observed here other than as a semi-holiday. No celebration will be held, but the schools will be closed as will the several banking institutions. The post office will be operated on regular holiday hours.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Dean, of 79 Garfield avenue, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ceal Dean, to Harry Pumerantz, of New York.

Mrs. Edmund Chidsey, of 289 Vauxhall street, reported to the police Sunday night that her Oakland sedan, Connecticut registration N-2034, which had been parked in front of 510 Ocean avenue, had been stolen. A request of the state police and the police departments throughout the state was made to keep a lookout for the auto. This afternoon, Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey observed Mrs. Chidsey driving the auto and when he questioned the woman, she said that the car had not been stolen, but she did not acquaint the police with this fact. It is understood that the car was driven away from the Ocean avenue address by a friend.

A five-ton truck, owned by N. Benvenuti, contractor, and which carried a load of high altitude, was the cause of the overhead traffic signal, corner of Bank and Truman streets, being damaged this morning. The load extended to such a height that when the truck passed beneath the light the signal was struck.

THIS WIFE DESERVES JAIL AS MUCH AS HUSBAND

Alfred Morin, familiarly known as "Frenchy," residing at 19 Winthrop street, where he was the proprietor of a speakeasy, was in the police court this morning charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession. He pleaded guilty to both charges. On the first count a fine of $200 and costs was imposed, but on the second charge Morin, an ex-service man, was given suspension of judgment. Morin could not, or would not, pay his fine and was committed to jail. Morin blamed his wife for his arrest and rightfully so. He is the father of seven children and Sunday afternoon he accompanied some of the youngsters to a motion picture house. Upon his return home, Morin was surprised to enter the house and find his wife seated on the knees of a service man, each enjoying the caresses of the other. Morin rebuked both for their conduct. When the service man and Morin's wife set upon and beat the aggrieved husband, Morin communicated with the police for the purpose of having his wife's sweetie taken from the house, but instead, Morin was removed from his home, for he was arrested on the liquor charges. When the officers entered the house, Mrs. Morin informed the bluecoats of the nature of the business her husband was conducting and, to prove her allegation, the officers were led to the attic, where an improvised beer garden existed. Mrs. Morin also led the police to the hiding place of the liquor. Altogether about 25 cases of beer were seized, with about ten quarts of whiskey. Mrs. Morin was in court, accompanied by two of her children, but she did not remain until her husband was taken to jail.

Three Drivers in City Court

Three drivers were in the police court this morning, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. Two of the drivers were fined, one going to jail; the third case was continued. Francis W. Stevens, 33 Howard street, was fined $100 and costs and, being unable to pay, went to jail to stay about 11 weeks unless friends go to his rescue and pay the penalty imposed by the court. Stevens was driving a truck on Bank street Saturday night and when near Truman street it collided with a Chevrolet driven by Bernard J. Narcott, of Benham road, Groton. The lighter automobile was badly damaged. The truck speeded into Shaw street, as Stevens attempted to make his escape from the location of the crash. Narcott, however, followed and overtook the truck at Pratt street. Stevens was compelled to return to Bank street and there he was arrested by Patrolmen George Laboue and Louis Pine.

Albert Flint, Jr., a Providence automobile salesman, was fined $100 and costs and paid. Flint was in New London a week ago when his erratic driving brought about his arrest. His case was continued until today.

Wilford Robbins, of this city, was the third driver charged with this offense and his case was continued until tomorrow. Robbins was arrested by Sergeant William Babcock on Howard street two weeks ago. When in court the following day he pleaded guilty, but the case was continued until today. When the case was called this morning, Robbins appeared, accompanied by an attorney for the purpose of fighting the charge, so another continuance was ordered that witnesses might be summoned.

Meyer Vascovitz, of Providence; Mrs. Cephas Rainville, Danielson; Frank Muscarella, 35 Moore avenue; Charlotte Sisson, 17 Jay street; Low Lai, Bartlett's Reef lightship; Thomas Phillips, Pleasure Beach, Waterford; Matthew McPhee, Waterford; Marvin Smith, 12 Addison street; Dorothy Way, Saybrook; Annie Belleu, 140 Main street; Edmund Bailey, Niantic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

A special double-feature program the like that is seldom offered to the theatre going public as either of the features is worthy of a single program, is offered at the Palace theatre for three days starting tomorrow and running through Friday.

A Soldier Plaything, the new Warner Bros. production, from the book by Vina Delmar, is entirely refreshing and wholly entertaining, depicting a tender romance between the German peasant girl and an American doughboy, a member of the army of occupation stationed at Coblenz after the signing of the Armistice.

Lotti Loder, the Budapest beauty, heads the all star cast, with a splendid interpretation of the daughter of the Rhine, Harry Langdon, who makes his feature talking debut in this picture contributes many hearty laughs and humorously pathetic incidents; Ben Lyon plays the American soldier sweetheart and gives a pleasing and convincing performance.

Danger Lights, the co-feature on this great bill is the first railroad thriller of the talkies, heralded as the greatest drama of the rails ever shown on the talking screen. It has been marveled wherever it has been played, Louis Wolheim, Robert Armstrong and Jean Arthur appear in the principal roles and are supported by such well known actors as Frank Sheridan Hugh Herbert, and Robert Edeson.

Today is the last chance you will have to see the greatest of all comedies, Amos'N'Andy. Millions have heard these two over the radio and thousands in this city have already acclaimed that this is the funniest of all comedies.

Handsome Residence Sold.

Clarence Sholes, real estate agent, sold for Deshefy and Wagner, the handsome home, 36 Harland road; seven large rooms, fire place, sun porch, all improvements with two car garage, to George Chase, who is making this his permanent home.

There is nothing like a song.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was feeling out of sorts. There was no particular reason for this. Perhaps it was the weather. For several days there had been no sunshine. The days had been dark and gloomy and the wind raw and cold. Then, too, Reddy Fox had been prowling around the dear old briar-patch so much that Peter had been afraid to leave it, which just suited little Mrs. Peter but didn't suit Peter at all. So Peter was feeling out of sorts and was cross. Little Mrs. Peter declared that he got out of the wrong side of the bed, but of course he didn't for Peter does not have a regular bed. Anyway he grumbled and complained and everything was wrong. Even when he did get a chance to slip away from the dear old briar-patch to the edge of the green forest he still grumbled to himself.

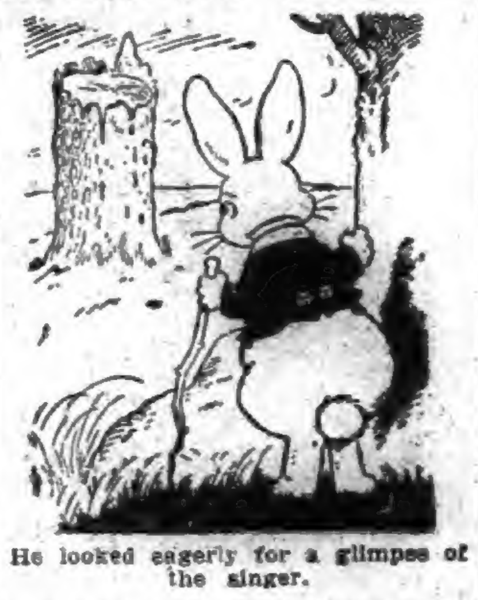
He hoped to find his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, but Jumper was no where about. Anyway Peter couldn't find him, and this didn't make him feel any better. He wanted some one to talk to, but the Green Forest seemed deserted. So it seemed to Peter that everything was wrong. Yes, sir, everything was wrong, and a more discontented small person than was Peter Rabbit you never saw.

Suddenly Peter pricked up his long ears. Then he sat up, for it seemed to him that he could hear better sitting up. Anyway he could look around better. "If I didn't hear some one singing then my name isn't Peter Rabbit," muttered Peter. "It wasn't very much of a song and it was one I never have heard before, but it was a song. Now who of my feathered friends would be singing at this time of year? Most of them left long ago for the sunny south. Besides I don't know any who would sing in the dark at this time of year. I have heard Whitethroat the Sparrow sing in the night, but that wasn't Whitethroat's song and Whitethroat isn't here anyway."

For a long time Peter sat there listening, but the song wasn't repeated. Finally he squatted down again and discontent took possession of him once more. He didn't even notice that the clouds had broken and a few stars were peeping through. Not even when sweet Mistress Moon appeared and her silvery light made white patches among the trees did Peter take notice. Yes, indeed, Peter was out of sorts.

And then Peter heard that little song again. There was no doubt of it. His ears hadn't fooled him as he had begun to think they might have. That song reminded him of the singing of some of them members of the Warbler family yet was not exactly like the song of any of the warblers he could think of. Anyway the warblers had gone to the sunny south long since.

The song had seemed to come from near an old partly rotted stump or from the stump itself, Peter wasn't sure which. He looked eagerly for a glimpse of the singer, but he looked in vain. He saw no one. It gave him a funny feeling. It did so. But though he had a funny feeling, because that song was new and strange and because he could not see the singer, he no longer felt out of sorts. No, sir, he no longer felt out of sorts. That song had chased the gloom and blues away. Also it had awakened his curiosity, and when Peter becomes curious he becomes happy in trying to satisfy that curiosity.



He looked eagerly for a glimpse of the singer.

Peter waited expectantly for that song to be repeated. He waited a long time. He had about decided that the little singer had gone to sleep when once more he heard that song. It certainly came from somewhere around that old stump. Peter did not move for fear that he might alarm the little singer, but he looked and looked and looked. Alas, all his looking was in vain. Not a bird was to be seen. Peter had no more idea than before who that singer might be. With the passing of every minute he became more curious. Who could that singer be?

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Packed with all the steel-fisted action of the original story, "The Silver Horde," Radio Pictures' adaptation of the famous Rex Beach novel, comes to the screen of the Warner Brother's Broadway theatre, Wednesday, for an engagement of three days as one of the year's outstanding outdoor dramas.

Evelyn Brent, one of the foremost dramatic actresses and creator of a score of powerful roles, is seen as Cherry Malotte. Louis Wolheim, Joel McCrea, Raymond Hatton, Jean Arthur, Blanche Sweet, Gavin Gordon, Purnell Pratt and Ivan Linow round out the notable cast.

Director George Archainbaud took his company of more than one hundred players into the heart of Alaska, where two months were spent in shooting the scenes in their actual locale. The photographic effects are said to be unusual in their beauty and splendor.

"The Silver Horde" is perhaps the most powerful of all Rex Beach stories. The novel concerns an epic struggle among the sledge-fisted Alaskan salmon fishermen, highlighted by an unusual romance. There is gripping action and breath-taking suspense crammed into scores of scenes, topped off by all the color of the glamorous locale.

The production is expected to attract large crowds to the local theatre during its three-day showing.

Investigation of the Colorado primary election by the United States senate committee headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, was postponed until Friday. Approximately 200 witnesses have been served with subpoenas.

POETRY

Armistice Day

"Cease firing!" And the guns were stilled
Whose crashing charges fiercely hurled,
For four long years had killed and killed
The best and bravest of the world—

Killed them in town and field and trench,
Found where they lay, with monstrous wit,
And drove a blast of death to quench
The flame of life which heaven had lit.

"Cease firing!" And a silence fell,
Men stood amazed at this release,
This breaking of an iron spell,
This coming of a time of peace.

So long bowed down beneath the strain
And struggle of the days of strife,
Men rose from out the earth again
Like buried Lazarus come to life.

"Cease firing!" At that brief command
Out-singing on a bugle's breath,
On either side the lifted hand
Was stayed which sought a brother's death.

And there was joy by every sea,
Delirious joy on every shore,
And prayers and tears that this should be—
That peace should come to earth once more!

O Father of us all! O Thou
Who seest with Eternal Eye,
Renew within our spirits now
The feeling of that day gone by!

Renew the gratitude, the grace,
The fervent vow we uttered then,
That war's red reign should have no place
Henceforth among the ways of men.

Cleanse us from anger and from ill,
Cleanse us, O Lord, from all design
To thwart with petty human will
The cause of justice that is thine.

Make us to see as then we saw,
The beauty of a world at peace,
Teach us to heed the loving law
That tries to make all firing cease.

—Denis A. McCarthy, in the Book Builder.

Forest Road

Brown leaves fall down like rockets
And dress the tufted grass;
While autumn fills her pockets
With all the winds that pass.

Chill, frost-beleaguered crickets
Beneath the moss-worn stone
Sleep, wistful for the thickets
That housed their summer drone.
Then keep the dream's fair grace—
Lingers no summer here,
Where soon the wan sky places
A white wreath on the year.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"I tell you Frank is only marrying you for your money so that he can pay his debts."
"Nonsense! He never thinks of paying his debts."—Dorfbarbier.

Mrs. Goodsole—I am soliciting for the poor. What do you do with your cast-off clothing?
Mr. Badoff—I hang them up carefully and don my pajamas. Then I put them back on in the morning.—The Pathfinder.

Sarcastic Boss—I noticed there were 35,000 people present on the afternoon that your grandmother was buried.
Office Boy (rising to the occasion)—I couldn't swear to that, sir, but grandma was always very popular!—Exchange.

The sentimental guest at our boarding house found a message on his breakfast egg written by a Danish girl saying she would marry the man who ate it.
But when he wrote to her address he found she had been dead two years.—Yorkshire Observer.

"Thanks very much," said the vicar, as little Tommy handed up his offering for the harvest festival; "I must call round this afternoon and thank your mother for these eight beautiful apples."
"P-please, sir," stammered Tommy, "would you m-mind thanking her for t-twelve apples?"—Bystander.

Very small son—Dad, give me a dime.
Papa—Not today, sonny, not today.
"Dad, if you'll give me a dime, I'll tell you what the iceman said to mamma this morning."
"Here, son, quick; what did he say?"
"He said: 'Lady, how much ice do you want this morning?'"—Illinois Central Magazine.

The witness was certainly no chicken, and the young barrister thought it would be to his advantage to get her rattled.
"And now, madam," he said, "I must ask a personal question. How old are you?"
"Young man," she replied, "it isn't more than an hour since the judge there objected to hearsay evidence. And I don't remember being born, all I know of it is hearsay."—Montreal Star.

MACK STARTS TO STRENGTHEN TEAM FOR 1931 PENNANT CHASE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10—(AP)—Connie Mack, who sits pretty atop the baseball world with eight American world's championships has started in to reorganize and strengthen his team for the 1931 season.

From his Shibe park tower office where the tall tutor plans his campaigns, he announced today that he had given Old Jack Quinn and the old catcher Wally Schang their unconditional release and had obtained three young players from the Pacific Coast league to fill the gaps.

After Mack won his fifth world's title last month at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals, he announced he would keep his team intact except for certain of the older players. So it came as no surprise when the A's manager announced that Quinn and Schang were no longer with the club.

There have been reports that others would go or be benched for younger men, but Mac was non-commital about this today.

The three young players who will join the team are Robert L. Johnson, outfielder: Hank McDonald, right handed pitcher, and Joe Palmisano, catcher, all of the Portland, Ore., club.

Mack also announced that Nick Borrelli, former Muhlenberg college star, had been released outright to the Dallas, Tex club. Borrelli, a third baseman, although belonging to the A's has not been with the team the last two years.

Whether Schang and Quinn will join other major league clubs of their choosing was not known here. Schang is said to be at his home in Missouri. Quinn, whose home is in Chicago, is away on a gunning trip.

The veteran Quinn, who pitched marvelous ball for his age at times for Connie Mack, has been in the game for 30 years, first attracting attention when playing with Connellsville, Pa., in 1901. He is one of the few spitballers left in the major leagues. Jack played with many clubs before he came to the A's in 1925. He was a source of strength to Connie Mack in building up his teams to world's championship calibre. Last year Jack, who only smiles when asked his age, did not do so well and Mack decided to make room for a younger man.

Wally Schang broke into baseball fame on the Athletics, having, been the catcher for that famous trio of hurlers, Plank, Bender and Coombs. He was let go in a trade years ago and came back to the Athletics last year. He was used mostly for coaching young players.

NO SIGNS OF SETTLEMENT IN ARMY-NAVY DISCUSSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—(AP)—Whether the country's two service institutions will resume competition on the football field remained a problem tonight for which no formula had been evolved that would bring an affirmative answer.

After a conference at the war department this morning, Secretaries Hurley and Adams joined in a statement saying no basis had been found for an agreement to end the dispute over eligibility rules for players which has stood in the way of football games between West Point and Annapolis.

Last week, on the basis of a compromise proposal by the Navy, which had been accepted by the Army, although not entirely favored by it, it had been thought a settlement was in sight.

A last minute withdrawal of the latest offer caused the collapse of the negotiations.

Secretary Hurley said the breakdown could not be considered final and he hoped further negotiations, which the Army was ready to carry on, would result in an agreement.

The present negotiations have been concerned with the resumption of general athletic relations and not the suggestion from outsiders that the two services play a post-season game this year to assist unemployment funds. This latter question has not yet been considered, Hurley said.

Any game which might be arranged for 1931 would have to be played out of season because the Army has completed its schedule for the regular playing period next year.

ARMY HAS NOT INDICATED IT IS OPEN TO PROPOSALS

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 10—(AP)—Although West Point officials were not available for comment today upon developments in Washington relative to resumption of Army-Navy gridiron relations, it was understood here the Military academy at no time has indicated acceptance of any of several compromise proposals advanced by the Naval academy.

From the time of the break in 1927, Army has consistently taken the stand that a contract was broken by the Navy and that it will resume relations only on an unconditional basis.

The Army, in a published summary of its side of the case, listed several compromise suggestions made by the Navy, all of which were rejected by West Point.

These proposals included: A resumption of athletic relations based on a one-year waiver of all restrictions; adoption of the three-year varsity rule by West Point, effective for the incoming cadets only; an agreement for relations on a basis of two years under Navy rules, then two years under Army regulations, subsequently alternating, and a four-year varsity eligibility rule. (allowance of one year's varsity experience before entering West Point).

MID-SOUTH $2,500 OPENS AT PINEHURST TODAY

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 10—(AP)—Golf's touring professionals who swing to the south and its money tournaments during the winter months were assembled here tonight for the mid-south open.

Divided into two events, the mid-south carries $2,500 in prize money. The first of the events is a 36 hole best ball match tomorrow for which the winning pair will draw $600. Tomorrow's play will be followed by a 36 hole open Wednesday with $400 top prize.

The entry list totalled 90 tonight, including every recent winner of the national open except Bobby Jones.

SECOND GAMES IN S. N. E. LOOP SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 10.—Many good basketball games are scheduled in the Southern New England Basketball league at the Plainfield Community house Tuesday night. The first game is scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock between the strong Willimantic West Ends and the untried Jewett City team. The Willimantic boys got away to a good start, defeating Stafford Springs while Jewett City was losing to the strong Plainfield team. The Jewett City team has practiced hard during the week and should give a good account of themselves. The second game scheduled brings together Stafford Springs and Plainfield, and it should be one of the best games of the evening. The teams are evenly matched. Plainfield will be strengthened with the addition of Joe Bromley and Clint Peterson. This game will start at 8 p. m.

At 9:30 sharp, Putnam and Westerly will clash in the third game of the evening. Putnam won easily last week while Westerly found rough going, but things should be different tomorrow night and a great game is expected. In the final game, scheduled for 10 o'clock sharp, Danielson and the New London Boys' club are the contestants. This will be the first appearance for the New London team, but if their record means anything, Danielson will have to play hard and fast basketball to win. It should be an evening of four good basketball games. Pop Williams, Paul Bitgood, Randy Whaples and Roy Dissinger will handle the games.

U. S. HORSES SCORE HIGH IN JUMPING CONTEST

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—In one of the most brilliant jumping exhibitions ever seen in any tanbark, the United States Army tonight scored a clean-cut victory over teams from five other nations in the $1,000 international military stake at the National Horse show.

Three perfect performances and one so nearly perfect that the horse was charged with only one-half fault, gave the United States Army the first four places and it displayed a strong hand for the more important international team trophy to be decided tomorrow night.

Major Harry D. Chamberlin, commander of the United States team, rode Tanbark and Dick Waring through faultless exhibitions, and Capt. W. B. Bradford turned the same trick with Susanne. Bradford then came back with Joe Aleshire, which tipped one slip for the only error by the team.

Although the German army finished no better than fifth the average performance of its six horses, sent over the difficult "G" course, was far better than the nine horses sent out by the United States. As a result the contest for the team trophy is expected to be strictly a battle between the Germans, who won the event in 1928, and the United States, which has finished second on numerous occasions but never has won.

BATES DEFENDS ITS CROSS-COUNTRY TITLE

BOSTON, Nov. 10—(AP)—Bates defended its New England intercollegiate cross-country title here, today, when its well balanced team piled up the low score of 32 points in competition with eight rivals over the five-mile Franklin Park course. Henry Hazen, of New Hampshire, the individual winner, established a new record of 27 minutes, 28 1-5 seconds.

The New Hampshire harriers scored the second lowest score with 49 points and the other team scores were Maine 85, Massachusetts Tech 118, Connecticut Aggies 149, Holy Cross 166, Rhode Island State 173, Northeastern 177 and Boston university 234.

The race, as was expected, was a thrilling duel between Hazen and Norman Whitten, of Bates, for individual honors. The Wildcat harrier led Whitten home by 100 yards and his time was 33 seconds better than the old mark. Donald Gilman, M. I. T. star, finished third, Everett Gunning, of Maine, was fourth and Dave Demoulpied, of New Hampshire, placed fifth.

The old freshman record, over the three-mile course, was broken by Henry Raduazo, of New Hampshire, by almost 25 seconds when he led his yearling rivals to the tape in 16:57 2-5. Maine captured the freshman team honors with a total of 49 points, New Hampshire placed second with 56 and M. I. T. was third with a total of 88.

STRIBLING MEETS DEKUH AT ATLANTA TONIGHT

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 10—(AP)—Making his first appearance in his native southland since the quick knockout victories over Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott, W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon heavyweight, meets Arthur DeKuh, New York Italian, here, tomorrow afternoon in the feature ten-round bout of an outdoor show.

The Atlanta Baseball & Amuse. Corp. is promoting the match and looks for a record state crowd. In 1923 Stribling fought McTigue at Columbus before a $16,000 audience.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, will referee the main bout, set for about 4 o'clock. Officials announced the fight would be held, rain or shine.

Hickey's Stars Win Again

Last night at the Lachapelle Billiard room, the Hickey Stars won from the Jewett City Jolly Five by the score of 443 to 396.

The feature of the match was the defeat of Reynolds, star Norwich anchor man, by Baker of Jewett City, which evened up the feud existing between the two. In defeating Reynolds, the gallery of about 400 witnessed one of the keenest games waged in many a moon. The match was climaxed by a sensational run of 37 by Baker.

The closest game of the night was between Arremony and Gromko, which was won by the Jewett City boy. This victory also evened the games played by the two.

This announcement was made by the Madison Square Garden corporation yesterday. Battalino's opponent is to be none other than the hard-hitting Keed Chocolate and the bout is the main attraction on the charity Christmas fund card. Whether this is a drawing card for the charity show is a matter of opinion but the Hartford battler has never drawn tremendous crowds in Connecticut. The "Keed", however, may pack them in.

Battalino has held the title for a little over a year now, since the time he grabbed it from Andre Routis in what was a most uninteresting bout for a title engagement. In that bout it appeared from the ringside that Battalino was given all the best of the breaks, Routis being prevented from doing much in-fighting for which he is famous.

Since that bout Battalino has not fought anyone of consequence, his bouts being mainly with boys who had hit the down grade and were fast disappearing from the fistic picture. But in Chocolate he meets one of the top-notchers and then only after Chocolate had been beaten by Fidel LaBarba.

If the Hartford boy can take Chocolate, which is very, very doubtful, then and only then, will he be acclaimed as a real champion.

It ought to be a good fight to see. Battalino is a good long range fighter the same as Chocolate which should make for plenty of glove swinging. Battalino is woefully weak as an in-fighter and also has a mighty poor defense against the boys who like to get in close to start their milling.

We note in the annual report of the Bay State Circuit that the past season was one of the most successful in the history of the loop. Which brings to mind that the Bay State used to function at the fairgrounds tracks not so many years ago with only indifferent success. At that time the drivers on the circuit said that Norwich was one of the fastest tracks that they had ever raced on, a fact that makes it seem too bad that this oval is to grow up to grass. Something should be done to prevent what is one of the best athletic tracks and fields from going into mowing lost.

Eastern Football Briefs

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—Columbia's hopes of checking Brown took a sharp upward turn as all of the regulars but Ralph Hewitt and Manuel Rivero reported for a long practice under floodlights. Hewitt, hurt in the Cornell game, probably will be in shape to play Saturday and so will Rivero who suffered a dislocated thumb in the Colgate debacle.

NEW YORK—New York university postponed preparations for the Georgetown game until Tuesday. Chick Meehan declared the first holiday the Violets have received since they began training on Sept. 2. The N. Y. U.-Georgetown clash will be the third between the two schools. Georgetown won both previous games but the Violets are favored to gain revenge this week.

PRINCETON—Reminnund and Levick returned to practice as Bill Roper sent his disappointing Princeton Tigers through an hour and 15 minutes of dummy scrimmage and signal drill. Five regulars, James, Lea, Bennett, Rutherfur and Howson, were excused from practice.

PITTSBURGH—To permit a proper celebration of the Panthers' victory over Carnegie Tech, a vacation from studies was declared at the University of Pittsburgh but Head Coach Jock Sutherland was not so generous. He called early for a practice session in preparation for the game with Ohio State at Columbus.

NEW NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE WILL OPEN TONIGHT WITH 3 GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—A new National Hockey league season, the fifth since the circuit reached its present size, will open tomorrow, bringing perhaps more changes than any year since the 1926-27 season.

The first new club since that year, the Philadelphia Quakers, will make its bow in one of the three opening night games. The Quakers, who replaced the Pittsburgh Pirates and took over most of the playing talent from that club, open at home against the New York Rangers. At Boston, the Bruins, runners up for the world championship last spring, meet the revamped New York Americans, and the Montreal Maroons play Ottawa.

The new Philadelphia team merely brings a change of Benny Leonard's hitherto unprofitable franchise to a new location where Leonard has hopes of producing a championship contender. Cooper Smeaton, former referee-in-chief of the league, has been engaged as manager. Another change is the name of the Detroit club from the Cougars to the Falcons.

New players will be seen on nearly every team for the managers and magnates spent a busy summer rounding up new talent. Most of the outstanding minor league and amateur stars of last season will be seen in new uniforms. A good many of the old familiar faces will be missing; others have altered their allegiance in off-season trades.

The rule makers have made fewer changes this year than in recent seasons. The only notable innovation in that line is that of the delayed penalty. The rule makes it impossible for a team to have fewer than four men on the ice. When penalties would reduce a team's man power below that mark, a substitute is permitted until one or more of the penalized players returns to the ice. The penalties for rough play have been made more severe, notably by the ruling that a player who cuts another about the head, whether intentionally or not, is given a ten minute penalty.

Of the four teams which do not get into action the first night, Toronto and Detroit get into action Thursday, entertaining the Americans and the Rangers, respectively. The Montreal Canadiens open against Ottawa Saturday and Chicago meets the Rangers Sunday night.

UZCUDUN NOT TO BOX MALONEY AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Nov. 10—(AP)—The Massachusetts boxing commission today was informed by cable that Paolino Uzcudun would be unable to appear here for his bout with Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight, in the Boston Garden on Dec. 5. Uzcudun, who is now in Spain, the cable stated, will not quit that country until he has fulfilled his contract with Jeff Dickson, European boxing promoter, for a bout with Primo Carnera at Barcelona late this month.

YALE STARTS SECRET PRACTICE FOR PRINCETON

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 10—(AP)—The Yale varsity football squad, turning its attention to the serious business of preparing for Princeton and Harvard, today gathered in the privacy of the Yale bowl for a secret practice. The entire afternoon was devoted to work on new plays.

Football officials said that all of the practices during the remainder of the season will be secret ones.

Today saw the return to the squad of two men who had been on the injured list. McLennan, Albie Booth's understudy, was one of them and he appeared to be in good shape. Tyson, a guard, who was expected to be out of football for the season because of a knee injury, also reported. Both were expected to be in condition for Saturday's game with Princeton.

Lindenberg, left end, and Beane, a back, will probably be the only men on the squad unable to face the Tigers because of injuries.

BATTALINO TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST CHOCOLATE

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—(AP)—Bat Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., will defend his world's featherweight championship against Kid Chocolate, Cuban flash, in a 15 round bout in Madison Square Garden, December 12. The bout will top the card for the New York American's annual Christmas fund show.

Battalino has held the 126 pound title since September 1929, when he outpointed the champion, Andre Routis. Chocolate long has been rated as an outstanding challenger for the crown but suffered a surprising defeat at the hands of Fidel LaBarba in his last start.

The garden announced that LaBarba had been signed to meet Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., body puncher in a ten rounder at the garden November 28.

HARVARD REGULARS IN FOR HARD WEEK'S PRACTICE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 10—(AP)—Most of the Harvard regulars were given a holiday today but Head Coach Arnold Horween warned them they would go through a week of "good and hard" practice before he sent them against Holy Cross next Saturday.

Horween said he intended to give every member of his varsity squad plenty of work on fundamentals during the remainder of the week. Eddie Mays and George Talbot were the only regulars used in today's scrimmage with the scrubs.

All of the Harvard players used against Michigan came through without serious injury and today's rest was expected to ease all of the bruises and hard knocks, the Crimson's sole reward for its thrilling battle with the Wolverines.

The Norwich Town Wildcats would like to hear from you or the L. H. A. C. this week for a game to be played Sunday if accepted. See Capt. Albie Matthews.

THE NEW THREE-WINDOW FORDOR SEDAN

A beautiful, roomy family car. Combines all the features that make the new Ford a value far above the price . . . attractive lines and colors, rich upholstery, quick acceleration, ease of control, 55 to 65 miles an hour, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, Rustless Steel, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, torque-tube drive, forty kinds of steel and more than twenty ball and roller bearings.

THE NEW FORD is a splendid car to own and drive because of its attractive lines and colors, safety, comfort, speed, reliability and long life.

During the life of the car, the day-by-day economy of owning a Ford will amount to considerably more than the saving on the first cost. You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

The reasons for this economy are simplicity of design, high quality of materials and care in manufacturing and assembling. Many vital parts are made to limits of one one-thousandth of an inch. Some to three ten-thousandths of an inch. Throughout, the new Ford is an outstanding example of craftsmanship in volume production.

The more you see of the new Ford—the more you talk to Ford owners and experienced mechanics—the more certain you become of this fact. . . . It brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price. Ask the nearest Ford dealer for a demonstration.

FINED ON ONE CHARGE BUT OTHER IS NOLLED

In the city court Monday morning Konstantin Rasnavich was fined $5 and costs on a charge of intoxication but a breach of the peace charge was nolled. He entered a plea of guilty to the intoxication charge but pleaded not guilty to the charge of breach of the peace. Rashavich was arrested Saturday as the result of a fracas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dukata of Central avenue. He was charged with striking Dukata over the head with a broom stick causing a wound which required five stitches. It developed in court that Mrs. Dukata wielded the broomstick, launching a blow at Rashavich, the blow striking her husband and causing the wound on his head.

COLLECTOR ROBINSON ESTIMATES 80 PER CENT OF TAXES DUE PAID

The collections of city taxes were fairly good, said Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson, after his office closed Monday night at 8 o'clock. Monday was the final day for tax payments and all taxes due and unpaid are liable to additions provided by law. Mr. Robinson estimated the collections, up to Monday night, as approximately 80 per cent of the total due. He stated that he was unable to announce figures, pointing out that a number of checks had arrived in his evening mail and there would, no doubt, be many more checks, mailed Monday, which he will not receive until this (Tuesday) morning.

A number of people notified him that they were unable to pay their taxes due to the unemployment situation and for other reasons. The final excuse of the day was from a local man who called the tax collector a few minutes before closing time, notifying the collector that he was on his way to pay his taxes, but, unfortunately, had run out of gasoline and his machine was stalled, making it impossible for him to arrive before the office was closed.

ARMISTICE DAY

In Remembrance

Turn back twelve years in the annals of time...a white storm of torn paper...hysterical crowds...booming anthems and waving flags...screaming headlines... AND..."Over There" deep in foreign fields those who had made possible this wild rejoicing of a people triumphant.

Today let us observe the anniversary of Armistice Day by giving grateful thanks and paying reverent tribute to those who set the sublime example of self-sacrifice. Let us value that example as we value an Eternal Principle and not break faith with them.

GOOD WILL MARKS NATION'S ARMISTICE DAY TRIBUTES

President Hoover Led the Nation in Tribute to Living and Dead Veterans of the World War—Urged American Adherence to the World Court and Made an Appeal For the Perpetuation of World Peace—Similar Expressions Were Made By General Pershing, Secretary of War Hurley and General Summerall

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.— (AP) — Twelve years after the "cease firing" order was passed through the war-torn trenches of France and echoed around the world. President Hoover today led the nation in its Armistice day tribute to the living and dead veterans of the World war with an appeal for the perpetuation of world peace.

After placing a wreath of yellow chrysanthemums upon the plain marble tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington, the chief executive, in an address before the annual conference and good-will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches, said the war had taught the blessing of peace, if nothing else.

Again urging American adherence to the world court, he reiterated his proposal for freedom of the seas for food supplies in time of war and forecast possible extension of the Kellogg-Briand pact for outlawing war to mobilize world opinion against its violators.

He held that the time had not yet come when "We can assume that righteousness has so advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense."

"The purpose of our government," he added, "is to cooperate with others, to use our friendly offices, and, short of any implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good-will to maintain the peace of the world."

With flags flying along the streets, from the many government buildings and embassies of foreign governments, the national capital donned its patriotic attire in observance of the day.

The tomb of Woodrow Wilson in the National cathedral received its annual mete of tribute, too. In addition to visits by hundreds of persons to the chapel where rests the body of the war president, a special service was conducted there.

In addition to the visit of the President and Mrs. Hoover, two other services were held at Arlington. The military chaplains who participated in the interment of the Unknown Soldier gathered at his shrine to repeat portions of the original service.

The good-will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship gathered there, also, to hear Dr. James I. Vance of Nashville assert that "Armistice day is poorly kept if it fails to sound a note against the uselessness, the folly, the wickedness and horror of war as a method of settling international differences."

Similar expressions of hope for continued peace came from General John J. Pershing, who led the nation's military forces in the war, and from Secretary Hurley and General Charles P. Summerall, the present chief of staff of the army.

General Pershing expressed hope that there may never be another war.

"It is the duty of living veterans of the great war to guide the destinies of this nation that should war come it will find the American people prepared, materially and spiritually," he said.

GENERAL REVIEW OF ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE

(By The Associated Press)

The anniversary of the Armistice struck 12 yesterday, and one hundred million Americans observed it with a solemn, simultaneous silence.

They paused, wherever they were, at 11 o'clock this morning and bared their heads in memory of the moment when cannons sent their last roar of horror echoing across shrapnel-ravaged France.

President Hoover led the nation in its observance of the day, laying a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Loyal friends of the late Woodrow Wilson paid homage at the war president's tomb.

The sounding of Taps, the halting of business, the bombing of salutes were among the tributes America paid.

In London, in Paris, in Geneva—seat of the League of Nations which was born of the war—and in other capitals of Europe similar ceremonies took place. King George of England, the Prince of Wales, the princes of India and the prime ministers of the British dominions joined in tribute at the cenotaph in London. King Albert led the observance in Belgium.

At Miami, Florida, last night a "last man's club" was formed with 11 members—all veterans of some American war and nine of them veterans of the World war. A bottle of liquor was sealed, the bottle to be opened by the last surviving man, who is to drink a toast to his departed comrades.

General Pershing, who was chief of the American Expeditionary forces, Secretary of War Hurley and General Summerall, chief of staff, were among army officials who, in Armistice day statements, sounded a note of hope for continuing peace.

PROPOSALS BEFORE THE DISARMAMENT COMMISSION

GENEVA, Nov. 11.— (AP) —Direct limitation of land and air armaments with full publicity as to expenditures, weights and numbers was proposed before the league's disarmament commission today by the American government.

Hugh S. Gibson, the American representative, in support of his contention that the American plan would be the most "effective means of attaining disarmament," said:

"Our military effectives will be definitely limited and full publicity given to expenditure for their pay and maintenance. Our naval material and personnel will be definitely limited by treaty. There remains only the question of material for land and air forces. As regards this we have expressed our readiness to accept what we consider the strictest method of limitation, namely direct limitation with full publicity as to expenditures, weights and numbers."

In reiterating America's opposition to any plan of limitation by budgetary restriction, Mr. Gibson declared, "It is easier to conceal the application of a dollar than it is the existence of a rifle."

He told the commission, however, that the United States had no objection to a convention which committed other nations to the plan of budgetary restriction and left the United States free to exercise its scheme of direct limitation.

CLUNG TO WRECKAGE TWO DAYS AT SEA WITHOUT FOOD

EUREKA, Calif., Nov. 11—(AP)—Jorgen M. Greeve, chief officer of the schooner Brooklyn which sank off the Humboldt bar here late last Saturday night, was found alive at sea today holding to a piece of bulkhead from the ship. He was picked up by the "Two Sisters," a fishing boat, and brought to a hospital here.

Greeve had gone without food and water since Saturday afternoon, when the schooner cracked up. He said he was unconscious some of the time he was clinging to the wreckage but managed to hold on.

Physicians said the chief officer would recover and aside from exposure, hunger and thirst, suffered no serious consequences.

The schooner foundered in a storm off the bar and until the mate was found, it was supposed all aboard had perished.

An inquiry by United States steamboat inspectors started here today.

MOB OF AT LEAST 2,000 ACTORS LOOKING FOR JOBS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Worthington Miner, director of A. H. Wood's forthcoming play, "The Five-Star Final," reached the Elting theatre today to find a full-fledged mob scene awaiting him.

At least 2,000 actors, actresses and would-be performers were there in person—looking for jobs. Last night Miner engaged five actors for the new play. The fortunate five told their friends and the crowd of job-seekers was the result.

Two policemen were stationed at the theatre for the rest of the day to prevent another crowd from gathering.

FATHER AND SON WERE SHOT TO DEATH ON FARM

BOSCOBEL, Wis., Nov. 11.—(AP) — Patrick Gorman, 65, and his son, Paul, 18, who came to Wisconsin a week ago from Huron, S. D., were shot to death and Cornelius and Stephen Horrigan were wounded in an attack on the Horrigan farm today.

The slayers, three men and a woman, escaped in an automobile.

Gorman and his son were killed instantly and the Horrigan brothers were taken to a hospital.

The Horrigans and Gormans were seated at the dinner table when the men and woman entered. The men carried revolvers. They asked permission to hunt on the Horrigan farm. Granted permission, the quartet ordered all four at the table to hold up their hands.

Stephen Horrigan dashed for another room and the intruders fired. Both Gormans fell dead. Stephen Horrigan was wounded in the left arm but he reached a room where he obtained a revolver, with which he fired at the attackers.

The intrduers fled after Cornelius Horrigan had been shot in the head and right shoulder. He may die. Robbery seemed to be the motive for the attack.

HURLED TEAR BOMBS INTO GROCERY STORE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Angered over failure of a grocery store to close in observance of Armistice day, a group of Belmont county World war veterans today hurled tear bombs into the place. Patrons and employes were forced to flee, gasping for air.

The platoon of soldiers, wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles, was led to the store by C. W. Fowler, commander of the Belmont county American Legion. He did not enter. Nelson McQuillan, a former officer of the Ohio "40 and 8," fun society of the American Legion, was among those who went inside.

McQuillan said the veterans "considered it their right to close the store on Armistice day just the same as they would protest any attempt of anyone to tear down the American flag."

The bursting of the tear gas bombs in the store created more excitement in this city than any event since the news of the signing of the Armistice a dozen years ago.

LABORER CHARGED WITH SLAYING WIFE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)— After his four-year-old daughter had told conflicting stories of how her mother was fatally shot, John Rocco, a laborer, was arrested on a homicide charge today.

His wife, Mrs. Mary Rocco, 33, died in a hospital, insisting she shot herself accidentally while cleaning a pistol. The couple's daughter, Rose, however, said first that her father shot her mother during a quarrel. Later she said her mother accidentally knocked the pistol down while cleaning house.

Rocco said he was asleep when the shooting occurred.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Hongkong dispatch to the Daily Herald says Mrs. Victor Bruce, who flew alone all the way from England to the far eastern metropolis safely, was thrown from a pony today and injured.

POSSIBILITY OF FORMING A UNITED STATES OF INDIA

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The destiny of a country nearly as large in area as the United States, crowded with 350,000,000 persons of conflicting racial strains and religious beliefs, is at stake in the Indian round-table conference which King George will inaugurate in the royal gallery of the house of lords at noon tomorrow.

His address and its import may be the most momentous of his reign, for no conference of modern times—not even the five-power naval treaty which the king opened in the same great hall last January—has been weighted with such responsibilities regarding the future of the British empire.

Out of it may come a United States of India within the British realm. But the torrent of Indian problems is far more complex than that which the American states faced in their federalization, for the inhabitants of this vast Asiatic territory speak 222 languages and are divided into 2,300 castes and sub-castes.

22,127 LIQUOR LAW ARRESTS IN UNITED STATES SINCE JULY 1

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.— (AP) — Enforcement of the national prohibition laws during October resulted in 4,948 arrests, making a total of 22,127 since last July 1.

Figures made public by the prohibition bureau of the department of justice today showed that at the end of October there were 23,183 criminal prohibition cases pending, and that during the month 407 persons were convicted, 5,893 pleaded guilty and 1,816 were acquitted or their cases dismissed.

BELIEVES END OF ECONOMIC DEPRESSION IS IN SIGHT

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Belief that the end of the economic depression is in sight was expressed today at a meeting of 11 members of the United States War Industries Board association.

The association is composed of former members of the war industries board organized by President Wilson Herbert Bayard Swope, former executive editor of the New York World who presided, told reporters all the speakers expressed optimism concerning the economic outlook.

BELGIAN CABINET HAS OFFERED ITS RESIGNATION

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Premier Henri Jaspar and his cabinet today offered their resignations to King Albert, who reserved decision on acceptance.

The resignation was the culmination of a dispute over use of the Flemish and French languages. Recently the government prohibited professors of the Ghent State university which now uses Flemish, to lecture at its Ghent Institute for High Studies, where French is the language in use.

FLYING BOAT DO-X READY FOR FLIGHT OVER LONDON

CALSHOT, England, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The 50-ton flying boat DO-X was fueled and ready tonight for a cruise over London tomorrow with the Prince of Wales as honored passenger.

The prince will arrive at 11 a. m., to inspect the 12-motored German seaplane, and shortly afterward will take a ride if the weather is good.

Under present plans the DO-X will leave at 11 a. m., Thursday, for Bordeaux, en route to Lisbon, the Azores, Bermuda and New York.

SMOKE MIGHT BE CLUE TO MISSING AVIATORS

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 11.—(AP)—Smoke sighted near the southwestern end of Dundas Island, north of Prince Rupert, B. C., led Anscel Eckmann, searching for Pilot Robin Renahan and two companions missing two weeks, to hope today it was a clue to Renahan's whereabouts.

Fog prevented Eckmann from landing to investigate but he planned to return. The United States coast guard cutter Cygan also was to visit the island.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN WAS SHOT DEAD IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—An unidentified man was shot down in the West End tonight in a slaying which police feared may have introduced the machine gun as a means of gangster execution in Boston.

Witnesses said the man was walking on Lowell street, when an automobile containing three men pulled up beside him. Two men were in the rear seat. Several shots were fired and the victim dropped as the car pulled away.

OBITUARY

Marcus Daly, Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11. —(AP)—Marcus Daly, Jr., 4o, son of one of the early west's most picturesque figures is dead.

An attack of heart disease yesterday, while he was hunting among the Virginia capes, was fatal to the descendant of the late bluff, fighting pioneer who founded the Anaconda Copper company.

Mr. Daly went south with an associate Saturday, apparently in good health. Last night his family received news of his sudden death. His body was to arrive at the Daly residence in Fifth avenue tonight. Funeral preparations were held in abeyance.

The financier-sportsman is survived by his mother, Mrs. Margaret Evans Daly; his widow, a son, Marcus Daly III, and two sisters, Mrs. James W. Gerard, wife of the former American ambassador to Germany, and the Countess Anton Sigray, of Hungary.

He was born in Butte, Mont., in 1882 and was graduated from Yale in 1904.

Holds Up Motorists And Kidnaps Girls

Masked Bandit Works in Secluded Section of Queens New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A [illegible] red-haired girl, otherwise unidentified, was kidnaped early today by a masked bandit in the secluded section of Queens where the mysterious "3-X" killer committed two murders several months ago.

Joseph Luisi, 30, a taxicab driver, brought news of the kidnaping to police. Last night was his night off, so he borrowed his brother's sedan and went for a ride.

About midnight, while driving down Eighth avenue in New York, Luisi saw the pretty girl and invited her to go riding. Before they got to the point of exchanging names Luisi had been robbed of $7, his sedan and his girl.

They had stopped riding about 3 a. m. near Bayside, Queens, Luisi said, about halfway between the two places where "3-X" committed his murders. A man suddenly appeared beside the car. He was about six feet tall and wore a mask over his face.

Luisi recalled that Noel Sowley and Joseph Moyzinski had been slain by a mysterious assassin while sitting in parked cars with girl friends. At the man's command he hurriedly got out of the car and submitted to search of his pockets. The man took all he had, the seven dollars, and directed, "Now walk away."

The girl started to get out of the car as the masked man got into the driver' seat but he ordered her to remain where she was. He started the car and as he drove away Luisi heard the girl scream.

Earlier in the night a man described as the same six-footer had robbed another man who he found in a parked automobile with a girl. The man, whose name was not revealed by police, said he finally prevented the abduction of his fiancee after the robber had started to drive off with her. The man said the robber yielded to his pleadings and drove off with the car after robbing him of a small sum of money. The car was found by police a few blocks from the place where Luigi and his girl had parked.

The police scoured the neighborhood in vain for Luigi's car or a trace of the girl. They said descriptions of the bandit did not tally with the reported appearance of the "3-X" slayer.

CONFESSES KILLING OF A FELLOW PRISONER

DETROIT, Nov. 11.— (AP) — Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox announced late today that he had obtained a confession from Peter Wentala, a prisoner, that Wentala killed William Jones in a fist fight in the "sobering up" cell of the central station. Jones was found dead in the cell last night.

Wentala, a former patrolman, was discharged from the police department for drunkenness, department records showed.

Jones, 50, and father of six children, walked into the police station last night and, according to the officer in charge, said, "I killed Jerry Buckley; you had better lock me up." Police said he was intoxicated and that they escorted him to the "golden rule" cell to stay until he was able to go home.

Three hours later, police said, Jones was found lying on the floor of the cell unconscious. He was rushed to receiving hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

TWO ANTI-PROHIBITION ATTACKS ON SENATOR FESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Attacks from two anti-prohibition quarters were directed today at Senator Fess of Ohio, chairman of the republican national committee, for his warning against measures to repeal the 18th amendment.

Representative Britten, republican, Illinois, said "when Senator Fess says 'prohibition is here to stay,' he is talking for himself and not as chairman of the republican national committee," he advocated that the national committee select another chairman.

Former Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, took issue with the Ohioan's suggestion that the republican party would split if it favored repeal.

ADVERTISING OVER RADIO DISGUSTING THE PUBLIC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A revolution of radio fans against excess advertising on the programs was predicted today by Ira E. Robinson, a member of the radio commission.

Robinson asserted that the "overdose of advertising on the radio is fulsome and eventually will ruin the business of advertising by radio."

"The excesses of the broadcasters in their greed for commercial gain," he added, "will assuredly bring about a revolution of listeners."

The commissioner expressed the opinion that advertising by radio could be done "without disgusting the public" but that "assuredly it is not so now."

KILLED BY PLUNGE FROM 40TH FLOOR WINDOW

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.— (AP) — A plunge from a 40th floor window of the Hotel New Yorker, today killed Walter Brownfelder, 36, believed to be an official of a Seventh avenue milk concern. Police listed the case as suicide but no motive was apparent

Prosperity Founded On [illegible] Wage Scales

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—Announcing that the General Motors corporation has maintained salaries wages, President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., said today that a reduction in the wage scale would not only delay the return of more normal times but unnecessarily limit the future prosperity of the nation.

In a letter to stockholders accompanying the nine months' earning statement, previously made public, Mr. Sloan said that in his opinion "it is important for industry to appreciate the fact that the country's prosperity is founded on a high wage scale."

"The broader the margin that exists between the daily wage and the necessities of life," he continued, "the more the individual has available to purchase additional products and enjoy and profit by his leisure hours. This development of purchasing power creates wealth which in turn reacts and reacts throughout our whole industrial situation."

Summarizing the business situation, Mr. Sloan said: "I feel that there is no occasion for losing faith in the principles and policies of the corporation; neither should we lose faith and confidence in each other, nor in our industrial leaders.

"On the contrary we individually should do the most we can to reduce the discomfort and suffering which follow all economic readjustments. Finally, we should discharge our responaibilities, whatever they may be, in such a manner that when the tides turn—and that is only a question of time—we shall be better able to enjoy and appreciate the bigger opportunities that have yet to come to us."

Mr. Sloan disclosed that the General Motors stockholders have increased 12,242, to 216,417 between August 16 and October 31 and viewed this growth "in a period of economic changes, as on indication of increasing public confidence."

POSED AS WAR VETERAN; ARRESTED FOR THEFT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—It may have been a day of rejoicing to real veterans, but it was hard luck day for Lloyd Williams, 21, who had been doing right well passing himself off as one.

Williams is one of the unemployed.

Just by falling into line in the march into mess hall, Williams told police, he had been getting free feeds for two and a half months at Walter Reed hospital.

Nobody noticed, until he appeared today in a pair of misfit pants, listed as A. W. O. L. from a Walter Reed store room, along with sundry other articles.

Now Williams is charged with theft of $150 worth of supplies.

BROOKINS TO FIGHT CHARGES OF BIGAMY

IOWA CITY, Ia., Nov. 11—(AP)—Armed with a new marriage certificate which he hopes will unravel his tangled matrimonial affairs, Charles R. Brookins, erstwhile assistant track coach at the University of Iowa, returned here today to fight charges of Bigamy.

Brookins and his latest wife, the former Miss Dorothy Covey of Oskaloosa, were married for the second time at Canton, Mo., yesterday afternoon, after being refused a license at Rock Island, Ill., and Kahoka, Mo.

Bigamy charges on which Brookins has waived preliminary hearing are awaiting grand jury action next week

N. Y. SHIPPERS TO FIGHT WATERFRONT GUERILLAS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)— War was declared today by the shippers conference of Greater New York against "waterfront guerilias" who infest the piers. The conference was told the "guerillas" use strong arm methods to dominate the loading and unloading of trucks.

"If the truckmen do not pay tribute," said J. P. Magill, of the Maritime Association of the Port of New York, "the drivers are manhandled until they look as though they have been through a sausage machine."

A committee was named to consult with other trade organizations in an attempt to make the piers safe for all truckers.

T. COLEMAN DU PONT, 66, DIES IN WILMINGTON, DEL.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 11—(AP)—T. Coleman Du Pont, one of the most prominent members of the Du Pont family of Delaware and long identified with the national and state organizations of the republican party, died at his home here today. He was 66.

SOVIET CHARGES OF PLOT AMUSE BRITISH CIRCLES

Soviet Government Alleges That an Army of 600,000 Men Was to Have Marched On Moscow Last Summer—Action Was Deferred Because of Discord Between France and Italy and the Uncertainty of Germany's Attitude—France Was to Supply Arms and Ammunition—British Fleet Was to Seize the Crimea and Liningrad—Eight Russians Are to Be Tried on Charges of High Treason

MOSCOW, Nov. 11.—(AP)—From a dossier of indictments and purported confessions in the hands of the people's commissar for justice there emerged today soviet charges of an international plot to overthrow the government and to parcel out some of the country's most valuable natural resources among the nations which fringe her borders.

Eight Russians, said to be anti-soviet, are in prison under charges of high treason, the punishment for which is death. The alleged confession of one of them—the counter-revolutionist, Ramsin—names a group of outstanding figures in half a dozen nations as co-conspirators with the leaders of the plot in Moscow.

Sir Henri Deterding, British oil magnate, is named as one of those who aided in financing the preliminary revolutionary campaign. Former Premier Poincare and Foreign Minister Briand of France are called "arch conspirators," and the name of Britain's "Lawrence of Arabia" is the final dab of color in the picture.

From Ramsin's purported confession the government has reconstructed the elaborate plot. It was hatched in Moscow and Leningrad, fed with foreign capital in Paris and supported by active sympathy from Great Britain, France, Poland, Finland, Rumania and other "capitalist" nations.

There was to have been a diplomatic "incident" on the Rumanian border, and Rumania was to have declared war. In quick succession, Poland, France and England were to have followed her example.

An army of 600,000 men under the White General Loukomsky was to have marched on Moscow, gathering strength of numbers as it went through enlistment of discontented peasants. Simultaneously, an army under the White General Denikin was to move on Leningrad.

France was to supply arms and ammunition and the British fleet was to steam into the Baltic and the Black sea, seizing the Crimea and Leningrad. All this was to have been begun last summer, the soviet government asserts, but discord between France and Italy and the uncertainty of Germany's attitude induced the plotters to delay their first open attack.

The revolutionists were to install a "bourgeois democratic republic" and in return for their support their foreign allies were to share some of Russia's richest sources of wealth.

Britain was to have the Caucasian oil fields. France was to receive other valuable concessions; Poland was to share the Ukraine with France, and other allies were to be rewarded proportionately.

The new government was virtually decided upon, with Ramsin as its most likely head, the alleged confessions said.

In the background of the preparatory plotting, the soviet government charges, was a "trade industrial committee" with headquarters at Paris, through which exiled Russian financiers passed a million gold rubles into the revolutionary treasury via "certain high officials of a certain French institution at Moscow."

The indictment on which Ramsin and his seven associates are held, and the alleged confessions of the conspirators avoid mention of names, but it was implied that the only "French institution" at Moscow is the French embassy.

Through the "institution," the government charges, Poincare and Briand played their important parts in the plot. Other foreign allies contributed their assistance through the "trade industrial committee" at Paris.

The eight prisoners, four of them educators and the others engineers are to be tried at a special sitting of the soviet supreme court on charges of high treason, counter-revolutionary activities and espionage, the punishment for any of which is death.

Today's Moscow newspapers devoted many pages to the indictment and confessions, with editorials the general tenor of which was that this alleged plot, like others in the past, was "instigated and financed by foreign powers."

"Capitalist nations," one editorial declared, "will never abandon their evil designs upon the soviet republic." Others saw in the new charges a warning that Russia must strengthen her defenses against invasion.

BRITISH OFFICIALS AMUSED BY SOVIET GOVT. CHARGES

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Official circles here were mildly amused today at news from Moscow that the soviet press was carrying details of a "plot" in which prominent Britishers, presumably with the knowledge of the British government, were engaged to overthrow the soviet regime.

The names of Sir Henri Deterding, Colonel Lawrence, Lord Churchill, Sir Phillip of Vickers, and others were mentioned in connection with the Moscow conspiracy, but none of these was available for comment tonight.

There was even some doubt as to the identity of the British "plotters," for while "Lord Churchill" presumably meant Winston Churchill, and the "Director Simon" who also is named, was taken to mean Sir John Simon, neither of these has been directly connected with Russian affairs.

Sir Phillip of Vickers is so thoroughly disguised as to defy recognition, it was asserted, and as for Colonel Lawrence, if that name is taken to mean the "Lawrence of Arabia," army officials declared he would have little time for his duties as "Aircraftsman Shaw" if he really were engaged in so many "plots" in so many places as Moscow suggests.

Sir Henri Deterding, who is an internationally known oil magnate, laughed heartily tonight when he was informed that he was accused of conspiring against the soviet regime.

"That story is a confession of weakness," he said. "The bolsheviks have to concoct such stories to disguise the fact that their whole system is breaking."

SALVATION ARMY GENERALS TO BE RETIRED AT AGE OF 70

LONDON, Nov. 11—(AP)—Generals in the Salvation Army hereafter will be retired automatically at the age of seventy, the forty-two army commissioners in session here decided today after the most vigorously debated meeting of the conference to date.

One faction, it was reported, held out for seventy-three years as the age of retirement, but capitulated to a majority. General Edward J. Higgins, head of the army, required all the delegates to refrain from discussing the meeting for publication.

In an official announcement, however, he explained that the new retirement limit will be applied to women as well as men generals, and that the rank of general is the only one in which a retirement age does not already apply.

LIQUOR LADEN PLANE CONFISCATED BY SHERIFF

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 11—(AP)—Prohibition officers here today were notified by telephone from Columbia, Miss., that Sheriff Walsdorf there had confiscated an airplane, presumably from Michigan, heavily laden with choice liquors.

Sheriff Walsdorf advised the prohibition department that he had arrested the operators of the plane and asked what charges be filed against them. In prohibition circles the opinion prevailed that the shipment was intended as Christmas cargo for New Orleans bootleggers and that the plane stopped at Columbia for refueling.

$500,000 SUIT DECIDED IN FAVOR OF GENE TUNNEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—(AP)—Gene Tunney saved the largest purse but one of his entire career today when a jury in supreme court ruled in his favor and against Timothy J. Mara's suit for $526,812.42 for alleged breach of contract.

The verdict for the retired heavyweight boxing champion, delivered to Justice Hatting after an hour and a half of deliberation, saved Tunney a quarter of the two-million dollar fortune he piled up in the ring. A fortune in which Mara claimed he was entitled to share because he had contracted orally with Gene in 1926 to help him get a title fight with Jack Dempsey and to "advise, cooperate and assist" him through his ring career.

There was excitement in the court room as the jurors who had been listening to testimony since October 30 filed back into their seats at 1:10 p. m. Tunney, taut and grim, sat with clenched hands at his counsel's table Mara was not in the courtroom.

Joseph Goldberg, foreman of the jury, announced:

"We find for the defendant," and Tunney leaned back and sighed.

The crowds that had waited in the corridors brushed attendants aside and stormed the retired champion. Tunney shook hands with the jurors, thanked them and faced the onrushing mob as he used to when king of the fisticuffers, smiling now and affable.

The former champion next must face the charge of Hoff, probably in the same court, that the Philadelphia politician is entitled to a twenty per cent slice to Tunney's earnings under a contract entered into between them shortly before the Dempsey match in Philadelphia.

Hoff alleges his influence was used to "protect" Tunney the night he won the heavyweight title. Gene was examined before trial by attorneys last Saturday and the case is expected to reach the court within a few weeks.

All of the manufacturing concerns with a few exceptions, were closed for the day as well as the banks, schools and stores.

Through the courtesy of James J. Shea post, No. 19, American Legion, nearly 1,400 pupils of the Natchaug, Windham street, St. Mary's and St. Joseph's schools witnessed a moving picture program at the Strand theatre, loaned for the occasion by Manager Jack Rabinowitz, in the forenoon, two shows being given at 8 and 10 o'clock. In the evening the Legion post staged its annual Armistice day dance in the Al-Pierre Tabarin, with the Peerless Orchestra furnishing music and a large crowd in attendance.

A large number of local people went to Norwich to witness the parade in the forenoon. The local B. P. O. Elks' Band furnished music for the Norwich lodge of Elks and delegations from the local post of the Veterans of Foreign wars and Odd Fellows participated in the procession.

Director Otto R. Nyffeler of the State Trade school is authority for the statement that the evening classes which commenced this month are proving satisfactory. The enrollment at present totals fifty, including 20 in the draughting class, taught by William E. McArthur; fifteen in the carpentry class, conducted by George Jay and fifteen in the electrical department, taught by Wilbur Hill. Nearly one-half of the evening students are advanced mechanics or apprentices who are employed during the day. Many of the draughting class are carpenters of experience, who are attending the school to gain knowledge for mapping out construction work. Other night classes in masonry, painting, paper hanging, etc. will be inaugurated as soon as ten or more pupils enroll in each.

Director Nyffeler states that one of the aims of the school here as well as those in other cities of the state, is to co-operate with contractors and labor unions by offering facilities and instructors for the advancement of apprentices. James Wilde, instructor at the Stamford trade school, is making a tour of the state, calling on the electrical unions to offer the co-operation of the state institutions in this respect. Mr. Wilde was here Monday evening and with the local director attended a meeting of the Willimantic union to explain the proposition.

The Willimantic Poultry association will hold an important meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The speaker will be Professor Daniel J. Lambert of Apponaug, R. Charged with operating an improperly registered motor vehicle and evading payment of a taxicab fare, Joseph J. Bardy, 20, of R. F. D., Putnam, until recently a resident of Webster, Mass., was before the local police court Tuesday morning. He pleaded guilty to the first complaint on which he was fined ten dollars and costs, and on the second entered a demurrer through Probation Officer William V. Palmer, Sr., which was overruled by the court and he was assessed an additional $15 and costs.

Bardy was arrested late Monday afternoon by Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady and Officer Arthur Hurley. He had been stopped here earlier in the day because the roadster he was driving had no number plates. The machine was held by the police and Bardy engaged Hyman Brettschneider, local taxicab operator, to take him to Hartford for $15, giving the latter a check for cash which was not covered by sufficient funds, it was discovered later. While in Hartford Bardy obtained his registration plates at the state motor vehicle department and also engaged a Hartford taxi driver, who also received no pay for for his services, it was stated.

The police here learned that the accused gave a check for $100 in Webster as part payment for the car he was driving and this also was not covered by sufficient funds to meet cashing. Later in the day the Webster automobile concern made arrangements to have the machine returned to them. Bardy's brother came on here to pay his fines.

Theodore F. Downing, a former local resident but for the past decade an exporter of diamonds from Antwerp, Belgium, was here Tuesday afternoon for a short time, enroute to Boston from Hartford. Before the World war Mr. Downing was engaged in the life insurance business and also for several years a member of the state police department, resigning when this country entered the war to enlist. He spent a long time overseas and upon his return in 1920, took up the diamond selling business through a Hartford dealer, locating in Antwerp.

The weekly luncheon-meeting of the Lions club, scheduled for Tuesday evening in the Hotel Hooker, was not held, due to the holiday and the fact that several of the members were out of town. Mr. Johnson is a member of the promotion department for the New York Daily Mirror.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S ADDRESS AT GOOD WILL CONGRESS CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—The following address was delivered by President Hover here today at the annual conference and good will congress of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches:

Upon this day all thoughts must turn to our heroic dead whose lives were given in defense of the liberties and ideals of our country. Their contribution to these priceless heritages was made without reservation; they gave the full measure of their intelligence and energy and enthusiasm, and life itself, forfeiting their portion of further happiness—all that we and our children might live on more safely, more happily, and more assured of the precious blessings of security and peace.

A solemn obligation lies upon us to press forward in our pursuit of those things for which they died. Our duty is to seek ever new and widening opportunities to insure the world against the horror and irretrievable wastage of war. Much has been done, but we must wage peace continuously, with the same energy as they waged war.

This year 1930 has been rendered notable in peace annals in the achievement of the London naval treaty. That has disposed of one of those major frictions among the great naval powers—that is, competition in naval construction—and it has made a sensible advance in the reduction of warships.

The promotion of peace and prevention of war, however, can not rest upon the accomplishments of any one year. The outlook for peace is happier than for half a century, yet we can not overlook the fact that nations in many ways are always potentially in conflict. There are not only the accumulated age-old controversies and ambitions which are alive with prejudice, emotion, and passion, but you may be assured that there will always be an unceasing crop of new controversies between nations.

Every shift in power, every advance in communications, in trade and finance daily increases the points of contact of one nation with another. The diffusion of their citizens and their property abroad increasingly penetrates and overlaps into the four corners of the earth. The many inventions of these citizens, their ceaseless energies, bring an hourly grist to our foreign offices of contested right or grievance. It is true that many of these contacts make for understanding and good will, it is indeed of the first importance to peace that these happy influences be cultivated and that the unhappy ones be disposed of with justice and good will.

Kellogg-Briand Pact

The Kellogg-Briand Pact, signed a little over two years ago to further safeguard against the dangers from these conflicts, has already become a powerful influence in international affairs. Several further states have adhered to it since last November, bringing the total number of nations up to 58 which have renounced war as an instrument of national policy and have agreed to settle conflicts of whatever nature by pacific means. Five other states have expressed an intention to adhere, which will bring the total to 63, a figure comprising all but two nations.

By the recognition of this fundamental principle of peace and from the moral restraint that the covenant itself presents, this agreement has become one of the most potent instruments for peace which the world has ever forged for itself.

There has been much discussion as to the desirability of some further extension of the pact so as to effect a double purpose of assuring methodical development of this machinery of peaceful settlement, and to insure at least the mobilization of world opinion against those who fail when strain comes. I do not say that some such further step may not some day come about.

Such a formula would be stimulative and would appeal to the dramatic sense of the world as a mark in the progress of peace. But less dramatic and possibly even more sure is the day-to-day strengthening and buttressing of the pact by extension from one nation to another of treaties which, in times of friction, assure resort to well-tried processes of competent negotiation, of conciliation, and of arbitration.

And we can in our own relations record great advancement in these fundamental but less dramatic supports to the pact during the two years since its signature. Up to the signature of the pact our country was bound by arbitration treaties to seven other nations. It was bound to 26 nations by conciliation treaties, both bilateral and multilateral. Since that time we have completed treaties with 15 more countries, and in addition we have signed further arbitration and conciliation treaties with 45 nations, of which 26 have been ratified and the others are either before the senate or in course of presentation to it.

Arbitration And Conciliation

By these treaties of arbitration we pledge ourselves to the acceptance of the judgment of a disinterested thrd party in all controversies of a justiciable character. By treaties of conciliation we pledge ourselves to submit all other types of controversy to negotiations or the mediation of commissions which embrace representatives of disinterested nations.

It is our purpose to develop in every way the use of arbitration and conciliation agreements in our relations with foreign nations.

Other nations of the world have likewise been engaged over years in the building up of the machinery for pacific settlement of controveries. There are hundreds of arbitration and conciliation treaties existing directly between them. Indeed the covenant of the league of nations provides for arbitration and conciliation amongst 54 nations of the world.

It is my belief that the world will have become firmly interlocked with such agreements within a very few years, and that it will become an accepted principle of international law that disputes between nations which it has not been possible to determine through the ordinary channels of diplomacy shall in future be submitted to arbitration, or to international conciliation commissions.

Methods Of Pacific Settlement

In the development of methods of pacific settlement, a great hope lies in ever extending the body and principles of international law on which such settlements will be based. The world court is now a strongly established institution amongst 45 nations as a continuing body, performing and facilitating justiciable determinations which can only be accomplished sporadically under special treaties of arbitration. Its permanence is assured and from it there is tseadily growing a body of precedent, decisions, and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part, not alone in our own interest but in advancement of peace.

A year ago I made a suggestion of a practical contribution in settlement of an age-old controversy of freedom of the seas. I proposed that food supplies should be made immune from interference in time of war, and that the security of such supplies should be guaranteed by neutral transport and management. I proposed it not alone upon humane grounds but that the haunting fears of nations who must live from over the sea might be relaxed and the sacrifices which they make for naval strength might be lessened. Our food supplies are assured, and it is therefore from us a disinterested proposal. It would make for prevention as well as limitation of war.

We, as a nation whose independence, liberties, and securities were born of war, can not contend that there never is or never will be righteous cause for war in the world. Nor can we assume that righteousness has so advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense.

Fidelity To Agreement

With the progress the world has made in the installation of the methodical processes for the settlement of controversies, the larger problem emerges as to fidelity to agreement to use these methods. The thought and anxiety of the world is rightly directed to the question as to what the nations of the world will do in case of a failure to use them. It is useless for us to say that we have no interest in such events.

Since our experience in the World war no one will deny the dangers which foreign wars bring to our shores or the interest we must have in the peace of the world at large. But I do not hold that our obligation in these matters lies wholly on the basis of self-interest. It is upon its moral and spiritual strength that the advancement of the world must rest.

Our basis of cooperation to preserve peace among nations must be different from that of the other great nations of the world. The security of our geographic situation, our traditional freedom from entanglements in the involved diplomacy of Europe, and our disinterestedness enable us to give a different and in many ways a more effective service to peace.

The nations of Europe, bordered as they are by age-old dangers of which we in the Western Hemispbere have little appreciation, beset as they are by long-inherited fears, believe that they must subscribe to methods which in the last resort will use force to compel nations to abide by their agreements to settle controversies by pacific means. We, in our great state of safety and independence, should make no criticism of their conclusions which arise from their necessities.

But we believe that our contribution can best be made in these emergencies, when nations fail to keep their undertakings of pacific settlement of disputes, by our good offices and helpfulness free from any advance commitment or entanglement as to the character of our action.

To Use Friendly Offices

The purpose of our government is to cooperate with others, to use our friendly offices, and, short of any implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good will to maintain the peace of the world.

The war that ended on this day 12 years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back upon its splendid valor and heroism then displayed, when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvelous exercise of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—unselfishness, self-sacrifice, cooperation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates but rather upon the traits of the human race which war makes seem more vivid by contrast with its own horrors. These same qualities are exercised, but are unsung and unheralded, in times of peace. Those who died displaying them would have displayed them living, and would have wrought their fruits into the enduring fabric of our peaceful destiny. We can only pledge ourselves, in honor of their memory, to the task of making ever more unlikely that our youth hereafter shall be denied its opportunity to devote its idealism and its energies to the constructive arts of peace.

DANIELSON

BROOKLYN RESIDENTS SEE FOX HUNT FOR FIRST TIME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 11.—It was a privilege and the pleasure of a very considerable number of persons, who assembled, from here and there for miles about throughout this territory, to witness, in the case of the great majority of them for the first time in their lives, the enlivening and thrilling spectacle of brilliantly garbed huntsmen, and hunts women, riding to hounds in Brooklyn this morning.

Under the beneficient and glorious sunshine of a perfect November day, the hunters set forth from near the Van Brunt estate shortly after 11 o'clock this morning to course over the countryside in such a meet as those who witnessed it unanimously hoped, it may be believed, will be many times repeated in the future.

Historic Brooklyn provided the ideal setting for such an affair—ideal, as to the countryside, for the hunters; ideal in the traditions that have hallowed that locality in the minds familiar with its past, ideal for those who for the first time were gazing in real life upon scarlet-coated huntsmen mounted upon thoroughbred hunters that were in themselves a joy to look upon. It was, without reservation, a real treat for all who came to look upon it.

The flaming coats, the white breeches and the silk toppers of numbers of the men riders who took part in the hunt added picturesque fascination to the whole motion picture, in life, that was being enacted as preparations for the hunt were being made. The prancing, snorting horses, were no less an attraction for the great majority of those who were there to see what there was to be seen. The scene recalled the pictures one has seen and the stories one has read of hunting days in old England or Scotland.

The period of preparation for the hunt was sufficiently lengthy to give the watchers an eyeful. Horses being unloaded from motor vans Riders mounting. This and that consultation. Snorting horses, rarin' to go! Gaudily garbed riders, casually limbering up their mounts. Greetings, one to another, between members of the hunt club, practically all of them strangers to the average person who watched them, but of the elect. The final instructions. The release of the hounds—and their shrill yells as they picked up the scent and dashed madly across the brown fields with the huntsmen in headlong pursuit! Well, that was something!. Thereafter came a piling into automobiles by those who watched and a dash of the machines around by the old Brooklyn creamery, to the Allen Hill section, hunt riders meanwhile being clearly visible as their horses gracefully cleared stone walls and fences away over in the distance. A second stage of the hunt took the riders across fields of the Albert Webb and Mrs. Victor Smith estates, in which vicinity the riding for the day was concluded.

Many of those who took part in the hunt pronounced the territory ridden over today as just natural country for such sport, and a few of them compared it, as it just is now, as comparable with some of the best hunt riding country in either England or Scotland.

The success of today's event considered from every angle heard of, it may be assumed that this grand sport may be taken up here as a regular thing by the group, and their friends, that rode today. There were approximately 25 riders in this morning's hunt, and a pack of a dozen hounds gave voice to their excitement as they followed the trail set down for them.

Coroner Begins Inquest Today.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill will begin on Wednesday his inquest relative to the death of Joseph Bouchard, New Bedford man, who was struck and killed by an automobile near the state police scales at Hopkins hill, in Plainfield, last Saturday night. Coroner Bill was especially interested today in reports to the effect that Bouchard was intoxicated and about Plainfield village a comparatively short time before he was struck by a Steinman truck out of Moosup and fatally injured, as he was crossing the state highway It was dark at the time. The coroner also has listened to information purporting to represent that Bouchard was bundled into a public service car by someone having official authority in Plainfield, and that the driver of the vehicle took Bouchard to a point near where he was hit with the truck a short time later and let him out.

On the evening of Sunday, Nov. 23, there is to be presented at the Baptist church and under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches a pageant entitled In the Light of Truth. This pageant was written and will be directed by Rev. Harry Olcott, of Bloomfield, this state. Its theme is the history of temperence sentiment in the United States, and a brief survey of present day conditions. The public is most cordially invited to attend its presentation here.

On this Armistice day it may be a part of record that there is a growing sentiment among the great many people here who appreciate, and do not forget, the service rendered this nation in the World war by the young people who went forth to defend its honor, and its safety and security, that the memorial to them on Davis park is not what it should be. The reference is to the honor roll, gradually disintegrating and likely to be an eyesore within a year or two, because of its condition.

Thinking back to the time when it was erected, one recalls that it never was intended to be a permanent memorial to this town's veterans of the great conflict. A dozen years have elapsed since the fighting ended over there. Meanwhile numbers of communities hereabouts and hundreds of them throughout southern New England have done the proper thing by their World war heroes as to erecting suitable and permanent memorials. There is an increasing feeling that Killingly should do likewise.

Men who discussed the matter today were more or less agreed that a native granite boulder to which would be affixed a bronze shield bearing the names that now appear on the honor roll would be one proper method of recognizing those to be honored in this manner. A further sugestion was that the money to pay for it should be appropriated by the town.

Harvest dinner, Congregational church today (Wed.), 11:30 to 1:30.—Adv.

At Connecticut Mills avenue and Lewis boulevard this morning a car operated by Joseph Duquette of South street and a light truck operated by Ernest A. Bessette, also of this town, were in collision. There were no personal injuries. State Officer John Murphy, who investigated the circumstances surrounding the accident, ordered Bessette to make a appearance in the town court to answer to a charge of failing to grant the right of way at an intersection.

Members of the Danielson Rotary club will join with Rotarians from Putnam, Willimantic, New London and Norwich at the Norwich Inn Wednesday evening for a sort of get-together banquet of Eastern Connecticut units.

Red Cross workers will go into action here Wednesday morning in connection with the annual roll call effort. Headquarters have been established at Woodward's store, at the corner of Center and Main streets.

Because of the failure of a sufficient number to register for a course of public speaking that was to have been given at Killingly high school, the plan has been abandoned. Supt. W. E. Parker hoped to get as many as twenty to agree to take such a course, but only eight persons signified their desire to do so.

Joseph Beaudoin is chairman of a committee of Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion, that will make the necessary arrangements for the post's Christmas tree party on Davis park, in the interest of the children of this community.

It was remarked by numbers of people here today that this Armistice day, weatherwise, was almost the exact counterpart of the original one, twelve years ago.

DANIELSON PAYS TRIBUTE TO HER VETERANS OF THE WORLD WAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 11.—This community paid its tribute this day to those who were "over there," or in camps waiting to go, on the twelfth anniversary of the signing of the armistice. At the hour of signing the armistice back that many years ago there sounded out here today a chorus of bells and whistles, at 11 o'clock.

At 1:30 o'clock the organizations that were to participate in the parade that was an outstanding feature of the day's observance here had assembled at their appointed places on streets leading off North Main street, and on close to schedule time moved down through the business section of the borough thence over to the West Side, then back through Tiffany street, into Franklin, Furnace, Carter and Broad streets to Davis park, where the paraders were dismissed. There followed formal exercises on the park, with addresses by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Wethersfield Congregational church, and Judge Sabin S. Russell of the town's probate court. A concert by the Killingly High school band and an interesting drill by members of the Guard St. Therese were features of the exercises at the park.

An escort of state police headed the parade that wended its way through several sections of Danielson. Then came Chief Marshal Percy Brown and his aides, and, in order: The Goodyear band was at the head of the first division, in which the Service battery, Captain Gordon J. Gale commander, marched. In the next division, headed by the Killingly High School band, was the American Legion, a shade older than in the days that they signed up for whatever might be in store for them in the World war, but still young and full of vigor. They were generously cheered at various points where spectators had gathered along the line of march. Auxiliaries of the Legion were next in line, followed by members of Canton Oneco, I. O. O. F. At the head of the third division was St. James' band, and immediately in their rear the members of the Union St. John Baptist, and the Guard St. Therese. The East Killingly Drum corps, a stirring group of players, reminiscent of ye olden days, led the fourth division and acted as immediate escort to the Polish Citizens' club. A few of the gallant members of the revered G. A. R., in an automobile, had their place in the parade, and were reverently cheered by the many hundreds of people watching the parade.

St. James' Drum corps, made up of boys, drummers and trumpeters, were a nifty feature of the parade and gave the crowds considerable of a thrill. They were leading the fourth division, in which men and apparatus of the fire department appeared. At the rear of the marchers was a string of automobiles

Danielson's observance of Armistice day was a fitting one, and indicative of the increasingly impressive manner in which it appears to be destined to be observed as the years roll on.

PUTNAM

ARMISTICE DAY IS CELEBRATED IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 11.— Amid scenes reminiscent of those occurring during the joyous celebration taking place on Nov. 11, 1918, this city today joined with the rest of the nation in the observance of the 12th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice. Stores, banks, offices and factories were closed during the greater part of the day.

At ten o'clock this morning, military, civic and boys' organizations formed in marching units at the soldiers' monument on Grove street, where there was flag raising followed by a parade which had its line of march over the principal streets of the city. The procession was marshalled by Major A. D. McIntyre, assisted by a civilian aide, Alferie Bibeault. A squad of police, headed by Captain A. J. Dubreuil, furnished an escort. First in the line of march was the Boy Scout band of St. Mary's church, under the direction of Rev. Joseph D. Casey. The Headquarters company, C. N. G., commanded by Captain John J. McGarry, followed. Behind them was the V. F. W., drum corps and members of the Albert J. Breault post. The Anslem Mayotte post, American Legion members, were next in line and were followed by the Boy Scout drum corps of St. Mary's, under the direction of Drum Major Daniel English. The Boy Scout troops of St. Mary's were immediately following.

In the automobile section rode the few surviving members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish War veterans, Women's Relief corps members and members of the American Legion auxiliary.

At 10:50 a. m., the parade came up Pomfret street and proceeded to Union square where disbandment took place followed by the program of exercises in commemoration of the significance of the event.

At 11 o'clock, bells in all the churches of the city began to extoll the glad tidings, while sirens on fire apparatus at the Central fire station screeched a deafening overture the din of which reverberated throughout the business section, for fully three minutes.

Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church, speaking from the balcony of the Putnam inn, introduced the speaker of the day, Rev. John C. Mathieu, pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale. Approximately 500 people were huddled into the square to listen to the address of Father Mathieu in which he called upon the people to always revere and hold sacred the memory of America's soldier dead who sacrificed their lives that this nation and all nations of the earth may exist in peace and live free of grip of the autocracy.

The observance was brought to a close with a rendition of The Star Spangled Banner, by the Boy Scout band.

Through the courtesy of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer at the state police barracks in Danielson, two mounted officers were detailed to patrol streets over which the parade proceeded. The state officers were especially efficient in re-routing through traffic onto side streets and back onto trunk line highways without giving interference to the marchers.

This afternoon a large crowd assembled at the Putnam high school athletic campus where the Putnam high school football team met the undefeated Bartlett high eleven of Webster, Mass., in the annual encounter. This afternoon the Armistice day observance assumed a social aspect, Anslem Mayotte post, American Legion, members entertained at a dance held in Odd Fellows' hall on Pomfret street.

The second run of the Jacobs Hill fox hounds was held this morning at 11 o'clock in Brooklyn. A large number of riders followed the course which led over about 5 miles of open country in a southwesterly direction of the town. Benjamin F. Cook was master of hounds. The hunt, which was a drag hunt, was arranged by Charles Van Brunt Cushman of Pomfret.

The engagement of Miss Sadie Zaltas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Zaltas of Fremont street, to Benjamin Tuber of Norwich, has been announced. The wedding will take place in Norwich on Thursday, November 27. Miss Zaltas is well known in this city. She is a graduate of Putnam high school, class of 1925.

In police court this morning, a transient, who went to the police station yesterday afternoon and pleaded for arrest on charge of intoxication, was ordered to leave town as soon as conveniently possible. The self-styled inebriate had hoped to draw a jail sentence ranging anywhere from 30 days to three months but his hopes were shattered when Judge M. H. Geissler informed him that the jail is full and that the waiting list also has a large number of early applicants to be accommodated.

In court Monday morning a fine of $15 and costs was imposed upon a local man when found guilty of charges of breach of peace and intoxication.

Dr. Ernest W. Butterfield, state commissioner of education, will be the speaker at the next meeting of Putnam school teachers which will be held on Tuesday, December 2.

First steps of the Putnam unemployment relief committee to alleviate idleness in the city has met with considerable response during the past week. About 26 persons claiming to be out of work have signed their names at the two registration posts in quest of jobs. What the result of the effort of the civic committee's work will be is unknown. As yet no jobs of any consequence have been placed with the committee for disposal, although members of the committee believe that the cooperation of the employer will be had when the survey is completed.

The annual roll call of the Putnam chapter of Red Cross was formally launched today. Wednesday, the various teams of workers will canvass sections of the city in quest of an enrollment of 800 members. The roll call this year is being made under the general chairmanship of Arthur F. Hughes, cashier of the Putnam Savings bank. The city has been districted and a sub-chairman placed in charge of the canvass work of each district.

Franklin E. Perry of Amherst spent Tuesday with his mother, Mrs. Edith Perry, of Grove street.

The initial appearance this morning in the Armistice day parade of the bugle and drum corps of St. Mary's Boy Scout troops made a favorable impression upon the large crowds reviewing the parade. The members of the corps are all youngsters scarcely tall enough to bear their instruments. However, their musical ability proved surprising. The unit was organized in the early part of the year by Rev. Joseph D. Casey, scout commissioner.

Numbers of local people were in Danielson this afternoon attending the Armistice day celebration held there.

Manuel Anas and Raymond Brousseau, students at Bryant-Stratton school, Providence, spent the holiday at their homes here.

Flags of the Shenandoah system of public decoration were flying from the curb in front of all the business houses in the center of the city today.

Armistice day recalled the large celebration of November 11, 1925, when the War Memorial bridge on Pomfret street was dedicated. The parade that accompanied the dedication was one of the longest ever held in this part of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter King, of Grove street, were in Providence today.

Mrs. Albert Marion, of Putnam, spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Mederic Seney.

A very successful whist party was held Saturday evening in St. Joseph's school hall, under the auspices of the League of the Sacred Heart and Holy Name society of St. Joseph's church. Sixty-four tables played and twelve prizes, gifts of the local merchants, were given besides the door award, a 100-pound bag of flour given by Philip Faucher. Rev. John C. Mathieu was chairman of the evening and the committee in charge consisted of Almeric Cardinal, Telesphas Biron, Arthur Morin, Eugene Hamel, Frank Malloy, Ceril Aucoin, Frances Fournier and Adelard Lariviere. Prizes were won by Miss Aurise Morin, a silk bed spread given by the Misses Paradis; Miss Silvina Barrette, a silk table cover, given by the Chas. JEWETT CITY

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE OF RED CROSS OPENED

Armistice day officially opened the annual Red Cross membership roll call, which begins in this chapter tonight (Wednesday). Tuesday morning, the Jewett City chapter's large Red Cross flag was suspended across Main street, between the Finn and Rioux blocks, under the direction of George Rocheleau and several American Legion men. This flag was made when Jewett City chapter was organized, at the beginning of the World war, and has been used every year since, being hung outside the windows at the chapter room in the town hall during every roll call. It was made by Mrs. Arthur M. Brown. It is a flag honored for what the national organization and this chapter have accomplished each year. This chapter has never ceased to function since the war, and has always conducted an annual roll call. Through its suggestion, a district nurse has become a most important factor, and the chapter helps support her work, an inhalator outfit, stretcher and blankets have been provided, for the benefit of the public, ex-service men and their families receive needed aid, the absent men in the service are remembered with Christmas bags, and whenever there has been a national call to aid sufferers from terrible disasters, this chapter has responded. The American Legion post occupies half the chapter room at its invitation and with the town's consent. Only by the response to the roll call with membership fees or by contributions can the chapter carry on its work of relief in emergency, nursing service, instructions in home hygiene and care of the sick, and various other Red Cross services.

India Study Theme

The mission study class conducted by Mrs. E. R. Gardner for six weeks, closed Monday evening. The subject has been India, and the study book was India looks to her future. Much outside information was gained by the use of maps, discussions, questions and answers. Mrs. Gardner spent unstinted time and study in preparation for programs of her own construction, making the study very interesting and instructive. The classes have been held in the Baptist church parlor and the members represented the three Protestant churches. At the close of the last lesson, in behalf of the members, Rev. G. F. Goodenough presented Mrs. Gardner a basket of beautiful yellow and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Gardner invited the class to stay for a party, as the children say, at which she served delicious ice cream with hot chocolate sauce and fancy cookies.

How Armistice Day Was Spent

Armistice day, if made to order, could hardly have been finer. At 11 o'clock, bells were rung and whistles were blown. During the day many went to Norwich and other places. With business generally suspended, the streets took on a Sunday quiet. A number of the American Legion men who had planned to attend the celebration in Stonington remained at home to be present at the funeral services of Walter H. Girard, a World war veteran, which by a coincidence were held on Armistice day. There was, however, a representation from the local post in the line at Stonington.

FLUSH KIDNEYS DAILY BY DRINKING 6 GLASSES WATER

Plain water best diuretic. Add a spoonful Jad Salts to first glass before breakfast to clear intestines of poisons that may pass from intestinal tract to kidneys and invite trouble.

If you have miserable pains in your back, or strained feeling, don't jump to the conclusion you have a bad kidney ailment and start dosing yourself with a lot of medicine. Plain water is the best diuretic—the best flusher of the kidneys you can find.

Drink a full glass one-half hour before breakfast to which you've added a spoonful of ordinary Jad Salts. The water will flush the kidneys. The Jad Salts will cleanse the intestines of the dangerous toxins of Systemic Poisoning which are probably the real cause of those back pains.

According to recent discoveries of able men of science, these toxins frequently pass from the lower intestines to the kidneys, causing pus formations and pain—and inviting trouble. Get them out of your system and chances are those pains you've diagnosed as "kidney pains" will go like magic. You'll feel a general easing up less of that horribly tired and strained feeling at your back. You'll feel more snappy and alert than perhaps for years.

You can get the Jad Salts at any corner drug store. Just ask for ordinary Jad Salts. Take as suggested above. Also drink two glasses of plain water between every two meals and at bedtime. Then if your "kidney pains" aren't completely gone in six days or less, see a good doctor. Try this simple way today. You'll be glad that you did.

THE PRESIDENT ON PEACE

When President Hoover addressed the World Alliance for International Friendship at its annual conference and good will congress on Armistice day there was presented the opportunity of dwelling upon the peace of the world, the progress made in that direction, and the agencies that have been set up to promote and insure it. This he did in effective style, but he also improved the chance to again present the need for adherence to the world court by the United States.

It is not a new position that he has taken when he says: "The world court is now a strongly established institution amongst 45 nations as a continuing body, performing and facilitating justifiable determinations which can only be accomplished sporadically under special treaties of arbitration. Its permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body of precedent, decisions, and acceptances of law in the formulation of which we should have a part, not alone in our own interest, but in the advancement of peace."

Action that will make the United States a member of the court has long been sought. Care has been taken to see that there would be no obligations involved which we would not be willing to meet. There has long been a strong desire in this country for just such a court and for just such a purpose as the existing one has been created. It operates for the purpose of settling differences peacefully, quite the same as courts in any country operate for the adjustment of disputes.

Some of the outstanding citizens of the United States have been members of the court through nomination by other countries and approval by the necessary action. That is in recognition of the desirability of having American minds and judgment included in the work of the court. But if the court is good for the rest of the countries, and it is possible for us to join it on our own terms, it would seem to be a desirable thing for the United States to assist in its conduct and maintenance and to thereby aid in furthering our desire for world peace and the fruits of freedom from the detrimental effects of international strife. The court and the agencies for peace may not prevent all war but all efforts to such an end should be made.

MICHIGAN'S PROMPT JUSTICE

It took three weeks for the Michigan authorities to locate the murderer of a girl in that state, but when they did they lost no time in bringing him to the bar of justice, putting him to plea, at which time he admitted his guilt, and having sentence imposed which brought him life imprisonment.

It was in keeping with action taken in the case of highwaymen who shot a state policeman and who were put away for life without such delays as too often characterize cases of that character.

There can be no question but what the prompt disposition of criminals' cases has the effect of bringing greater respect for the law. That the highwaymen were promptly put where they will not bother the public did not prevent the murderer of the girl from committing his crime, and it is too much to expect that the manner of disposing of this second case will put an end to murders in the state of Michigan, but it nevertheless directs attention to the fact that the authorities of that state are determined to discourage crime, if such is possible, through prompt and effective enforcement of the law and that those who commit crime can expect to pay the penalty provided.

In certain of the states there is evidence to the effect that disregard for the law and the resort to mob rule is prompted by the failure to give immediate attention to cases which arouse public indignation to the point where restraint is difficult. That doesn't mean that those accused of crime should be penalized without trial or a chance to have their defense heard. It doesn't mean that there should be a breaking down of the law by too quick and unfair treatment of those charged with crime. But there are many instances where prolonged delays work against the administration of justice, cause irritation and bring discredit to authorities and courts.

Michigan isn't the only state where early disposition of such cases as have recently come to attention there can be expected. It, nevertheless, sets an example which is beneficial in combating crime and administering justice. It is a welcome contrast to the treatment of similar cases in some other states.

RECOGNIZING BRAZIL

When it became certain that the provisional government in Brazil was in control of the situation in that republic, it was to be expected that recognition would be extended to it. That action has been taken, following assurance from Ambassador Morgan that the new government is not only in control but intends to carry out the country's obligations to other countries.

Recognition of the provisional government has come without undue delay. It has come after it was known that it was desired by the new government and it has come in spite of the fact that this government placed an embargo on the shipment of munitions of war to the Brazilian rebels.

The fact that recognition by the United States was sought indicates an appreciation of its importance and the absence of resentment over the embargo. President Vargas must understand that this country was simply meeting its obligations under international law and standing by a friendly government, the same kind of an attitude that it will take relative to any established government under similar circumstances. It is the attitude that can be expected by the Vargas government in case there is a revolt against its continuance. The fact is that the United States expects as cordial relations with the new government as it has had with that of which Washington Luis was the head, and from which he has persistently refused to resign.

The problems of the new Brazilian government are many and sizeable. Like the other governments which have gone down before revolutions in South America, it is faced by economic depression and it is burdened by a lot of foreign loans. It has been trying to prove that it had the right idea about the regulation of the huge amount of coffee which it produces, but the valorization plan hasn't produced the results that were expected.

In tackling the task of setting up and maintaining the new government, the Brazilian leaders can have no doubt about the magnitude of their task. They know its difficulties and they appreciate the benefit which is certain to come through recognition by this government, for where we have acted it can be expected that others will do likewise.

ANNIHILATING DISTANCE

Cross country speed tests have been made by aviators with results which show that such records as are established today will be smashed tomorrow. Faster machines are being produced and aviators are finding elevations where greater speed is possible. Thus, with the addition of clever fliers, new records are constantly being made.

Captain Frank Hawks has been much in the air and limelight of late with some particularly fine demonstrations of flying. He has not only succeeded in attracting much attention to his fine performances but he has accomplished what he set out to do, the cutting down of the time required to fly between points, and in a manner that has made a deep impression.

On his flight to Cuba he made most favorable time but on his return he sliced it materially and did so without pushing his machine anywhere near its limit for sustained speed. Now he is looking for new fields to conquer and if we can judge by what he has done he will be successful.

Captain Hawks is a speedster. He had adopted Lindbergh's idea of flying high, or high enough to get wind conditions in his favor, and he displays that keen understanding of air navigation which distinguishes his performances from that of many stunt fliers.

His object is to demonstrate the ease with which distance can be annihilated and to encourage greater resort to the use of airplanes in communicating with points which have required much slower transportation. He picks out the shortest favorable line between two points and covers it in remarkably short time, but he does it so easily and successfully as to encourage the belief that if and when he attempts it again there will be a still more favorable report.

MINE SAFETY

How great the need is for constant vigilance is fully illustrated in the case of the recent mine disaster in the state of Ohio. There was a mine which had been rated as non-gaseous for years, a mine which it was believed furnished protection to the workers, and yet there must have existed dangerous conditions or a violation of safety requirements when nearly 100 lives were taken by an explosion.

The explosion occurred at a time when an inspection of the mine was being made by officials of the company and who were numbered among the killed. Thus, it doesn't appear to have been an instance where men were sent to work by officials who feared to accompany them, or who believed danger existed below ground.

As the result of study and experiments, many devices are available today for the protection of miners and the prevention of fires and explosions. Mines are treated with rock dust for the prevention of fire damp, improved ventilation is provided for the benefit of the miners and the reduction of the gas dangers and strict regulations in the use of lights exist. Many are the provisions for safety which are required of mining companies and no small responsibility is placed upon the miners in maintaining conditions and equipment that will operate for their protection as well as that of the mine.

In spite of all that was done at the Ohio mine, something was done or not done. Whether it will ever be possible to determine what the trouble was is a question, but if experts can tell through observation and inquiry it should be learned for the help which it may be in preventing any other disasters of the kind. It is apparent that danger exists in those mines which are rated as safe.

FOREBEARS OF MISCUAMICUT SEAL SPORTED OFF NORWICH WATERFRONT IN '80S

The presence of a seal off Misquamicut beach, R. I., just east of the Connecticut state line, was reported in yesterday's Bulletin. Careful scrutiny of this newspaper's files does not disclose a report of any seals visiting these waters for 39 years previously. The first mention of these animals in eastern Connecticut appears in the form of the following editorial copied from The Bulletin of Feb. 188, 1869:

Don't Kill the Seals—Still another seal has been shot in the Thames river, making three within a few weeks. Once, from the Arctic circle to Cape Horn, the coast abounded with fur and hair seals, and the seal fisheries employed a large number of men, and enriched both them and the owners of their vessels. The more valuable of the two, the fur seal, is now, it is believed, extinct on this coast, and the hair seal soon will be, unless protected by adequate legislation. The seal is absolutely harmless, propagates with considerable rapidity, and if left alone for a few years would so increase that, with proper restrictions, the seal fisheries on the coast would again become a source of revenue and profit.

Often Seen in the 1870's.

During the 1870's The Bulletin mentioned seals off Fishers Island, in Stonington harbor, in the Pawcatuck river and again in the Thames. The entries are as follows:

May 14, 1875—Several seals were seen this week near the east end of Fisher's Island.

December 21, 1875—Two seals were seen off the west end of Fisher's Island Sunday by a party from here who fired at them but without effect. Their appearance on the coast is much more frequent than formerly.

March 12, 1877—A hair seal measuring six feet four inches in length was caught in Stonington harbor last week.

March 15, 1877—A seal about four feet in length was caught in the Pawcatuck river, near River Bend cemetery, one day last week, in a seine, by Capt. Charles Hall.

March 17, 1877—(Saturday)—A seal came up the river as far as the new railroad bridge on Thursday and was seen by a number of people. The rocks in the river seemed to impede its progress and it evidently struck them several times on diving. It came to the surface a number of times, but finally went back down the river. A seal so high up in fresh water is a remarkable circumstance.

Sported in the Shetucket and Thames.

The following three items, covering the period from 1880 to 1891, tell of the playful creatures gamboling about off the Norwich waterfront:

Feb. 26, 1880—A hair seal was shot in the Shetucket river yesterday by Mr. Vose, a metallic pattern maker at the lockshop. It was seen sporting about in the stream some two weeks since and several unsuccessful attempts have been made to capture it. Yesterday noon, while it was sunning on a rock nearly opposite the Page type works, Mr. Vose took his gun and got near enough to give the animal a full charge of buckshot. It worked itself off the rock into deep water and sank to rise no more.

This is the first seal that has been seen in the Shetucket river since five years ago when a young man exploded a gun in attempting to kill one and severely injured his wrist. That should have been a warning against any further attempts at shooting seals. Doubtless it would have been pleasing to a large portion of the people to see the harmless creature sporting in these waters.

Dec. 19, 1885—One or two seals have appeared in the Shetucket river near the car shop. They have been many times shot at, but have escaped being wounded.

Feb. 17, 1891—Monday a seal was seen in the Thames on the rocks south of Thamesville and it will not be strange if he makes his appearance in the Shetucket river during the week. Several years ago two sported in the waters of the Shetucket for many days. These seals have been known to follow rivers 150 miles inland from their mouth.

Last Seen off Stonington Point

The subjoined item completes The Bulletin's record of seals hereabout, prior to the appearance of a specimen off Misquamicut the other day. The item, which appeared in the Bulletin of December 23, 1891, came from the Stonington Point correspondent:

The arrival of seals along our shores denotes that winter is at hand. These equatic animals are growing more abundant every year. They are harmless in their nature and being almost valueless, shooting them can only gratify the caprice of some marksman who could employ his time to much better advantage. They are also quite tame and remain reposing on the rocks undisturbed until a boat is but a few rods away. They are the variety known as the hair seal. Were they provided with a coat of fur their only safety would be in a hasty retreat.

It isn't easy to be patient and it isn't easy to be persistent. Peter Rabbit has found that out more than once. He never realized it more fully than when he tried to find out who the singer in the night in the Green Forest was. Had he not been so very curious he would have given up and never have found out. By nature Peter is neither patient nor persistent, but he has a lot of curiosity and sometimes curiosity is really useful. It all depends on what one is curious about. It may lead to a lot of trouble. On the other hand it may lead to knowledge. Without curiosity we would not get far in this world.

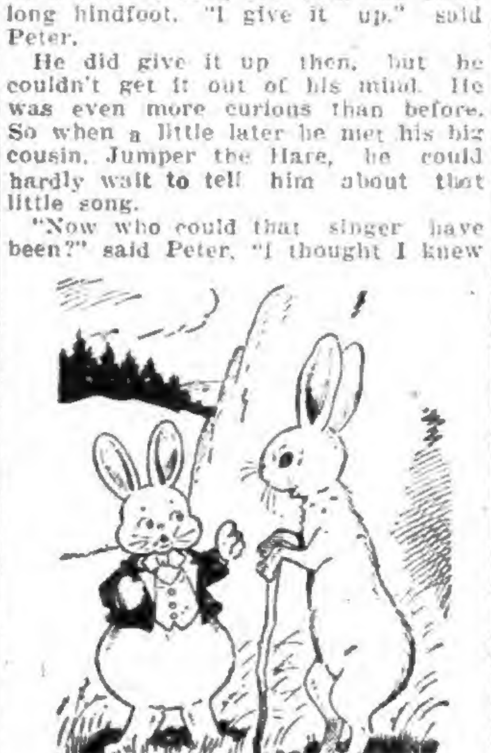
Peter sat very still listening and watching. Three times he heard that fine warbling little song and each time he was sure that it came from somewhere around an old stump which stood in the moonlight a little way from where he sat. But that sound was very hard to place. He couldn't tell whether it came from the stump itself or from among the black shadows that had gathered around the old stump. Each time he was sorely tempted to hop over there, but each time he feared to frighten the singer. So for a long time he sat motionless.

At last Peter could stand it no longer. Slowly, carefully he approached that old stump. He would hop two or three steps, then sit still to look and listen. He saw and heard nothing. Finally he reached the old stump. He went all around it. He hunted through the brush growing near. He found not so much as a single feather. He began to wonder if he had been dreaming, or if his ears had been playing him tricks. If that little singer was hiding it must be in the top of the old stump, which Peter suspected was partly hollow. Of course he couldn't climb up there so he couldn't see into it.

"I'll see if I can scare that fellow," said Peter to himself, and thumped with his long hindfeet as only Peter can thump. Nothing happened. Peter tried it again and still nothing happened. Peter scratched a long ear with a long hindfoot. Then he scratched the other long ear with the other long hindfoot. "I give it up," said Peter.

He did give it up then, but he couldn't get it out of his mind. He was even more curious than before. So when a little later he met his big cousin, Jumper the Hare, he could hardly wait to tell him about that little song.

"Now who could that singer have been?" said Peter, "I thought I knew the songs of all the birds in the green forest, but this was different from any I ever heard before. Have you seen a strange bird over here, Cousin Jumper?"



"You must have been dreaming, Peter."

Jumper shook his head. "No," said he, "I haven't seen a strange bird over here. What is more, I haven't heard one. You know most of the birds have gone south, and none of those that spend the winter here can sing like that. You must have been dreaming, Peter."

"No such thing," declared Peter indignantly. "I wasn't dreaming. I heard it three times as plainly as ever I have heard anything. There must be a strange bird in the Green Forest and I am going to find out who it is."

Jumper yawned. It was plain that he didn't believe that Peter really had heard what he thought he had heard. "I hope you'll find him," said he. "I live in the Green Forest all the time and if there is a stranger here I would be likely to know it. I haven't heard any strange bird singing and I don't believe you have. I think you really were dreaming."

That was all the satisfaction Peter got from Jumper the Hare, and when he finally went home to the dear old briar-patch he was none the wiser in regard to that singer.

"I'll find him yet," declared Peter when he told little Mrs. Peter about it. "I wasn't dreaming. I didn't go to sleep once. I won't give up until I find out who that singer was. No, sir, I won't."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—If the combined Washington-London naval limitation agreements are ever rounded out for full five-power acceptance, this alert and active lad, Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, is going to be largely responsible.

He has been the sparkplug of naval limitation efforts of both the Coolidge and Hoover administrations. He set off every bit of diplomatic fireworks contrived by Washington after the original Washington conference and designed to bring about a full five power understanding.

Coolidge's Wish

It should be recalled by the student of naval limitations efforts that Mr. Coolidge made it clear from the hour he became president that rounding out the Washington treaty was the wish in international affairs nearest his heart.

Only intervention of the Geneva preparatory commission on armaments proceedings led him to delay his calling of the ineffective Geneva three-power gathering as long as he did.

Gibson was the center of American representation at the preparatory commission gatherings. Without reasonable doubt, it was Gibson who said when the time was ripe for the Coolidge naval limitations move.

Quite possibly Gibson set down that failure as the only cloud on an otherwise brilliant diplomatic career. Nobody else ever blamed him that the Bystander recalls, yet Gibson may have blamed himself—and sought to learn from his failure.

At any rate, he has been continuously keeping his nose to that naval limitations grindstone ever since. If all facts were known, it seems likely that much of the credit for the success at London should go to him.

Persistent

Having long known something of Gibson's bulldog complex when he undertakes a task, the Bystander was certain he would not rest while he saw the slightest opportunity or hope of realizing a complete five-power naval understanding before the required conference of 1936 to revise the Washington pact as might be then desirable.

Therefore, it was with no surprise that the Bystander noted the triple effort to bring world opinion to bear on France and Italy which marked the Washington, London and Tokio radio broadcasts incidental to deposit of London pact ratifications.

"Gibson has something up his sleeve," was the Bystander's inner reaction. And Gibson no sooner set foot in Europe—he and his colleague, Minister Hugh Wilson, were a-sailing Europeward on the day of the broadcasts—than he began acting up diplomatically so as to confirm the suspicion.

YOUR HEALTH

What Causes Allergy?

By George L. Waldbott, M. D., Detroit.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The causes of asthma and the other allergic diseases such as hay fever, hives, eczema, etc., are manifold. There is a basic cause, usually inherited, concerning the nature of which we know nothing at present. Some believe that patients afflicted with these diseases show certain chemical changes in their blood, such as too little acid, the presence of certain protein bodies, etc., other investigated the glands of internal secretion, such as thyroid, adrenals, etc., others the lymph glands and related tissues such as tonsils, spleen, and certain liver cells as the seat of the basic cause.

While all these suggestions are merely theory, we often are able to find the immediate exciting causes for an attack of asthma. They are substances that are either inhaled as, for example, dust or smoke, various fumes, perfumes, emanations of animals, horsehair, feathers of any kind, etc., or they are taken into the body through the mouth as practically any kind of food, especially milk, eggs, fish, wheat. They may also be taken into the system by an infection; in other words, germs coming into the body during an infectious disease like measles, or as the result of bad teeth may start an attack of asthma; even a serum that is administered to combat a disease may bring on an attack of hives or asthma in some people who are predisposed to the disease. Drugs such as aspirin, quinine, ipecac often elicit severe attacks in certain individuals. Pyrethrum, a substance present in practically any insect powder is a common source of attacks.

Some asthmatics have attacks only when they go to bed. Their asthma is more than likely brought on by the horse-hair of the mattress, the feathers of the pillow or the wool of the blanket. Others develop asthma only at certain seasons, starting from the 15th to the 23rd of August. Their asthma is usually caused by ragweed, the pollen of which plant matures and becomes suspended in the air just at this time.

How can we prove that all these substances cause asthma? Two doctors in the east, Dr. Walker of Boston and Dr. Cooke of New York, devised the method of skin testing by which causative substances of asthmatic attacks may be detected. They took a small particle of food or hair or of whatever substance for which they wished to test, dissolved it in a certain fluid and applied it to a scratch on the arm. If the patient was sensitive to the particular substance tested for, the wound became reddened and elevated similar to a hive.

Physicians now have prepared extracts of many different substances available, and the tests can be performed on patients in their offices. Frequently through these tests the doctor is enabled to detect satisfactorily the causative substance. However, often they fail to tell the story because in a certain state the allergic patient may not react to the tests. Then a long observation of the patient is necessary. He has to be placed on various diets which may give a clue about the wood which causes attacks. Often long observation of the patient combined with a clever ingenuity on the part of the physician are necessary to find the exciting cause of causes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Political Situation

Mr. Editor: The following is a portion of an editorial appearing in The Hartford Courant in its issue of November 8, 1930:

"We speak not for ourselves alone, but for thousands of republicans who are in a disturbed frame of mind and who have a right to expect a better conduct of the party's affairs than they have been getting. The situation, as we have said, is driving scores of republicans to repudiate their own candidates, and it is preventing independent voters from being attracted to the republican party. We shall see a diminishing republican vote in Hartford unless the resolve is taken to turn over a new leaf, unless unsavory alliances are ended, and unless the self-styled party leaders come to a realization that the members of the party have not lost their capacity to see clearly and think straight.

"Of this nauseating cheapness in the republican politics of Hartford, the feeling is general that we have had quite enough."

Omit "Hartford" and supply "Norwich" and it applies equally to the Norwich republican situation. The entire editorial is worthy of serious thought and reflection.

Husband Had to Do Her Work

"When my baby was a month old, I took a heavy cold and after that I felt miserable. Could not lift anything. My husband had to help me with the housework. I was so weak I could not do a washing. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Kittaning paper and I gave it a good trial. Before I had taken half a bottle, I found the difference. I do all my own work now and I have told others how much this medicine helped me."—Mrs. Alice Bassett, Cadogan, Pennsylvania.

BIRDS' MIGRATION SOUTHWARD IS DUE TO SHORTER DAYS

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Can scientists cause birds to migrate northward instead of south when cold weather comes?

The question is asked in a report to the National Academy of Science by William Rowan of the University of Alberta, and his answer is that certain crows were made to do just that thing.

Dr. Rowan and associates have discovered that neither a warmer climate nor food of the southlands is the trigger that sets birds to flying southward in the fall.

The thing that starts them is the shorter days—that is, less light.

He found that with diminishing light certain organs of reproduction become partly shriveled. Then the birds fly south.

When the days lengthen in springtime these organs grow again and the birds fly north.

Dr. Rowan reversed the seasons on the crows by use of artificial light, giving them the increasing long days of spring as the winter cold came on. He released them and many—though not all—flew north.

Swift feet get a man out of lots of scrapes that his tongue gets him into.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Rockfall Woolen Company, Middletown, Connecticut.

In July 1882, The Allen-Lane company, a Boston commission house, and Joseph Merriam organized this company for the purpose of manufacturing blankets. They bought of Dr. Rufus Baker the building then known as the old North Pistol shop, built by Colonel Simeon E. North in 1814 to make pistols for the United States government. This factory with three tenement houses and 11 acres of land, with the water power of West river, and railroad privileges of the Airline, made this a desirable location for their purposes.

The start was made, with three cards and eight looms on camp goods. The line soon was turned to street horse blankets upon which the company had a successful run for a long period, enlarging their plant to ten sets of cards and 60 looms, with their goods as leaders in the market.

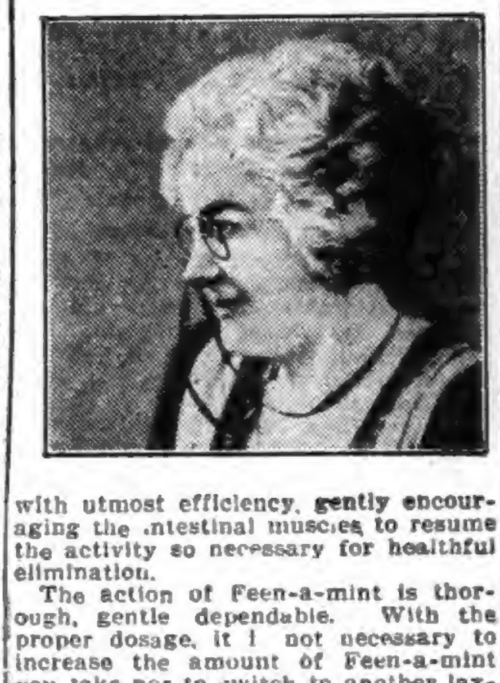
With the advent of the automobile the need of horse blankets has been largely superseded, and they now turn to camp and institution lines.

For these 48 years the house of Allen-Lane company of Boston and New York has continued as selling agents and Joseph Merriam as treasurer.

The other officers are: Bernard F. Merriam, president; Robert W. Merriam, secretary.

No Shock to the System

New laxative safe and dependable for people of all ages . . .



If in your fight against constipation you have been continually increasing your doses—changing from pills to salts and back to pills for relief—you will welcome this interesting discovery of modern science.

Uniform "internal distribution" is now known to be essential to the successful operation of any laxative. It is internal distribution which is the secret of the success of the remarkable laxative known as Feen-a-mint—the modern chewing gum laxative.

Because you chew Feen-a-Mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the QUANTITY swallowed as upon the thoroughness of ITS DISTRIBUTION THROUGHOUT THE AILMENTARY TRACT

While you chew this delicious bit of gum, the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly, without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle dependable. With the proper dosage, it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the HEALTH LAXATIVE. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

Hartford Girl Made Happy

MANY times a child has everything to make her happy and still is dissatisfied. This may not be the youngster's fault. Often it is due to a condition easily corrected.

Take the experience of Mrs. Margaret Newbury, 21 Milford Street, Hartford, Conn. who says: "Nothing seemed to please Helen. She was fretful and feverish, suffered a lot from colds. She was constipated.

"We saw California Fig Syrup advertised and got some. It relieved her trouble promptly; made her bright and happy again. We have used it since then for all her upsets."

Mothers by thousands praise this pure vegetable product. Children love it. Doctors recommend it to relieve constipation, feverishness, fretfulness, headaches; to open the bowels in colds or children's ailments.

Appetite is increased by the use of California Fig Syrup; breath is sweetened; coated tongue is cleared; digestion and assimilation are aided; weak bowels and stomach are strengthened.

For your protection, the genuine always bears the name California.

Many strangers have visited Noank this week, since the rumored marriage of Amelia Earhart and George Palmer Putnam. According to Mr. Putnam, explorer and publisher, he and Miss Earhart, the only woman to cross the Atlantic in an airplane and now vice president of the New York, Philadelphia and Washington Airways, have set no date for their wedding.

Putnam's first wife, Mrs. Dorothy Binney Putnam, obtained a divorce in Reno a year ago and has since remarried. Mr. Putnam has two sons, David Binney Putnam, 17, whose books for boys about exploration trips in which he accompanied his father attained a considerable sale, and George Palmer, Jr.

LEGION POST CONDUCTS NOTABLE OBSERVANCE OF ARMISTICE DAY

A parade of nearly 1,500 men, women and children, impressive exercises at Chelsea parade and a dance at the armory featured the local celebration of Armistice day on Tuesday. The parade and exercises took place in the morning and the dance, free admission, was held at the armory in the evening. The entire observance was held under the auspices of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion. Thousands of persons lined the sidewalks to watch the procession along the line of march and many hundreds thronged Chelsea parade, to participate in the exercises. The weather was ideal.

Six Divisions In Parade.

Captain Meredith Lee was marshal of the procession which was made up of six divisions, and which got away soon after 10 o'clock. The procession formed at Burnham square in the assigned order, and proceeded over the line of march from Burnham square, through Main street to Washington square, up Washington street and to Chelsea parade where the exercises were held. After the exercises the procession again formed and moved down Broadway, through Williams avenue and up Washington street to the platform at the World War Memorial where it was reviewed. The line then moved from Washington street to Broadway and to Union square where the parade was disbanded.

The exercises at Chelsea parade opened with a three minute period of silence, after which the band played America. The invocation was given by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, and the preamble to the constitution of the American Legion was read by Walter T. Clark, commander of R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, A. L.

Armistice Day Address.

Rev. John J. Reilly was the speaker of the day. In part he spoke as follows:

To have a part in this occasion is an inspiration and a tonic, to be the speaker on this occasion brings on timidity for the responsibility of giving proper expression to this affair is very grave and very great.

Today is Armistice day. Today some hearts are lonely, today some hearts are sad, lonely and sad with sentiment, lonely and sad with memories. On this the twelfth anniversary of the cessation of the nightmare known as the "Great World War" some hearts feel a loneliness within themselves, an emptiness born of loss and separation. Gone are friends, gone are buddies, gone too are hopes and high ideals. Today some hearts are disillusioned. War could shatter your dearest friendships, war could kill your dearest friends but peace brought forth what war never could effect. Peace brought forth regret and disillusionment. When hopes are shattered, when ideals are rudely crashed lonely is the heart that held them, sad is the soul that was their host. Twelve years ago today the world made merry; the world had been sick and the world felt cured; the world outdid itself in celebration. For the world was standing there on tiptoe waiting, waiting patiently for peace and peace was still far off. Peace did not come to greet us that day nor on the next nor on the next; peace did not come with the death of war for peace comes not from war or not from peace, not from treaties or not from men, peace comes from God and makes its home in the hearts of men. Regret and disillusionment destroyed the peace that should follow war. Men asked themselves and have been asking ever since some questions. "Was the war worth while?" "Why was I so generous? "And why did I give so much?" These questions never would have had an answer if we did not know that every generous act and every noble deed have their own reward in time or in eternity. Man can do great things; he reaches out and puts a tapeline on the planets; he spans the ocean like a bird; he talks across the limitless spaces of the world but man can never rise to the heights or plunge into the depths to measure one little act of sacrifice and its value in the mind of God. Whatever you may think of the uselessness of war, whatever the politicians, the diplomats and profiteers may make out of war for your consolation and your strength you have this thought that with your sacrifice and with your generosity in the war you placed a "rouge bouquete" on the altar of sacrifice and liberty. And if men were more interested in altars, if men would only gather more around their altars, if the altars of this world were the meeting place of men then men would never feel the sting of war and men would never feel the want of peace for the stones that go to make your altars are the stepping stones from war to peace, from earth to Heaven, from man to God, who is the Prince of Peace.

On days like this orators grow eloquent over the barbarism of war. Orators grow lofty over the blessedness of peace. War however brings us what peace never has been able to produce. War is the greatest leveler mankind has to face. It levels towns, it levels fields, it levels bodies and it levels souls, it levels pride and it levels prejudice. War is first of all most democratic. It is left for peace to grow snobbish and aristocratic. When war has been declared, when the life blood of the nation must be drained, when hardships must be faced, when men are called upon to die and women called upon to give, you are not asked "What have you in your purse?" "What is the color of your blood?" "What is the color of your thought?" "How long have you been here?" "Whence have your ancestors come?" You are asked "What can you do?" And you are told to go ahead and do it. And you go forth to war a hero and a patriot at peace with all save those who are your country's enemies. Then the war comes to a close and you return, not so much a hero, not so much a patriot at peace with your country's enemies, at war with your country's friends. The peace of war gives way to the war of peace. These conditions are brought about because men don't do in peace what they do in war. Love and sacrifice and generosity grow commonplace in war; love and sacrifice and generosity grow strange in time of peace. Of all great hearts the greatest hear is still the heart of a soldier in time of war for that heart wants to contain not only its neighbor, strangers all suffering, wounded and sinful humanity, it wants to contain even God himself.

Never has the love of mankind been so talked of as during the last few years, yet never has man so fiercely desired the good things of this earth. Where this desire knows no limit you have cruelty and envy, hate and war. Love will begin only where man's desire and greed leave off. Men can only love one another as brothers when men acknowledge themselves as sons of the same Father. Outside the love of man for God there can be no bond strong enough to unite them permanently in love. The bonds that pleasure knots are weak, the bonds that self-interest knits are hard. The flower of the love of man for God and the flower of the love of man for man were the flowers of the battlefields—they had their roots in sacrifice and suffering, they drew their nourishment from blood but they endured. It was left for peace to rob them of their loveliness. If we are ever to be rid of war, if our hearts are to be at peace these must be our national flowers, the flower of the love of man for God and the flower of the love of man for man growing up and gracefully entwining themselves about every flag pole in the country.

The spirit of this occasion should be one of gratitude and thanks. We should be grateful our country stood in war the shock all great nations are called upon to face. Wealth and luxury have sickened great civilizations in the past. Material things are said to soften, by them national character is decayed. America was accused of this and her answer was written in letters cold, clearcut, large and luminous on the battlefields of France and in a million American homes. We should be grateful for the possibilities within the American heart. Conditions are not ideal. Americans do not love each other as they should. They loved in war, it remains for them to love each other as much in peace for without this love America and any other nation can have no peace or solidarity. But the possibilities are there; the hearts of this great country are young and big and generous and strong. Finally we should be grateful for the way our God has blessed us materially and spiritually. For the future of our country then our prayer should be a prayer of hope and confidence that our country shall always be a country big of body, big of soul and big of heart. Mindful of the past, of the sacrifices and of the triumphs, conscious of the present, our blessings here and now, the prayer of all Americans should be for all our blessings, for all our benefits, for all our crosses and for all our happiness, thanks, oh, thanks be to God.

The exercises, brief but impressive, were brought to a close with the band playing the Star Spangled Banner.

The thousands that gathered at Chelsea parade were able to hear the speakers as the result of loud speakers being installed. They were placed by Herbert Ferguson and Earl Taggart of the Norwich Gas and Electric department. The microphone was loaned by Ferguson's, while the other instruments were secured from Connecticut college.

Floats In Parade.

Appearing in the procession were five very attractive floats. The American Legion float was arranged with boughs of hemlock and in the center was a large representation of the American Legion emblem, with the words, "American Legion-U. S." The color scheme was gold and blue. C. R. Hoelck, driver, and Leon P. Raymond, were in charge of the float.

Another attractive float was that of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F. The float comprised a large canopy of pink roses, with a dove of peace in the foreground. The Odd Fellows' emblem in gold lettering added to the effect. Riding on the float were Mrs. Alice Metcalf, noble grand of Hope Rebekah lodge, Miss Ethel Whitmarsh, vice grand, Mrs. Mary Green, district president; and three past noble grands, Mrs. Amy Coles, Mrs. Ora Spencer, and Mrs. Mary Dodd. Leon Taylor, of Shetucket lodge, was the driver.

The float entered by Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, No. 16, portrayed "The Great Mother, W. R. C." Ten members of the corps, in costume rode on the truck which was decorated in white rose petals. Those who rode on the truck and the parts they portrayed were: Mrs. Harry Bjurstrom, in white, as the Great Mother; Mrs. Maud Moody, Mrs. Vennie Wilson, and Mrs. Florence Dean, as the daughters, Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty; Mrs. Moody was costumed in red, Mrs. Wilson in white and Mrs. Dean in blue; Mrs. Jayne Seed as Uncle Sam; Miss Florence Seed as Liberty. The color bearers, in white, with sashes of red, white and blue, were Mrs. Annie Turner, Mrs. Clara Burke, Mrs. Mary Austin and Mrs. Louise Nelson. Louis Pingalori was the driver. The committee in charge of the decorations was Mrs. Grace Fowler, chairman, Mrs Lena Christman, Mrs. Gertrude Tootill, Mrs. Hazel Hadley, and the Misses Harriet, Charlotte and Marion Fowler.

The float entered by the Norwich Christian Temperance union was arranged in laurel and evergreen with white bows and in the center was an American flag, and a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The women riding on the float were gowned in white. Those who appeared on the float were: Mrs. A. T. Lewis, Mrs. Harold Johnson, Mrs. L. P. Hall, Mrs. R. M. Harding, Agnes Stone, Arline Ortmann, Frances Stone, Edward Ellsworth, Charles Stone, Betty Ortmann, Perry Coles, George Ellsworth, Louise Ellsworth, Charles Dziomba, Gavin Pitt, and Nelson R. Packer. Peter Dodaire was the driver. James Ortmann on his red, white and blue decorated bicycle accompanied the float.

The remaining float was that of the Norwich Merchants bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce. This float carried six foot reproductions of the Victory medal. A soldier, sailor, marine and a Red Cross nurse, all in uniform, appeared on the float. Across the medal appeared the words, For God and Country. Miss Margaret Reed was the Red Cross nurse, and the others were: Vincent LaRochelle, U. S. marine corps, submarine base, John A. Hein, U. S. N., submarine base, and Ernest LePage, Battery B, 192nd F. Leading the second division were the massed colors of the Boy Scouts of America, with St. Patrick's church Boy Scout drum corps, followed by the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, who made a fine showing, having about 150 of the boys and 180 of the girls in line.

Third Division

The Norwich Rotary boy's band, of 35 members in their brilliant uniforms led the third division in which marched members of Norwich A. H. E. P. A., a Greek organization, whose members wore fezzes and carried canes. After them came the Society Terlizzessi, an Italian organization, and Sebequonash council, Degree of Pocahontas, who were in white with purple sashes and head bands. A large flag was carried by eight of the members.

Norwich Chapter, No. 124, Women of Mooseheart Legion, marched in their royal purple satin coats and white satin skirts, white shoes and stockings. The degree team which is the guard of honor for the chapter, with Captain Teresa Watters in white satin uniform and white shoes and stockings, as color bearers, was led by Senior Regent Margaret Cormier. At the head of the chapter were four of the Mooseheart Junior Legion members, with Wilfred Larivier as color bearer and Ellsworth Watters as banner bearer and Mildred Carter and Mildred Hoelck honor guards. The chapter members were led by Mrs. Marie La Valle.

Dance Closes Celebration

The Armistice day celebration came to a close with a mammoth dance at the armory in the evening. Fully 2,000 people attended the dance, there being no admission charge, and the programme was furnished by the Ideal Radio orchestra. It was about the largest crowd that ever thronged the armory and the dance programme, starting at 8:30, lasted until midnight.

The soft drink stand and candy booths did a thriving business throughout the evening. The parade and exercises were in charge of a general committee of which Charles B. Gilbert was the chairman. The other members of the committee were Harry L. Lathrop, Dr. Thomas F. O'Neil and John L. Bennett. The dance committee was Everett Morrill, chairman; Elmer Farnham, Patrick McMahon, Joseph Daley and Herman Hilderbrand.

PARADE NOTES

TWO MANSLAUGHTER CASES BEFORE CITY COURT

Two manslaughter cases arising from automobile accidents will be presented in the city court this (Wednesday) morning.

City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy will present the manslaughter charge against Lucien A Comtois of Danielson, against whom Coroner McKay has found criminal liability for reckless speed in an accident on Sept. 15 at Taftville when Lucien E. There will also be a manslaughter charge against Edward Cormier of Hartford for the death of Philip Cormier of Framingham on Oct. 21 when the machine the Hartford man was driving hit a pole at Norwich Town. The finding by Coroner McKay was that the accused man had made a visit in Greeneville where he had had a drink of intoxicating liquor and was under the influence of liquor at the time of the crash.

PROGRAMME BY GIRL SCOUTS FOR WOMAN'S CLUB

A snappy programme given by the Norwich Girl Scouts in their first appearance before an audience made an interesting feature to follow the business meeting of the Woman's City club Tuesday evening in the Wauregan hotel ballroom.

This was the second business meeting of the season and was called to order at 8 o'clock by the president, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert. The report of the secretary, read by Mrs. James J. 1,300 PULLETS START IN EGG LAYING RACE

The twentieth annual test at Storrs got under way on November 1st, the regular starting date for the last nineteen years. From every point of the compass came 1300 highly selected, well-groomed pullets ready for the race that will continue for the next 51 weeks.

These birds arrived in well nigh perfect condition. Nearly half of them were personally conducted to the trial grounds by their owners. On the other hand pens were obliged to travel more than 3,000 miles by train and by steamer. One group was precisely two weeks in making the journey. In spite of these long distances the birds were right on their mark ready to go.

With one exception the same general rules obtain as in previous contests. The new regulation provides that the eggs not only be counted but that they be weighed and scored. Under this new plan a pullet will be credited with one (1) point for each egg that averages 24 ounces to the dozen and proportionately more or less for each egg over or under standard weight.

Geographically there are twenty different states and three countries represented in the entry list. There is one pen each from Maine, Vermont, Virginia, Ohio, Illinois Missouri, Minnesota, Oregon, California, and Washington; there are two pens each from New Hampshire, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, and England; three each from Canada and Rhode Island, six from Pennsylvania, seven from New Jersey, 13 from New York state, 22 from Massachusetts, and 26 from Connecticut.

By breeds there are 13 Jersey Giants, 39 Austra'orps, 65 White Wyandottes, 169 White Rocks, 152 Barred Rocks, 864 Rhode Island Reds, and 468 White Leghorns, making a total of 1,300 birds. There are 100 pens of thirteen birds each, the ten highest of which constitute the competing group.

The outstanding feature of the first week's performance is the fact that four Connecticut breeders set the pace. Under the new regime it is not so easy to say which is which but in conformity with the rules adopted by other contests the breeder ranks ahead whose hens outlay by weight instead of by count.

Donald I. Goodnough's pen of Reds from Torrington was rated first with a tally of 62 eggs that scored 60 points. Harold G. Colt's pen of the same breed from West Hartford was second with 61 eggs and 59 points. Still a third pen of Reds owned by Norman W. Amidon of Abington, was third with 56 points although these birds in laying 63 eggs outstriped the other two insofar as numbers only are concerned. A. E. Anthony & Son of Mansfield were fourth with a pen of Leghorns that laid 59 eggs for a count of 54 points.

The first week's production for all pens totalled 3126 eggs or a yield of 44.7 per cent, a loss of 103 eggs as compared with the first week's yield a year ago. The total points scored was 2695 which means that these pullets in their first week's lay yielded eggs that were within 14 per cent of the standard set up for a high grade fancy product. Not a bad beginning.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes; Ebenwood Farm, W. Bridgewater, Mass. 50; The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn. 21.

White Rocks; Davidson Bros., Upton, Mass. 48; Kalerok Farm, Westford, Mass. 46; E. A. Hirt, So. Weymouth, Mass. 43.

Barred Rocks; James Dryden, Modesto, Cal. 54; Spg. Bk. P. Farm., So. Wethersfield, Ct. 53; Lewis Farms, Davisville, R. I. 45.

Rhode Island Reds; Donald I. Goodenough, Torrington, Ct. 62; Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn. 61; Norman W. Amidon, Abington, Conn. 63; Homestead Farms, Newtown, Conn. 59.

STOCK PRICES CLOSED 1 TO 4 POINTS HIGHER IN AN ERRATIC MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—An armistice in the hammer-and-tongs selling of stocks gave the market a chance to recover its breath and part of its losses today.

With a technical recovery, some of which failed to hold, prices closed 1 to 4 higher. The average advance of 2 points was the largest since Oct. 24. It embraced virtually the entire list, with the exception of the amusement shares and some of the rails.

Although the market gave evidence that at least a temporary climax had been reached in short selling and liquidation, its movement throughout the active session was erratic. Monday's rally carried through the opening, but this advance was surrendered before noon under an attack against the motion picture stocks and two or three popular investment issues, notably American Telephone and National Biscuit. Early in the afternoon, pressure was again lifted and shorts covered with some haste, pushing quotations up 1 to 6 points. Part of this gain was lost before the close.

The softening of prices in the late trading coincided with a report that steel operations had declined 4 per cent in the past week. This estimate placed the operating ratio at slightly above 42 per cent and when it was published U. S. Steel, which had climbed to 142 3-4, slid back to 141 1-8, where it closed, up 1 1-8.

The Chicago grain market was closed for the holiday, so that Wall street had to depend on Winnipeg for its wheat news. Futures there lost 3 to nearly 4 cents a bushel. Cotton in New York rose 60 to 80 cents a bale net. Bonds were slightly steadier, but irregular.

Weakness of American Telephone and National Biscuit was cut back to the pattern followed by the market before the most recent general break, when special stocks were singled out. On the afternoon advance, Telephone recovered 4 points of its 5-point break and Biscuit made full recovery of a 2-point loss before slipping back at the close.

Wall street's theory that much of the selling has been liquidation of security loans by banks, especially "country" institutions, lacked confirmation in the federal reserve member banks' condition statement, which revealed a $24,000,000 gain in that item contrasted with declines of the past month. The increase, however, could be attributed to borrowing for the month end and was not taken as an indication of a change in trend.

Industrial stocks made the best showing of the day. Westinghouse, General Electric, American Can, General Motors and U. S. Steel strongly resisted the spasmodic selling elsewhere. Fox Film tumbled 4 points and closed near the bottom. Warner Brothers reached a new low. Baltimore & Ohio, Illinois Central, Rock Island and New Haven were soft. Atchison, New York Central, Southern railway and Pennsylvania rallied vigorously, although final prices were under the best.

Allied Chemical's extreme gain of 8 points was reduced to 2. American Can, DuPont, General Electric, General Motors, Johns Manville, Standard Oil of N. J., American Power & Light, Consolidated Gas and United Corp. were up 1 to 2 net, while Detroit Edison and Peoples Gas rallied more than 6 each. Coca Cola, Case and Auburn Auto closed 4 points higher. Coppers were firm on reports that progress was being made toward a reduction of output. The day's total sales were 2,334,020 shares, more than a million under yesterday's volume, but above the recent average.

Foreign exchanges, again irregular, were featured by easiness of the French franc, which had been near the gold export point. Sterling was firm.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The tone of the bond market was slightly improved today as best grade domestics again reflected the firming influence of easy money rates.

Industrials, however, reached a new year's low in the averages and a lower trend dominated the foreign section. Governments held at the high level of the year.

Selling was less pronounced, the load being lightened by the mild rally that developed in the share market.

Industrial corporation bonds now are selling at the lowest level in several years. The average for 10 industrials dropped today to 90.3, which compares with a year's high of 94.9 and 91.3 a year ago when drastic declines were precipitated by the panic.

Investment inquiry influenced a broad rally in a few railroad bonds. Baltimore & Ohio 5s D, Atchison general 4s, St. Paul 5s of 1975, and the adjustment 5s of 2000, Erie 5s of 1975, Missouri Pacific general 4s, New York Central 3 1-2s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4 1-2s, Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, Oregon Line, were rails showing marked improvement. Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s, Canadian Northern 4 1-2s, Lehigh Valley 4s, New York Central 4s, were off a point or more. Most of the rail group showed fractional changes with a slight majority on the constructive side.

Cincinnati Gas & Electric 4s were an active feature of the utility group, sagging 3-8. American Telephone bonds fluctuated narrowly. Philadelphia Co. gold 5s sold off 3-4 and North American Edison reacted fractionally. California Gas & Electric 5s attained a new year's peak.

National Dairy 5 1-4s, one of the high grade industrial group which is widely held, was steadier after dipping a point in the previous session.

Stock privilege issues dipped into new low ground during the morning but firmed with the upturn in equity issues, although some failed to participate in the recovery. General Theatres 6s closed 1 1-4 lower at a new year's low. Atchison 4 1-2s and American Telephone 4 1-2s were fractionally higher, and a broad rally developed in Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron 6s. The bond closed at 85, a gain of 2 5-8 on the day.

Prices of Latin-Americans continued to sag and the trend of Europeans was irregularly lower. Bolivian 7s dipped 2 5-8, Chile Mortgage Bank 6s, and Peru 2nd 6s, 2 points each, and Sao Paulo State bonds were generally lower. German bonds were the market leaders, the 7s holding steady but the International 5 1-2s lost 5-8. They sold at 74 1-8, only 5-8 above the year's low.

The second membership of George A. Garrett in the New York Cotton exchange has been sold for $18,000, an increase of $500 over the previous sale.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—(AP)—Treasury receipts for November 8 were $8,174,112.63; expenditures $18,140,201.02; balance $143,187,535.28.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Utility shares rallied vigorously in today's curb market, after a further period of unsettlement during the earlier hours of the session.

Some of the oils and industrials also made fair recovery, but the lightly traded issues were again irregularly lower. The day's turnover aggregated 804,800 shares.

American Gas & Electric recovered 5 points. Electric Bond & Share closed 2 higher. Insull Utility Investment gained 2 points in active trading but Middle West closed off 1-8, and Midland Utilities lost 3 in a small turnover. Associated Gas A recovered about 2 points, and United Light A 1 point. American Super Power gained 1-2 in active trading. In the high priced group, Commonwealth Edison rallied 6 and Duke Power 10 in a few transactions.

In the oils, Cities Service moved up more than a point, closing at 18 1-2. The preferred gained 2 1-2. Arkansas Natural Gas A, controlled by Cities Service, also gained a point. Humble Oil and Vacuum gained about 2 points, and the Standards generally were firm. Nebraska lost 3 in a light turnover, but Ohio gained as much and Indiana after touching a new low at 35 1-8, closed at 36 3-8, up 3-8 net. Nebraska was firm, and Imperial gained a point. Pacific Western rallied 1 3-4.

The copper shares were firmer, reflecting further unofficial reports that producers were making progress with a world-wide curtailment plan. Noranda and Hudson Bay improved fractionally, and Newmont sold up more than a point. In the more active industrial issues, Diamond Match gained 2, and Deere nearly 4. Columbia Pictures, however, declined more than 2 to a new low, in sympathy with weakness in the amusements on the big board. Ford of Canada A gained a point, but Ford, Ltd., slipped back a fraction.

In the holding and investment company group, United Founders slipped off to 9 1-8, a new low, but closed at 9 3-4, off only 1-8. Goldman Sachs dropped 1 1-2 to a new low at 7 1-2 and closed at 8. Utility and Industrial, and Ungerleider Financial gained about a point each.

COAST GUARD ACADEMY SPENDS IN YEAR $738,708 IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 11—According to a report issued at the United States Coast Guard academy today that branch of the federal service expended $738,708 in New London during the fiscal year, just concluded. Of the total expenditure, $573,491 went for wages of cadets, officers and men and $167,217 was paid for supplies and repairs. The amount included $67,217 for foodstuffs used by the general mess. At present the amount expended monthly for foodstuffs is $3,000 and all of this money is spent in New London.

A gun, weighing 57½ tons, was brought to this port today by one of the lighters of the R. C. Davidson company, from Fishers Island. Tomorrow the gun will be transferred from the lighter and put aboard a flat car of the New Haven railroad and forwarded to the government arsenal at Watertown, N. Y.

VINCENT HANCOCK HEARING SET FOR THIS AFTERNOON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 11—The hearing of Vincent Hancock, alleged New Jersey rum-runner, who was arrested here a week ago at the request of the New Jersey federal authorities on charges of smuggling and conspiracy to defraud the federal government, will be held before United States Commissioner Russell H. Corcoran tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Hancock is at liberty on bail of $5000, furnished by Louis Elfenbein, of this city and at the request of Louis Hallee, prominent New York maritime attorney. Hancock, according to his own admission had been sought for several years by the police and federal officers of New Jersey. He is reputed to be one of a gang of a liquor ring, who have supervised the transportation of liquor brought into a New England port by boat and then transferred to trucks and transported to New Jersey. The arrest of Hancock was the result, it is said, of his having been in New London for such a purpose. He had been in this city on at least two different occasions within a week. On his first visit, Hancock left the day after a request for his arrest was received by the local police. No trace of the man was found until several days later when he returned to New London and was observed by Automobile Officer Elwood Bailey driving on Broad street with his wife and child. At the time Hancock said that he was enroute to Hartford. Mrs. Hancock and child continued in the automobile and Hancock was locked up at police headquarters. He was a prisoner but about four hours when Attorney Hallee communicated with the New London bondsman and Hancock was released. Immediately following obtaining his liberty, Hancock went to New Jersey and has been there since, so far as is known here.

Many New Londoners motored to Norwich today where they witnessed the Armistice day parade.

The former Bronstein building, corner of Pearl and Green streets, which has been badly in need of repair, is being given the attention of carpenters and painters and already is improved in appearance. The building, which is of wood and of three stories, has been unoccupied for many months, excepting for one or two stores on the ground floor. All of the tenements have not been occupied for more than a year.

But one arrest was made by the police during the past 24 hours. A sailor, stationed at the submarine base, was locked up by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty this evening, more for his own safety than anything else, when the bluejacket was found roaming aimlessly about North Bank street. Later he was turned over to a shore patrol and taken back to the base.

BISCONTI BOY STRUCK BY POLICE AUTOMOBILE

Jerry Bisconti, 619 Bank street, aged 14, was hit by one of the police automobiles this evening, but did not sustain serious injury. The boy was on Truman street and was pushing a bicycle. The automobile entered Truman street driven by Automobile Patrol Officer William Corocran. The boy walked in front of the auto and was knocked down. He was taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital where an examination showed that Bisconti had sustained a slight injury to his knee and minor bruises. The boy was taken to his home by his parents.

Think Sailors Took Car

An automobile owned by Edwin Davis, 14 Home street, was stolen this evening and it is believed that the thieves are two sailors. The car was parked in front of the owner's home and about 7:30 o'clock Davis discovered it missing. He reported the theft at police headquarters and the state police and departments throughout the state were requested to be on the lookout for the car. A short time later Davis notified the police that the auto had been seen headed for the Hartford turnpike and occupied by two sailors. The car is an Oakland convertible coupe and painted light tan. It carries Connecticut registration, 10522.

The members of the New London police department, who were in the World war, celebrated Armistice day last night with a turkey supper in the police gymnasium, Cronin bldg. The members comprise for the most part the middle platoon and with their reporting off duty at 11:30 o'clock they adjoined to the gymnasium where the repast was awaiting them.

Ole P. Jensen, 20, arrested in Milford last night on a charge of manslaughter as a result of the automobile he was driving hitting and almost instantly killing an unidentified pedestrian, is a son of Johan H. Jensen, a contractor, residing at 83 Lower Boulevard.

The November meeting of the League of Coste Guard Women was held yesterday afternoon at the Coast Guard academy. The following officers were elected: Chairman, Mrs. H. G. Hamlet; vice chairman, Mrs. Q. B. Newman; secretary, Mrs. J. F. Merriman, Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. F. W. Brown; chairman welfare committee, Mrs. H. H. Wolf; chairman of finance, Mrs. D. P. Marvin; publicity chairman, Mrs. C. H. Peterson. Mrs. Francis Deillenkoffer, was presented a week end case in appreciation of what she has accomplished in welfare work.

ANDREW REVANTI PATIENT AT NORWICH STATE HOSP.

Today it was revealed that the youth who threatened to end his life by drowning in the Thames river last night was Andrew Recanti of Smith street, of the Fort Neck section, who is mentally unbalanced. Recanti is now a patient at Norwich State hospital, Preston, where he was taken by relatives late last night. Today it developed that the youth, who rowed from Fort Neck early last evening when he was informed by his parents that he was to be taken to the hospital, had rowed to mid-stream of the Thames river and had allowed the boat to drift when near the Atlantic Coast Fisheries. When rescuers endeavored to induce the youth to enter one of the pursuing boats, Recanti would drop over the side of his boat, but would always cling to the craft. Believing that if the rescuers were persistent in their efforts, Recanti would release his hold and sink, the rescuers rowed away from the boat of which the youth was the sole occupant. Finally the young man rowed to the Groton shore and when he reached the highway, the rescuers rowed ashore and took charge of him. Arrangements were made without delay to cause the mentally unbalanced youth to be committed to the State hospital.

POETRY

The Looters

Oh, we ust t' go a-nuttin'—seems it wasn't long ago—
When th' leaves began t' crackle an'
th' chilly winds t' blow,
An' there ust t' be a grove, I've been a-wonderin', somehow,
Who is swipin' Ezra Perkins' butternuts in Autumn now.

Me an' Iky Brown an' Stubby Jones
were Johnnys-on-th'-spot,
Waitin' 'round till Mister Perkins went
t' meetin', like as not;
An' we down across th' pasture an' we
up along th' road,
An' I 'allow who took his butternuts ol'
Ezra never knowed.

Don't know where he is—ol' Ezra — mebby livin' mebby dead;
But I've always sort o' felt as though there should be somethin' said
'Bout th' thievin' of his nut crop. Still,
I reckon, if he lives
An' has ever sloved th' mystery, ol' Ezra, he forgives.

Or it may be up in Heaven on a patch
o' holy ground
Ezra's got a grove o' trees, an' on 'em
butternuts abound;
An' I reckon God has built around 'em mighty walls o 'stones
Fer t' keep away sech rogues as Ikey
Brown an' Stubby Jones.

—By Larry Flint.

Inspiration

If with light head erect I sing,
Though all the Muses lend their force,
From my poor love of anything,
The verse is weak and shallow at its source.

But if with bended neck I grope
Listening behind me for my wit,
With faith superior to hope,
More anxious to keep back than forward it—

Making my soul accomplice there
Unto the flame my heart hath lit,
Then will the verse forever wear—
Time can not bend the line which God hath writ.

I hearing get, who had but ears,
And sight, who had but eyes before;
I moments live, who lived but years,
And truth discern, who knew but learning's lore.

Now chiefly is my natal hour,
And only now my prime of life;
Of manhood's strength it is the flower,
'T is peace's end, and war's beginning strife.

It comes in summer's broadest noon,
By the gray wall, or some chance place,
Unseasoning time, insulting June,
And vexing day with its presuming face

I will not doubt the love untold
Which not my worth nor want hath bought,
Which wooed me young, and wooes me old,
And to this evening hath me brought.

—Henry David Thoreau.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

If he says John Bunny had it all over the present-day movie comedians, he's getting on in years.—Buffalo News.

Old Lady (witnessing tug-of-war for the first time)—"Wouldn't it be simpler, dear, for them to get a knife and cut it?"—Boston Transcript.

"I hear their engagement was broken off through a misunderstanding."

"Yes, he understood she had money and she understood he had."—Exchange.

"In time of trial," inquired the speaker, "what brings us the greatest comfort?"

"An acquittal," interrupted a man at the back of the hall.—Christian Evangelist.

Doctor—How is it the little boy is not suffering from food poison if his father and mother are ill?

Boy—I was naughty yesterday and had to go to bed without supper.—Kasper.

Bridegroom—There's a bit of a hitch, dear.

Actress Bride—Why, what happened, George?

Bridegroom—The fellow I arranged to come along to steal the presents says he wouldn't take them away as a gift—London Opinion.

"When I order poultry from you again for Sunday's dinner," said the man who quarrelled with his fish and game dealer, "I don't want you to send me any more of those airplane chickens."

"What kind do you mean?" asked the dealer.

"The sort that are all wings and machinery and no meat," said the man.—Home Topics.

The conjurer's turn had not been going any too well. The audience received each trick in stony silence.

Not to be daunted, however, he stuck steadily to his task.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, "if any person will oblige me with an egg, I will perform an amazing disappearing trick."

Nobody seemed able to produce the article and after a momentary silence a voice called from the gallery:

"If anybody 'ere 'ad an egg you'd 'ave got it long ago."—Montreal Star.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Now playing at the Palace theatre is one of the fastest and most interesting double feature bills yet to be offered in this city, thrills, heart throbs, humor and pathos, all combined to bring one the most entertainment, headed by "A Soldiers Plaything." Vina Delmar, one of the most widely read of modern writers, wrote the original story and hit upon a brand new idea when she originated this comedy drama of a youn American doughboy and the little German girl; the story takes place in New York, France, and finally in Coblenz, Germany. The featured players are Lotti Loder, Ben Lyon, Harry Langdon and Noah Berry. The co-feature on this great bill is Danger Lights, the first thriller of the rails to be brought to the talkies—The shriek of a locomotive whistle sounds in the distance, an automobile driver stops at a railroad crossing. He looks to the left—but almost before he can turn his head a train thunders by.

A railroad semaphore projects horizontally as the train enters the block but before it gets settled it rises again to indicate that the next mile is clear.

Speed, delirious speed, whats all the rush quiries the auto driver. Cut, calls the director, as the cameras are stopped. It was Robert Armstrong feature player, and this is what is in store for the patrons of the Palace theatre for that is what makes up this great picture, speed, thrills, throbs and romance, featuring Louis Wolheim, Robert Armstrong, and Jean Arthur.

Broadway Theatre.

Epochal days in development of a great industry in the virgin territory of Alaska are depicted in "The Silver Horde," Radio Pictures' two-fisted romantic drama, which opens today at the Warner Bros.' Broadway theatre for an engagement of three days.

The terrific struggle of Rex Beach's famous characters is brought for the first time to the talking screen in a gripping and fascinating manner with Evelyn Brent, Louis Wolheim, Joel McCrea, Raymond Hatton, Jean Arthur, Blanche Sweet and Gavin Gordon in the leading roles.

EVELYN BRENT in "THE SILVER HORDE"

Filmed in Alaska, above the clouds in snow-capped mountains, along trap-lined rivers and below the surface of salmon-infested waters, the action is sweeping in its magnitude.

Every phase of the salmon industry, from the time the fish start their "runs" to spawning grounds to the time they emerge from canneries in tins, is shown as a background to one of the most colorful red-blooded romances of modern fiction.

New Chevrolet Car.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 10—Definite assurance that Chevrolet will introduce a new car for 1931 on Saturday was revealed here today during the staging by Chevrolet factory officials of the first of 50 dealer meetings to be held in the next five weeks throughout the country.

Included in a carload of equipment brought in for the meeting was a new car substantially bigger than the current model, and extensively changed in appearance.

Although the meeting was closed to the public, it was learned that H. J. Klingler, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., who attended the meeting here, told the 500 dealers and associated bankers in attendance at the City Auditorium that the car would be publicly announced the coming Saturday, and that, despite its increased size and improved appearance, it would be priced considerably below current levels.

Dramatic incidents attended the presentation of the car. It was trucked under canvas from the freight shed to the stage of the auditorium, and there, boxed in by velvet drops and under a flood of spotlights, disclosed to the audience.

A burst of applause greeted the unveiling of the car, and when the announcement of new lower prices was made, a wild cheering dealer group interrupted proceedings for several minutes.

The car is longer than the present Chevrolet, and changes and refinements are so extensive that it has a decided "big car" appearance, one dealer reported.

If the sentiment among the dealers here is any criterion, the new car ought to prove the most successful product in the history of the company.
